Local father steps in front of bullet meant for his son

By TOM SPIGOLON
tspigolon@covnews.com

COVINGTON, Ga. — A father who stepped in front of a bullet meant for his son was being treated for a gunshot wound and his alleged teen assailant was behind bars in the Newton County jail following a March 26 incident. Brady Smith was transported to an area hospital and was being treated for a gunshot wound last week after a bullet from a .22-caliber rifle struck him March 26 about 3 p.m., said spokesman Capt. Ken Malcom of the Covington Police Department.

Gabriel Chanunda Bell Jr., 19, of 10144 Allen Drive was arrested and charged with two counts of aggravated assault in the attack, Malcom said. He said the incident apparently began as a disagreement over money between the suspect and the victim's son, Toddrick Smith, at Bell's Allen Drive residence, Malcom said. Brady Smith was in an area nearby and was not involved in the original meeting, Malcom said. However, the father heard the argument escalating and "became involved in the incident," Malcom said. "At some point, (the suspect) produced a .22-caliber rifle," he said. Brady Smith then "stepped in front of his son" and a bullet entered and exited his ribcage, the spokesman said. The victim's condition was not immediately available Friday, Malcom said. Bell was being held in the Newton County Jail last week without bond, according to jail records.

Porterdale

City takes 'appropriate' action after officer charged with DUI

By TOM SPIGOLON
tspigolon@covnews.com

PORTERDALE, Ga. — A Porterdale police officer is no longer employed by the city after she was arrested in Gwinnett County on DUI charges earlier this week. Terri Jo Lynn Brand, who gave her address as Lilburn, was booked into the Gwinnett County Jail Tuesday, March 30, at 10:31 p.m. and released the following morning, according to jail records. Brand, 43, was held in the Gwinnett jail on charges including Driving Under the Influence, Driving on the Wrong Side of the Road, and Failure to Have License, according to jail records. City Manager Frank Etheridge said Thursday that Police Chief Jason Cripps "is addressing the issue with the employee and the city will take appropriate personnel actions." Etheridge later said Brand was no longer employed with the city as of March 31 but did not give details on the separation. Cripps declined comment because it was a personnel matter. A source close to the city police department said Brand was working under a probationary period for the position and was likely to resign.

Newton County Schools

District set to receive $43 million in federal stimulus funds

STAFF REPORTS
news@covnews.com

COVINGTON, Ga. — Newton County Schools will receive almost $43 million in federal stimulus money from Georgia's share of American Rescue Plan funding. The funding to Newton County totaling $42,980,285 was announced recently by the Georgia Department of Education. It is among $3.8 billion — $3,824,434,000 — that Georgia public schools will receive in federal stimulus funds, a news release stated. The State Board of Education on March 25 approved State School Superintendent Richard Woods' recommendation to begin allocating the funds to individual school districts. School districts must set aside at least 20% of the funds they receive to address student learning loss according to the federal legislation. The remaining funds are flexible and can be used to support at-risk student populations, distance/remote learning, school meals, mental and physical health, supplemental learning and addressing learning loss, facilities and equipment, continuity of core staff and services, and more, the release stated. "These funds will help Georgia schools address learning loss and ensure the safety of students, staff, and families," said State School Superintendent Richard Woods. "I encourage all school districts to take advantage of these resources to continue or expand safe in-person learning options for students." This is the third round of federal stimulus funding Georgia schools have received, following CARES 1 allocations in May 2020 and CARES 2 allocations in January 2021. Like CARES 2 funds, these funds do not have an equitable services provision requiring districts to make funding available to private or independent schools within their geographic area. Covington woman turns 100 years old

news@covnews.com

Lifelong Covington resident Eloise Crawford Sherod will turn 100 years old on April 3. Sherod was born in Covington to parents James Harvey Crawford and Ouida Crawford in 1921.

Eloise Sherod

She has survived six of her eight siblings, including Wallace Crawford, Monta Crawford, Robert Crawford, Raburn Crawford, Elsie Holder and Evelyn Holder. Her two living siblings are Gary Crawford and Edward Crawford. Sherod currently resides on the property of a dairy farm she ran with her first husband, Jones Thurman "JT" Polk, who died in 1970.

The dairy farm was called Riverbend because of its location on the Yellow River and was the primary source of income for Sherod and Polk, as well as Polk's brothers, Charles and Frank, and his father, Jones Thurman Polk, Sr. At its peak, the farm, which is no longer active, had 78 milk cows. Sherod also survived her second husband, William "Bill" Sherod, who died in 1996. Later in her life, Sherod spent her days with her sister Elsie Holder, who passed away in 2015. The two would shop in Covington and Conyers. Sherod's family said that she continues to wake up with a smile on her face every day and that they look forward to watching her turn 101 years old next year.

Molly Shappell
Caldwell & Cowan
Funeral Home

Molly Shappell, of 6114 Floyd Street in Covington, Georgia, lived her final days under hospice care in a hospital bed surrounded by loved ones in her favorite room of her house, her "country cute" sunroom. Through the window, she could see her garden, which she spent countless hours tending, a window box filled with daisies and a ceramic frog holding a sign that says "Gardening Made Me Beautiful." On the fireplace mantle is a photo of her birth-mother, an aspiring actress in a traveling dance troupe in WWII, whom Mom's birth-sisters believed she got her creative flair. Mom's own pottery and hand-painted still lifes of vases and flowers dot the room. Before the hospital bed, there used to be a pink couch where she would often nap in the afternoons with her cat Wabi-Sabi, one of many animals she had rescued throughout her life. On the floor would rest her beloved dog, Indie, whom she'd take with her on numerous trips to her favorite place to vacation: Charleston, South Carolina. Nearby, on a shelf, was Stel-laluna, her best-loved children's book that expresses the importance of celebrating people's differences as much as their similarities, which she often read to her students over the many years she spent as an elementary school teacher. Humorous stories from her life were told around her bed, like when she called a doctor, "Dr. Do-little," after he wanted to discharge a close friend of hers too early from the hospital. Being a former aerobics instructor, though bed-bound, she couldn't refuse moving to the workout music we played for her. With a smile, her feet shifted under the sheets in rhythm to the beat. Even though she followed a healthy diet and lifestyle for most of her life, she splurged on root-beer floats and hot dogs from Dairy Queen in her final days. Whether socializing, gardening, painting, teaching, exercising, or traveling, Mom was always busy. She used to say that staying active was her way of healing and being happy; it is no wonder she couldn't stay in that hospital bed for too long. A celebration of her life will be held in her garden on her birthday, Saturday, April 17, at 11:00 a.m. If attending, do a Molly and please feel free to park on Floyd Street some distance away from her house, so you have the chance to exercise and take in the sun.

This obituary was prepared with love and affection by Mrs. Shappell's family. Visit www.caldwellandcowan.com to place online condolences.

Others include the Newton County Library System, which received $5,000 to host a series of community robotics programs to introduce simple computer coding and engineering concepts primarily for children.

Lace Keaton, director of the Newton County Library System, said, “We are so grateful to receive a 2021 Facebook Community Action Grant for Newton County Library System.”

“The grant will provide us with an opportunity to offer a new STEM ‘Books and Bots Academy’ which will engage patrons ages 8 to 15 in a series of exciting computer literacy workshops,” Keaton said.

Boys & Girls Clubs of North Central Georgia received $35,000 to support technology in clubs and improve STEM access to members.

“With a focus on a makerspace classroom, the equipment will inspire youth to engage in STEM to promote a brighter future,” the release stated.

Bob Mackey, CEO of Boys & Girls Club of North Central Georgia, said, “Boys & Girls Clubs of North Central Georgia is blown away by the generosity of Facebook.

“This gift to our youth who need us most will allow us to continue our world-class, life-changing programming from engineering to tech.

“Together we continue to make a difference in the lives of youth because of gifts such as Facebook’s.”

Other Newton County recipients include:

- Georgia State University, $19,828; for 3D printers to create a 3D print team within the school’s STEM makerspace classroom.

Students at the university, which has a Newton County campus, will be able to learn 3D printing skills while sharing their work in the community.

- Social Circle Primary School, $3,174; to support the purchase of Google Jamboards.
- Family Promise of NewRock, $2,000; to “be used to assist the homeless population in Newton County with the tools and equipment they need to get back on their feet,” the release stated.
- Sustainable Newton, $1,500; to support virtual event programming to engage Newton County residents of all ages in activities that involve solving climate and environmental issues locally.

Grant recipients from other counties include:

- Walton County School District, $52,865; to build both instructional capacity and student interest in programming by introducing a STEM-scopes module for all 900 fifth-grade students.
- Camp Twin Lakes, $25,000; to keep underserved children, teens and their families connected, both virtually and in person. Camp Twin Lakes near Rutledge “provides year-round, fully-adaptive and deeply impactful camp experiences to nearly 10,000 of Georgia’s children and young adults, helping each camper grow in their confidence and experience the joys of childhood.”
- Jasper County Charter System, $35,000; to add technologically-advanced, interactive Smartboards in each classroom to enhance teaching and learning.

challenges from China.

An Athens resident, Broun previously represented the district from 2007 to 2015.

He said he brings the advantage of already knowing “how the system works” in Congress.

“I had a good relationship with both the Democrat and Republican sides,” he said.

“I’m ready to go to work.”

Hice recently announced he planned to give up his Congressional seat after four terms to challenge incumbent Brad Raffensperger for the Republican nomination for Secretary of State in 2022.

Others considering a run for the seat include State Rep. Houston Gaines of Athens and State Rep. Jodi Lott of Evans, the Walton Tribune reported.

Broun said he was encouraged to challenge Hice for the seat in the past but he did not want to run against a friend.

“I applaud Jody for the work he’s done,” Broun said.

Broun noted that he helped recruit major industries to the 10th district in 2012, including Baxter Pharmaceuticals in Stanton Springs business park near Social Circle and Caterpillar Inc. for a manufacturing plant near Athens.

Baxter is now Takeda Pharmaceuticals.

He also chaired the Science, Space and Technology Committee’s Subcommittee on Investigations and Oversight when Republicans held the majority.

Broun said if he is elected he would already have seven and a half years of seniority, which gives him priority to become the highest-ranking Republican on the subcommittee.

The former practicing physician said he wants to return to its chairmanship to investigate the origins of COVID-19 and the public health response to it.

He said spending by both political parties in Congress is “spiraling out of control.”

Republicans are more efficient but are “cheap Democrats” who are approving about 10% less than Democrats in the amount of spending above what is being taken in, he said.

That means there is literally “only a dime’s worth of difference between the two parties,” he said.

“When I left Washington in 2015, things were in bad shape. It’s much worse today,” Broun said.

He said he never voted for a tax hike, omnibus bill or debt ceiling increase during his previous time in Congress.

Spending on the scale being done today by both parties could lead to hyperinflation and “eventually the financial collapse of America,” he said.

“I never caved in to my own (party’s) leadership,” Broun said.

A Marine veteran, Broun said he also will focus on increasing the nation’s military strength in areas like the Navy where “we don’t have enough ships.”

He said Democrats favor socialism and he wanted to “expose and block the liberal agenda” which is counter to how the nation’s founders wanted the government to operate.

“There are enemies of the principles that made this country great,” he said.

“I love freedom and liberty,” he said. “I’m ready to fight for my grandchildren and great-grandchildren. I’m fighting for the future of Georgia.”

A strong conservative is needed to oppose the effects of Democrats’ current control of the executive and legislative branches, Broun said.

He said he feared that President Joe Biden wants “an endless emergency” to justify “more lockdowns, open borders, nationalized elections with no voter identification, unconstitutional gun controls, critical race theory in our schools, and massive tax hikes.”

The 10th Congressional District includes Newton County south and east of Covington.

It also includes all or part of 24 other counties and stretches from McDonough in the west to suburban Augusta in the east, Athens in the north and Wrightsville in the south.

The part of Newton County not in the district is in Georgia’s 4th Congressional District represented by U.S. Rep. Hank Johnson, D-Lithonia.

Broun won a special election in July 2007 to succeed Charlie Norwood in the 10th District seat after Norwood’s death in office that year.

He then won a full term in 2008 but left to run for the U.S. Senate seat won by David Perdue in 2014.

Hice then was elected to succeed Broun in the 10th District seat.

Former president Donald Trump handily won a majority of the vote in the heavily conservative district despite losing the statewide vote to Biden in 2020.

and children’s essentials, such as diapers and nutritional items.

All items in the center are unlimited, except for one table of cleaning supplies.

Charlie Williams said this decision was made due to the demand for these items during COVID-19.

On the third Friday of every month, the pantry is closed, but the church serves a hot meal outside of the church during the same noon to 2 p.m. timeframe.

Last Friday, 122 people came to the church to get a hot meal.

The center is supplied by local farms and funded by congregational and community donations.

Oxford College of Emory University’s Organic farm began supplying the center with fresh produce in April 2020. The college also supplies hot meals from the Oxford dining hall to the church on Sunday’s, which is made possible by a food recovery program led by Oxford students.

In November, when the Oxford Organic farm stopped producing enough food to donate, the community stepped up to supply the food bank with produce and other goods.

“The Lord, I know for a fact, worked things out because when the farm stopped giving us stuff, I was able to start getting stuff from other people,” Charlie Williams said.

One man, known only to Charlie and Coletta Williams as “Ricky” stops by once a week to drop off a truckload of food items.

“Ricky” is just one of the people Charlie Williams considers “community partners” who help to keep the food pantry stocked for the community.

To spread the word about the food bank, the church advertised on local news stations and put out informational flyers and posts on their social media platforms.

The center has drawn people in need from as far away as Madison and Monroe.

“Even though we’re trying to do this for Oxford, I refuse to turn away anybody,” Williams said.

“Wherever place they are coming from, we give them food.

While the food pantry is generally well-stocked with all the necessities the community needs, Charlie and Coletta Williams said that there are several items people ask for they do not have.

These items include eggs, canned goods, beef and fish.

Charlie Williams stressed the importance of churches being available to communities during the pandemic and the resources they can provide to people undergoing financial and emotional hardship.

“It’s important to me to know that we can all still do something even amidst COVID-19,” Charlie Williams said.

“We can’t just sit down, get into a fetal position and wait until things get better. We can’t do that.”

Images often paint 1,000 negative words

The actions of Brian Kemp have led to more backlash against the Georgia governor even as he tries to fight for his political life.

Kemp, behind closed and locked doors, signed into a law a bill which changes several aspects of the Georgia voting process. The move has been heralded by some, criticized by most on the left for going too far and even some on the extreme right for not going far enough.

Of course, the irony of all of this is that when Kemp was Georgia's Secretary of State he was in favor of the aspects of voting in our state which in 2021 he has officially outlawed.

Can we really take Kemp at his word on anything now? During the days and weeks following the 2020 general election, the Georgia governor declared there was not a massive amount of voter fraud as former president Donald Trump claimed.

Kemp stood along side, figuratively if not literally, current Republican Secretary of State Brad Raffensperger in claiming that the vote in our state was in fact legit. Three recounts proved as much. Not liking the outcome of an election does not mean it was rigged.

Of course, the governor was roundly criticized by former President Trump and others on the far right of the GOP.

Apparently now Kemp believes there were issues with how votes were made and signed into law changes which are certainly politically motivated.

Had President Trump won Georgia's electoral votes in 2020 and if Republicans Kelly Loeffler and David Perdue won their respective races, then there would have been no issues with the voting process.

However, there is power in being in charge and in this case being governor. Kemp sees his political future flashing before his eyes. Clearly, he hopes by signing in this piece of legislation it will help him with the far-right wing of the state Republican Party and with those who backed President Trump without question 100% of the time.

It's laughable really. Kemp is going to have primary opposition in 2022. Already two candidates have declared they are going to challenge the governor and even more high-profile names are all but sure to follow.

Perhaps the most lasting memory of the new voter bill signing was how an African-American elected official was arrested and dragged off by three rather physically imposing Georgia State Patrol officers. Park Cannon was seen knocking on the office door of the governor in an attempt to gain entrance to the closed signing.

Meanwhile inside the governor's office, Kemp was surrounded by six white male lawmakers as he put pen to paper.

First, the image of an elected official, regardless of color, being dragged away by state troopers is a horrible image in 2021. The fact the elected official was African-American made the display even worse.

Second, with so many African-American voters in Georgia decrying the bill, it looks completely inappropriate for Kemp to be surrounded by six white males. It is hard to fathom someone on Kemp's public relations team did not say something to the governor beforehand. Perhaps they did.

It was a throwback to a different era in state politics when state troopers arrested African-American citizens without cause for voicing their opinion. While it is now decades later, images still play a huge role. It was that way in the 1960s when Americans outside the South saw television news footage of what was taking place in their neighboring states.

Had the incident involving Park Cannon only been talked about around the proverbial water color or read about in the newspaper or heard on the radio, it would not have had such a drastic impact. However, to see a female African-American elected official taken away by white state troopers gives the impression that the more things change the more they stay the same.

Make no mistake this voting bill signed into law by Kemp was all about politics. Most Republicans still cannot wrap their mind around the fact that President Biden won the state and that Georgia now has two Democratic US Senators. To them, if that happened then the votes must have been illegal.

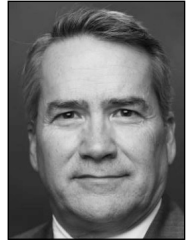

This action could easily backfire on Republicans. With Democrats continuing to gain traction in the state, 2022 could be a year where the USS Georgia GOP sinks. This voting bill would be a key reason why.

Our nation's moral dilemma

Dear Friends, In seven days, America has been rocked by two horrific shootings – the Atlanta spa shootings on March 16 and the March 22 attack in Boulder, Colorado.

As we pray for and honor the victims, their families, and first responders, we must also examine the root causes of what leads an individual to pick up a weapon with the intent to commit violence against innocent people.

I served as a pastor for many years before coming to Congress, and I view this violence through the lens of my faith. I firmly believe that mass shootings are a symptom of a profound moral crisis in America – one that cannot be easily solved by simply passing law after law in Washington.

George Washington said that “religion and morality are indispensable supports” of a prosperous nation. These two great pillars have been driven from public life, and until they are restored, we cannot remedy the brutal absence of compassion in our society that leads to mass shootings. We must renew our love and faith in both God and each other.

This epidemic of violence results from the decades-long erosion of the traditional values that once formed the bedrock of American life. I believe, without a doubt, that this absence of decency is inextricably linked to mass shootings. For example, when one looks at the profiles of mass shooters, they are almost exclusively male, and a startling number grew up without a father present in their lives. Fatherless children are significantly more likely to drop out of school, run away from home, abuse drugs and alcohol, commit suicide and, yes, perpetrate gun violence. According to the U.S. Census Bureau, roughly one in four American children now live without a father in the home. Strong family bonds are correlated with religion and morality. I don't believe it is a coincidence that the number of mass shootings has increased as the number of fatherless children has skyrocketed.

Why is this critical link not discussed in the wake of mass shootings?

Unfortunately, the Left would much rather use these horrific events as opportunities to manipulate Americans' emotions and vulnerability to advance their political agenda, and this time is no different.

We still don't have all the facts about these shootings, yet President Biden is already calling for a ban on so-called “assault weapons.” Be wary of politicians jumping to offer up their pet policies as prepackaged, ready-made “solutions” to end gun violence. Too often, there is another motive at play.

Last October, I explained in Newsweek that a ban is not only unconstitutional, but it's also far more problematic and far less effective than Democrats claim. An “assault weapons” ban will not end mass shootings, but it will severely restrict the Second Amendment rights of law-abiding Americans – a goal the Left has been pushing towards for years.

President Biden has openly said that he wants to confiscate AR-15 style semi-automatic rifles (the most popular type of firearm in the country), which starts by banning them.

Folks, this proposal isn't about preventing mass shootings. This is merely a steppingstone in a larger political agenda, and Democrats are using Americans' grief over these tragedies to do it.

Dick Yarbrough guest columnist

Columnist is proud to be son of the South

I am a son of the South and proud of it. Born here, raised here and, God willing, will be planted here. The South is and always will be my home.

Have we always been a perfect place? Far from it. The notion of separate-but-equal was anything but in the South in which I was raised. Blacks rode in the back of the bus and attended substandard schools. They couldn't eat in our restaurants or attend our churches or shop in our stores. They were required to serve in the military but discouraged to the point of intimidation from registering to vote.

Blacks were accused of crimes they didn't commit and too many lost their lives as a result. It was not our finest hour.

The civil rights movement of the '60s changed the dynamics. It was a painful but necessary time. There is disagreement as to just how much things have changed but in my view they have and for the better. There are special interest groups on both sides of the racial divide who will disagree. That is understandable because it is in their political and financial interest to do so. They will never be satisfied.

I grew up thinking that bigotry existed only in the South until I ventured north and heard the locals disparaging Greeks, Italians, Poles, Jews, Irish Catholics and, yes, Blacks. I discovered that prejudice was not regional. Neither was hypocrisy.

I grieve that what has made being Southern so special has come under attack. It started with the “Fergit, Hell!” crowd glorifying a way of life that no longer exists and probably never did. Their Lost Cause was exemplified by supporters of the old Georgia state flag which resembled the Confederate battle flag; as ornery a bunch of people as I have ever dealt with and I have dealt with a bunch of ornery folks in my long career.

They threatened and bullied and postured but totally misread public support of their cause. The state flag was changed during the Perdue Administration with the overwhelming approval of Georgians.

Now they are reduced to watching the pendulum swing the other way and having to endure politically-correct zealots tearing down statues and trying to obliterate anything having to do with Southern history, without knowing what they are talking about.

The flaggers with their heads turned toward the past and a war long ago lost do not represent my South. Neither do the fanatics trying to rewrite the history of the region by destroying it. In some ways, their actions are eerily reminiscent of the Taliban's efforts to wipe out Afghanistan's history 20 years ago.

My South is gentle and polite. We grew up saying “Yes, ma'am” and “No ma'am” and “Thank you.” I still do. Friday night football was a social gathering. It still is. We went to church on Sunday and on Wednesday nights, too. Nobody locked their doors. Southern cooking was equal parts lard, salt and fried. We ate supper because dinner was at lunch. And nobody in the South prepared a meal. It was fixed, as in, “Come on in the house and wash your hands. Momma is fixing supper.”

People laugh at how we talk. The laugh is on them. It is everybody else that talks funny. Yes, our speech pattern may be slow but as my daddy used to say, we think fast.

If you want to see the real South, you will need to venture out from the killing fields of Atlanta and environs. That area is about as southern as South Bronx and just about as hazardous. Head in any direction – north, south, east or west – and you will find a South of mountains and lakes, pecan and peach and apple orchards, rolling farmlands and pristine ocean beaches. It is a special place filled with God-fearing people who love their country, sweet tea and one another.

This is the South that I love. This is why I am proud to be a son of the South. If you don't agree that this is hallowed and holy soil, I can only say, “Bless your heart.” It is not a compliment.

Foreclosures
NOTICE OF Sale Under Power

GEORGIA, NEWTON County
UNDER AND by virtue of the Power of Sale contained in a Deed to Secure Debt given by Courtney Burrell to Mortgage Electronic Registration Systems, Inc. ("MERS") as nominee for Countrywide Home Loans, Inc., dated April 27, 2006, and recorded in Deed Book 2176, Page 577, Newton County, Georgia records, and re-recorded at Deed Book 2942, Page 162, Newton County, Georgia records; and as last transferred to The Bank of New York Mellon as Trustee for the Certificate holders of CWABS, Inc. Asset-Backed Certificates, Series 2006-8, by Assignment recorded in Deed Book 2918, Page 289, Newton County, Georgia records, conveying the after-described property to secure a Note of even date in the original principal amount of $171,750.00, with interest at the rate specified therein, there will be sold by the undersigned at public outcry to the highest bidder for cash before the Courthouse door of Newton County, Georgia, within the legal hours of sale on the first Tuesday in May, 2021, to wit: May 4, 2021, the following described property: All that tract or parcel of land lying and being in Land Lot 40 of the 10th District of Newton County, Georgia, being Lot 59 of Glen Echo Subdivision, Phase One, as per plat recorded in Plat Book 42, Pages 195-198 (more particularly described in Page 197), Newton County, Georgia records, which plat is incorporated herein by reference and made a part hereof.

THE DEBT secured by said Deed to Secure Debt has been and is hereby declared due because of, among other possible events of default, failure to pay the indebtedness as and when due and in the manner provided in the Note and Deed to Secure Debt. The debt remaining in default, this sale will be made for the purpose of paying the same and all expenses of this sale, as provided in the Deed to Secure Debt and by law, including attorney's fees (notice of intent to collect attorney's fees having been given).

SAID PROPERTY is commonly known as 40 Glen Echo Drive, Covington, GA 30016, together with all fixtures and personal property attached to and constituting a part of said property. To the best knowledge and belief of the undersigned, the party (or parties) in possession of the subject property is (are): Courtney Burrell or tenant or tenants.

SAID PROPERTY will be sold subject to (a) any outstanding ad valorem taxes (including taxes which are a lien, but not yet due and payable), (b) any matters which might be disclosed by an accurate survey and inspection of the property, and (c) all matters of record superior to the Deed to Secure Debt first set out above, including, but not limited to, assessments, liens, encumbrances, zoning ordinances, easements, restrictions, covenants, etc.

THE SALE will be conducted subject to (1) confirmation that the sale is not prohibited under the U.S. Bankruptcy Code; (2) O.C.G.A. Section 9-13-172.1; and (3) final confirmation and audit of the status of the loan with the holder of the security deed.

PURSUANT TO O.C.G.A. Section 9-13-172.1, which allows for certain procedures regarding the rescission of judicial and nonjudicial sales in the State of Georgia, the Deed Under Power and other foreclosure

By MASON WITTNER
mwittner@covnews.com

COVINGTON, Ga. —Newton County has long been a hotbed for basketball talent. For proof, look no further than the 2021 NCAA Men's Basketball Tournament, where a pair of players who once graced the hardwood at Eastside and Newton competed in college basketball's largest spectacle. Despite the bizarre circumstances that every athletic program in the country has found itself navigating since the start of the COVID-19 pandemic, our area once again proved to be home to some of the best prep basketball talent in the state during the 2020-21 campaign. Alcovy, Eastside, Newton and Social Circle had varying degrees of success in their most recent boys' and girls' basketball seasons. But regardless of the final number in the win and loss columns, the county's talent pool was undoubtedly deep in both leagues.

Following a careful examination of the product put on display by all the basketball programs in our coverage area this season, it's now an honor to present the 2021 All-Covington News Basketball Team.

Girls' Coach of the Year: Tiffani Johnson (Newton)

Newton head coach Tiffani Johnson led the Lady Rams to a historic campaign this winter. With the departure of eight seniors from a team that won 16 games a season ago, as well as a drastically different offseason due to the pandemic, it was unclear what type of squad Newton would field this year. The unanswered questions about the team's chemistry were glaring early on, as they stumbled their way to a 6-10 mark in the regular season. However, the Lady Rams did just enough to sneak into the Class AAAAAAA state playoffs as a No. 4 seed out of the five-team Region

4. By the time the tournament rolled around, Johnson had helped her group see their potential when they worked together as a unit. "There was a weird, unprecedented time that you had to go through to get to where you wanted to get to," Johnson said. "It was one of those seasons where every coach in America was adapting to something never experienced before. I on't think we were an exception to any other team. We just happened to kind of come together at the right time." The result was an admirable Cinderella story. The Lady Rams went on the road in the opening round and took down No. 1 seed Tift County, 50-38. They kept their season alive in the second round with another upset victory, this time knocking off No. 2 seed North Paulding, 55-46, to advance to the Elite Eight for the first time since 2018. Johnson witnessed her team growing more confident in themselves and growing their trust in one another. The playoff run was ended in the third round by eventual state runner-up Woodstock, but the experience garnered during it will be invaluable going forward. "I was glad we had the experience of what we look like when we gel," Johnson said. "Looking back, it'll just be all of the little things we were able to overcome. All of the experience and being battle-tested. Knowing that if we were able to get through that, there's not too much else we won't be able to handle next year."

Girls' Player of the Year: Sanaa Tripp (Newton)

One of the catalysts of Newton's Elite Eight run was freshman phenom Sanaa Tripp. Tripp is a versatile point guard who proved a nightmare for opponents on a nightly basis. She showcased the ability to knock down shots from beyond the arc while also excelling at creating space to get to the bucket. When the ball wasn't in her hands, she traversed the court and found areas that set her up for prime scoring opportunities. "She's an old-school gym rat who loves the game" Newton head coach Tiffani Johnson said of Tripp. "She watches it, absorbs it, does everything with it, so I think she'll be just fine." Tripp made the jump from middle school basketball in eighth grade to starting at the varsity level in the state's highest classification as a freshman. It was a leap not many could make, but one she found wasn't as difficult as she initially presumed. "The atmosphere here is very different from middle school, but it wasn't as hard as I thought it would be," Tripp said. "It was easier because I kind of block everything out once I start playing. Of course, the completion was definitely a good jump, but I was still able to work hard in our to fit — well, stand out — as I did." Tripp averaged 21 points seven rebounds and five steals per game during her freshman season. She credited her coaching staff and teammates with making the transition feel seamless by being welcoming and instructive. "They all believed in me, which boosted the confidence I had in myself. I wouldn't be here without them," she said. "And honestly we wouldn't have gotten as far as we did without teamwork, without working together. I was glad that I was able to put in as big of a part as I did." With three years of varsity basketball left to play, Tripp is dedicated to the continued development of her craft. She hopes to work toward becoming a better individual player, as well as being more vocal as a leader and filling in as glue that holds her team together. And when Tripp sets her mind to a goal, more often than not she's going to put in the work needed to achieve it. That's simply the type of person she is.

Tigers complete season sweep of Rockdale

By MASON WITTNER
mwittner@covnews.com

CONYERS, Ga. — For the first time since 2016, Alcovy has swept a region opponent.

The Tigers went on the road Tuesday to play their season finale against Region 3-AAAAAA adversary Rockdale County. After collecting a pair of wins over the Bulldogs earlier this month, they capped off the three-game sweep with a 6-3 victory.

Prior to Tuesday, the last region opponent to be swept by Alcovy in a season series was Lovejoy five years ago.

"It's big for us for a couple of reasons," Alcovy head coach Jimmy Hughes said. "One, it keeps us in playoff contention, which we haven't done since 2013. Second, up until these last couple years, Rockdale has had our number every time Alcovy has gone up against them."

"In order to turn the corner as a program, you have to be able to sweep the area teams."

Mason Wittner | The Covington News

Alcovy freshman Hunter Parker pitched a complete game against Rockdale County on Tuesday as the Tigers finished off the three-game sweep of the Bulldogs with a 6-3 win. The right-hander allowed three runs (one earned) on five hits while striking out seven and walking two.

was sturdy and reliable on the hill for the Tigers (8-13, 3-4). He pitched a complete game, allowing three runs (one earned) on five hits while striking out seven and walking two.

Parker's efforts not only kept Alcovy in the game Tuesday, but also put the Tigers in a favorable position heading into this weekend's series with another area team in Heritage.

"By him being able to go the distance, it saves the rest of our pitching for those two games [against Heritage,]" Hughes said. "He competes, man. You look at him and he's all of 5 feet 8 inches, maybe 140 pounds. But that dude, man, his heart and his want-to is something."

Parker helped his own cause in the second inning by lacing an RBI single to right field to score the game's first run.

An inning later, the Tigers extended their lead when fellow freshman Reece Payne scored on a wild pitch and senior Lamar Williams came home on a sacrifice fly off the bat of senior Jayden Bishop, making it 3-0.

The Bulldogs took a run back with an RBI single of their own in the third inning, followed by a run-scoring groundout in the fourth. But in the sixth inning, with just a one-run cushion between themselves and Rockdale County, Alcovy doubled its advantage on Payne's two-out RBI single to center field.

The Tigers tacked on two more runs with RBI singles from sophomore Rodgis Ponder and Parker, effectively icing the victory.

Alcovy returned to action Thursday afternoon when the Tigers traveled to fellow Rockdale County rival Heritage for a region battle.

They forced the game into extra innings before suffering a 2-1 loss to the Patriots to dip back below .500 in league play. They had an opportunity to exact revenge on Friday evening when they played host to the Patriots in a rematch.

HEROES:

"You're told that hard work beat talent when talent doesn't work hard. Yeah, but when your talent works hard, then it's really tough to beat," Johnson said. "I think she's a great example of that."

Boys' Coach of the Year: Dorrian Randolph (Eastside)

Last June, after taking the head coaching job at Eastside following a season as associate head coach for Salem, Randolph made his primary goal crystal clear.

He wanted to put the Eagles back in the postseason.

Eastside had missed out on the state playoffs three years in a row, and Randolph was determined to instill a culture and game plan that would help change their fortune. One season in, he managed to do just that.

Under Randolph's guidance, the Eagles stormed their way to a runner-up finish in the Region 8-AAAAA tournament to earn their first state playoff berth since 2017.

The celebration didn't last very long. No. 2 seed Eastside drew a date with No. 3 Decatur, which led to a 55-48 defeat on the Eagles' home court. Any time a coach loses the final game of the season, it's difficult to view the year as a resounding success.

But time heals all wounds. Now, reflecting on his first season in green and white, Randolph has a renewed appreciation for the Eagles' flight to the playoffs.

"Being able to sit back now and actually look at the season, I find myself saying, 'Man, you really accomplished something,'" said Randolph. "Of course you never want the season to end [with a loss,] but I think we had a great year."

Eastside broke tryouts with eight active players on the roster. A lengthy playoff run by the football team kept key players off the court for the first month of the season, and the club worked to grasp the schematic concepts of their first-year head coach.

But the program turned a corner in January after a lethargic start to the season.

The Eagles won eight of their final 10 regular-season games before knocking out Jackson County and Greenbrier in the region tournament in a pair of thrillers to earn a trip to the region title game.

"We just kind of hit the ground running at the right time," Randolph said

Boys' Player of the Year: T.J. Clark (Newton)

T.J. Clark led the Rams in scoring this season with 14.2 points per game. He was a menace all over the court, registering 3.2 rebounds, 2.3 assists and 1.8 steals per contest as well.

But perhaps what made the Newton junior the leading candidate for Player of the Year wasn't the numbers on the stat sheet, but the off-court qualities of the player behind them.

The program entered the 2020-21 season with no clear leader in place as several projected starters had seen minimal minutes a season ago.

In stepped Clark.

"From my sophomore to my junior year, I had to show leadership.

Last year I was basically a role player, so this year was a little different," Clark said. "I had to step up, show leadership and just try to carry the team so we could all play together."

Clark came to the realization that a leader of the team doesn't always have to be the most vocal. Instead, he set an example for his teammates through his actions by setting the tone in every single practice.

"His energy that he brings everyday to practice, workouts, the weight room, running — anything that we're doing — he is always the most energetic guy," Newton head coach Charlemagne Gibbons said. "I think that kind of set the tone for the rest of the guys and showed them that you've got to bring your energy in order to be in our program and compete at a high level."

The team's leading scorer, Clark stepped up when the lights were brightest. He poured in a game-high 23 points in a first-round victory over Colquitt County and followed it up with 32 points in a losing effort against top-seeded Pebblebrook.

"He competes every day so you're not surprised," Gibbons said. "Guys surprise you when they don't compete in practice and they play well in games. He competes in every practice, so I'm not surprised when we play these high-level teams and he gives the performance he does."

Piedmont Newton

Hospital partners with private company for ambulance services

STAFF REPORTS
news@covnews.com

COVINGTON, Ga. — Piedmont Newton Hospital in Covington announced Friday it would be partnering with Priority Ambulance for its 911 and interfacility services. Priority Ambulance is considered one of the largest private ambulance networks in the state of Georgia. The service will now respond to emergency calls in the hospital’s designated 911 zone and will serve the hospital’s interfacility transport needs.

“At Piedmont Newton, our top priority has always been and will continue to be providing the highest quality medical care and emergency medical services to our community,” Piedmont Newton CEO David Kent said in a statement. “In Priority Ambulance, we have an expert partner with the sole focus of elevating ambulance service in Newton County with additional resources and national expertise. Piedmont Newton’s leadership will focus on our core mission of providing exceptional services at our hospital.”

All current employees of Piedmont Newton EMS will be invited to stay and will maintain seniority within the system, hospital officials stated. In addition, Piedmont Newton’s EMS Director Carli Cuendet will be join the Priority Ambulance team.

“We welcome the Piedmont Newton EMS employees to the Priority Ambulance family,” Priority Ambulance Regional President Robby Atkins

Piedmont Newton Hospital administration and Priority Ambulance leadership announce a new partnership for 911 and interfacility ambulance service on Friday, April 2. said. “Priority Ambulance’s Georgia companies National EMS and Central EMS have served Piedmont Health facilities in Georgia for many years. We are proud to be trusted by Piedmont Newton to provide professional, prompt 911 response to the community and to serve their patients and hospital staff. We look forward to a great partnership and are committed to working together to continue to advance medical transportation services.”

As result of the partnership, Priority Ambulance will purchase seven ambulances from Piedmont Newton and will maintain the staffing levels currently in the 911 system – five advanced life support ambulances during peak daytime hours.

Piedmont Newton holds the designated 911 zone for ambulance service that encompasses Newton County and will contract with National EMS to provide 911 service to its zone.

Separate from those ambulances dedicated to the 911 system, sister company Central EMS will be stationing additional ambulances at the hospital to immediately respond to transport requests between medical facilities or discharges from the hospital.

“With the additional ambulance resources, technology and opportunities for education and advancement that Priority Ambulance has access to as a national company, we are confident that this new partnership will be positive for our EMS and hospital staff, as well as the community,” said Kent.

Priority Ambulance will begin an implementation period immediately to transition current EMS staff. The company will begin providing 9-1-1 and interfacility ambulance services in early May.

Piedmont Newton has considered changes regarding its ambulance services before.

In June 2017, the Newton County Board of Commissioners declined to fund Piedmont Newton’s request for a $1.7 million subsidy for ambulance services, which led to the hospital reportedly intending to surrender its EMS license. At the time, the board of commissioners chose not to pursue its own ambulance license and instead have the state pick a provider.

But one week after making that decision, commissioners voted during a June 20 regular meeting to reverse course and pursue the license, citing concerns over the selection process and the public’s concern about the state’s role in the process as its reasoning.

Three days later, the county reportedly reached an agreement with Grady EMS to provide ambulance services in the county starting Aug. 1, which caught Piedmont Newton administrators off guard.

In a series of emails obtained by The News at the time, William Love, executive director of patient services, stated he was “very surprised” by the county’s move and called the county’s communication with the hospital “limited at best.”

“No one has inquired as to our status with our EMS license,” he stated in the email. “Piedmont has not yet made a final decision as to whether or not we will be surrendering it. [Newton County’s] actions last week as part of their reevaluation caused Piedmont to reconsider its position as well.”

The county claimed it had been in contact with Piedmont Newton throughout the month of June about the issue.

“When we were told Piedmont Newton was not going to pursue the EMS license we proceeded on a course to ensure the best EMS service possible for the citizens of Newton County,” county officials stated in 2017.

Days later, the hospital announced it would retain its EMS license and provide ambulance services for the county.

At the time, District 1 Commissioner Stan Edwards said the hospital’s decision to retain its license was not contingent on any subsidy from the county.

Commissioners later reached a consensus on the county’s FY 2018 budget at a work session that included approximately $450,000 set aside for EMS service if needed.

Chairman Marcello Banes then issued a statement thanking Grady for being “willing to step up to the plate when needed” but was glad residents would continue to receive services from Piedmont Newton.

Georgia Department of Labor

Newton County jobless rate down to 4.9% in February

By TOM SPIGOLON
tspigolon@covnews.com

COVINGTON, Ga. — Newton County saw more residents with jobs and more entering the labor force in February compared to January of this year.

The February unemployment rate was 4.9%, which was a 0.7% decrease from 5.6% in January, the Georgia Department of Labor reported Thursday, April 1.

Georgia Labor Commissioner Mark Butler said, “February’s numbers are a strong indication the state is getting back to where it was prior to the pandemic.”

“Not only are we seeing growth for nearly every indicator in each region and county, but we are seeing the momentum start to switch in our favor,” Butler said.

“The unemployment rates are drastically dropping, the labor force numbers are gearing up, and most importantly, we are seeing initial claims decrease in almost every region and county,” he said.

Newton County’s February unemployment rate was higher than the statewide average of 4.4% and the Metro Atlanta average of 4.5%.

The number of employed Newton residents increased by 729 — from 49,286 in January to 50,015 in February.

In addition, 319 fewer county residents were listed as unemployed in February compared to January.

Newton County’s labor force — all employed residents and all unemployed residents making themselves available for work — also increased in February.

Newton County’s labor force increased in February by 410 residents, rising from 52,204 to 52,614.

However, that number is down by 1,158 from February 2020.

A year ago in February 2020, Newton County’s unemployment rate was 3.8% in the last month before the COVID-19 pandemic began.

However, the county’s rate shot up within two months to 12.5% in April 2020 before beginning a gradual decline since then, the labor department said.

Initial claims for unemployment from Newton County residents increased by 1% in February. When compared to last February, claims were up by about 272%.

Clayton County recorded Georgia’s highest county-level February unemployment rate at 7.5%, while Catoosa County in north Georgia on the Tennessee line had the lowest rate at 2.6%.
