THOUSANDS PARTICIPATE IN 40TH ANNUAL FUZZ RUN

By EMILY ROSE HAMBY
Staff Writer

COVINGTON, Ga. – Saturday morning marked the Covington Police Department's (CPD) 40th annual Fuzz Run, a fundraiser for the Police Who Care (PWC) fund. Established in 1983, the one mile fun run and 5K race has remained a staple in the community for the last four decades. Amassing 2,364 runners and roughly 3,000 attendees overall, CPD Lieutenant and Fuzz Run race director Allen Martin said this year's Fuzz Run was marketed with its 40th anniversary in mind to emphasize its significance.

"Based on its own reputation, it just gets bigger each year because people know where the money goes," Martin said. "People like to be part of it."

Q&A: Get to know South Salem Elementary's new principal, Dr. Vanshelle Turner

By EMILY ROSE HAMBY
Staff Writer

NEWTON COUNTY – At the Newton County Board of Education meeting on Aug. 15, Dr. Vanshelle Turner was appointed as South Salem Elementary School's (SSES) principal. Turner previously served as assistant principal at the school.

Turner earned her bachelor's in early childhood education from Georgia State University, her master's in educational leadership from Argosy University, her specialist's degree in innovations in early childhood and her doctorate in early childhood education, both from Brenau University.

Prior to her experience in elementary administration, Turner has taught at each grade level, but found her passion in fourth and fifth grades, specifically, teaching math and social studies.

Turner discussed how her past experience in administration at South Salem helped to prepare her in fulfilling the role of principal with The Covington News and hopes for the school year.

What sparked your interest in education?

VT: I have always been a learner and wanted to take charge and make a difference in the lives of students and teachers. I started by tutoring at Gateway to College at Georgia Perimeter College and pursued many education degrees to ensure that I was prepared to lead the way.

If so, what has kept you driven in the education field to advance from being a teacher to fulfilling roles at the administrative level?

VT: After working in

Therefore, I started learning from many impactful leaders and seeking ways to improve my leadership skills. They love seeing officers out there playing volleyball or cornhole with the kids in uniform. It's showing off the human side of what many people see on the news – [in] this day and age, police officers have been looked at in a different light – but then they see us out there and it's different. They understand that we're normal people. I think it's just the continuation of what we continue to build each year."

Grayson Poynter, member of Eastside High School's cross country team, won the race overall for the second consecutive year. Vanessa Dougherty came in first place in the overall female category.

For each overall category, winners received a special edition trophy commemorating the 40th Fuzz Run, etched with the number 40 and the CPD logo. Winners for each age group received placement medals.

Following the event, Fuzz Run participants and attendees were encouraged to check out the post-race festivities at Legion Field. Vendors, live music, food and children's activities were offered. Additionally, runners were gifted with more swag, such as towels and bags, adding to the celebration of the race's 40th anniversary.

Martin said Fuzz Run planning begins each year in January to prepare for the highly anticipated event. With the CPD's years of experience in hosting the race, this year's Fuzz Run proceeded particularly smoothly, according to Martin.

"It went really, really well. This is the first year in a number of years that I've not only been the race director, but been part of the Fuzz Run that it went off pretty much without a hitch," Martin said. "Everything went very, very smooth. Our participation levels were great. Sponsorship levels were great. Everything, logistically setting up for it. The day of, everything just went really, really well. Very excited and looking back on it, it was just a great event in my opinion."

As a runner himself, Martin personally looks forward to the starting gun to kick off the race – seeing the excitement of over 2,000 people surpassing the start line. With a "relatively" easy course that's "not too hilly," Martin said the Fuzz Run is beneficial for all participants.

On the importance of the CPD continuing the Fuzz Run tradition, Martin noted the community service aspect and purpose behind the event.

"It's service to the community," Martin said. "I think it's the PWC and where that money goes within our community and the fallen officers all across the state and quite frankly, across the southeast – the fallen officers and their families and officers injured in the line of duty as well.

"Also to show that humanitarian side of police officers in our community outreach program of what we continually strive to do, whether it be through the Fuzz Run or Shop with a Cop or other things like that. Showing the softer side of police work and our dedication to giving back to the community that serves us so well."

MTSS/EIP/ESOL/ and third through fifth grades helped me to understand some of the major functions of the building. To that end, with the implementation of unit planning and common formative assessments, as a school, we were able to see [an] increase in two out of three content areas with no decrease in any areas.

What's your overarching goal for this school year?

VT: My goal this year is to continue the values and traditions of South Salem. Our theme is: Spartans, Unite! U-Understanding, N-Necessary, I-Innovations, T-Together to E-Experience success. We will work collaboratively to establish a strong culture for professional learning communities to ensure that all students are well rounded and prepared for the future.

What are some more specific things that you're looking to target and improve? Why?

VT: As of now, I am looking to engage our SSES families. With over 800 students, we need more parent support and engagement to ensure that we are meeting the needs of the whole child. Therefore, we are reestablishing our PTO to ensure that all of our stakeholders are a part of the SSES family so that we can create meaningful change and positive memories for our students.

What are you most looking forward to as South Salem's new principal?

VT: I am looking forward to serving and training. It is important that the leaders lead by example and demonstrate to their staff that they are just as committed to doing the work.

What sets South Salem apart from other schools in Newton County/what makes it special?

VT: We have the best staff imaginable. [They] show grit, compassion and love for one another. Our students are passionate and eager to learn. Overall, as a Spartan, we are tough and ready to do the work.

Tort reform fight returning to General Assembly

CAPITOL BEAT
News Service

ATLANTA - After years on the back burner in the General Assembly, tort reform promises to be front and center when Georgia lawmakers convene in January for the 2024 legislative session.

Gov. Brian Kemp signaled his intention to push for changes in the state's civil justice system last month when he addressed the Georgia Chamber of Commerce's annual Congressional Luncheon in Athens.

"The laws on our books make it too easy to bring frivolous lawsuits against Georgia business owners, which drives up the price of insurance and stops new, good-paying jobs from ever coming to communities that need them the most," Kemp declared.

"Next legislative session, I look forward to working with members of the General Assembly on legislation that provides much needed relief to countless small businesses and job creators, reduces insurance premiums for hardworking Georgians and their families, and treats both plaintiffs and defendants fair!"

Republicans have championed tort reform in the legislature for decades but were thwarted by Democrats back when they held majorities in both the state House and Senate. That changed in 2005 when the GOP captured control of both legislative chambers for the first time in modern history and passed a bill setting a $350,000 cap on non-economic damages in lawsuits.

But the state Supreme Court overturned the law in 2010. Since then, efforts to pass significant tort reform have failed to gain traction amid opposition from legislative Democrats and trial lawyers, who have argued changes to the system advocated by Republicans would strip away the rights of victims of car crashes and medical malpractice to their day in court.

That lack of progress continued this year when lawmakers supporting tort reform introduced seven bills. None made it to the floor of the House or Senate for a vote.

But Chris Clark, president and CEO of the Georgia Chamber, said several recent developments give him reason for optimism that the fortunes of tort reform may be about to change.

Clark pointed to the passage of major tort reform legislation in Florida earlier this year introduced by Ron DeSantis, that state's governor and a Republican candidate for president. The bill expands immunity for property owners against lawsuits from criminals injured on their property and reduces the statute of limitations for general negligence cases from four years to two.

Closer to home, the American Tort Reform Association named Georgia the nation's No.-1 "judicial hellhole" late last year in its annual report on states with the worst climate for tort claims.

Clark said that dubious distinction hurts Georgia's claim to be the most business-friendly state in the U.S. a boast the state's job recruiters trot out repeatedly to corporate prospects.

"We can't be the best place in the country to do business with an unbalanced judicial system," Clark said. "It's time to do something about it."

Clark also cited soaring auto insurance and medical malpractice insurance premiums in Georgia brought on by huge jury awards. He said a rash of "runaway" jury verdicts in the past year has prompted three auto insurance carriers to pull out of Georgia, while many health-care providers have turned to Europe for malpractice insurance.

But opponents of tort reform say business groups have manufactured a "lawsuit crisis" to convince lawmakers to pass reform legislation, exaggerating the problem by cherry-picking cases.

Madeleine Simmons, president of the Georgia Trial Lawyers Association, said civil lawsuit trials in Georgia require 12 jurors to reach a unanimous verdict in order for the trial judge to sign off on a verdict.

"In today's political climate, if 12 strangers can agree on anything, it is nothing short of a miracle," Simmons said. "The American jury system has proven to be the bedrock of our democracy, and Georgia's civil justice system is no exception."

Clark said the Georgia Chamber's top priorities during the upcoming General Assembly session will include legislation doing away with "premise liability," where property owners can be sued for crimes committed on their properties that they had nothing to do with, and prohibiting so-called "direct action" lawsuits in which insurance companies can be sued directly rather than the insured party.

"We're one of only two states in the nation that allow direct action," he said. "Let's be in line with other states. We don't want people [venue] shopping where Georgia is a target."

The Georgia Chamber will have a new ally in 2024 in the fight for tort reform. A newly formed nonprofit coalition called Competitive Georgia unveiled late last month is vowing to champion the issue during the upcoming session.

State awards millions in first grants under new rural housing program

CAPITOL BEAT
News Service

ATLANTA - The state awarded nearly $8.4 million in infrastructure grants to five local government applicants Friday, the first round of awards through a rural workforce housing initiative Gov. Brian Kemp announced during his State of State address last January.

The grants ultimately will support more than 500 units of single-family and multi-family housing.

"On the back of three straight record-breaking years for economic development, we are taking action to ensure hardworking Georgians are able to live in the same communities where they work," Kemp said. "These grants are the first step in meeting the needs of communities experiencing incredible growth as we continue to see new opportunities come to all corners of the state."

The largest of the grants - $2.4 million - will go to the city of Colquitt to provide water and sewer service to a new subdivision that will include 49 single-family homes as well as a nearby multi-family housing development with 44 units.

The consolidated government of Columbus and the Douglas Coffee County Industrial Authority will receive $2.3 million each. The Columbus grant will go toward water, sewer, drainage, and street improvements to enable the completion of a development that will add 24 new single-family homes.

The Coffee County grant will be used for water, sewer, drainage and street improvements to allow the construction of 65 homes in a new subdivision near several large employers.

The city of Albany will receive $925,513 to facilitate the creation of a subdivision with 29 single-family homes on six acres within the city limits.

The Stephens County Development Authority was awarded a grant of $478,400 for a sanitary sewer lift station needed to accommodate the construction of 318 housing units in a new development near a regional industrial park that is set to expand.

The General Assembly allocated $35.7 million in the fiscal 2023 midyear budget to launch the initiative.

Report: Special grand jury in Georgia election case wanted more indictments

CAPITOL BEAT
News Service

ATLANTA - If the special grand jury Fulton County District Attorney Fani Willis assembled to investigate illegal interference in Georgia's 2020 presidential election had gotten its way, the case would have cast an even broader net than last month's indictment.

The special grand jury recommended 39 indictments rather than the 19 defendants - including former President Donald Trump - now facing state racketeering charges, according to the special grand jury's final report, most of which was under seal for months before being released Friday.

Targets of the investigation who ended up avoiding indictment by a separate grand jury included some prominent names: U.S. Sen. Lindsey Graham, R-S.C.; former Georgia Republican Sens. David Perdue and Kelly Loeffler; Michael Flynn, Trump's former national security adviser, and Georgia Lt. Gov. Burt Jones.

Willis was not allowed to investigate Jones following a court ruling that found a conflict of interest. The district attorney, a Democrat, hosted a fundraising event last year for Charlie Bailey, Jones' Democratic opponent in the lieutenant governor's race.

Fulton County Superior Court Judge Robert McBurney released portions of the special grand jury's report in February. However, all the released portions indicated was that the panel had recommended indicting more than one suspect, leaving out names.

The version of the report released in February also concluded that no widespread fraud occurred in connection with the election.

McBurney released the rest of the 26-page report on Friday.

The special grand jury recommended that Graham, Perdue, Loeffler, Flynn, and Jones be charged in connection with efforts to overrun the election results in multiple states, including Georgia. The panel also cited Perdue in connection with communications with multiple Georgia officials between the November 2020 election and January 2021.

The report also recommended indicting Jones in connection with a December 2020 meeting of "fake" electors at the Georgia Capitol to certify Trump the winner of Georgia's 16 electoral votes rather than Democrat Joe Biden, who had carried the state in the November election.

Willis empaneled the special grand jury in May of last year. The panel completed its work late in the year after hearing from 75 witnesses.

Is Irish literature too ‘woke?’

Being something of a smart aleck, I’ve sometimes joked that while I may look white, actually I’m Irish. All eight of my great-grandparents were born there. Indeed, there was a time during the Great Potato Famine of 1845-’52 when my ancestors endured conditions similar to Black enslaved people in America. Millions of Irish peasants starved even as the country exported plentiful foodstuffs guarded by British soldiers. Had they been enslaved, they might have been fed.

So, the Irish fled to America in “coffin ships,” so-called because many thousands failed to survive the journey. The best way I know to understand this historical tragedy is to read Joseph O’Connor’s terrific novel “Star of the Sea.”

(Joseph is the older brother of Sinead O’Connor, the singer whose recent death was mourned all over Ireland. A talented family, the O’Connors of Glenageary.)

Nor were the Irish, being Catholic, particularly welcome in America. But so what? None of that has affected my own life in any practical way. Nor have I noticed that Irish Americans behave better than anybody else when it comes to race.

(In the old country, of course, they’ve only recently quit murdering each other over what’s basically a 17th century religious quarrel. I once asked a correspondent in Belfast how they could tell each other apart, as on TV they all looked like my uncles and cousins. The shoes, she responded. The shoes!)

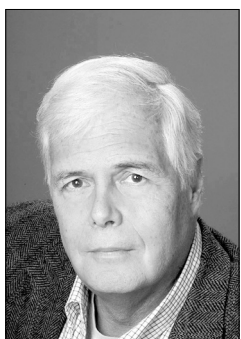

Columnists
In-depth political coverage, sports analysis, entertainment reviews and cultural commentary.

My first great literary hero was the immortal Irish satirist Jonathan Swift. The first time my wife saw tears in my eyes was visiting his tomb in St. Patrick’s Cathedral, Dublin. He’d died in 1745, author of perhaps the most penetrating antiracist essay in the English language. An Anglican clergyman marooned for life in his native Ireland, Swift thought of himself as an Englishman.

But the appalling poverty of the native Irish troubled him, so he wrote “A Modest Proposal,” a pseudonymous essay proposing a useful reform: “I have been assured by a very knowing American of my acquaintance in London, that a young healthy child well nursed, is, at a year old, a most delicious, nourishing and wholesome food, whether stewed, roasted, baked or boiled; and I make no doubt that it will equally serve in a fricassee or a ragout.”

The author expressed confidence that his proposal would be well received by absentee English “landlords, who, as they have already devoured most of the parents, seem to have the best title to the children.”

The 1729 pamphlet was published anonymously, because had its authorship been proven — although pretty much everybody in Ireland could guess who’d written it — Swift could have been imprisoned, or worse.

GENE LYONS

Anyway, here’s where I’m going with all this: Because I am, in fact, white, and because Irish history threatens no vested American interests, nobody has ever suggested that my studying it is in any way improper. Nor, certainly, tried to ban it. Had Swift been a Black man, I’m sure his works would be illegal in Florida. Arkansas too.

Consider the scene in “Gulliver’s Travels” where the gigantic hero extinguishes a fire in the Lilliputian queen’s chambers by pissing on it (the author’s response to Queen Anne’s ingratitude for services done the crown). Not to mention the scene where enormous teenaged Brobdingnagian girls perch tiny Gulliver on their nipples. Whoa, Nelly!

Moms for Liberty, which is what they’re calling the United Daughters of the Confederacy these days, would banish the novel from every library in the land.

I think my favorite moment during the absurd controversy over Florida’s and Arkansas’ efforts to ban Advanced Placement African American history classes from being taught in public schools was when Gov. Ron DeSantis’ Department of Education published a letter claiming, “The content of this course is inexplicably contrary to Florida law” (my emphasis).

Meaning they can’t explain it. Not what they intended to say, I suspect. This is what happens when you enlist semiliterate ideologues to defend us white folks from ...

Well, from what?
As near as I can tell, from history itself, and from the idea that Black citizens of a state — where chattel slavery was legal until 1865 and Jim Crow segregation laws replaced it right up to the Civil Rights Act of 1964, and where race riots and lynchings were not uncommon — just might have a perspective on its history different from the white majority’s.

DeSantis’ slogan is literally “Florida is where woke goes to die.”

In Arkansas, Gov. Sarah Sanders, too, derides the very idea of an African American perspective as “critical race theory” and “indoctrination.” Black people have no legitimate point of view, and it’s literally illegal to say otherwise in a public school classroom. Here in the United States of America.

So where does that leave somebody like me, an aging white man whose education in these matters has been sadly neglected?

Thinking maybe I need to take that African American history course.

DAVID SHRIBMAN COLUMNIST

Tough as a wolverine

She’s had floods. A plague. Toxic algae blooms in Lake Michigan. Economic distress. Death threats. A botched kidnapping. The other day, with smoke from Quebec flowing into the state, there actually was the Biblical curse of darkness. No frogs or water turning to blood yet, but don’t count them out. Gretchen Whitmer has pretty much had it all.

She’s the governor of Michigan. A Democrat in a state that until seven months ago had a Republican-controlled legislature — a fighter in fuchsia who in recent weeks had adopted a Barbie theme — she has a flood of prominent supporters and the luck of just the right enemies, at least for someone whose name is on every liberal strategists’ lips as a possible White House contender. When Donald Trump calls you “Gretchen ‘Half’ Whitmer” you’re halfway to the party’s nomination.

Halfway — if the Democratic presidential nomination were open, which it is not. At least at this writing.

No matter. She’s the flavor of the hour, and certainly not vanilla. She’s celebrated at home and vilified by the right wing just enough to have her profile take wing nationally.

I called up Mayor Mike Duggan of Detroit and he was all but gushing: “She has stood up to every bit of criticism imaginable and has never flinched.” Former Governor Jim Blanchard, not known for hyperbole, went even further, and what started as a 90-second telephone conversation went on and on: “She’s a natural politician and has the perfect temperament for high office. Being governor of Michigan may not be the only high office she serves in.”

The governor is riding high right now, at the peak of her personal appeal and powers, with favorability way above Joe Biden’s but not quite in the stratospheric zone occupied by Republican Governor Chris Sununu out east in New Hampshire. There are no reliable recent polls, but she likely is below 60% approval because she is a polarizing figure, the bête noire of an extremely prominent and vocal conservative, alienated bloc.

Meshawn Maddock, the co-chair of the Michigan Republican Party, made the incendiary but illogical suggestion that Michigan should secede from the Union to get away from Governor Whitmer. In 2020, the FBI arrested members of the Wolverine Watchmen militia group based in this small town (population 283), 14 militants and the misguided who cooked up a plot to kidnap Ms. Whitmer, kill her and overthrow the government. They got nowhere but did get to prison.

“She deserves to have post traumatic stress but damn it, she doesn’t show a trace of it,” said Richard Cole, who was chief of staff to Governor Blanchard and, having worked for Ms. Whitmer’s father is close with the family. “People marched in front of her home with weapons. As far as she’s concerned, that was just a situation to deal with, and she’s good at dealing with situations.”

It runs in the family. The governor’s father was a George Romney Republican and state commerce secretary in a ticket-splitting state. Her mother was an assistant attorney general for longtime state attorney general Frank Kelley. Her grandfather, Dana Whitmer, was president of the American Association of School Administrators when he was the school superintendent in Pontiac at the time the Ku Klux Klan torched school buses.

She’s been a strong governor in a strong-governor state; the position has stronger prerogatives than, say that of

DAVID SHRIBMAN

Texas. And her predecessors have been such big figures as George Romney, later a presidential candidate and cabinet member and father of Senator Mitt Romney, the 2012 Republican presidential nominee; G. Mennen “Soapy” Williams, remembered as a formidable liberal reformer; Mr. Blanchard, ambassador to Canada; and Jennifer Granholm, now secretary of energy. She raised Republican eyebrows and some hackles among Democrats when, in 2019, she exercised her line-item veto power 147 times. Last summer she used the line-item veto to scratch from the state budget more than $20 million in anti-abortion items such as programs advocating adoption instead of abortion and plans for anti-abortion resource centers.

The result: Conservatives called her an autocrat and liberals called her an authentic hero.

“Under very difficult circumstances,” said Mr. Blanchard, whose time in Lansing ended in 1991, “she was not afraid to make tough decisions.”

One of those decisions attracted opprobrium from Mr. Trump, who in an appearance inside the Suburban Collection Showplace in Novi, Mich., last month attacked the governor’s support for electric vehicles and Democratic efforts to attract electric-battery manufacturers to a state that has been the seat of the worldwide automobile industry. Mr. Trump said Ms. Whitmer’s offensive would mean the “decimation” of the state’s auto industry.

“It’s going to be at a level that people can’t even imagine,” he said.

Part of Ms. Whitmer’s determination may be a reaction to spending 14 pre-gubernatorial years in a small minority, six of them in the state House, eight in the state Senate, where she eventually became minority leader and watched the Republicans run roughshod over her.

“If you bully her you see the best of her,” said Mayor Duggan. “There’s nothing weak inside of her.”

She had a tough first term fighting a Republican-controlled legislature. Now that there is a Democratic majority in both houses, she has more leeway. Republicans believe the governor is on a revenge tour.

Perhaps she is. Mr. Trump and Michigan conservatives have recoiled at her plan to require the state to move completely away from plants generating power from coal and gas in 13 years.

But she also likes to emphasize her bipartisan achievements. Last year her office issued a scorecard saying she had signed 975 bipartisan bills since taking office. A few months ago she signed what she called “long overdue” bipartisan legislation ensuring the rights of Michigan’s LGBTQ citizens. She’s also signed gun and tax-cut measures.

As befits a governor of Michigan, the touchstone of her time in office has involved automobiles — or, more superficially, roads. When she was campaigning, a woman confronted her and demanded she “fix the damn roads.” Fixing the damn roads (#FTDR) has been her most prominent promise.

“Across Michigan, we are moving dirt and fixing the damn roads to drive economic activity, help Michiganders go to work, drop their kids off at school, and run errands safely,” she said last month. The bottom line: nearly 20,000 lane miles of state-owned roads have been fixed, repaired, or replaced. Could that be the road to the White House?

High School where he has ran for the past four years. Before running as a freshman, though, Poynter “wasn’t a huge fan” of the sport. So, after he initially tried cross country in seventh grade at Cousins Middle School, he stopped in eighth grade. Four years later, Poynter is glad he returned. “Some other guys were on the team when I was going into freshman year and it was during COVID,” Poynter said. “They all invited me to come out and decided to and started loving it again.” Poynter has finished in the top five in each of the first two meets of his senior season. At the Jefferson Season Opener on Aug. 16 at Jefferson High School, Poynter finished fourth overall in the boys varsity 5K. His final time was 17:29.96. The Eagles won the Strong Rock Invitational on Aug. 26 at Strong Rock Christian School. Poynter’s 17:49.05 finish placed him third, which contributed to the team’s first place trophy. Poynter was happy to experience that feeling with his teammates. “That was awesome. I don’t know the last time that Eastside took first place at a cross country meet. It was before I was here,” Poynter said. “So, being able to have that big trophy was a great feeling. There was a lot of pride for our team, school and coaches.” Throughout his time as an Eagle, Poynter has seen changes in the cross country program. One of the top things Poynter has noticed is the growth of the team’s size. In his freshman year, the Eagles barely had enough participants to compete in region play. At present, Eastside had a full varsity, junior varsity and a girls squad all in the same season. Being a part of such progression makes this season bittersweet for the senior runner. “[There’s] a little bit of pride with how successful our team has been so far this season and how much better we’ve been getting throughout the years,” Poynter said. “And a little bit of sadness about the fact that I’m not going to have this team next year.” The entire team has taken it up a notch in preparation for each meet, too. Head coach Caleb Watson proposed having 6 a.m. practices before school starts to get a workout in before the heat ramps up in the afternoon. Watson introduced the idea, but the players embraced it from day one, according to Watson. Poynter has seen the benefits himself, too. “As much as being at school at 6 a.m. is a pain, I feel like it’s been great because we’re able to get in the hard workouts that we need while avoiding the sun and the heat,” Poynter said. “It’s also been improving our team bonding with just spending more time with each other. That’s brought us closer together.” Building team camaraderie has been one of the biggest things Poynter learned about the sport early in his career. “I didn’t know how much you had to rely on your teammates,” Poynter said. “Even though you’re the only one running for yourself, the whole team matters.” There are four cross country matches left for Poynter’s high school career. On Sept. 13, the Eagles will travel to compete in the Morgan County Home Meet in Madison, Georgia. A week later, Eastside will take part in the Redskins Invitational hosted by Social Circle High School. The Eagles will be one of the teams participating in the Mountain Invitational on Sept. 28 as well. To close out the meets, Eastside will return to Jefferson High School for the Jefferson Invitational on Oct. 6. Poynter is not sure how he’s going to feel when that Oct. 6 meet arrives. Everything up to this point, though, Poynter has labeled as surreal. “It’s really weird thinking I’ve been doing this my whole time in high school,” Poynter said. “Now, I’m going to have one race this year and it’s going to be my very last.”

WRIGHT CONTINUED FROM A8

13-7. The success to this point is just the beginning, according to Wright. “I feel like it’s just a stepping stone for the season,” Wright said. “We’re setting the tone for the rest of the season.” Coming up next for Newton is a home matchup against the 40 Westlake Lions on Friday, Sept. 15. The following week will kick off the Rams’ Region

4-AAAAAAA schedule as they hit the road to face the Grayson Rams — a team Newton has never gotten the better of. When asked if the defense has played its best game yet, the answer from both Wright and Presley was an emphatic, “No.” The players are confident the Rams can continue improving. “It’s coming,” Wright said. “If we just play our brand of ball, I feel like we’re able to dominate every single game.”

After the early scores, both defenses seemed to settle down and forced multiple stops heading into the second quarter. But Benson’s seventh touchdown toss of the year — and Davis’ second touchdown reception — would be the end to the festivities. With the eventful win, the Rams improved to 40 overall. It is the program’s first 40 start to a season since 2015. In that same year, Newton won a region championship and advanced to the second round of the state playoffs. So far this season, no team has gotten close to defeating the Newton Rams. They entered Saturday’s contest against the Indians at 3-0 with an average margin of victory of 46 points. Two of the three wins were shutouts against Hapeville Charter and Alcovy. Next week, Newton (40, 0-0 in Region 4-AAAAAAA) will face a fellow unbeaten squad in the Westlake Lions (40, 0-0 in Region 2-AAAAAAA). The two teams will square off on Friday, Sept. 15 at Sharp Stadium. Kickoff is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Sports editor Garrett Pitts contributed to this report.

Rams down Indians 13-7 amid lightning delays

By DJ MOORE
Correspondent

COVINGTON, Ga. — Newton's latest matchup was Saturday night at Sharp Stadium when the McEachern Indians came to town.

The game was short-lived as a couple of lightning delays caused the game to eventually be finalized early.

The Rams walked away with a 13-7 victory, as a result. Head coach Josh Skelton shared the latest update via text message to The Covington News.

"The game is completed as is," Skelton said. "They didn't want to carry on after the delay."

Early in the second quarter, sophomore quarterback Deron Benson connected with senior wideout Keon Davis for a 40-yard touchdown.

That ended up as the final play of the game. The ensuing extra point was postponed, too, when the second, 30-minute lightning delay took effect.

Approximately 20 minutes in, public address announcer Jamie Walker announced that the game had been canceled and ended in favor of the Rams.

That was after the matchup was postponed to a later start time due to an earlier lightning delay.

But once the game started, the Rams were the first to score in the Class AAAAAAA showdown.

Junior running back Zion Johnson found the end zone as he ran it in from 14 yards out. Johnson has rushed for seven total touchdowns on the year and has eight overall.

The Indians responded quickly as their running back scored a nine-yard touchdown.

McEachern's response tied the score 7-7.

GRAYSON POYNTER RACES TOWARD THE FINISH LINE OF THE 40TH ANNUAL COVINGTON FUZZ RUN ON SATURDAY, SEPT. 9. MICHAEL BANDO

Poynter wins second straight Fuzz Run

By PHILLIP B. HUBBARD
Managing Editor

COVINGTON, Ga. — Over 2,000 people participated in the 40th annual Covington Fuzz Run Saturday, Sept. 9. At the end of the Fuzz Run 5K, only one person walked away with the first place trophy.

For the second straight year, that person was Grayson Poynter.

Winning it all back-to-back times was special for Poynter.

"It felt amazing being able to win the Fuzz Run for a second year in a row and I had a whole lot of fun with it," Poynter said. "I'm glad that Oliver Campbell was at the race, too, because he was great competition and we really pushed each other until the very end until I pulled away."

Defensive backs 'setting the tone' for Rams' 2023 season

By PHILLIP B. HUBBARD
Managing Editor

COVINGTON, Ga. — Three games into the 2023 season, the Newton Rams defense has only yielded 14 points to their opponents. That comes to a 3.5 points per game average.

One part of the defensive success stems from the play of the Rams' defensive backs unit.

Seniors Ephraim Wright and Jamarcus Presley — both captains — relayed how the defense has gotten off to such a start.

"We just came in as one," Presley said. "We understand that we have to dominate every day at practice. We come out here, we bond together and just ball."

Wright credited the attention of watching film as a factor of the success thus far.

"Everything starts in practice," Wright said. "Once you practice hard, the game is easy. It's slowed down. Everyone around us is practicing hard with each other. It comes naturally in the game."

Having a strong defensive back core is nothing new for the Rams.

Over the years, players like Tay Gowan with the Minnesota Vikings and Jacobi Francis of the Houston Texans are products of Newton. Not to mention collegiate players such as Audavion Collins at Penn State and Nyland Green on the back-to-back national champion Georgia Bulldogs' roster.

Even now, Wright notices the path the previous players have paved for him and his teammates.

"Before us, there was a standard and I feel like we got the torch and we keep the standard," Wright said. "We thank the players before us. We see our game in some of those guys, too, because we've seen them play. We were practicing with those guys on the same field."

Presley said he's looked up to Collins mainly while Wright admires Eugene Tarvares and Darius Green.

The players don't just look up to their predecessors for motivation, but within the team, too.

To help build team chemistry, the players have organized cookouts together, went to the movies, played video games and a few games of basketball together.

The bond is especially solid among the seniors, according to Wright.

"We're tuned in together," Wright said.

Presley stressed, too, that he prioritizes one thing for his individual as well as overall team development.

"I want to be consistent in one thing and that's how much work you put into it," Presley said.

Newton has defeated Hapeville Charter 50-0, Alcovy 54-0, Eastside 41-7 and, in a game that was called in the second quarter due to lightning, defeated McEachern

For juicier Turkish grilled chicken skewers, think strips not chunks

CHRISTOPHER KIMBALL

When grilled perfectly, chicken skewers come away from the fire tender and smoky. Except perfection on a grill can be elusive; they just as easily finish tough and overcooked. To ensure juicy, luscious chicken skewers every time, we started by rethinking the cut of meat. Though breast meat is the typical choice, darker thigh meat not only is more flavorful, but its higher fat content makes it more forgiving on the grill. And rather than cut the meat into thick chunks, we slice it into strips. The thinner strips cook faster, and when threaded onto the skewers, they provide more surface area for applying flavorful rubs and sauces. We applied those lessons to this recipe from our book “The New Rules,” which rethinks familiar dishes to change the way you cook. For flavor inspiration, we looked to Turkey, the country that gave shish kebabs their name. Biber salçası, or Turkish red pepper paste, is a traditional ingredient in many versions of tavuk şiş. We use easier to find Fresno chilies, which we puree with roasted bell peppers and a touch of tomato paste. Dried and fresh mint add unique layers of freshness, and a touch of honey balances the acidity of the tomato paste. Our puree also uses Aleppo pepper; look for it in well-stocked markets and spice shops. If Aleppo pepper is not available, substitute 1 tablespoon sweet paprika plus ¼ teaspoon cayenne pepper or red pepper flakes.

After the skewers marinate, don’t forget to scrape excess marinade off the chicken as you thread the pieces onto skewers. This prevents a sticky buildup on the grill grates.

Start to finish: 1 hour, plus marinating

Servings: 4

½ cup drained roasted red bell peppers, patted dry

6 medium garlic cloves, smashed and peeled

2 Fresno chilies, stemmed, seeded and roughly chopped

¼ cup extra-virgin olive oil

2 tablespoons dried mint

2 tablespoons Aleppo pepper (see headnote)

1 tablespoon honey

1 tablespoon tomato paste

Kosher salt

1½ tablespoons lemon juice

2 pounds boneless, skinless chicken thighs, trimmed and cut crosswise into 1-inch strips

3 tablespoons chopped fresh mint

In a food processor, combine the roasted red peppers, garlic, chilies, oil, dried mint, Aleppo pepper, honey, tomato paste and 1 teaspoon salt. Process until almost smooth, 45 to 60 seconds, scraping the sides as needed. Measure 3 tablespoons of the puree into a small bowl, then stir in the lemon juice; cover and refrigerate. Transfer the remaining puree to a medium bowl, add the chicken and toss to coat. Cover and refrigerate for at least 1 hour or up to 12 hours. Prepare a charcoal or gas grill. For a charcoal grill, ignite a large chimney three-quarters full of coals, let burn until lightly ashed over, then distribute evenly over one side of the grill bed; open the bottom grill vents and the lid vent. For a gas grill, turn all burners to high and heat, covered, for 15 minutes, then clean and oil the grate; turn all burners to medium-high. While the grill heats, remove the reserved puree from the refrigerator. Thread the chicken onto eight 10- to 12-inch metal skewers, evenly dividing the pieces and scraping off excess marinade. Place the skewers on the hot side of the grill (if using charcoal), and cook, uncovered, turning every 2 to 3 minutes, until evenly charred on all sides and the thickest piece is opaque when cut into, 10 to 12 minutes. Transfer to a serving platter. Stir the fresh mint into the reserved puree and serve with the kebabs.

BY SARAH PASSINGHAM

Adrienne Bailon-Houghton from "I Can See Your Voice"

Hidden talent: 'I Can See Your Voice' reveals more secret voices

They say you can fake it 'til you make it, and there is nowhere that idiom is more true than on "I Can See Your Voice." The musical mystery game show returns for its third season Tuesday, Sept. 19, on Fox, as host — and series creator — Ken Jeong ("The Afterparty") leads contestants through a series of guessing rounds centered around six talented lip-synchers.

Among the "secret voices" are true vocalists and imposter songbirds who all perform on stage to stellar pre-recorded vocals, but only the real singers perform to their own backup track. If the contestant correctly identifies a genuine performer in the final round without hearing a single note, they're singing all the way home with the $100,000 grand prize. Whether the secret voices are retired vocalists, up-and-coming artists, hobbyist singers or just convincing fakes is only revealed once the contestant locks them in for elimination or their final selection.

This season, Fox promises "all-new theme nights," featuring duets between celebrity musicians and contestants' "secret voices" picks — for better or worse. The contestants don't know just how many of the six secret voices are good or bad singers, meaning that while each elimination round reveals the true voice of one of the lip-synchers, the contestants have no clue whether they're producing sweet music or a train wreck in the final duet performance.

The duets ratchet up the nail-biting tension for the contestants, panelists, studio audience and musicians alike. Singer-songwriter and "The Masked Singer" winner, Jewel (You Were Meant For Me, 1995), made an appearance in the second season of "I Can Hear Your Voice," and after having aided the night's contestant from the panel, she herself was nervous to hear if the secret voice really had pipes when they took the stage together. Luckily the secret voice was hiding a true talent for crooning.

Contestants on "I Can See Your Voice" have limited information on the secret voices — they are defined solely by their occupation — leaving the lip-synchs as the most credible evidence of performance prowess. Throughout the elimination rounds, contestants get help from a panel of celebs anchored by Adrienne Bailon-Houghton ("The Real") and Cheryl Hines ("Curb Your Enthusiasm") with a rotating chair of guest judges and featured musical artists.

In addition to the panel, contestants have the opportunity to use the "golden mic" (an impression from a celebrity offscreen about the lip-synch performances), a look into a day in the life of one of the secret voices, a testimonial from a secret voice's biggest fan and a peek into the secret voice's home. Not every clue is a helping hand, however, as the tools at the contestants' disposal are filled with both genuine hints as well as red herrings.

A final interrogation round before the contestant locks in their ultimate selection allows them to ask one of the remaining two secret voices as many questions as they can in 30 seconds. They can ask anything they want, except for the secret voice to belt out a quick tune. Whether seeing a secret voice waffle over their answers or come prepared sets off alarm bells is up to the contestant to decide.

The season premiere of "I Can See Your Voice" follows another mystery voice competition series making its second season premiere the same night. "Name That Tune" returns with more of its celebrity edition. Celebrity contestants including athletes, TV personalities, actors and musicians compete to identify songs in a series of challenging games, affording the celebs the chance to win over $150,000 for their charity of choice if they really know their tunes.

"I Can See Your Voice" also joins more Fox game shows filling out the network's fall lineup, including the momentous 10th season of one of their breakout hits; "The Masked Singer" enters double-digit seasons with a whole new roster of elaborately costumed celebrities putting their best voice forward for judges Jeong, Jenny McCarthy-Wahlberg ("Donnie Loves Jenny"), Nicole Scherzinger ("Annie Live," 2021) and Robin Thicke ("Real Husbands of Hollywood"). Nick Cannon continues hosting duties for "The Masked Singer" this season after wrapping up "Beat Shazam," where he filled in for host Jamie Foxx ("They Cloned Tyrone," 2023), who was recovering from a medical emergency.

Plus, a brand-new game show hosted by David Spade ("The Mayor") also makes its debut on Fox this fall; "Snake Oil," executive produced by "Lego Masters" host Will Arnett, asks contestants to weed out snake oil salesmen from the real entrepreneurs to win serious cash.

Then, as the chef Gordon Ramsay suite of "Kitchen Nightmares" and "Hell's Kitchen" put cooks and restaurateurs through the ringer, the ultimate test of brawn, "Special Forces: World's Toughest Test," returns for a second season of celebrity feats of strength this fall on Fox.

Don't skip your vocal exercises or your choreography rehearsal this week, because "I Can See Your Voice" is back with a new season, premiering Tuesday, Sept. 19, on Fox.

"The Saint of Second Chances" (Sept. 19)

Mike Veeck grew up in the shadow of his hustler father, Hall of Fame baseball owner Bill Veeck. The Veeck name became both legendary and notorious in professional baseball as they introduced the fun at ballparks — giveaways, theme nights, fireworks, and more. But it all came to a screeching halt when Mike blew up his father's career. From directors Morgan Neville and Jeff Malmberg, narrated by Jeff Daniels, and featuring Charlie Day as a younger Veeck, this documentary is wildly unexpected, full of heart, and keeps you laughing through a comeback story unlike any other.

"Sex Education" - Season 4 (Sept. 21)

Following the closure of Moordale Secondary, Otis (Asa Butterfield) and Eric (Ncuti Gatwa) now face a new frontier - their first day at Cavendish Sixth Form College. Otis is nervous about setting up his new clinic, whilst Eric is praying they won't be losers again. But Cavendish is a culture shock for all the Moordale students - they thought they were progressive but this new college is another level. Gillian Anderson, Emma Mackey and Conner Swindells also star in the series' final season.

"Movie: Song of the Bandits" (Sept. 22)

Set in lawless 1920's Gando with China's land, Japan's money, and Joseon's people, this action thriller tells the story of those who have come together to protect their loved ones and their home.

"Movie: Spy Kids: Armageddon" (Sept. 22)

When the children of the world's greatest secret agents unwittingly help a powerful Game Developer unleash a computer virus that gives him control of all technology, they must become spies themselves to save their parents and the world. Connor Esterson, Everly Carganilla, Zachary Levi and Gina Rodriguez star.

BEST KEVIN COSTNER MOVIES

"The Big Chill" (1983): If you don't remember Costner being in this comedy-drama, you're forgiven ... since, in the final edit, only his arm and his hair have significant parts during the opening credits. He was cast as Alex, the suicidal friend the other central characters mourn, but director Lawrence Kasdan cut him out of most of the film.

"No Way Out" (1987): Costner is terrific as a Navy man caught in intrigue after his secret lover (Sean Young), the mistress of a government bigwig (Gene Hackman), is accidentally killed.

"The Untouchables" (1987): Costner successfully reinvents Treasury man Eliot Ness, who pursues mobster Al Capone (Robert De Niro) and partners with a veteran Chicago cop (Oscar winner Sean Connery) in director Brian De Palma's film.

"Bull Durham" (1988): Costner cements his amiable-athlete image in this baseball comedy, teaming him romantically and memorably with Susan Sarandon (though co-star Tim Robbins was her real-life partner for many years).

"Field of Dreams" (1989): Ask any man what his favorite Costner movie is, and chances are good that this baseball-diamond-building drama is the one. The picture encompasses many great performances, also including those of Ray Liotta and (in his last movie appearance) Burt Lancaster.

"Dances With Wolves" (1990): Costner became a film auteur relatively early on, directing and starring in this Oscar winner about a Civil War lieutenant who truly goes his own way. With his multiple accolades here, Costner shot to the top of virtually every producer and casting director's "want" list.

"JFK" (1991): This really is director Oliver Stone's film, but Costner is fine as District Attorney Jim Garrison, leading a massive cast packed with stars from Kevin Bacon and Tommy Lee Jones to Jack Lemmon and Walter Matthau.

"The Bodyguard" (1992): It certainly isn't the most profound movie ever made, but it sure is entertaining. Costner plays a former Secret Service man hired to protect a threatened superstar (Whitney Houston), and sparks fly between them; the film also yielded a top-selling soundtrack led by Houston's cover of Dolly Parton's "I Will Always Love You."

"A Perfect World" (1993): Costner challenges his screen image he had up to that time as an escaped, hostage-holding convict on the run from a Texas Ranger (Clint Eastwood, also the director here).

"Message in a Bottle" (1999): A very sensitive Costner helps to boost Nicholas Sparks' story of a couple (with the then-billed Robin Wright Penn as the other half) brought together by a discovered love letter.

"The Upside of Anger" (2005): Costner lets himself go, to great effect, as a jock-turned-radio personality who romances a mother of four (Joan Allen) apparently deserted by her husband.

"The Company Men" (2010): Costner does fine work as the sympathetic-to-a-point brother-in-law of a newly downsized corporate employee (Ben Affleck).

"Man of Steel" (2013): Costner is perfectly rustic and heartfelt as Jonathan Kent, the Earth father of the traveler from Krypton who will become Superman.

The facts behind a “Marvel”-ous run

BY JAY BOBBIN

Q: Why did ABC run the “Ms. Marvel” series recently, when it was made for Disney+? – Kim Banner, via e-mail

A: In a sense, it was all in the family to do so, since ABC and Disney+ are under the same corporate banner. However, there were some other reasons that giving the show (which is up for three Primetime Emmy Awards) a broadcast-network run was deemed desirable. For one thing, it helped ABC fill two Saturday nights of programming while the SAG-AFTRA actors’ strike had many new productions on hold. (ABC often books non-sports Saturday nights with repeats, so it can be argued that more benefit might have been gotten from putting “Ms. Marvel” on a different night during the “regular” television season.) Also, the show is a prelude to the forthcoming theatrical feature “The Marvels,” in which Iman Vellani will reprise the role of Kamala Khan/Ms. Marvel ...

Iman Vellani in “Ms. Marvel” so running the series for a broadcast-TV audience also served as a massive trailer for the movie.

Q: Though the Nicholas Brothers weren’t in it all that much, it still was nice to see Turner Classic Movies show “That’s Entertainment!” as part of the “Summer Under the Stars” tribute day for them in August. How was it decided which clips would be used in that picture? – George Casey, via e-mail

A: Writer-producer-director Jack Haley Jr. was handed the keys to the kingdom – or at least to the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer vault – when the studio wanted to salute itself on the occasion of its 50th anniversary, and “That’s Entertainment!” was the result, released in 1974. A veteran of making documentaries, Haley had a strong sense of what the cream of the crop was in terms of MGM-musical product, with “Singin’ in the Rain” and “An American in Paris” among the absolute “musts” to include ... plus “The Wizard of Oz,” in which the Tin Man was played by Haley’s father, Jack Haley. “That’s Entertainment!” turned out to be such a hit, MGM commissioned two direct sequels, plus “That’s Dancing!”. Haley Jr., who returned to supervise the latter project, was married to “That’s Entertainment!” co-host Liza Minnelli (whose mother, Judy Garland, worked with his father in “The Wizard of Oz”) from 1974 to 1979.
