NEWTON COUNTY - A head-on collision in the early hours of New Year's day has left one man dead and several others injured.

According to a crash report, a 2015 Black BMW traveling South on Hwy. 212 veered over the center lane and struck a 2011 Dodge RAM traveling North head on.

Following the collision, the RAM continued northbound leaving the roadway and coming to an "uncontrollable rest" 70.7 feet away from the impact zone. The BMW swerved between the southbound and northbound lanes before leaving the roadway before coming to an "uncontrollable rest against a fence facing eastbound."

A photo submitted to The Covington News shows first responders responding to the crash, as well as a significant amount of debris from the vehicles.

The driver of the BMW, Carlous A. Dinnall of McDonough, was entrapped in the vehicle and died at the scene, according to the report. He was 51.

Local, state officials attend annual prayer breakfast

By PHILLIP B. HUBBARD

To conclude the first week of the new year, several gathered at Turner Lake Recreational Complex for the annual community prayer breakfast.

In the presence of local city and county officials, an attorney from Suwanee, Georgia, Cornel Potra told the story of how he escaped Romania — a former communist country — at 24 years old.

After listening to Potra's story, all attendees gave a standing ovation. Then, judge Samuel Ozburn came to the podium and shared the significance of having the annual prayer breakfast for around 19 years.

"This prayer breakfast, if you think about it, is the only event that we have in this county where the entire community can sit down, have fellowship together and pray for each other," Ozburn said. "No partisan agenda, no division, no competition just lifting each other up unified, One Newton."

As the prayer breakfast's special speaker, Potra relayed his testimony. Parts of his testimony were given via a press release to The Covington News.

"Prior to his successful escape, he was caught several times and was imprisoned and sentenced to forced labor. Due to his Christian faith and continued refusal to compromise his religious and political views, he and his family were subjected to death threats and prison time. However, such pressures did not deter Cornel from wanting to be free and trying to escape communism," a press release stated. "In August 1988, he attempted [to] escape again and succeeded. After one year in a refugee camp in Austria, he was granted political asylum. In June 1989, he came to the United States of America as a free man. In August 1989, Cornel married Kristina. Together, they have five beautiful children and one grandchild. Since 2001, they are both practicing attorneys at their law firm in Gwinnett County. They are thankful and blessed to live in one of the most blessed countries in the world."

Each year, the prayer breakfast is co-hosted by either the Rotary Club of Covington or Kiwanis Club. Rotary Club was this year's

Council deliberates during board comments

By EVAN NEWTON
News Editor

COVINGTON, Ga. - Members of the Covington city council deliberated over a number of topics during the board comment portion of their latest meeting.

During the Jan. 2 meeting, West Post 2 representative Charika Davis initiated the conversation by expressing some concerns she had over an array of topics.

Davis first shared concerns on properties being built in the West with work permits, citing the West Street Community Church, in particular. She asked what the process is in enforcing work done on properties.

"When I walked by, I noticed that they were working with no permit and they had like a light dangling from the ceiling, and I didn't see anything showing that they had any type of permit," Davis said. "I really just wanted to know, how are we monitoring this besides people calling to tell us that they're working with no permit?"

City manager Tres Thomas stated that a stop work order was put in place for the specific apartment complex that Davis mentioned, while also providing some insight on the enforcement process.

"Anytime we learn of illegal activity, code enforcement will go out to the site, investigate and, if need be, we'll [the city] do the same," Thomas said. "[We will] issue a stop work order until all of the items have been resolved."

Planning and development director Judy Johnson also clarified that code enforcement officers do regular inspections and that several builders have been issued stop work orders as a result of those inspections.

Davis also took issue with the city's lack of movement on grant applications, asking where the city stood on applying for grants such as the Community Home Investment Program (CHIP), the Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) grant and the youth homelessness grant.

After consulting with various parties, Thomas said that it was in the best interest of the city to hold off on applying for the grants, as the submission process requires a considerable amount of work.

"A lot of these grants, believe it or not, take a lot of work upfront," Thomas said. "You have to have a plan in

Brown elected treasurer of GPLSI advisory council

STAFF REPORT
news@covnews.com

In the month of December, Sheriff Ezell Brown was elected to serve as the Treasurer on the Georgia Military College's (GMC) inaugural Georgia Public Safety Leadership Institute (GPSLI) Advisory Council. The GPSLI Advisory Council met for the first time on Dec. 13, 2023, at GMC's Main Campus in Milledgeville, Ga.

Sheriff Brown will serve on the GPSLI Advisory Council alongside fellow council members Julie Bradley, P.O.S.T. Director of Operations; Mark Scott, Chief of Americus and President of Georgia Association of Chiefs of Police; Bill Mas-see, Baldwin County Sheriff; and Randy Robertson, State Senator. The Council's mission is to guide and shape the future of GMC's groundbreaking public safety initiative.

GPSLI, housed under GMC's Corps of Cadets, was designed to provide aspiring public safety professionals with the tools, skills and knowledge needed to succeed in the law enforcement field. The program offers a comprehensive curriculum that combines hands-on training with theoretical foundations, ensuring graduates are prepared to face the challenges of the industry.

Graduates will not only be mandated as peace officers and obtain P.O.S.T. Certification in the State of Georgia upon successful completion of the program but they will obtain an associate degree in Criminal Justice.

rotation to host, but each club had several of its members present for the occasion.

Kiwanis Club's president judge Melanie Bell was present along with Rotary Club's president Lauren Poynter, who led the event.

Poynter's welcome to the event was followed by an opening prayer. People present then enjoyed a Chick-fil-A breakfast followed by an introduction of Potra.

Ozburn then addressed the crowd with a Bible verse – Genesis 1:27, "So God created mankind in his own image, in the image of God he created them; male and female he created them."

"We are all image bearers," Ozburn said. "Being created in the image of God gives all men and women deep value. Those who bear God's image should not be treated with disrespect. You mistreat or disrespect an image bearer then you disrespect God. Now I want you to look around you. Each person here is an image bearer."

Over 50 people showed up to the event with many notable faces in attendance.

State senator Brian Strickland attended along with Newton County Board of Commissioners chairman Marcello Banes and District 3 representative Alana Sander as well as county manager Harold Cooper.

Marcus Jordan, Newton County tax commissioner, was in attendance. Newton County sheriff Ezell Brown was also present.

City of Covington mayor Fleeta Baggett attended the event along with West Post 1 representative Kim Johnson. City of Porterdale mayor Michael Patterson attended, too, as well as the executive director of the Newton County Industrial Development Authority, Serra Hall.

Before the breakfast came to an official close, Ozburn encouraged everyone in attendance with a special message for 2024.

"At this unique occasion today, let us appreciate our lights together. Let us exercise our valuable rights with respect for each other. By doing this, our community will be stronger. We may disagree sometimes, but we must treat each other with the dignity an image bearer deserves," Ozburn said. "Now let us pray for each other. Pray for our government leaders, leaders in our churches and our businesses. And let our God given rights unite us as we go into the new year."

The crash report stated that Dinnall was not wearing a seatbelt and that "a clear sandwich bag containing leafy green material" was located in the armrest. The substance was turned over to the Crime Scene Unit.

The driver of the RAM, Sean M. Nunn of Covington, was airlifted to Grady Hospital in Atlanta. Passengers Teila Thomas and three children in the car were also transported to the hospital.

DICK YARBROUGH COLUMNIST

To Cameron Charles Yarbrough: Some Advice for the New Year

Dear Cameron:
Well, here we go again. A new year and some more unsolicited advice from your great grandpa. We have been at this quite awhile. I hope these observations have been of some value to you. A lot of what I want to share with you are matters I wish someone had covered with me when I was your age. Maybe I wouldn't have made as many mistakes in my life as I have.

On the other hand, mistakes can be a learning experience. We are all going to make them. It is how we react to them that matters. Don't let a mistake create doubt in your mind about your abilities and try not to make the same one twice.

Make a difference. You don't have to invent a cure for cancer or write the world's next great symphony. Just be someone who makes this a better place by being here. Be nice to people even when they don't deserve it. Say "thank you" and "please" and "I apologize" and mean it. Courtesy never goes out of style.

Don't be ashamed to tell people you love them. For some reason, we guys find that awkward. It shouldn't be. We all like to know somebody loves us, especially those we love. And be generous with your hugs. Hugs are huge.

Be the best you can be at everything you do. You won't succeed at everything you attempt but don't let it be from not trying. Never allow yourself to compromise or rationalize a lack of effort. Be able to look yourself in the mirror at night and know you did your best. Maybe it wasn't good enough but it was your best effort. That's all that matters.

Which leads me to a hard truth: Life is not always fair. In fact, life can be harsh at times and inexplicable. But it is what it is. Sometimes, you will lose when you feel you deserved to win while witnessing someone winning who didn't deserve it. That's life. If it knocks you down, get back up and keep going. That takes courage. Don't lose faith in yourself because of a temporary setback.

Be a leader but don't try to be a leader. Let me explain. You cannot become a leader by saying you are. Leadership can't be manufactured. It must come naturally. People will follow those they respect and admire. It is not what you say that will make you a leader. It is what you do. Be sure what you do is the right thing. The right thing isn't always the popular thing. Know the difference.

Don't let anyone define who you are. Not your parents, not your grandparents, not me, no one. You know you better than anyone else. Be yourself. If you will allow me a bit of Shakespeare: To thine own self be true. And the reverse is also true. Don't try to be something you are not. You are a unique individual. Celebrate that fact.

Believe in God. Have faith that there is a magnificent order to this universe and a Creator behind it all. Let no one get between you and your God. Most of all, be leery of religious denominations that have a my-way-or-the-highway view of religion by interpretations they have gleaned from the Bible to fit their own nar-

A Pro-Life Apology and Plea to All People of Good Will

I hate that politics and media are the main venues for talking (yelling) about abortion. I even want to apologize to you for that. Law and politics are necessary, of course. And when the Supreme Court insisted on taking it upon itself to legalize abortion in all three trimesters in Roe v. Wade, it forced us into a half-century-long struggle. All the while, abortions happened. Unborn children were lost, women were hurt, and so were families (including potential ones). And we got used to it. What a mess we're in.

As you may know, ending abortion as we know it is a priority for me. I have some loyal readers who email me saying that this priority is actually a desire to "control women." To them I say: I can barely keep my own life in order, I promise I have no desire to try to direct yours or your wife's or daughter's. At the same time, I know enough women who have had abortions to know that abortions immiserate women and harm relationships. We see headline after headline about abortion (which I'm aware I'm adding to here), but I wish more of those pieces could focus on the resources to help women — not only those who feel forced to choose abortion, but also those who have already had an abortion and regret it.

We often hear radical activists encouraging you to "shout your abortion," to take pride in it. But that's not where most women are. Until the Dobbs decision, which ended Roe, polls consistently showed that even those Americans who considered themselves pro-choice weren't enthusiastic about abortion.

KATHRYN JEAN LOPEZ

People want to know that women in difficult positions have options. And I do, too. I would just prefer that those options not include ending the life of an innocent unborn child. A New Year's prayer of mine is that those of us who disagree on abortion can nevertheless come together to make sure that women — many of them still girls who were robbed of their innocence all too early — don't feel as though abortion is their only choice.

Adoption is and should be considered a noble option. And yet there's a lot of push-back about that, too, especially after Dobbs. Women shouldn't have to be having babies to provide for couples struggling with infertility, some say. I agree. If we are raising the possibility of adoption from a woman who is already pregnant, however, we are discussing not ending a life but generously letting that life live and be loved by a couple who wants to — with all their hearts — love her. There is no question that birth mothers are extraordinarily self-sacrificial. They are heroines. To courageously continue a pregnancy and let your child be raised by another mother, in another family, should be honored as the beautiful choice it is when a birth mother doesn't feel equipped to parent that child. We — everyone in her life — should also make sure that is also a choice. It's painful, and must not be coerced.

The New Hampshire primary could push Mr. Biden out of office

There is a phony political contest going on here, just below the radar, that Joe Biden can only lose. He almost certainly won't, but there's danger anyhow in the companion to the bruising New Hampshire Primary where four Republicans are desperately trying to defeat a former president, Donald Trump, but probably won't.

Mr. Biden's allies — mostly establishment Democratic figures, some of whom might welcome his withdrawal — are ramping up a write-in campaign to permit him to prevail in a contest that he says shouldn't matter and that he took steps to insure wouldn't matter — unless of course he loses.

Biden's risky choice

Months ago the president, who finished fifth here in 2000, ordered Democrats to begin their primary contests in South Carolina rather than New Hampshire, which has held the first primary for more than a century. Thus the results of this month's contest won't count in the struggle for delegates at the Democratic convention.

But he, or rather his surrogates, are competing anyway. Just the other day, Governor J.B. Pritzker of Illinois — sssshhhh! He might run for president if Mr. Biden demurs — sent out an appeal to Democrats arguing this write-in campaign was "truly, vitally important."

This is a big risk, even if his opponents are the self-help author Marianne Williamson and little-known Representative Dean Phillips of Minnesota.

Because New Hampshire will allow pretty much anyone to vote in the GOP primary, Trump opponents might be happier casting a ballot for former Governor Nikki Haley than a meaningless write-in for Mr. Biden. And then there is the 1968 flashing caution light. President Lyndon Johnson didn't compete in New Hampshire, but a similar write-in campaign was underway anyway. His team was worried enough to conduct private polls that suggested his lone opponent, Senator Eugene McCarthy of Minnesota, might manage 18 percent. "I never allowed my name to go on the ticket in New Hampshire," the president said later in an oral history for his presidential library. "If I had, I have no doubt that I would have won New Hampshire two to one." But he didn't, and he didn't. Mr. McCarthy came within 230 votes of defeating Mr. Johnson. There was trouble for LBJ from the start. "He had never spent a winter's morning standing outside the Brown Paper Company in Berlin greeting workers arriving for their shift," Charles Breton wrote in his 1987 book "First in the Nation." "Nor had he ever strolled up and down a Main Street greeting shoppers or merchants." Two days before the primary, Mr. Johnson bid Lady Bird to their bedroom. He had gone for a nap but couldn't sleep. Maybe it was because of the conversation the couple had had earlier in the day. She asked him, not in a querulous but in a curious way, "Suppose someone else were elected president, what could 'Mr. X' do that you could not do?" Mr. Johnson's answer: "He could unite the country and start getting some things done. That would last about a year, maybe two years." In her diary, Mrs. Johnson engaged in deep reflection. "I think that is what weighs heaviest on Lyndon's mind. Can he unite the country, or is there simply too much built-up antagonism, division, a general malaise, which may have the Presidency — or this President — irrevocably as its focal point?" Johnson's hard decision A month earlier, U.S. News and World Report said that "At this point, there is just one near certainty about the '68 elections ... Lyndon Johnson, health permitting, will be the Democratic nominee." Chicago Daily News columnist Carl Rowan wrote at about the same time that the chances that the president wouldn't run "can't be better than a million to one." The Johnsons — husband and wife, daughters Lynda and Luci — had discussed the trajectory of the presidency frequently, repeatedly vetting the question of whether they might leave the White House at the end of Mr. Johnson's first term, in January 1969. Dan retired from McGraw-Hill College Publishing in 2004 and his retirement years brought him more time to devote to his grandsons and their endeavors as well as increased involvement with alumni activities for Oxford College of Emory University through service on the Board of Counselors, Scholarship Committee and Local Arrangement Chair for Class of 59 Reunions. Johnson was clear-eyed about it; one full term was enough. Luci worried about her father's health. Lynda preferred that he demur. As early as September 1967, 14 months before the election, press secretary George Christian was noodling around with a withdrawal statement. Governor John Connolly was recruited to help. Mr. Johnson shared his doubts about another term with, among others, Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara. The president was preoccupied with the question of whether the American combatants in Vietnam would feel let down. General William Westmoreland assured him they wouldn't. Meanwhile, Horace Busby was working on the language the president might use to announce such a decision, perhaps during his State of the Union Address. Many years ago, Mr. Busby, who had become a very good source of mine, told me that he wasn't sure whether Mr. Johnson would use that occasion. In the event, the president forgot to bring the statement with him to the Capitol. On March 31, in a nationally televised address on Vietnam, he said: "With America's sons in the fields far away, with America's future under challenge right here at home, with our hopes and the world's hopes for peace in the balance every day, I do not believe that I should devote an hour or a day of my time to any personal partisan causes or to any duties other than the awesome duties of this office." He said in his memoir: "I had used the power of the Presidency proudly, and I used every ounce of it I had. I used it to establish programs that gave thousands of youngsters a head start in school, that enabled thousands of old folks to live in clean nursing homes, that brought justice to the Negro and hope to the poor, that forced the nation to face the growing problems of pollution." Jitters or courage He continued, in language that might give Mr. Biden jitters, or courage: "In this exercise of power, I knew a satisfaction that only a limited number of men have ever known, and that I could have had in no other way. Men, myself included, do not lightly give up the opportunity to achieve so much lasting good, but a man who uses power effectively must also be a realist. He must understand that by spending power he dissipates it." A botched write-in campaign helped nudge Mr. Johnson out of a re-election campaign. It could happen again. It probably won't, but it could. David M. Shribman is the former executive editor of the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette.

Lovejoy from evening the score, and a dagger by Way put the game out of reach in favor of Alcovy.

Hutcherson was not the only Alcovy player to end the night with a double-digit performance. Banks, Way and Pollett all had strong offensive showings that led their team to victory.

The win gave the Lady Tigers their second Region 3-AAAAA victory on the season, improving their record to 2-4. It also extended their win streak to four in a row.

Alcovy kept its win streak alive on Saturday, Jan. 6 when they defeated the Drew girls basketball team 59-24.

Alcovy was not able to capitalize after a double digit comeback as they fell to region opponent Lovejoy on Friday 73-71

The Tigers entered the second half with a lot of ground to cover, and quickly caught up.

Alcovy went on a 10-0 run in the first three minutes of the third quarter, and tied the game up at 49-all with 2:45 left in the third quarter.

Blocks by senior Tim Walls and an 11-point third frame from Nick Durham spearheaded the comeback, and gave the Tigers the lead only for Lovejoy to answer right back to have the advantage going into the final eight minutes.

The two teams swapped leads until the final minute of the fourth quarter, when a Lovejoy three put the Wildcats up with just seconds left to play. A missed three pointer locked in the win for Lovejoy, and gave Alcovy their fifth loss on the season.

Heading into halftime down 47-34, the Tigers allowed eight, three pointers in the first half alone, and were just getting going offensively after being held to just nine first quarter points.

The Tiger defense made the Wildcats earn every basket, only allowing two three-point makes in the second half following the 24 points allowed from threes in the first 16 minutes, but the final three-pointer proved to be the most costly one.

Multiple Lady Redskins players got involved to give them an early advantage. However, Eastside mounted a run at the end of the opening frame.

The run was finished by an assist from Kaliel Kracht to Aysia Spivey to trim Social Circle's lead down to 9-8 going into the second quarter.

In the ensuing frame, the roles were reversed as it was the Lady Eagles that got off to the strong start. The momentum carried over from the end of the first frame.

Eastside began to play a more physical style of defense that caused issues for the Lady Redskins moving the ball down the court and on the inbound passes.

However, a three from Jada Hyman sparked a run for Social Circle that led to them grabbing a 18-17 advantage going into halftime.

Despite strong play from Hyman in the third quarter, the Lady Eagles slowly began to separate.

A three pointer from Jailyln Williams started her seven-point frame that was crucial for Eastside and its ability to grab the lead back.

Going into the final quarter, the Lady Eagles led 38-27 for their largest lead of the game.

Despite a trio of baskets from Social Circle's Marissa Morrell in the fourth, the Lady Redskins could not come back as they fell on the road to Eastside.

Scoring was led by Social Circle's Hyman and Eastside's Williams with 14 and 13 points, respectively.

The win for the Lady Eagles moves them to 10-5 with a 4-1 record in Region 8-AAAAA. Head coach Gladys King and Eastside will be at home to face Jasper County Friday, Jan. 12.

For the Lady Redskins, the loss drops them to 6-10 on the year. Social Circle's next matchup will be at home against Monroe Area Saturday, Jan. 20.

TIGERS CONTINUED ON A7

"With us getting a new coach, we did not know what to expect," Jernigan said. "We all just came together and believed. We have worked out every morning, every day in the summer 9a.m. to 2p.m."

Knowing that Durham and Jernigan were going to be big pieces in his offense, Jackson went into the season with the intention of getting the ball in their hands often.

"It was going to be a lot of putting the ball in their hands a lot," Jackson said. "They have to have it, they are just that level of playmakers. It was really just trying to find creative ways to get them the ball in space so that they could create."

With a new wave of Alcovy basketball beginning, Jackson is excited for the future but will not let that get in the way of his team capturing what they can at present.

"We are really excited about the future over the next one or two years, but we also expect to win now," Jackson. "We have had a great first half of the season, now we are looking forward to this region schedule to really put out foot down and say 'hey, Alcovy is here man.'"

Tigers looking to close in on playoff window

By GARRETT PITTS
Sports Editor

The Alcovy Tigers boys basketball program has not played in the state playoffs since 2017. Now, they feel their playoff window is open after seven years.

Currently sitting at 12-5, the Tigers have produced their best start since the 2011-12 season.

It has come in head coach Taylor Jackson's first season at the helm.

Over the last decade, the Tigers have averaged 7.1 wins per season. Among those years were four seasons where Alcovy ended the year below seven wins.

With the team now at 12 wins through 17 games, the program seems to be heading in a new direction.

This mindset was indicative in Alcovy's first four games, which all resulted in wins on the road.

However, despite the fast start, the Tigers have not been perfect.

Through 17 games, Alcovy finds itself with a 2-4 record and fifth place in Region 3-AAAAAA.

Eight region games remain on the schedule for the Tigers and they get the luxury of having five of them at home as they look to move above .500 in region play.

"We are still working to put things together for a full game. We are going to be dangerous," Jackson said.

One ongoing theme for Alcovy in 2023 has been close games.

Ten of the Tigers' games this season have been decided by 10 points or less.

Seven of the contests resulted in wins for Alcovy while the losses were a 60-59 defeat by Rockdale County, a 60-42 loss to Monroe Area and a 73-71 defeat by Lovejoy.

Jackson knows the team has things to work on, but the first-year head coach is confident the team has the pieces to succeed down the stretch.

One of the factors that changed the team's trajectory is the offense, which is currently averaging 64.9 points a game.

The offensive explosion has been led by junior Nick Durham and sophomore Andre Jernigan. The pair have led the Tigers in scoring in the majority of the Tigers' this season.

Durham is one of the veterans for this young Tigers team despite having his senior year still ahead of him.

Jernigan showed flashes during his freshman season on varsity last year, and the sophomore has continued to improve on the court as he and Durham make up Alcovy's primary backcourt.

From his first moments evaluating the team he was about to take over, Jackson saw potential from Durham and Jernigan.

"[When I first saw them], they were as talented as anyone I have been privileged to coach," Jackson said. "Especially offensively, they are so skilled and can shoot the ball as well as anyone in the state. Then when I get here, their leadership is next level. They both put their heads down, go to work and don't complain. They are just here to win."

Durham leads the team with 20.6 points per game while having a 34.8 three-point percentage.

Jernigan follows right behind with 14.4 points per game and a 31.8 three-point percentage.

For Durham and Jernigan, all eyes are on getting the team to the state playoffs.

"It would mean a lot [for us to go to the playoffs] because we have not been to the state playoffs in a long time," Durham said. "That has been my main goal, it would mean a lot to me."

Though Jernigan has not played a full two seasons for Alcovy, he feels the team is overdue for a playoff berth.

"At Alcovy, there is not really a track record of us going to the playoffs, but I really just want to get to the playoffs, win region and go to state," Jernigan said.

Outside of Durham and Jernigan, Jackson spoke about junior Jaqari Smith and what his addition to the backcourt has meant for the Tigers.

"Having Jaqari Smith moving over to be a third creative guard that can shoot has made us so tough to guard," Jackson said.

From the players' perspectives, they were pushed in practice and in the weight room from the moment Jackson took over the team.

EAGLES EARN THE SWEEP OVER THE REDSKINS AT HOME

COVINGTON, Ga. — The Eastside Eagles came away with a sweep in a battle with the Social Circle Redskins on Saturday. In front of their home crowd, the Lady Eagles earned a 51-38 win while the Eastside boy's team won 62-46.

Trebor Edwards propels Eastside to win in the second half

After entering halftime with a 25-17 lead, the Eagles needed more to get separation over the Redskins in the final two quarters. The solution was Trebor Edwards, who scored 20 points in the second half to lead Eastside to a 16-point victory.

By the time the third quarter began, Edwards became almost automatic from the perimeter.

The senior knocked down six of his seven three pointers in the final two quarters to give the Eagles their spark.

Early on, things were going in Social Circle's favor.

Halfway through the opening eight minutes, the Eagles were down 12-3 as Social Circle went on a run with a mix of perimeter shooting and scoring in the paint.

By the end of the quarter, it was Eastside that had the bigger run as it scored 14 unanswered points to take a 15-12 lead.

In the second frame, the Eagles added to their advantage as the missed free throws from the Redskins began to pile on and allow Eastside to gain more separation going into the intermission.

The second half marked the beginning of Edwards' scoring barrage that put the Eagles ahead for good in the contest.

Eastside's win was capped off by back-to-back alley oops from LJ Rivers that erupted the Eagles' gym.

Edwards' 27 points led the game for the Eagles while Rivers and Josiah Johnson followed with eight points each. For the Redskins, scoring was led by Derrick White with 12 points.

The win moves Eastside to 9-7 on the year with a 3-2 record in Region 8-A-A-A-A-A. The Eagles will look to stay above .500 in

TIGERS SPLIT GAMES WITH LOVEJOY ON HOME COURT

By JET RAWLS

COVINGTON, Ga. — The Alcovy Tigers split their home series with the Lovejoy Wildcats on Friday. The Lady Tigers came away with the 60-55 win while the Alcovy boys team fell 73-71 late in the contest.

Offense propels Lady Tigers past Lovejoy

Janae Hutcherson's 16 points led the Lady Tigers to a 60-55 win on Friday over Region 3-A-A-A-A-A foe Lovejoy.

After a back-and-forth first half that had nine total lead changes, freshman Addison Way had Alcovy on top going into the third quarter, with five straight points after spending most of the second quarter out with an injury.

The Lady Tigers kept that momentum going, as Hutcherson carved through the Lady Wildcats defense for six, third quarter points to lead Alcovy to a 12-point advantage with four minutes left in the third period, the highest advantage in the game for either team since the Lady Tigers were up 5-0 in the first quarter.

Lovejoy did not go down without a fight however, as the Lady Wildcats stormed back to within three points in the fourth quarter. Stops by Kendall Banks and Abigail Pollett kept

Add a cheery splash to Dry January with colorful Hibiscus Mocktails

By KATIE WORKMAN
Associated Press

Is there anything more festive than a red drink? I think not. And just because the holidays are over, that doesn't mean we can't keep looking for little celebratory moments.

During the annual tradition of Dry January, many people are eliminating or reducing their alcohol intake — perhaps as a “New Year, New You” resolution, or just to take a break from the boozy flow of December.

Luckily for all of us, the world of mocktails is blooming, with sophisticated zero-proof drinks appearing on menus, from high-end restaurants to burger joints. And even more luckily (and economically), they are easy to make at home.

Layering some non-alcoholic liquids and amping up the flavor with spices and seasonings is what mocktails are all about. They can be as simple as a combo of lemon soda and cranberry juice, or have all the bells, whistles and garnishes of a fancy drink.

One of my favorite bases for both cocktails and mocktails is hibiscus tea. Hibiscus is a flower, also known as Jamaica flower, flor de Jamaica, sorrel or roselle, and is available at Latin or Mexican markets, and online.

Hibiscus tea, or Agua de Jamaica, is a refreshing drink in itself and fantastic to have in the fridge. But don't stop there. With some festive fruit garnishes and a few added ingredients, you can have a zingy sweet-tart mocktail.

If you prefer to buy pre-made hibiscus tea, go right ahead, but it's not hard to make. Simply steep the hibiscus flowers with some sugar, oranges, fresh ginger, and cinnamon sticks until the liquid is bright red and imbued with flavor. The result can be compared to Red Zinger tea (which contains hibiscus leaves) or cranberry juice.

So, that's our base, which already has a lot going on flavor-wise. Then you simply add a bit of honey, agave or simple syrup, as well as sparkling water and orange juice. You can lighten the mocktail's flavor by increasing the amount of sparkling water. To add a little kick, try replacing the regular honey with hot honey, which is infused with chili peppers (you can find a number of them on the market). (Note: Using agave keeps the drink vegan; honey does not).

TIPS

Hibiscus tea already has some sugar in it, so start by mixing in just 1 tablespoon added sweetener to the batch of Hibiscus Mocktail below, and then another tablespoon or two to taste. I have found that 2 tablespoons is the right level of sweet-tartness in this pitcher mocktail, when made with a Hibiscus tea base with 1/3 cup sugar added to the tea itself (as suggested in the recipe), and the sweetness of the orange juice.

Simple syrup is an easy way to add sweetness to any drinks, particularly those served chilled. Just mix 1 part sugar with 1 part water in a small pot, heat until the sugar dissolves and then chill. Store it the fridge for up to 2 weeks, and use it to sweeten anything from lemonade to iced tea to cocktails.

You can juice any oranges you have, from plain old juice oranges to clementines to blood oranges. Store-bought orange juice will work in a pinch.

This recipe makes more of the hibiscus tea base than you'll need for one batch of mocktails. You can dilute the rest with additional chilled water, add sweetener to taste, and just have a lovely pitcher of cold hibiscus tea in the fridge. Or store the hibiscus base in the fridge for up to five days and make another batch of mocktails!

HIBISCUS MOCKTAIL
Serves 6

1 (2-ounce) bag hibiscus flowers (about 2 cups)

1/3 cup granulated sugar

1 orange, washed and cut into quarters

1 2-inch piece fresh ginger, scrubbed or peeled, sliced and slightly crushed

1 cinnamon stick

1 ½ cups chilled fresh orange juice

1 cup chilled sparkling water

1 cup chilled ginger beer

1 to 2 tablespoons honey, hot honey, agave or simple syrup

To serve:

Grapes

Ice

Sliced oranges

Sliced lemons or limes

Place the hibiscus flowers, 6 cups of water, the sugar, quartered orange, ginger and cinnamon sticks (if using) in a large pot. Bring to a boil, then lower to a simmer, stirring occasionally, for 5 minutes. Remove from the heat and let it steep for 30 minutes.

Strain out the solids, and chill for at least 6 hours, until very cold.

Fill a pitcher with a few cups of ice and the grapes, sliced orange, and lemon or lime. Add the orange juice, sparkling water, ginger beer, and agave or simple syrup. Pour in the hibiscus tea. Stir well to combine.

Serve in glasses with ice and some of the fruit from the pitcher.

Alaqua Cox
stars in "Echo"

Heroic moves: Marvel's 'Echo' premieres deaf Indigenous superhero in style

In recent years, the Marvel Cinematic Universe has become a massive blockbuster sensation. Fans of the superhero genre have long been divided into camps — DC versus Marvel, for instance — but those seeking any form of visual entertainment, from art to books to film and television, would be hard-pressed to find a medium that did not cater in some way to caped crusaders or leotard-clad superhumans.

That said, ever since The Walt Disney Company purchased Marvel Entertainment in 2009 (for a whopping $4 billion), the company's streamer, Disney+, has been one of the greatest proponents of the "super" genre. Newest to join the ranks is "Echo," the "Hawkeye" spinoff series premiering Wednesday, Jan. 10, on the platform.

While hardly new to the Marvel Universe, Echo is best known to current Marvel fans in the form of budding actress Alaqua Cox, who was born and raised in the Menominee Indian Reservation in Keshena, Wisconsin, and is of the Menominee and Mohican nation. Starring alongside Jeremy Renner ("The Hurt Locker," 2008) and Hailee Steinfeld ("Dickinson") in the 2021 miniseries "Hawkeye," Echo was introduced in a supporting role and garnered plenty of attention for her two-fold inclusivity and incredible fighting abilities. As is the case with nearly all superheroes and villains in the MCU, Echo's backstory is somewhat complicated and varies significantly between sources, but at least three things remain consistent: her name, her background and her deafness.

Born Maya Lopez, Echo is the highly gifted daughter of secret mob enforcer William Lopez (Zahn McClarnon, "Dark Winds") — sometimes referred to as William Lincoln in other related source material — a proud Native American man of the Cheyenne Nation, and a Latina mother, known vaguely as "Ms. Lopez," who abandoned the family when Maya was young. Upon his untimely death related to criminal activities, William urges hulking mobster Kingpin, a.k.a. Wilson Fisk (played in "Echo" by Vincent D'Onofrio of 1987's "Full Metal Jacket"), to look after his young daughter at all costs. Nothing if not a man of his word, Fisk agrees — and so begins Lopez's journey as Echo.

Per the Marvel website, the Disney+ series is Echo's origin story and "revisits Maya Lopez, whose ruthless behavior in New York City catches up with her in her hometown. She must face her past, reconnect with her Native American roots and embrace the meaning of family and community if she ever hopes to move forward."

By reconnecting with her hometown, her roots and her own morals and desires, Maya tries to let go of what no longer serves her and embrace the feelings that have been driving her down the same dangerous path as Kingpin and the father she lost during her childhood. Along the way, however, there is plenty of violence, bloodshed and "real consequences" (per Freeland) — hence the series' TV-MA rating.

Behind the scenes, Navajo filmmaker Sydney Freeland ("Reservation Dogs") and Australian/Gunaikurnai creative Catriona McKenzie ("Satellite Boy," 2012) direct the series. Naturally, Freeland and McKenzie were excited to begin work on a project focused on the only deaf Indigenous superhero in entertainment media. Beyond that, the official trailer for "Echo" also prominently features the hero's prosthetic leg, an addition to the original source material to provide added inclusivity and incorporate Alaqua's own, real-life prosthetic into the storyline.

"Representation was extremely important to myself and to everyone on the crew," Freeland stated at an October 2023 news conference.

But neither Alaqua's amputee status nor the character's deafness was front and center while plotting the show's details. Sure, the creators gave thought to her disabilities and incorporated them into the storyline, but her so-called "disabilities" — as "Hawkeye" fans have clearly already noticed — are hardly disabling. Instead, creators laid much of the focus on the toll anger, resentment and physical trauma can take on a human being as they interact with the oft-cruel world around them.

At the end of the day, Freeland noted, "Echo" is "an exploration of trauma — how we deal with it, how we cope with it, how it affects us, how we affect it, how it affects those around us."

BY JAY BOBBIN

Perry Mason (Raymond Burr, "Perry Mason," CBS, 1957-66): The Erle Stanley Gardner-created character who confirmed that law shows had a place on television, Mason rarely lost a case ... which might have made him seem superhuman but also helped real-life attorneys have a shining public image.

Lawrence and Kenneth Preston (E.G. Marshall and Robert Reed, "The Defenders," CBS, 1961-65): If you needed father-and-son lawyers on your side, these were the men to go to, thanks in large part to the brilliant writing of the series' scripts (often by Reginald Rose).

Daniel O'Brien (Peter Falk, "The Trials of O'Brien," CBS, 1965-66): Before he was Columbo, Falk was a similarly unkempt lawyer whose ramshackle image cloaked a keen legal mind.

BEST TV LAWYERS

Martin Kazinsky (Ron Leibman, "Kaz," CBS, 1978-79): Kaz was in a unique position to know how the legal system worked, since he had been a convict himself before representing others.

Arnold Becker (Corbin Bernsen, "L.A. Law," NBC, 1986-94): Lawyers can have very active social lives, too, and it's hard to imagine anyone's being more active than Arnie's ... a fact that sometimes got him into trouble on the job.

Jack McCoy (Sam Waterston, "Law & Order," NBC, 1994-2010, 2022-present): Though he was a part of the system, fierce justice-for-all proponent McCoy sometimes skirted it in prosecuting to ensure that the right people got the right destinies. Waterston is playing the part again on the NBC revival that returns with new episodes starting Thursday, Jan. 18.

Theodore Hoffman (Daniel Benzali, "Murder One," ABC, 1995-86): A stern legal eagle particularly savvy about the way the media worked in covering attention-grabbing cases, "Teddy" was the star defense attorney anyone in the public eye wanted to have.

Alicia Florrick (Julianna Margulies, "The Good Wife," CBS, 2009-16): She was skilled in the courtroom, but this estranged wife of a disgraced politician also showed how an attorney can keep her head high professionally while facing intense personal challenges.

Annalise Keating (Viola Davis, "How to Get Away With Murder," ABC, 2014-20): The university students she mentored got more than they bargain for from this criminal defense attorney who authored some of the tricks of her trade.

'A Biltmore Christmas' was built for on-location filming

BY JAY BOBBIN

Q: I was very impressed with "A Biltmore Christmas." Was the movie made at the actual Biltmore estate, or was it filmed on sets made to look like it? – Melissa Harvey, via e-mail

A: The recent Hallmark Channel attraction starring Bethany Joy Lenz and Kristoffer Polaha took place at the actual site in Asheville, N.C., and the timing of the filming was quite clever. It was made last winter, when many of the decorations from the Biltmore's 2022 Christmas season were still up, thus enabling the production to take advantage of them. It meant filming for a November 2023 debut long before that normally would be done, but that's where smart planning came in.

Q: I read that during "Christmas in Rockefeller Center," protesters demonstrated and several were arrested. How was that not shown? – Paul Garrett, via e-mail

A: That was due to the preparation of the New York City Police Department and the NBC special's production team. Demonstrations at major events, particularly regarding current events in the Middle East, were anticipated during this holiday season, with a similar situation arising during the Macy's Thanksgiving Day Parade, and the cameras also steered around showing that occurrence.

Just from watching the tree-lighting telecast, it was virtually impossible to tell that anything hadn't gone according to plan, despite later news footage that showed some of the arrests.

Q: When was "Frosty the Snowman" first shown? – Claire Shaw, Lynn, Mass.

A: The animated production from holiday-special titans Arthur Rankin Jr. and Jules Bass debuted in 1969 on CBS, which has shown it annually ever since. Jimmy Durante narrated the tale of how Frosty came to be, thanks to a magician's magical hat, with the voice of Frosty himself supplied by comedian Jackie Vernon. Veteran voice talents June Foray and Paul Frees each provided the voices for multiple characters. The show proved so popular right from the start, Frosty was brought back in several other productions ... a notable one being "Frosty Returns," which typically is shown adjacent to the original special, though it was not produced by Rankin/Bass. That 1992 project features John Goodman as Frosty's voice, with Jonathan Winters as the narrator.
