COVINGTON, Ga. — Various schools systems and organizations across the region have been awarded Community Action Grants from Meta's Newton Data Center.

Meta (formerly Facebook) officials announced Monday, April 11, the recipients of nine grants.

Entities based in Newton that were awarded a grant included Newton County Schools, Sustainable Newton Inc., Newton County Young Farmers and Oxford College.

The Meta Community Action Grants program was created to address needs in Newton, Walton, Jasper and Morgan counties by putting the power of technology to use for community benefit, connecting people online or off, and improving STEM education. This was the second year that this program has been available in the region.

Newton County Schools was awarded $30,000 to equip the InspiHER: Code Like a Girl program that encourages young women to learn about coding and computer science.

"Coding is really a male dominated field, so we've exposed our girls to programming through this program," Superintendent Samantha Fuhrey said.

Board of Commissioners County seeks new director over zoning, building permits

By TOM SPIGOLON
tspigolon@covnews.com

COVINGTON, Ga. — Newton County is working to fill a key administrative position by the end of this month after its former Development Services director left to take a similar position in Jasper County.

Judy Johnson, who had led Newton County's Department of Development Services since 2018, resigned her position without notice March 28, county officials said.

Shena Applewhaite, chief planner for the department, was named interim director as a search began last week for a replacement.

Johnson was publicly introduced as the new planning and zoning director at the Jasper County Board of Commissioners' April 4 meeting.

Johnson was attracted to the position because, "Jasper County is a beautiful and peaceful county with lots of opportunity to help protect its character, land and natural resources."

"I've been fortunate and worked hard to have great opportunities with Newton County that has added to my skill set and fostered my passion to serve the community," she said.

Johnson said she grew up in a

BOC approves city installation of EV charging station behind Old Courthouse

By TOM SPIGOLON
tspigolon@covnews.com

COVINGTON, Ga. — Electric vehicle owners may soon be able to charge their vehicles' batteries while dining at a nearby Covington Square restaurant.

Newton County commissioners recently approved the city of Covington's request to install a two-post charging station at the rear of the Historic Courthouse on the Covington Square.

City special projects coordinator Randy Conner said Covington Electric Department workers will install the equipment — with its entire cost borne by the city, Conner said.

"This location allows us to protect the charging posts from contact with other automobiles," he said.

"It's also next to our (electric) transformer which would mean it would cost us, in addition to the unit that we've already bought ... about $1,000," Conner said.

If placed at the front of the courthouse, the cost would be "conservatively" $40,000-$50,000, he said.

The city "currently" has no plans to charge a fee for the station's use, Conner said.

He said the city already offers use of a dual post charging station at the Covington Welcome Center on Oak Street that is in "constant use."

Interim County Manager Jarvis Sims said the charging station would take two parking spots now reserved for Board of Commissioners members at the corner of Usher Street and Hays Street. But other spots would be identified for their use adjacent to the current spots, Sims said.

Spaces at the charging stations will be marked "EV Charging Only," and painted green, Conner said.

Commissioner J.C. Henderson said he was "a little concerned" that customers of nearby businesses like the Mystic Grill would take the spots — including some who arrive by bus.

"At certain times you can't even get in back there — nobody," Henderson said.

However, Sims said the EV station would be watched closely and offending vehicles towed if parked in the charging station's two spots for automobiles.

Conner said those vehicle owners using the charging stations likely will be customers of the restaurants or retailers on the Square.

He said only electric automobiles could use the station because it would be too powerful for smaller vehicles like golf carts.

"It would blow a golf cart up," he said.

Locations at the Welcome Center, in the Covington Parking Authority lot on Monticello Street, and the location behind the Historic Courthouse were the three main locations identified in a 2013 electric vehicle charging station assessment conducted in coordination with the U.S. Department of Energy, officials said.

Conner did not give a timetable for construction.

General Assembly

Lawmakers say 'no' to limiting free speech on college campuses

By DAVE WILLIAMS
Capitol Beat News Service

ATLANTA — The Georgia Senate gave final passage Monday to legislation aimed at eliminating "free speech zones" on the campuses of public colleges and universities by granting free-speech rights at all locations.

The Republican-controlled Senate passed House Bill 133-18 mostly along party lines. The House approved the bill, introduced on behalf of Gov. Brian Kemp, early last month.

The bill prohibits college officials from limiting what students may say as well as where they may say it, said Sen. Bruce Thompson, R-White, who carried the legislation in the Senate. He cited a series of lawsuits that have been brought against public universities in Georgia by student organizations whose events were relegated to out-of-the-way free-speech zones.

"Students continue to go to school under policies that are counter to the First Amendment," he said. "What this seeks to do is give colleges the opportunity to make sure they're not getting sued."

But Sen. Elena Parent, D-Atlanta, said Georgia Republicans were sending a mixed message by backing a bill defending free-speech rights on college campuses while censoring honest discussions of racism in high school history classes.

The bill was sent to Kemp's desk for his signature.

State SOS seeks investigation of non-U.S. citizens who tried to register to vote

By DAVE WILLIAMS
Capitol Beat News Service

ATLANTA — Georgia Secretary of State Brad Raffensperger is referring the cases of 1,634 people who tried to register to vote but could not be verified as U.S. citizens for investigation by state and local authorities.

The names of those would-be voters turned up last month in the first citizenship audit of voter rolls in Georgia history.

Raffensperger blamed voting rights groups for many of the attempts by non-citizens to register.

"Attempting to register to vote while knowing you do not possess the qualifications to vote is a felony in Georgia, a serious one," he said at a news conference Monday. "Outside groups that attempt to help noncitizens register to vote will face consequences as well."

Raffensperger backed a constitutional amendment state Senate President Pro Tempore Butch Miller, R-Gainesville, introduced at the beginning of this year's legislative session to ban non-U.S. citizens from voting in Georgia.

On Monday, Raffensperger cited a poll showing 80% of Georgians support banning noncitizens from voting.

The Senate Ethics Committee approved Miller's constitutional amendment, but it got no further in the legislature. Opponents argued state law already prohibits non-U.S. citizens from voting.

Raffensperger's remarks on noncitizen voting came on the same day a lawsuit Fair Fight Action, a voting rights group founded by Democratic gubernatorial candidate Stacey Abrams, went to trial in federal court.

"Stacey Abrams and her allies are trying to get rid of Georgia's citizenship check for voter registration, and I will fight her efforts to undermine the integrity of our elections all the way to the U.S. Supreme Court if I have to," Raffensperger said.

Cianti Stewart-Reid, executive director of Fair Fight Action, vowed the trial would bring to light the difficulties individual Georgia voters face trying to cast ballots.

"Since the start of this lawsuit, we have highlighted real voters and their challenges because we believe reporting their experiences to be one of the most effective ways of demonstrating the barriers in Georgia's elections system," she said. "We will continue to amplify the voices of voters at trial."

Raffensperger said he's referring the cases of the people whose names turned up in the audit to the State Election Board, the Georgia Bureau of Investigation and local district attorneys.

Greer returned to Oxford in 1966 and never left — becoming the college's first full-tenured female professor during a 33-year career at the college.

"I love a college town," she said.

Greer's service to the Oxford and Newton County community recently convinced the Atlanta-based Foundation of Wesley Woods to honor Greer among its first all-woman group of Heroes, Saints & Legends award winners in its 33-year history.

Diane Vaughan, president of the Wesley Woods Foundation, said Greer was not a hard choice for the committee.

"She really epitomizes what heroes, saints and legends stands for," Vaughan said.

She said Greer has made a positive influence in many areas. "When you mention Judy's name, people just come to life," she said.

The Foundation will present the awards at a gala Sept. 15 in Atlanta. It honors individuals who have "transformed Atlanta's community through a lifetime of achievement and commitment to leadership, service and philanthropy," the group said in announcing Greer's selection.

Greer will join fellow honorees Billye Aaron, widow of baseball legend Hank Aaron, retired educator and non-profit executive; and Virginia Hepner, retired president and CEO of the Woodruff Arts Center, former banker and current director of Cadence Bank and other businesses and nonprofits.

Greer said she was "humbled, honored and excited" about being a recipient of the honor after attending numerous past Wesley Woods galas honoring others.

"I've never thought this about myself," she said.

Greer said the honor is special because of the many Wesley Woods residents she has known.

"I know what a good job Wesley Woods does," she said.

Past honorees in the awards' 33-year history have included everyone from legendary Atlanta journalist Celestine Sibley and philanthropist Boisfeuillet Jones, to sports legends like Hank Aaron, Vince Dooley and Frank Broyles.

Greer was a member of LaGrange College's first women's athletic teams from 1955-57. She earned her undergraduate degree from LaGrange College, master's degree in physical education and counseling from Auburn University, and doctorate in physical education and higher education from the University of Georgia.

She became the first woman promoted to full professor at Oxford and coached the college's women's tennis teams to three runner-up finishes in the National Junior College Athletic Association Regional Tennis Tournament

She was inducted into the Emory Sports Hall of Fame in 1994 and is a recipient of Oxford's first Fleming Award for Excellence in Teaching, the R. Carl Chandler Award from the Oxford College Board of Counselors.

After her retirement, members of the Oxford College Class of 1959 established a scholarship in her name and have maintained it for more than two decades.

In recent years, she became a benefactor of Oxford College.

But she also chose to remain heavily involved in the community with service on the Newton County Recreation Board and active membership in Allen Memorial United Methodist Church in Oxford.

The Newton County recreation legend's community work also included participation in American Cancer Society projects, and helping bring about the establishment of the Covington Family YMCA in 2000.

She worked to teach Newton County seniors to stay active by leading exercise and other classes at the Y following her retirement.

Greer received the Metro Atlanta YMCA Volunteer of the Year Award, and was recognized by the Points of Light Foundation for her work with senior adults.

She also is a past recipient of the prestigious R.O. Arnold Award from the Newton Chamber of Commerce, which is given to someone "who has continued to give back to our community," according to the Chamber.

Among her other accolades are the LaGrange College Distinguished Alumna Award, the University of Georgia Graduate Alumna Award, the inaugural class of the LaGrange College Sports Hall of Fame, and an Outstanding Georgia Citizen certificate honoring "Women Sports Trailblazers" sponsored by the Georgia Commission on Women in celebration of Women's History Month.

Vaughan said Greer was among a group of recipients who have "scored firsts for women ... all while demonstrating a lifelong devotion to Atlanta with countless contributions to our community. We are proud to call them our heroes."

Since the event's inception in 1990, 109 of Atlanta's most exemplary leaders have been celebrated and more than $7.2 million have been raised for charitable care, pastoral care and wellness programming at Wesley Woods senior living communities.

"We welcome sponsors with an array of 2022 opportunities to show both individual and corporate support for the older adults at Wesley Woods," Vaughan said.

The 33rd annual Heroes, Saints & Legends is set for Sept. 15 at Flourish by Legendary Events at 3143 Maple Drive in Atlanta. For more information, visit www.wesleywoods.org/heroes.

Parents, public needs to behave themselves at meetings

State legislators supposedly work part time but actually work about two-thirds time if compared to a job in the real world. And depending on the legislator's willingness to put in the extra time, many often work full time jobs representing their districts.

Their pay for sacrificing their time with family, community and working at other jobs is around $17,000 annually and has not risen since 2008.

State lawmakers are only in the limelight for about four months of the year and their work is done miles away from much of Georgia. But they still only earn $17,000 annually for what can be a full-time job.

On the other hand, local officials earn their money every day and have to work for it year-round — with absences very apparent when cities or counties have governing bodies as small as Newton County's.

Newton County School Board members earn around the same amount as state legislators. County Board of Commissioners members earn $25,000 annually, according to the county charter.

We've been lucky in Newton County that elected officials have not felt the full heat of parents' anger at the requirements imposed by the pandemic and other cultural changes being considered.

Reuters detailed the experience of Loudoun County, Virginia, school board member Brenda Sheridan who received a letter addressed to one of her adult children that threatened them unless she resigned her seat on the board.

The letter essentially stated the writer believed the board member was of the same political persuasion as the late Fidel Castro, and described her in other derogatory ways before threatening to kill both of them.

Parents have felt free to make terroristic threats and give hostile messages to board members nationwide because of policies on curtailing the coronavirus, bathroom access for transgender students and the teaching of America's racial history — including a course that has never been taught below college level.

"Reuters documented the intimidation through contacts and interviews with 33 board members across 15 states and a review of threatening and harassing messages obtained from the officials or through public records requests.

"The news organization found more than 220 such messages in this sampling of districts. School officials or parents in 15 different counties received or witnessed threats they considered serious enough to report to police."

Others from outside the school board areas felt free to threaten board members they didn't agree with — as in the case of Sheridan.

Gwinnett school board members felt so threatened at meetings in 2021 they called the police on some meeting attendees. Of course, this was in the midst of a COVID surge before many were vaccinated and people were feeling frustrated about mask policies.

The school board meeting in Gwinnett County was disrupted when attendees refused to wear masks and objected to students, teachers and staff being required to wear masks.

Congressional Republicans even injected themselves into the controversy by objecting to a move by the Justice Department to investigate violent threats made against local school board members and teachers, arguing that the federal agency is "policing the speech of citizens and concerned parents," a Tucson, Arizona, online news publication wrote.

"Violence and true threats of violence should have no place in our civic discourse, but parents should absolutely be involved in public debates over what and how our public schools teach their children, even if those discussions get heated," according to a letter led by Iowa Sen. Chuck Grassley, the top Republican on the U.S. Senate Judiciary Committee.

What should be called protected speech by citizens and concerned parents? And what should be considered threats directed at board members?

In Florida, parents and protesters reportedly disrupted a meeting by wanting to discuss items that were not on the agenda such as critical race theory.

Mood of session was 'decidedly grim'

We pass two budgets every year, the Amended Budget to account for changes during the current fiscal year, and the "Big" Budget for the next fiscal year.

Because of the governor's prudent policies, we had a $3.7 billion surplus from last year. Therefore, the amended FY22 budget of $30.3 billion (an 11% increase over last year's budget) includes nearly $2 billion of new money for salary increases for teachers, state troopers and state employees.

The FY23 "Big" Budget doubles down on that success with another increase of $636 million for state employees, $120 million to retired employees, and $150 million to Mental Health care and Law Enforcement. But it also contains historic tax cuts. The first is a $1.6 billion income tax cut that will lower the state income tax rate from 6% down to 5%. Another is a one-time tax cut refund worth about $250-$500. I'm particularly pleased with the income tax exemption for military retirees. And to offset the soaring price of gas, we are enacting a tax holiday on fuel thru the end of May.

As usual, Education was the big winner. We are fully funding Education this year at $11.8 billion, and are fully backfilling the losses due to COVID by $382 million. We also add another $291 million to complete the governor's promise to give teachers a $5,000 pay increase.

Ronald Reagan once said that it's amazing what you can accomplish if you don't care who gets the credit. I feel the same way about the passage of the new income tax exemption for military retirees, something I've been working on for many years. I'm also very glad that my "Return to Work" bill for retired teachers finally passed. Both of these measures were initiatives that I started many years ago, but were later taken over by the governor...which is awesome.

There were a lot of bills about Education. We passed a "Parents Bill of Rights" that provides transparency between parents and educators, giving parents a clear process for increased participation in their child's education. The "Student Technology Protection Act" ensures that pornography is not allowed on internet that is provided by schools. The "Protect Students First Act" seeks to ensure that "divisive ideologies" are not taught in schools, while the "Unmask Georgia Students Act" allows parents to opt out of school mask mandates.

Law and order was another focus. We passed many bills to institute greater penalties for fleeing the police, unlawful possession of guns, possession of child pornography, child molestation, and human trafficking. We also passed two "Constitutional Carry" measures.

On a separate note, we finally passed the "Freedom to Farm Act". We also passed another update on our election laws, something we do nearly every year.

The largest single bill was the Speaker's measure on Mental Health. Studies everywhere show

Columnist remembers when phones were attached to walls

Here's a blast from the past: a telephone attached to a wall. Nowadays, if we were suddenly confined to a phone cord that only allowed about 10 feet of space, we'd go crazy.

What? We can't talk on the phone while on the porch, in the back yard, or most importantly, in the waiting room at the doctor's office? What would we ever do with ourselves?

I remember being jealous when I would visit a friend's house, with one of those extra long phone cords. It dangled all the way down to the floor. However, there was one downside. When stretched to its fullest, the cord allowed my friend's mom to venture all the way into the living room. More than once, we kids would be running around aimlessly and get clotheslined. If "America's Funniest Home Videos" had been around back then, we could have won some cash.

Cell phones have made landline phones obsolete. We've said goodbye to operators, tangled cords and even those beloved busy signals. You should see the looks on the faces of my young friends when I use that term. While waiting to talk to a person who is involved in a face-to-face conversation, I'll say, "We should wait a minute. His line is busy." They look at me as if I'm speaking Latin.

I may be one of the last humans with a phone book on my desk. Twenty-somethings approach it as if it were a rare ancient scroll.

They listen in awe as I explain party lines. When I told them that once upon a time, the entire neighborhood could listen in to our family's phone conversations, they were dumbfounded. "Wait," they said. "The people next door could just pick up the phone and listen?" "Yep, they sure could," I replied. "Along with folks in about eight more houses." "So all of those people couldn't make a call until you finished?" they asked. "Well," I responded, "they would just have to wait. Unless they were really rude, and they would just interrupt you and tell you to get off the phone." Oh yes, it happened.

Eventually, to prevent one family from tying up a neighborhood line, the phone company limited each call to six minutes. You would get a 10-second warning, and then it was "(CLICK!) goodbye," like it or not.

Party lines were a way of life until the 1970s. "Private lines" became available, for an extra charge of course, because it was a great luxury.

Folks have vivid memories of party lines. We remember the elderly ladies gossiping about their neighbors, who could hear every word. There were no secrets. We all knew who was sick, who was in trouble with the law, and who was fooling around with whom.

A friend told me, "My aunt would listen in on the neighbors all day. She would sit there quietly, and get so engrossed in the conversations, she would blurt out the answers to questions the other people were asking. She was so embarrassed when they would scream at her to get off the phone!"

Now we depend on Facebook to tell us who's dating who, who had a baby, and whose arthritis is acting up. Who needs a party line when you have a computer?

Now and then, I ponder the usefulness of our landline phone. Our parents who regularly dialed that number are no longer with us. Our remaining landline callers are telemarketers who care more about our car warranties than we do. The only apparent service the landline phone provides is interrupting my nap.

The last time I actually used the landline was to call my cell phone, because I had misplaced it. In that sense, it serves as a $30 per month tracking service, as long as the cell phone is in my house, and the ringer is not silenced.

After chatting with my neighbors, I learned that most have disconnected their landline phone. In our home, the landline remains intact. Before long, I expect people to slow down as they pass by my house, pointing and laughing at "The Landline Guy." Go ahead, I can take it. In fact, come on in. We'll crank up the stereo so you can enjoy my 8-track tape collection.

rural area.
 "It's exciting about getting back to my roots and using my skills to give back to this wonderful community that meets the goals of the elected officials and the citizens not only today, but for years to come," she said.
 Johnson worked in key positions with Newton County and Porterdale city governments over much of the past 17 years.
 She had directed a Newton County department responsible for a myriad of services related to county regulation of new construction and businesses.
 Development Services is responsible for permitting and inspection of new construction, issuing business and alcohol licenses, enforcing county codes, approving plats and plans for new subdivisions and commercial projects, working with applicants on requests for rezonings, and more.

 Johnson also worked closely with three county boards — including the Board of Commissioners — as they dealt with the sometimes-complicated details of the county zoning ordinance in decisions on rezoning requests and development regulations in unincorporated Newton County.
 She had led Newton County commissioners since early 2021 in approving a moratorium on new rezonings and residential subdivision plans.
 The moratorium was needed to allow commissioners to overhaul the county zoning ordinance and development standards to increase traffic flow and eliminate regulations that had led to sometimes irresponsible subdivision development, county planners said.

 It also was needed to increase safety and mobility in some subdivisions allowed to develop with hundreds of homes and only one access point to main thoroughfares, she said.
 Her two stints with Newton County government included zoning administrator from late 2004 to mid-2009 and then in the same position from mid-2013 to late 2017, according to her LinkedIn account.
 She then served as the Board of Commissioners' deputy clerk until her appointment as Development Services director in mid-2018.

Between her two stints with Newton County, Johnson also worked as the city clerk for Porterdale city government for two years and in private business in Porterdale.
 Qualifications for the position include certification from the American Institute of Certified Planners; a bachelor's degree in Planning, Architecture, Public Administration or a related field; seven years of progressively responsible experience in community planning and development, zoning and codes administration and enforcement, or a related field, and including lead or supervisory experience.
 However, "any equivalent combination of education, training and experience, which provides the requisite knowledge, skills and abilities for this job," can be used to qualify for the position, according to a job posting on the county's website.

 Johnson also assisted in inspection work for the Joint Development Authority (JDA) of Jasper, Morgan, Newton and Walton Counties at its Stanton Springs South technology park for a new data center under construction there.
 She said she was unsure if her work would continue even though she has moved to another of the four counties of the JDA.
 "I am happy to continue serving the JDA as much as the county manager, Mike Benton, and the Jasper County Board of Commissioners desire me to be," she said.

Atlanta airport once again world's busiest

By DAVE WILLIAMS
Capitol Beat News Service

ATLANTA — Hartsfield-Jackson Atlanta International Airport has regained its position as the world's busiest airport, Airports Council International World (ACI) announced Monday.

The Atlanta airport served 75.7 million passengers last year, a 76.4% increase over pandemic-plagued 2020, vaulting it back to the No.-1 spot.

Atlanta was surpassed in 2020 by Guangzhou Baiyun International Airport in China, ending a 22-year run at the top.

Atlanta also led the world in 2021 in aircraft movements, with 707,661 operations, up 29.1% over the previous year.

"These numbers speak to the resiliency employees and passengers who continued to stand with us as we worked through the unprecedented challenges of COVID-19."

"As the aviation industry continues to rebound from the pandemic, we are excited to welcome passengers back to the skies," added Balram "B" Bheodari, the airport's general manager. "Our efficiency and brand of excellence could not be achieved without our employees, business partners, stakeholders and our community."

Hartsfield-Jackson is about to launch a multi-year project to replace its aging parking decks, starting with the South Deck. Besides replacing the North and South decks, the airport will add a new West deck.

The Board of Commissioners voted to extend until July 19 the current moratorium on new applications for zoning petitions and petitions for preliminary plats and concept plans for new residential development.

Board votes to extend ban on new residential development until July

By TOM SPIGOLON
tspigolon@covnews.com

COVINGTON, Ga. — Newton County commissioners voted unanimously Monday, April 11, to extend a moratorium for a fifth time on new residential development so changes to development standards can be finalized and recommended to them for final approval.

The Board of Commissioners voted to extend until July 19 the current moratorium on new applications for zoning petitions and petitions for preliminary plats and concept plans for new residential development.

Interim Development Services Director Shena Applewhaite said her staff planned one more workshop for the Board of Commissioners to determine what changes they wanted to see before a May 3 public hearing.

Board members last voted in January to extend the moratorium until April 19 but allowed some developments that previously received a preliminary plat to move forward through the planning process.

Former Development Services Director Judy Johnson said in January that about 26 projects' preliminary plats were affected, including two with infrastructure in place.

It also allowed new developments on undeveloped land with at least 2 acres per parcel to apply for a preliminary plat.

Commissioners have voted since early 2021 to keep a moratorium in place in an effort to overhaul the county zoning ordinance and development standards.

Planning officials have said the changes were needed to increase traffic flow and safety in some subdivisions that were allowed to develop with hundreds of homes and only one access to a main road.

Changes also were needed in outdated parts of the ordinance that led to sometimes irresponsible use of subdivision development standards, they said.

Federal voting rights trial opens in Atlanta

By DAVE WILLIAMS
Capitol Beat News Service

ATLANTA — The first voting rights trial in federal court in Atlanta in more than a decade opened Monday.

Fair Fight Action, a voting rights group founded by 2018 and 2022 Democratic gubernatorial candidate Stacey Abrams, and several Black churches are accusing Republican Secretary of State Brad Raffensperger and the GOP-controlled State Election Board of erecting unjustifiable barriers to voting that have disproportionately affected voters of color.

U.S. District Judge Steve Jones already has dismissed some of the lawsuit's allegations, those he said were addressed by changes to state election laws the General Assembly passed last year, prompting Raffensperger to refer to the suit at a news conference Monday as a "hollowed-out shell."

But several significant charges will be heard during the trial, which is expected to last several weeks. Witnesses will include voters who have encountered various obstacles either trying to register to vote or to cast their ballots.

"After repeated attempts by the state to silence the voice of the voters, these Georgians refuse to be sidelined," Allegra Lawrence-Hardy, lead counsel for the plaintiffs, said at a news conference Monday following the trial's opening day. "These voters are finally going to have their stories told."

Lawrence-Hardy said the lawsuit is challenging the state's "exact-match" policy, which requires information provided on voter-registration applications to match information held by the state Department of Driver Services or the federal Social Security Administration.

The plaintiffs also accuse the secretary of state's office of mismanaging voter rolls by wrongly purging Georgians from the list and providing inadequate training in handling cancellations of absentee ballots.

Raffensperger said the case is about nothing less than ensuring the integrity of Georgia's elections.

"Election integrity and security has been my priority since day one," he said. "Protecting the sanctity of Georgia's elections is my top priority."

Commissioners, Morgan and state Sen. W.D. Ballard explained the benefits an Alcovy Judicial Circuit would bring, which included a cost savings (the salaries of the new circuit's judges, district attorney and secretaries would be funded with state dollars).

Thomas W. Ridgway, of Monroe, was appointed April 17, 1972 to be judge of the new circuit, and Covington's John T. Strauss was named the first district attorney.

Then-Gov. Jimmy Carter made the appointments.

Ridgway, 44 at the time, was previously district attorney of the Western Judicial Circuit that included Walton County, as well as Athens-Clarke and Oconee counties. Strauss, 28, was district attorney pro-tem in the Western Judicial Circuit.

The first court session was held Monday, May 8, 1972.

Over the years, the circuit has grown. There are now a total of five judges for the Alcovy Judicial Circuit, including Chief Judge John M. Ott, Judge Jeffrey L. Foster, Judge Cheveda D. McCamy, Judge W. Kendall Wynne, Jr.

and Judge Layla H. Zon.

Zon was the first female appointed Superior Court judge in the circuit in June 2020. Just a few months later, McCamy was the first Black woman appointed to serve. She replaced the late Horace J. Johnson Jr., who in 2002 was the first Black male appointed judge in the circuit.

In February 2021, Newton County's Board of Commissioners formally requested state legislators create a bill to OK a split from the two-county Alcovy Judicial Circuit and establish a single Newton County Judicial Circuit. Newton Chairman Marcello Banes deemed the increased population and case load as leading factors in the board's request.

State Sen. Brian Strickland, R-McDonough, who represents a portion of Newton County, said he wanted to see a study conducted by the state's Judicial Council on the feasibility before the matter was discussed any further.

"We also need to know how much additional money a circuit split will cost the taxpayers of the state and the locals in Newton County since a circuit split will require the Board of Commissioners and the state of Georgia to fund new positions and pay additional supplements," he said.

Discussions of a potential circuit split have been nonexistent since. According to results of the 2020 U.S. Census, Newton County had population of 112,483. Walton County had a population of 96,673.

that COVID restrictions mentally crushed millions of Americans, especially children. HB 1013 ensures that insurers must treat mental health issues. My counselors bill also passed, meaning that 1,700 more counselors will be working in Georgia almost immediately, with another 7,000 on the way.

The other bill that I passed was a military spouse licensure measure that the Secretary of Defense requested. We have passed over 70 military-friendly bills since I first chaired my Military Affairs committee.

I am, perhaps, most proud of the unanimous passage of the House Resolution that I co-authored with Democrat Rep. Mack Jackson. The Resolution urges our schools to focus on the principles that MLK taught his generation. The Prague Spring in Czechoslovakia, the Carnation Revolution in Portugal, the People Power movement in the Philippines, the Solidarity Movement in Poland, the Singing Revolution in Estonia, and Latvia, and Lithuania, the Fall of the Berlin Wall, the Velvet Revolution in Czechoslovakia, the liberation of Bulgaria, the Golianad in Romania, the collapse of the USSR, and most recently — the Orange Revolution in Ukraine: all of these peaceful movements that resulted in Freedom occurred because of two things: America's military policy of "Peace through Strength", and MLK's transcendent message of the social justice that can be achieved through the tactics of non-violent, social revolutions.

This session was particularly hard. Though we actually accomplished a great deal, the mood was decidedly grim. Most members that I spoke to — both Democrat and Republican — remarked how toxic politics has become. To that point, about 55 out of 220 members — from both sides of the aisle — decided not to return.

I will, however, be forever humbled by the trust you have shown me to represent you.

Redskins remain perfect in Region 8A-Public

SOCIAL CIRCLE, Ga. — For the Social Circle baseball team, the one indelible image from last season was watching region rival Commerce celebrate on Redskins Field after winning the region title.

“I know that’s something that’s really stuck with us,” said Social Circle head coach Kevin Dawkins. “When we were setting our goals for this year, among the things they wanted to do was win the region and beat Commerce.”

The Redskins, 18-5 overall and 11-0 in Region 8-A public heading into the weekend, will have a chance to do both at the same time if they win out over the next week.

They’ll play Washington-Wilkes in a three-game series Tuesday and Friday.

Then, the regular season will conclude with a three-game set against the Tigers, who are currently second in the league, a game behind Commerce.

They are also ranked a spot behind the eighth-ranked Redskins at No. 9.

“The idea is if we can take care of business against our next two opponents, it sets up a series for the region at our place. It should be a lot of fun.”

Vengeance usually is.

Based on the way it’s played so far, Social Circle is the team to beat. It boasts a 14-game winning streak, during which it’s averaging 8.3 runs a game while allowing just 1.4.

The success is no surprise considering the Redskins returned every starter from last year’s team that finished third in the region and reached the second round of state.

“These guys are a year older and more mature, and they are using their experiences from last year to make them better,” Dawkins said.

On the mound, Jason Ball, the lone senior on the team, has emerged as the ace. He’s won all three of the region starts, has thrown a team-high 35 1/3 innings, and recorded 64 strikeouts.

One of the biggest and most impactful surprises has been the emergence of Cade Richardson, a freshman who was expected to only see spot duty in blowout games. Instead, he’s become the closer.

In 10 innings of work, he’s recorded 25 strikeouts and walked just four.

“We didn’t see it coming, but he’s stepped in and embraced the closers role,” Hawkins said. “It’s really made our decisions easier at the end of games.”

At the plate, Logan Cross and Mason Moore are duking it out for the team batting title. Moore, who’s hitting leadoff, is batting .470 while Cross,

Upon the completion of his senior football season, Johnson claimed the record for having the most single-season rushing runs in Eastside football history — a record that stood for nearly 14 seasons.

On his way to the record, Johnson had over 100 yards rushing in a game nine times last season.

According to him, running the ball on Friday nights will be one of the things that Johnson will miss the most after graduating in May.

But, more importantly, Johnson recognized how beneficial certain individuals have been to his career at Eastside on and off the field. Now, with his next step solidified, Johnson plans to take all that his Eastside family has shown him and carry that with him to Morehouse in the fall.

Honored to cover area's student-athletes

Wednesday, April 6, was National Student-Athlete Day. Even though I'm a week late to recognizing this special day, I didn't want the opportunity to pass by without highlighting the student-athletes I have the privilege of covering.

The Newton County area is filled with many remarkable student-athletes. This is true across Alcovy, Eastside, Newton and Social Circle high schools, and across all sports, too.

Talking to and featuring students, specifically, is the best part about being a sports reporter to me. It's honestly one of the main reasons I wanted to become a sports writer in the first place.

Each person has a story to tell and, the coolest part about that fact is each person's story is unique to them. With that in mind, when writing individual stories, it can be a daunting task to be sure and tell each student's story effectively. But, most of the time, the student-athlete makes that part easier.

Specifically in my time here in Covington, I've met some impressive students who have been some of the nicest athletes ever.

Student-Athlete of the Week Tigers' Payne strikes out 11 against 'Canes

By PHILLIP B. HUBBARD
phubbard@covnews.com
COVINGTON, Ga. — Last week, Reece Payne took the mound for the Alcovy Tigers in the first game of a doubleheader with Monroe Area on April 7.

Reece Payne

In his outing, Payne threw five innings and only allowed two hits and surrendered six walks.

Also included in Payne's performance were 11 strikeouts by the lefty sophomore for the Tigers.

Payne credits game preparation as one of the leading factors behind his solid performance on the mound.

"I saw and studied what to throw at them and what not to throw at them," Payne said. "Then, I adjusted the second time through the order."

Once the game got going, though, Payne said his game plan was quite simple.

"I just believed in my stuff," Payne said. "I wanted to get ahead and hit my spots."

In addition to his role as a pitcher, Payne also serves as one of the team's outfielders and mainly plays in center field.

For Payne, just being a part of this year's Tigers squad is the most special to him.

"[My and my teammates'] bond is tight, especially when I hang outside of school with most of my teammates," Payne said. "Me and coach [Jimmy Hughes] stay tight, always texting each other about baseball."

Payne is also a member of Alcovy's FFA chapter. Right now, his favorite class is World History.

A lamb dinner for Easter celebrations

SPECIAL TO THE NEWS
news@covnews.com

Lamb is traditionally on the menu on Easter. The consumption of lamb on this holiday can be traced back to the first Passover seder. However, Christians also adopted lamb for their holy day, likely as a representation and remembrance of Jesus Christ's sacrifice and death on the cross. Jesus often is called the "Lamb of God." Sacrificial lambs were first referenced in the Old Testament, and Christ exemplified the ultimate sacrificial lamb when he gave up His life for His people's sins.

Even though lamb roasts typically can be found on Easter tables, this year's hosts and hostesses may want to offer something slightly different. "American Lamb Chops with Rosemary and Pan-Roasted Lemony Asparagus" puts spring flavors on display for this special gathering. Enjoy this recipe, courtesy of Blue Bowl Recipes and the American Lamb Board.

"American Lamb Chops with Rosemary and Pan-Roasted Lemony Asparagus" puts spring flavors on display for this special gathering.

and Pan-Roasted Lemony Asparagus

Serves 8

Ingredients:
For the Lemon Roasted Asparagus:
2 pounds fresh asparagus
4 large cloves garlic
1/2 teaspoon salt
Generous sprinkle black pepper
4 tablespoons olive oil
2 large lemons

For the Lamb Chops:
8 medium American lamb loin chops
6 large cloves garlic
6 tablespoons olive oil
1 large lemon, juiced and zested
1/2 teaspoon salt
Generous pinch black pepper
1 1/2 tablespoons fresh rosemary, finely minced
1 teaspoon dried

oregano
1 teaspoon dried thyme
2 tablespoons salted butter
Directions:
Mix together all the lamb ingredients in a large container. Add the lamb chops and rub with the marinade mixture. Secure the lid and marinate in the fridge for at least 1 hour or up to overnight before cooking. Let the lamb sit at room temperature for 5 minutes before cooking.

Roast the asparagus:
Preheat oven to 400 degrees. Rinse, dry and trim the ends of your asparagus. Slice one of the lemons into thin slices. Toss the asparagus, all the asparagus ingredients and a squeeze of lemon juice from the second lemon.

Divide between two parchment-paper lined baking sheets. Roast for 8 to 13 minutes, depending on how tender you want the asparagus to be.

Cook the lamb chops: While the asparagus roasts, cook your lamb. Melt the butter in a large skillet over medium heat. Add four of the lamb chops at a time, and cook 4 to 6 minutes, until there's a nice dark crust on the bottom. Flip, and repeat, using a meat thermometer to check for doneness. We're looking for 145 degrees for medium rare chops, 160 for medium and 170 for well done. Make sure to stick the meat thermometer into the thickest part of the meat, and stick it halfway through the meat — don't let it touch any bones or the pan, for an accurate reading.

Once they're done, set aside on a clean plate and cover with foil for 3 minutes to keep warm.

Serve the lemony asparagus and lamb together over rice or couscous, if desired.

'Pane di Pasqua' is a tradition in many homes

SPECIAL TO THE NEWS
news@covnews.com

Families share many Easter traditions. Easter in a home with people who trace their ancestry to Italy will likely feature "Pane di Pasqua," which translates to "Easter Bread."

Easter Bread is a ring of sweet bread that can be adorned with candy sprinkles. Some people nestle colorful hard-boiled eggs within the twisted dough as well. Traditionally, Pane di Pasqua is made on Good Friday to help break the Lenten fast for Easter. The following recipe for "Pane di Pasqua" from "Feast of the Seven Fishes: A Brooklyn Italian's Recipes Celebrating Food & Family" (Powerhouse Books) by Daniel Paterna makes enough dough to share the bread with friends and family.

Easter in a home with people who trace their ancestry to Italy will likely feature "Pane di Pasqua," which translates to "Easter Bread."

all-purpose flour (approximately 17 cups)
1 additional pound flour for adding to dough if needed, cleaning hands, and dusting boards and pans
3 1/2 cups sugar
Pinch of salt
1 pound salted butter, softened, plus a bit more for coating rising dough
24 medium to large eggs, beaten
2 tablespoons anisette

extract
Decorating
6 ounces rainbow-colored nonpareil
3 egg yolks
3 tablespoons water
Directions:
Combine the flour, sugar and salt in a 16-quart pot. Add the butter and mix by hand, squeezing and merging butter with the flour mixture. Add proofed yeast to the flour mixture; continue mixing ingredients.

Slowly stir in all the beaten eggs and anisette using a fork. Continue to mix until ingredients are combined and loose until dough begins to form.
Knead the dough with floured hands for approximately 45 minutes, or until it becomes smooth and elastic. Add flour to the dough if needed, or to scrape the dough off your hands and the bottom of the pot.

Once the dough is fully kneaded, leave it in the pot, lightly spread some butter over the top to keep it moist, and cover with a cloth. Leave at room temperature to rise for 8 hours or overnight. The dough is ready when it rises about 5 times its size.

When the dough has fully risen, punch it down, turn it out onto a floured surface, and form it into a ball. Cut the dough into 7 or 8 smaller dough balls using a sharp knife. Then cut each ball in half. Roll each half into strands approximately 16-inches long. To form a loaf, lay the strands side by side and cross them over at one end, offset by 3 inches.

Continue crossing one strand over the other while working the braid into a circle. The tie off can be challenging. Join the circle by tucking one end under the other, pinch the dough firmly together to seal, maintaining the twist and thickness of the loaf. Repeat with the remaining dough.

Butter and flour one 9-inch baking pan for each loaf. Place the braided loaves in individual pans and set aside, covered in a warm, draft-free place to rise for another hour until the dough rises about 30% more. At this point, preheat the oven to 250 degrees.

When the dough has risen, place the pans into the oven for about 10 minutes, then raise the temperature to 325 degrees. Bake until the bread is a dark golden brown and makes a hollow sound when lightly tapped on the bottom.

Prepare the egg wash for decorating. In a small bowl, beat the 3 egg yolks with 3 tablespoons of water and set aside.

When the breads are fully baked, remove them from the oven and pan using oven mitts, then decorate immediately. Brush the egg wash onto the hot surface of each loaf and sprinkle with the colored confetti. Set the loaves to cool the racks. Slice a wedge and spread with butter.

Chris O'Donnell is an executive producer of "Come Dance With Me," premiering Friday on CBS.

Competing youngsters ask relatives to 'Come Dance With Me'

Two action heroes of "NCIS: Los Angeles" might not be expected to produce a dance competition.

Nevertheless, that's the additional job Chris O'Donnell and LL Cool J are assuming for CBS. They're among the makers of "Come Dance With Me," premiering Friday, April 15, and pairing young dance enthusiasts (ages 9 to 15) with older members of their respective families who aren't particularly skilled at busting a move. Choreographers help them in their quests to win the approval of the judges: Jenna Dewan, dancer Dexter Mayfield and choreographer Tricia Miranda. Songwriter Philip Lawrence, a former associate of Bruno Mars, is the series' host.

"The idea was brought by a friend of mine," the pleasant O'Donnell reveals. "A parent at my kids' grade school had experience doing reality shows in the Netherlands, and he brought this to me. It wasn't my area of expertise, but I showed it to LL and he said, 'Man, this is hot. We should look into this.' So I told my friend, 'Good news! Not only will I get involved, but LL wants to be involved.' And that was a big bonus for (the series' other producers), since they sort of got to jump the line at CBS in pitching the show because of the access we were able to afford them."

That was just before the coronavirus pandemic hit, but it also coincided with the TikTok craze. "We were sitting around watching our kids teach each other how to do these dances," recalls O'Donnell, "but to me, one of the sweetest memories is of going to father-daughter dances as my daughters were growing up. That was just simple dancing, though. They weren't trying to teach me anything."

Still, O'Donnell says he believes "Come Dance With Me" is "something that people can connect with. Lots of shows coming out now are so dark, you wouldn't watch them if your kids were anywhere near the room, but this is something you can really enjoy watching with your kids."

An alumnus of such movies as "Scent of a Woman" and "Vertical Limit," O'Donnell maintains he was "heavily inspired" by the syndicated show "Dance Fever" during his youth. "When the performance wasn't good and the judges had to be nice, it was always awkward," he notes. "Here, you have kids involved, and they're the ones who nail it. It's the adults who make fools of themselves."

And how does O'Donnell — who's nearing the end of Season 13 of "NCIS: Los Angeles" — rate himself on the dance floor?

"With the right environment, I love it, but I'm not going to be Elaine from 'Seinfeld.' You won't find me being the first one on the floor, that's for sure."

Zakarian makes his 'Big Restaurant Bet' in Food Net series

Geoffrey Zakarian

Anyone considering opening a restaurant will get a soup-to-nuts primer on it from Geoffrey Zakarian in a competition series currently airing on Food Network.

On "Big Restaurant Bet," airing Tuesdays (and also streaming on discovery+), the renowned chef and restaurateur presents eight talented chefs with the opportunity to take the next step in their culinary career and open their own restaurant.

But first they have to prove that their idea is worth his investment and resources. So in addition to demonstrating their culinary chops, they also have to sell Zakarian on their vision, their business sense and themselves and convince him that they are the right fit for him and his restaurant group. The winner gets his $250,000 investment to get things going.

"It's almost like 'Iron Chef' Meets 'The Prophet,'" Zakarian explains, "whereby you want to have a profitable restaurant and you're really talented but you just can't get out of your own way, you don't have the skill set. You have the tenacity and the passion but you don't have the skill set."

"So (on a scale of one to 10), we'll pick someone who's like ... a seven or an eight to bring them to a 10," he continues. "There's people that are fives and sixes and are stunningly good, they're just not ready. ... But you're never really ready. Like you're never really ready to have a baby, right? Then you have a baby and like all of a sudden nature kicks in and you start doing stuff and it works. So there are similarities there but there is no such thing as a perfectly ready person. I mean, I'm not perfectly ready and I've been doing it for 40 years."

While the chefs will try to impress Zakarian, his wife and business partner Margaret Zakarian and chef Eric Haugen with their culinary creations, Zakarian will quiz them about their business acumen. So knowledge in areas such as marketing, budgeting, menu creation and managing people is advantageous.

And while there is no such thing as the perfect candidate, Zakarian will take someone on if he sees certain qualities in them.

"We can work with a B-minus with a great attitude and an amazing passion," he says. "If you don't have passion and great attitude, I don't care if you're an A-plus, there's not going to be a chance that we're going to work with you."

Elle Fanning OF 'THE GIRL FROM PLAINVILLE' ON HULU

You must have gone through something of a case of acting whiplash, going from "The Great" to "The Girl From Plainville," where you go from one character where everything she thinks and does is out there and to another character where we're trying to figure her out. Can you talk about that strange dichotomy?

Yeah, that was something that I definitely thought about a lot. Our sets probably couldn't be more different in tone. That is definitely, for sure. I also was ... a little relieved. I think probably naively relieved because on "The Great," we have a lot of dialogue. It's a lot of memorization.

I think I even told (showrunners) Liz (Hannah) and Patrick (Macmanus), I was like, "Oh, this is great. I don't have to say anything. I can just say it with my eyes. Fantastic." And I was kind of in for a rude awakening ... that's a lot, as well. So different challenges in different ways but yeah, it couldn't be more different. You're definitely right, I did feel that a lot.

After being involved in "The Girl From Plainville," has it made you feel differently about social media and technology? And has it had an impact on how you yourself use technology and social media?

... I was thinking about just kind of what this show says about bullying. Especially social media, texts, whatnot, it's so much easier ... for people to say things behind a screen. And you can kind of create this world that isn't real where you have no consequences for what you say. If it's comments on Instagram or typing nasty things, texting nasty things to people, and that's something – not that it's necessarily a cautionary tale, but it's like people really need to know that those words don't go away. And people are reading those words and reacting to them or taking them to heart or they're being hurt from that, and tragedies can really come from it.

tonight's PICKS

Jesse Lee Soffer

Married at First Sight

8 p.m. on LIFE

With only two weeks left until their big Decision Day, the four couples travel to Vermont for a final romantic getaway in the new episode "It's Just a Blip." Despite the appeal of adventure parks, sound baths and fun with alpacas, not everything goes well for the group, especially after one of them winds up in urgent care.

Kung Fu

9 p.m. on WUPA

A tip from Evan (Gavin Stenhouse) leads Nicky and Mia (Olivia Leung, guest star Vanessa Yao) to a secret meeting between Juliette (guest star Annie Q) and a mysterious scientist in the new episode "Jyu Sa." Later, Nicky finds herself uncertain whether to view Mia as a friend or a shifu (teacher). Meanwhile, Henry's (Eddie Liu) findings lead him to an expert who may be able to decipher his research. Elsewhere, Jin and Mei-Li (Tzi Ma, Kheng Hua Tan) help to settle an age-old dispute between Chinatown's oldest grocers.

Chicago P.D.

10 p.m. on WXIA

During an investigation, Halstead (Jesse Lee Soffer) is tasked with taking a new recruit under his wing. The dynamic between them is challenging, however, especially when questions begin to arise about this newbie's past, which is complicated, to put it mildly. Jason Beghe, Marina Squerciati, Patrick John Flueger, LaRoyce Hawkins and Amy Morton also star in the new episode "New Guard."

Good Trouble

10 p.m. on FREE

Evan (T.J. Linnard) proposes an idea that he hopes could save Bulk Beauty in the new episode "Something Unpredictable, but in the End It's Right." Elsewhere, Alice (Sherry Cola) has returned, but things between her and Sumi (Kara Wang) are still strained.

Holmes

Restaurant: Impossible

8 p.m. on FOOD

In the new episode "Revisited: Saving Mom," host Robert Irvine travels to Muncie, Ind., to see how things are progressing at The Retro Diner. The first time he visited to offer his assistance, Rita, the owner, was in failing health, and her daughter Melissa had joined the business to help. It was an emotionally fraught situation, so Robert really has no idea whether he will find a thriving business or closed doors during this check-in.

Swamp People

9 p.m. on HIST

Confronted with a potentially devastating cold snap, Daniel pins his hopes on a hot-springs honey hole in the new episode "Crawfish Monster." Meanwhile, Joey and Zak chase a huge specimen into the crawfish ponds, and Troy teaches Pickle the tricks to fishing with a treble hook. Elsewhere, Porkchop and Leroy try a radically new strategy, while Don tries to dust off his old skills as a sniper.

Ghosts

9:01 p.m. on WGCL

The ghost of Stephanie (guest star Odessa A'Zion), a "mean girl" who died on a prom night back during the '80s, is awoken from her long slumber in the attic in the new episode "Attic Girl." Her sudden appearance triggers Sam (Rose McIver), forcing her to confront a situation that took place on her own prom night. Meanwhile, Alberta (Danielle Pinnock) discovers she has another special gift. Utkarsh Ambudkar, Brandon Scott Jones and Richie Moriarty also star.

Welcome to Flatch

9:31 p.m. on WAGA

Kelly (Holmes) inspires Dylan (Kyle Selig) to rediscover his dormant passion for performing magic during a visit to Smokus Pocus, Flatch's new magic and vape shop, in the new episode "That Old Flatch Magic." Meanwhile, Shrub (Sam Straley) finally takes Beth (Erin Bowles) on a real date. Seann William Scott, Aya Cash and Taylor Ortega also star; Murray Hill guest stars.

Philip Lawrence

Come Dance With Me

8 p.m. on WGCL
 Longtime "NCIS: Los Angeles" colleagues Chris O'Donnell and LL Cool J created and serve as executive producers on this new family dance competition. Young dancers ranging in age from 9 to 15 invite a supportive but untrained adult family member to join them in the competition, with each pair embarking on a challenging journey together that sees them learning and performing dance routines in different genres before judges that include actress-dancer Jenna Dewan, dancer Dexter Mayfield and hip hop choreographer Tricia Miranda. Songwriter Philip Lawrence is the host.

The Jackie Robinson Story

8 p.m. on TCM
 The baseball great does a credible job in this 1950 biography — and why not? After all, he's playing himself. The script retraces Robinson's struggles to emerge from the Negro League and establish himself as the first Black player in the major leagues. In doing so, he made himself not only a symbol of athletic achievement, but also of racial advancement. Ruby Dee co-stars as Robinson's wife, Rachel. The film kicks off a mini-marathon of baseball movies.

Dynasty

9 p.m. on WUPA
 As the Peachtree Stakes horse race looms, Fallon (Elizabeth Gillies) hatches a plan she thinks might help her win the competition in the new episode "The Only Thing That Counts Is Winning." Meanwhile, Dominique (Michael Michele) is leaning on Jeff (Sam Adegoke) to help promote her new line of accessories at the posh event. Elsewhere, Adam (Sam Underwood) meddles in Alexis' (Elaine Hendrix) romance, and Sam (Rafael de la Fuente) receives some heartbreaking news.

What's Available NOW On

“Better Nate Than Ever” (Available now)

From director Tim Federle (“High School Musical: The Musical: The Series”) comes this comedic adventure about Nate (newcomer Rueby Wood), a 13-year-old Midwesterner who embarks on a journey to Broadway to follow his dreams despite the fact he can’t even land a part in the school play. Aria Brooks (“All That”), Joshua Bassett (“High School Musical: The Musical: The Series”) and Lisa Kudrow co-star. (ORIGINAL)

“30 for 30: I Hate Christian Laettner” (Available now)

This 2015 offering from director Rory Karpf (“Tim Richmond: To the Limit”) that explores the universal disdain for former Duke basketball hero Christian Laettner is one of a number of films from ESPN’s acclaimed “30 for 30” series of sports documentaries that is available to stream on Disney+.

“Diary of a Wimpy Kid: Dog Days” (Available now)

The 2012 third installment of the “Diary of a Wimpy Kid” film series picks up months after the events of “Rodrick Rules” and finds Greg (Zachary Gordon) faking summer employment when his plans for a fun summer of playing videogames are threatened by his dad’s (Steve Zahn) desire for some father/son bonding time. Robert Capron and Devon Bostick co-star.

“Daredevil” (Available now)

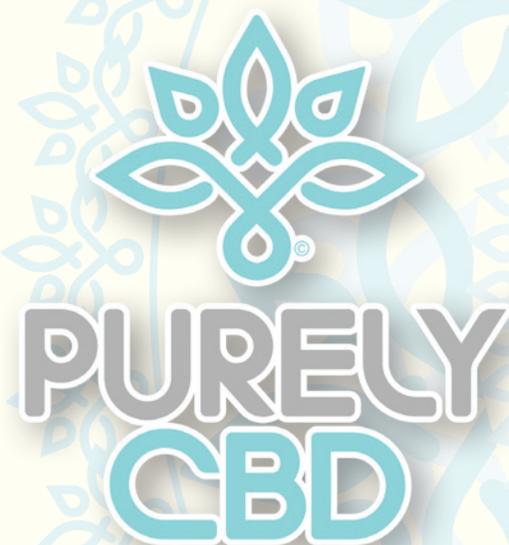

Based on the character from Marvel Comics, this action series stars Charlie Cox as Matt Murdock/Daredevil, a blind lawyer by day who fights crime as a masked vigilante by night. Deborah Ann Woll, Elden Henson, Rosario Dawson, Vincent D’Onofrio and Geoffrey Cantor are also in the solid cast.

tonight's PICKS

Melora Hardin

Murdoch Mysteries

7 p.m. on OVA
 Murdoch and Inspector Brackenreid (Yannick Bisson, Thomas Craig) are summoned to a private home after a party guest is stabbed during a parlor game in the new episode "Murdoch Knows Best." Upon arrival, they're thunderstruck to discover that the owner of the home, Lyle Anderson, is actually an assumed name being used by spy Terrence Meyers (recurring guest star Peter Keleghan), who shares a quiet "normal" life with his wife, Deborah (guest star Leah Pinsent, Keleghan's real-life wife).

Love, Classified

8 p.m. on HALL
 Like a whirlwind, romance novelist Emilia (Melora Hardin) blows back into the lives of her adult children, Taylor and Zach (Katherine McNamara, Max Lloyd-Jones), when she returns to her hometown for a signing at a local book shop. As their mother tries to reconnect with her children and others from her past life here, Taylor and Zach explore relationships both past and present through an app that promises to deliver old-fashioned human connections via classified ads. Arienne Mandi also stars in this 2022 romance.

tonight's PICKS

Gillian Anderson

Power Book IV: Force

8 p.m. on STARZ
This well-received spinoff wraps up its first season with a finale called "Family Business," in which decisions by those closest to Tommy (Joseph Sikora) could leave him powerless. To make matters worse, an unexpected visitor arrives in Chicago and refuses to leave without getting some answers. With few allies left and his family in a vulnerable position, Tommy is forced to turn to others for help. Meanwhile, Diamond (Isaac Keys) learns the truth behind a potential threat.

Fear the Walking Dead

9 p.m. on AMC
As the second half of Season 7 opens, it's been several months since that devastating nuclear blast and Victor Strand (Colman Domingo) has established a personal fiefdom, having ruthlessly recruited only the most likely to survive. Those less fortunate are now being led by a reluctant Alicia (Alicia Debnam-Carey) in their quest to find Padre, a mythical place they can't be sure actually exists. Still hoping to find his missing family, Morgan (Lennie James) casts his lot with Alicia, but the paranoid Strand sees her as a mortal threat.

The First Lady

9 p.m. on SHOW
This new history anthology drama reframes American history through the lens of the extraordinary women at the heart of the White House. Much of the headline news may come from the West Wing of that building, yet some of history's most world-changing decisions took place hidden from public view in the East Wing, the domain of the First Ladies. Among the formidable actresses spotlighted in the series are Oscar, Emmy and Tony Award winner Viola Davis as Michelle Obama, Michelle Pfeiffer as Betty Ford and Gillian Anderson as Eleanor Roosevelt.

tonight's PICKS

Bob Odenkirk

Better Call Saul

9 p.m. on AMC
When this acclaimed drama premiered it 2015, it was (accurately) touted as a spinoff and prequel of the critically adored "Breaking Bad," but it didn't take this series — which chronicles the complicated emotional journey of attorney Jimmy McGill (Bob Odenkirk) — long to make its own mark. Since then, "Saul" has earned a Peabody Award, 21 Primetime Emmys and a shelf full of other accolades. Now, the series opens its sixth and final season, which will air in two parts. Rhea Seehorn, Jonathan Banks and Giancarlo Esposito also return.

9-1-1: Lone Star

9:01 p.m. on WAGA
Owen (Rob Lowe) and the 126 team respond to emergency calls at a fast-food drive-thru, a road rage incident and a high school wrestling match, all of which had a common element linking them, in the new episode "Impulse Control." Elsewhere, Tommy's (Gina Torres) estranged brother-in-law makes a surprise appearance in Austin, and Marjan (Natacha Karam) confronts Chief Strand about his anger management issues. Amy Acker and Julius Vega guest star.

I Was There

10:02 p.m. on HIST
The new episode "Bloody Sunday" sends host Theo Wilson back to the United States in the turbulent 1960s to revisit how civil rights icon John Lewis came to lead a historic march across the Edmund Pettus Bridge near Selma, Ala., on Sunday, March 7, 1965. The episode charts Lewis' life from his first childhood protest up through his role in that Bloody Sunday march. A decision to air the march on television helped trigger change in how the struggle for equality and civil rights was perceived by the public at large.

'The Big Leap' has been grounded

Q: Will "The Big Leap" be back? – Kate Turner, via email

A: It won't. The Fox series even had tried to position itself for a Season 2 by hinting within the first season at what the plot for another year might be, but it ultimately was to no avail. Though Scott Foley (also a producer of the show) had top billing, the member of the ensemble cast who career arguably has survived best from it is Piper Perabo, whose character (spoiler alert!) died before the season ended; the actress already has had other roles on "Yellowstone" and "Billions."

Piper Perabo

Q: When will Ellen DeGeneres' last daytime show be? – Stacy Nyman, Glen Burnie, Md.

A: May 26 is slated to be her final day on the syndicated program, though to fill out its commitment to stations that carry it, guest hosts will appear on it through the summer and present montages of past segments. On many stations that carry both series, Kelly Clarkson's talk show will be moving into the "Ellen" slot in the fall.

celebrity quotes

"I started thinking of that with the book (Malone's recently published 'Girls on Film: Lessons From a Life of Watching Women in Movies'), what it means to consume a life of film where you're watching women on screen, but not necessarily stories that are told by women. When you find a movie directed by a woman, it's such a gift." – Alicia Malone of Turner Classic Movies

"This is a painting. It's not a photograph. It's not a documentary. So it's impressionistic. When you play a real-life character, I always feel like you have an obligation to do the work, dive deep, do the diligence, and to bring that person to the screen with as much dignity and grace as possible." – Jared Leto of "WeCrashed" on Apple TV+
