Year in Review

The Covington News begins its review of Newton County's top stories and topics from 2021 ranked 6-10. Stories and topics ranked 1-5 will be published in the Saturday-Sunday, Jan. 1-2, 2022, edition of The Covington News.

6 P-Cards: Investigation underway after questions of abuse arise in Newton

By TAYLOR BECK
tbeck@covnews.com

COVINGTON, Ga. — In August, District Attorney Randy McGinley requested state authorities investigate “certain” Newton County purchasing card (P-card) records.

After he received copies of “certain” P-card records, McGinley told The Covington News he met with “a state law enforcement agency about certain records and requested an investigation into certain transactions.” He said the records would include “certain P-card holder’s records covering 2020 and further back.”

“The records I have go into some of 2021, but I am not sure if they go all the way through June of this year,” McGinley said. “But, if I need to get more recent records, I can easily do so.”

The Covington News published a four-part series on purchasing cards across four weekend issues starting in late July and ending early August. Residents saw the P-card policy and procedures, were presented past spending records and even heard from Newton County Chairman Marcello Banes and County Manager Lloyd Kerr on the subject of spending. ## 7 Newton County's embattled coroner resigns after five months in office

By TOM SPIGOLON
tspigolon@covnews.com

COVINGTON, Ga. — The office of coroner in Georgia often can be a low-profile position despite it requiring investigation of a number of types of odd or suspicious deaths.

Dorothea Bailey-Butts went against the grain in 2021 in Newton County after defeating three-term incumbent Tommy Davis in November 2020.

Davis, a Republican and a funeral home owner, was seeking a fourth consecutive term in the job after his first election in 2008.

Bailey-Butts, a Democrat and a registered nurse, had lost a bid for the office to Bailey-Butts became the first African-American to hold the position in Newton County after taking office Jan. 1.

COVINGTON, Ga. — A Newton County native is using her personal story of how she overcame postpartum depression to inspire and encourage others through the form of a workbook and journal.

From joy and excitement to fear and anxiousness, the birth of a baby can be an emotional experience for mothers and fathers. However, there's one emotion that most neither expect nor talk about: depression.

According to a study from the CDC, approximately 1 out of every 10 women has suffered some form of depression within the last year — about 1 in 8 women experienced symptoms of postpartum depression. Postpartum depression is a form of depression that occurs after having a baby. Symptoms may include lasting sadness or “emptiness;” feelings of hopelessness, helplessness or irritability; loss of interest in hobbies; loss of energy; difficulty sleeping; and even

State of the City: Mansfield

Optimism in business district

Mayor says new businesses, sale of substation improved city

By TOM SPIGOLON
tspigolon@covnews.com

MANSFIELD, Ga. — Mansfield's mayor says the new businesses that filled vacant buildings and spaces in 2021 made him optimistic about the future of the city's business district.

G.W. Davis said all but two buildings in the city are still vacant after new businesses came into the city in 2021.

Some new businesses to open in the town recently included an event center, taxidermy shop, residential cleaning service, antique shop and a laundromat, he said.

A restaurant, Miss Sally's, opened in the former location of a barbecue restaurant on Georgia Hwy. 11, he said.

Another vacant building the city owns is under contract to a company Davis said he could not disclose.

"If we're able to do it, it will be a great addition to the town," Davis said.

He said 2021 saw the city sell its electric substation to the Municipal Electric Authority of Georgia (MEAG), which is the agency from which Mansfield buys wholesale electricity.

MEAG is upgrading the system with new infrastructure designed to halt power interruptions, Davis said.

It is installing equipment to replace outdated technology that formerly delayed repairs during outages, he said.

"When a limb hit a line, you had to drive the line to find it," he said.

8 County seeks new manager after Board of Commissioners dumps Kerr

By TOM SPIGOLON
tspigolon@covnews.com

COVINGTON, Ga. — By year's end, Newton County government was seeking a new manager after the Board of Commissioners in early November narrowly voted not to renew Lloyd Kerr's contract after six years in the position.

The county manager oversees the day-to-day operations of the county government and is responsible for presenting the annual budget to the Board, among other duties.

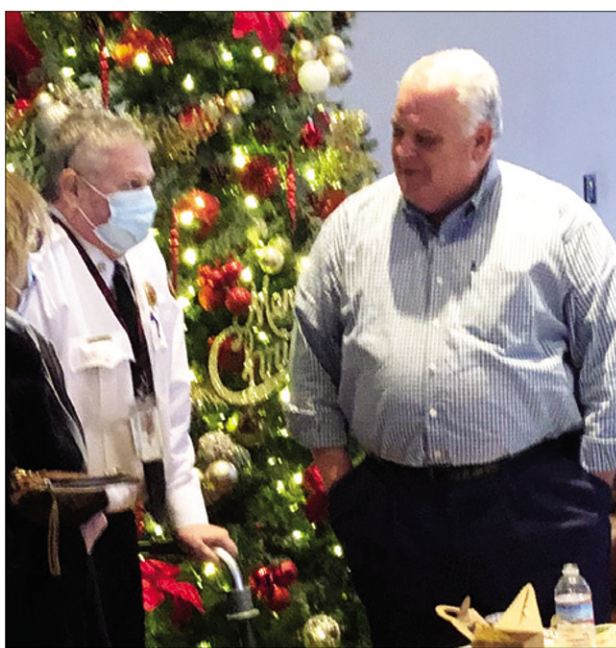

Kerr had served as county manager since 2016 and the Board voted unanimously to renew his contract for an additional three years in early 2019.

However, in 2021, Kerr and some commissioners began clashing publicly on some issues that apparently led to the action not to renew his contract.

In February, Kerr took the unusual action of requesting a state board to remove then-Coroner Dorothea Bailey-Butts from office because of a series of allegations made against her about her job performance which began soon after she took office in January.

State officials ultimately said they could not take action because she had not received a state coroners training course.

Kerr also publicly complained that some Board members were violating the county charter by bypassing him and directly contacting county employees — which rankled some commissioners who complained that delays in communicating with Kerr often led to the need for direct communication with employees.

In addition, the county received $10.8 million in COVID-19 relief funds in May from the federal American Rescue Plan Act of 2021.

Kerr subsequently maintained that the county government had not received final instructions on how to distribute the money and risked being liable for any funds not spent properly.

By the fall, some commissioners and a state lawmaker publicly complained that Kerr was not working hard enough to find a way to distribute the funding.

The Board of Commissioners voted 3-2 in early November not to renew Kerr's contract after one commissioner publicly complained about Kerr's apparent uncaring attitude toward residents in need of federal rental assistance, among other issues.

Chairman Marcello Banes said he planned to veto the action in an effort to keep Kerr in the position because of his part in upgrading the government's financial standing since 2016. But County Attorney Patrick Jaugstetter told commissioners that Banes' action would not overrule state law that requires a governing body's majority vote to renew a contract.

The Board then met again Nov. 23 and Banes recommended they keep Kerr in the position for a year to allow for a transition period.

District 4 Commissioner J.C. Henderson sought to appoint former county recreation director Ternard Turner as interim county manager. Commissioners voted 3-2 against hiring Turner after hearing Jaugstetter say he believed the action was not in line with the county government's operating charter that requires the chairman to submit a list of candidates from which Board members would fill the position.

Commissioners ultimately formed a committee to determine how the federal COVID-19 relief funds could be distributed and were working on a plan at year's end.

Meanwhile, the county government posted the position of interim county manager Nov. 29 on its website and set a Dec. 29 deadline to apply. Board members had said they wanted someone to serve in the job for about six months until someone could be found to fill it on a permanent basis.

The county's operating charter, also known as the enabling legislation, states the chairman must provide at least three "qualified" candidates to the Board "provided sufficient applications are received."

If fewer than three candidates are submitted, the Board can choose to appoint someone or request more candidates be found.

Kerr worked as a planning official in Fayetteville, Newton County, Covington and Pensacola, Florida.

He was promoted from Newton's planning director to interim county manager in January 2016 and was named to the permanent position in August 2016.

9 Oaks Golf Course closes after 32 historic years

By TAYLOR BECK

PORTERDALE, Ga. — Arguably Newton County's most historic golf course closed in November.

The Oaks Golf Course had been in operation for 32 years, but the site had been home to a golf course for more than nine decades.

Formerly home to two dairies, Bibb Manufacturing Co. first developed the land along the Yellow River as a nine-hole golf course for its employees in the 1930s. One of the course designers was said to be early golf legend Bobby Jones. He was a friend of prominent Newton residents such as Charlie Elliott and liked to hunt and fish in the county, according to The Oaks' history. Jones won numerous tournaments in the early 20th century and was a founder of what would become Augusta National Golf Course and The Masters Tournament.

The Oaks operated under various names into the 1980s, but then stopped being used as a golf course. Former

10 Cyberattack leads to severe gasoline shortage in spring

By TAYLOR BECK
tbeck@covnews.com

COVINGTON, Ga. — Days after a May 7 cyberattack forced Colonial Pipeline to halt its operation, many gas stations across Newton County and the state of Georgia were left with empty tanks.

Fear among motorists led to a much worse gas shortage than what state officials anticipated, prompting Gov. Brian Kemp to urge everyone to remain calm.

"Only get the gasoline you need," he said during a news conference May 12. "Please do not go out and fill up every five-gallon tank you have. Doing so will only mean the shortage will last longer."

Colonial Pipeline is a 5,500-mile pipeline that supplies almost half of the gasoline on the East Coast. It was forced to shut down May 7 after a ransomware attack that has been traced to hackers operating out of Russia or Eastern Europe. The company reportedly paid hackers up to $5 million to get the pipeline operational again.

Colonial Pipeline announced May 12 its operations were finally

Numerous issues, occurrences affected county residents in 2021

By TOM SPIGOLON
tspigolon@covnews.com

COVINGTON, Ga. — A number of issues and occurrences were notable in their impact on Newton County residents in 2021.

In addition to the top 10 stories of 2021, some included:

- Covington City Council creates Citizen Review Board as a police oversight measure. Board gets off to a rocky start in November amid confusion about its role in reviewing officers' actions in following department policy in some cases.

- Board of Commissioners honor heroic actions throughout the year in Newton County. They included a waitress who saved a motorist from a burning car in June; businessman who saved teens from drowning in a pond after October wreck; and 8-year-old who led her family to safety in a house fire in October.

- Board declines to hire longtime contract attorney Megan Martin in October after naming her sole finalist for position leading new county in-house legal department with six-month contract. No applications were submitted for the job for weeks afterward.
- Newton County and Emory University honor the late Superior Court Judge Horace Johnson by naming the county's judicial center in February and historic Oxford College building for him in October. Johnson was instrumental in efforts to enlarge the judicial center, and was a major supporter of Oxford College which he attended before graduating from Emory University.

- Chairman Marcello

Banes publicly scolds Commissioner Alana Sanders in August about potential liability to the county for an exercise series Sanders had been leading for months. Sanders fires back about apparent lack of concern beforehand from county attorney and Banes.

P-CARDS:

"If this necessitates further action, then my office will do so," he added. "It is not appropriate for me to comment beyond that at this point."

Bound by Georgia Rules of Professional Conduct, Rule 3.8, McGinley said he could not make any public comment that would "have a substantial likelihood of heightening public condemnation" of anyone accused of a crime.

"There are times when I will tell everyone that it would not be appropriate for me to comment on whether there is even an ongoing investigation," he said. "However, in circumstances where it is already publicly known, including by potential parties being investigated, there is not much purpose served by me not at least confirming that there is an investigation."

Who or how many of Newton County's 50 P-card users could be investigated is unknown.

The district attorney said initial contact with state authorities was made prior to The Covington News series on P-cards, which began in late July. Within the series, The News has explained what P-cards are and analyzed the spending records of P-card holders dated June 2020-June 2021.

The District Attorney's Office handles all state criminal offenses in Newton County, but McGinley said the "vast majority" of cases come to the office after an arrest is made.

"While we are the prosecuting agency, we are rarely the initiating investigative agency," McGinley said. "However, that does not mean my office cannot and will not investigate matters when it is just not being done by a local law enforcement agency. We have done so and will continue to do so when necessary."

RESIDENTS DEMAND CHANGE

When The Covington News published a four-part series on P-Cards across four weekend issues starting in late July and ending early August, residents saw the P-card policy and procedures, were presented past spending records and even heard from Newton County Chairman Marcello Banes and County Manager Lloyd Kerr on the subject of spending.

Not only did residents want an investigation into the county's spending records, but many called for major change to the P-card program.

Many residents also requested a "full, forensic" audit to be conducted.

McGinley told The Covington News that his office had no control or authority to be involved in a decision to revoke P-cards or abolishing the program altogether, as some residents had suggested, and an audit can be conducted by the county, which could then be outsourced to an outside firm or business.

"[To clarify,] I am responsible for the ethical behavior and fiscal responsibility of my department, not any other department," McGinley said. "My office is not a fiscal responsibility watchdog. Now, clearly, when there is criminal activity, it is usually unethical and can be a breach of a fiduciary obligation. But if it is determined that something is not criminal or that we cannot prove criminal activity beyond a reasonable doubt, it is not appropriate for my office to decide whether it is ethical or fiscally responsible.

"Personally, I believe that tight control, a strong written and clear policy, and regular review of expenses is a better way to address concerns with P-cards than outright abolishing them," he said.

The county's current policy states, "The Cardholder shall use the Purchasing Card for legitimate business purposes only. The Purchasing Card shall not be used for entertainment, cash, or personal use." However, there is no further explanation or definition as to what is "necessary" or what is a "legitimate business purpose." There are also no examples or guidelines as to what would be prohibited uses of a P-card, other than it cannot be used for "entertainment, cash, or personal use." McGinley said many other entities, including the State of Georgia, have a more detailed policy, which includes examples and further defines terms in the policy.

Any proposed changes made by residents could be hard to come by, unless a majority of the governing Board of Commissioners can be convinced a change is necessary. Only the commissioners hold the power to make changes to the policy, as it was the commissioners who originally enacted the framework in 2013.

At last report in November, McGinley said the GBI was still investigating potential P-Card misconduct.

CORONER:

In a January presentation to the Newton County Board of Commissioners, Bailey-Butts spoke about the need for funding of equipment, training and new office space for the job.

She said she was the first person who was not a mortician to hold the office in decades and others before her often used facilities available at their funeral homes.

The Board later approved a $50,000 amendment to the coroner's budget for supplies and training.

However, during the same presentation, she also showed commissioners an envelope she said contained damaging information — an implication she would disclose the information if she did not receive more funding.

She declined to answer reporters' questions about its purpose and said the information was not subject to Georgia's open records law because it was her personal property.

TV news stations later ran a video of her refusing to transport a body from a wreck scene — an action previous coroners reportedly typically had done.

In February, County Manager Lloyd Kerr took the unusual step of requesting the Georgia Coroner's Training Council to take action against Bailey-Butts because of a series of allegations made against her about her job performance which began soon after she took office in January — including improper removal of a suicide victim which she later denied.

State officials ultimately said they could not take action because she had not received a state coroners training course at the time the events allegedly occurred.

After a period of time in which the county commission approved remodeling part of a county building for use as office space and records storage, Bailey-Butts announced in a May 25 posting on her Facebook page she was resigning the job.

She said, "There were too many scandals and issues about how I do my duties which mainly comes from the fact that I am Black" and "there were even issues with my office space, my deputies, and other stuff which weren't a problem with the previous coroner."

The county government responded "worked with Bailey-Butts to ensure the needs of the residents of Newton County were met."

It also said the coroner was "in the process of moving to a larger office to accommodate the needs she expressed" and "firmly denies any claims of lack of support to the coroner's office and any allegations of discrimination based on gender or race."

A Wednesday, May 26, order signed by Probate Judge Melanie Bell was based on a letter of resignation from Bailey-Butts dated the same day, according to information from the county government. In the same order, Bell appointed Davis to fill the vacancy.

However, a posting on her Facebook page May 26 said Bailey-Butts announced she was rescinding the resignation she gave the day before. She told a reporter on Atlanta TV station Fox 5 she decided to withdraw the resignation after being interviewed by the station.

She then posted on her Facebook page: "PSA..... I have decided that I am not going to resign as Newton County Coroner. I am withdrawing my resignation effectively today. I am not resigning from my position. The citizens voted me in this position.

"I apologize for the inconvenience."

Gov. Brian Kemp, though, told Bailey-Butts in a May 27 letter he had been "april of your resignation, effective 8:00 a.m. on May 28, 2021" and thanked her, effectively ending her service.

"Your resignation as coroner is hereby accepted, and I wish you all the best," Kemp wrote.

The Newton County Board of Elections later in the year received information that state law required the Probate Judge to appoint someone to serve the remainder of the coroner's term if a vacancy occurs — which placed Davis in the coroner's office through 2024.

Season to be jolly but maybe not for all

The majority of us like to see the winter holidays starting with Thanksgiving and topping off with the Big New Year, as one long continuous celebration. We gather with loved ones, dress up, share good food, and enjoy festive holiday events.

Yet, some of us may seem reserved about joining in. Unfortunately, thousands of families are without their loved ones due to mental health or substance use challenges, incarceration or care in behavioral health hospitals, or even a loss by suicide.

The National Institute on Mental Health reports that more than 700,000 people die by suicide every year and suicide is the fourth leading cause of death among 15-19 year-olds. Provisional data from CDC's National Center for Health Statistics indicate that there were an estimated 100,306 drug overdose deaths in the United States during a 12-month period ending in April 2021, an increase of 28.5% from the same period the year before, demonstrating the effect of the COVID pandemic on our nation's mental health.

According to the Bureau of Justice Statistics, approximately two-thirds of female and around a third of male inmates report being diagnosed with a mental health disorder. Of those who enter jail each year with a serious mental illness, an estimated three-quarters have a co-occurring substance use problem.

Most families bear the brunt of the consequences of their loved one's mental health or substance use issues. Fees for legal counsel, funds for commissary and visitation during incarceration, and medical bills for services not covered by insurance are a drain on family finances. Family members experience hopelessness, helplessness, and guilt from not being able to communicate with their loved ones on a regular basis, or having been able to protect their loved one from their own behavior. There is the additional burden of not knowing how their family member is being treated while detained or hospitalized: whether they are safe and being provided the proper medical care that they need.

I have first-hand experience on how hard it is to spend the holidays without a loved one. Last year I found myself depressed and in high anxiety as my son spent eight months behind bars and in a maximum lock-down behavioral health facility after experiencing a mental health crisis. Diagnosed with a serious mental health illness at the age of 14, he was only 23 years old when he was taken into custody from a mental health facility after punching another patient while in a high state of paranoia. While holding him accountable is appropriate, I question why the hospital wasn't equipped to separate patients clearly exhibiting symptoms of mental illness, and why were there no dedicated spaces to isolate patients until stabilized. There is an ongoing battle by families of those with mental health issues to advocate to our local, state, and federal legislators the importance of approving more funding to improve mental health facilities and to expand resources in our healthcare systems and communities.

We also continue bringing awareness by sharing our stories and offering support to those living similar experiences. Numerous local agencies work to provide resources and support groups, including NAMI (National Alliance on Mental Illness) Rockdale-Newton, Newton County Family Connection and Newton County Drug Free Community Coalition, Newton-Rockdale Suicide Prevention Coalition and View Point Health, Rockdale Coalition for Children and Families and Community Resource Network, Grit and Grace Recovery Community, Rockdale County Stepping Up Initiative, Give Life a Chance, and Cat10Entertainment.

An unforgettable "Godwink" for the holidays

From David Carroll: This week I am honored to share a story by Carissa Webb, a teacher friend of mine, who writes about her extraordinary holiday experience:

Have you ever heard the term "Godwink?" The Hallmark Channel exposed me to this. I love a sappy, predictable Hallmark movie with a happy ending while I'm curled up under a blanket, occasionally wiping my eyes. Sometimes my soul needs that.

"Godwink" was made popular by author Squire Rushnell, who defined it as "a coincidence that's not coincidence but an astonishing event from divine origin."

I work in a high school library, and occasionally after the last bell has sounded, I walk the empty halls for exercise. Recently, I passed a teacher carrying a bag full of clothes. She asked if I had a particular size of men's jeans in our Care Closet, where students can come when they need toiletries, school supplies, clothes, backpacks, or shoes. The bag she carried contained some of her husband's clothes that he no longer wore. She told me that one of her students often wore dirty, stained clothes. Unfortunately, her husband's clothes were not the right size for the student.

She had learned that the student was being raised solely by his disabled grandfather after his grandmother unexpectedly passed away last year. In addition to going to school, he was working on a farm. I told her, "Please get me his clothing sizes, and I will try to find what he needs." I was already thinking of friends who could pitch in so this student would get new clothes for Christmas.

A few hours later I was at Walmart, standing in a slow-moving self-check-out line. I checked my phone messages. One said, "Do you know of a teenager in our community who has a Christmas list? I can't do anything huge, but I can help one child. Maybe a child that a grandparent is raising?"

The message was sent at 3:46 pm, about 15 minutes after my coworker and I had our conversation. It was sent to me at the exact moment that I was standing in the Care Closet, searching through bags of clothes for some jeans to fit this student. I read the message again, and the next thing I knew, I could no longer see my phone screen as tears filled my eyes. I stood there in a state of disbelief, absolutely awestruck at what had just unfolded before me.

I composed myself and wrote to my teacher friend: "You're not going to believe this..." She replied, "God works in mysterious ways. I read an article that said most of the 'Angel Trees' in which people donate gifts are usually for small children. So the older kids are often overlooked. I spent a day or two praying about how to help a teenager." She continued, "When my kids were that age, I realized that there are so many kids who don't get much guidance or support. I have been blessed to have people who helped me when I was at my absolute lowest. I'm just trying to pay it forward."

Later that night, I was talking to one of my dearest friends and asked him, "Do you know what a Godwink is?" He did not, so I happily told him about the otherworldly moment that I had experienced. He said, "I would also like to help this student. He deserves to have a good holiday."

Once I acquired the young man's sizes, I sent the information to two friends. They went on joyful shopping sprees. They filled up the back seat of my car and the floorboard. It was too much to hand over at school. I made arrangements to deliver them to his home over the Christmas break.

Life has a way of leaving us jaded and numb to the beauty and wonder that is ever present in the world around us. It's been a rough few years. We have felt it to our core. It was such a blessing to witness the chain of events that can occur when just one person cares enough to help another.

I wondered if it was just a matter of being at the right place at the right time. What if I hadn't decided to stay after school and walk that day? What if my coworker had carried the bag of clothes at a different time? Would our conversation had even happened? I couldn't have possibly set this into motion.

I soon realized that I desperately needed to experience that Godwink moment in this particular season of my life. Call it a wink, a nod, a nudge, or whatever you like, but someone knew I needed it.

From David: Thank you Carissa. Your words inspired me, and will surely bless thousands of readers as well.

Remembering Mr. Isakson

The recent death of Johnny Isakson has left a void in Georgia politics which may never be filled again.

Isakson was completely different from most elected officials at the state or national level in 2021. Yes, he was a Republican, but Isakson was not one to blindly put party affiliation higher than what he thought was right.

His non-confrontational approach earned him respect from both sides of the political spectrum, an act that is no longer appreciated or even desired.

We have reached the point of you are either 100% in agreement with me or you are 100% wrong. It's been a gradual turn but one that now leaves a sickening taste in the mouths of most. The politics of division are firmly here to stay and it is safe to say we need more people like Johnny Isakson.

After first being elected to the state House of Representatives, Isakson decided to go statewide in 1990 and launched a campaign for the Republican nomination for governor.

He would win that primary without a runoff despite three other candidates being in the Republican primary.

In the 1990 general election, Isakson faced Democrat Zell Miller who also survived a contested primary. Miller actually went to a runoff against former Atlanta mayor Andrew Young before claiming the Democrat nomination.

At the time it was all but impossible for a Republican to win statewide office in Georgia. Yet, Isakson mounted a respectable campaign and polled 45% of the general election vote. (Three candidates were on the general election ballot.)

Isakson later ran for the U.S. Senate in 1996 although he would eventually lose the GOP nomination to Guy Millner in a runoff.

From 1999-2005 Isakson served in the House of Representatives, easily winning election and then reelection on multiple occasions.

In 2004, Miller, Isakson's former foe in the 1990 governor's race, decided not to run for a full term in the U.S. Senate after he filled the unexpired term of the late Paul Coverdell. Isakson jumped into the race and won the GOP nomination against Herman Cain and Mac Collins without a runoff.

Isakson then easily won the general election against Congresswoman Denise Majette by 18 points. He would win re-election in 2010 and 2016.

When he resigned at the end of 2019 due to health reasons, Isakson was the longest tenured Republican senator in Georgia history. He would form the Isakson Initiative to raise funds and awareness for Parkinson's Disease.

As the political nature in our country continued to turn more divisive, Isakson kept a very low profile in his final years. He didn't go on television bashing other politicians that he might have disagreed with. It never was his style and it certainly wasn't going to become that way.

Isakson was a rare politician in that he truly cared about his constituents. He viewed elected office as a way to serve people and not as a way to add to the bitter nature of politics.

We need more people like Johnny Isakson, someone who understood that working with all sides was the only way to get things done. Perhaps it was Isakson, in his honest and humble nature, who summed himself up best:

"I am a regular guy and a regular Georgian and I am as proud as I can be of my country and my state."

Well said, Mr. Isakson, well said.

Judge John Ott’s 2020 ruling upholding county government’s planned removal of Covington’s 115-year-old Civil War statue upheld in Georgia Court of Appeals in July.

• Longtime Newton County efforts to observe the Juneteenth holiday come to fruition after declaration of national holiday in June.

• Progress on parks and recreation development throughout 2021 included the opening of a skate park and splash pad, both in Denny Dobbs Park; public-private action to pave and open more sections of Cricket Frog Trail; the beginning of development of a county parks master plan; survey of Covington residents about desired features in the city’s planned Central Park; and the donation of land for development of new nature trails on the county’s west side.

• Transition takes place among elected officials in Newton County in 2021, with State Rep. Dave Belton and Covington City Council member Hawnethia Williams announcing they were not seeking reelection. U.S. Rep. Jody Hice, who represents part of Newton owners allowed vegetation on the site to grow wild for many years until an Atlanta group later redeveloped the site and opened The Oaks golf course under Richard Schulz’s guidance in 1990.

County, announced he planned a run for Georgia Secretary of State in 2022 instead of seeking reelection — leading to 14 candidates seeking to replace him by year’s end.

The course was later expanded to an 18-hole course with a driving range and putting green. Putters Restaurant and the Champions Room, including a kitchen, bar, banquet room, locker room and second floor, were added to the clubhouse in the late ‘90s.

The course was closed in 2021 to be redeveloped.

As proposed by Covington-based Infinity Homes able to continue, but company officials said service won’t be fully restored for several days, according to Capitol Beat News Service.

By the next morning, several stations in Newton County were reportedly out of gas. Where gas was available, motorists were paying around $3 per gallon, on average, for fuel (a significant increase at the time). Officials said an increase in prices was not a surprise as the cost to transport fuel went up after the pipeline shut down. However, Kemp signed an executive order to combat any price gouging. Georgia Attorney General Chris Carr said his office received hundreds of complaints of price gouging, according to Capitol Beat News Service. “No one should be taking advantage of consumers trying to pursue their daily activities,” Carr said.

The governor’s order also suspended collection of the state gasoline tax and lifted the usual weight limits on fuel delivery trucks.

In wake of the gas shortage, city and county entities worked diligently to conserve fuel supplies and try to keep the people of Newton County calm.

State Revolving Fund loan to Mansfield to finance an overhaul of the city’s water pollution control plant.

The project is designed to make sure it meets the requirements of the plant’s operating permit, as well as improving worker safety and improving treatment effectiveness, the Authority said in a press release.

The city will pay

0.13% interest on the 20-year loan, which qualifies for a reduced interest rate because the city is a WaterFirst Community. The city is eligible for principal forgiveness up to $430,470.

The City Council in August voted to approve a lower property tax rate for the fifth year in a row to fund its 2022 budget.

The council voted to reduce the tax rate from 3.867 to the rollback rate of 3.412 mills Aug. 9.

Meanwhile, a special election failed to fill the Post 5 council seat left open by the resignation of Bryan Hale after no one qualified for the seat. Davis said the council has seen interest from two people for the position on the five-member council.

Blair Northen and

Austin Mitchell were unopposed for reelection to new four-year terms in their city council seats.

Residential growth also rose to its highest level in recent memory in 2021, he said. A total of 11 new homes were permitted, which is an unusually high number for the city, Davis said

“(An) attractiveness of the town is it’s not super-developed,” he said.

He said residential growth also is picking up in nearby areas which are outside the city limits but within the city’s water service area.

Davis said he was glad paving of the part of the Cricket Frog Trail inside and near Mansfield meant more people were using the trail, which provided a recreational outlet for city residents.

The 15-mile trail route runs between Covington and Newton atop land and most bridges used by Norfolk Southern Railroad until 2010. All but about 0.8 of a mile within Mansfield is paved, though the path is usable, according to Newton Trails.

Paving of the trail may be completed in 2022, officials said.

thoughts of suicide.

Makayla Walker, a new mother who resides in Covington, said she struggled with postpartum depression after giving birth to her son on Jan. 18, 2020.

“I never thought it would happen to me, but it did,” she said.

Walker said she had an “uneventful” pregnancy, and “everything was good.” But a few hours after birth, Walker said her blood pressure skyrocketed.

Her blood pressure battle lasted several days, which caused her to stay in the hospital for about a week after giving birth. She said her son was able to go home before she was.

Once released, Walker said she was able to go home and be with her son, but life at home with her newborn wouldn’t last long.

About two days later, while at home, Walker checked her blood pressure and found it extremely high again. After calling the doctor, she was encouraged to return to the hospital.

“That was really the start of my postpartum anxiety and depression,” she recalled.

Once at the hospital, Walker was given “emergency medicines,” she said. But those had no effect on her, so she was sent to the Intensive Care Unit, where Walker said she “almost died.”

“I was really, really afraid,” she said. “I thought I wasn’t going to make it. And I felt so defeated because I had just had my baby. He was at home with my family, and they were taking good care of him, but I felt like I should have been the one taking care of him.”

After spending time in the ICU, Walker was eventually released to the Labor and Delivery unit, and doctors finally found the right medicine combination to fix her blood pressure issues, she said.

When Walker was released from the hospital a second time, she constantly found herself checking her blood pressure, so much so that she actually broke her blood pressure monitor and was forced to get a new one. And it never left her side.

“Wherever I was, that blood pressure checker was right there next to me,” she said. “That’s truly when I knew I had a problem.

“I couldn’t function,” Walker continued. “I was always having panic attacks. I wasn’t sleeping. I was always thinking the worst, that I was just going to croak over and die from a heart attack or a stroke because of my blood pressure.”

It didn’t take long for her family to notice something was wrong with Walker’s well-being. They recommended she talk to someone and go to the doctor with her issues.

As she took heed to their advice, Walker was able to receive help through a therapist and medication.

“It really helped me,” she said.

In August 2020, Walker said she was released from her cardiologist — a moment she described as “pivotal” in her postpartum journey and the spark to write a book, titled “Everything Is Going To Be Okay - Postpartum Workbook & Journal,” that shared her experience.

“Just reflecting on what I had gone through, I knew I needed to share my story and didn’t need to keep it to myself,” she said.

Roughly eight months later, Walker’s book was published.

“I hope that moms and dads can find this workbook to be a source of encouragement,” she said. “I wrote this from my own experience ... I’m still having to take anxiety medicine to this day ... But I want people to know that what you’re going through is going to get better, so don’t give up. Just hold on, give things a little time to settle down, and get the help you need. I know it’s hard to see that and believe that when you’re going through storms — it’s dark and you don’t see a way out — but it does get better.

“And if you’re struggling, please reach out to somebody,” Walker added. “Don’t struggle in solitude. If you reach out. You can get help.”

Walker’s book is not currently being sold online or in stores, but anyone interested in getting a copy of the book may email inquiries to Walker directly at makaylawalkerppworkbook@gmail.com.

Georgia prepares for Michigan in Orange Bowl

STAFF REPORTS

news@covnews.com

ATHENS, Ga. — The third-ranked Georgia Bulldogs are in the College Football Playoff for the second time and will play second-ranked Michigan in the Capital One Orange Bowl semi-final game on Friday, Dec. 31, at 7:30 p.m.

The semifinal game will be played at Hard Rock Stadium in Miami Gardens, Florida, between the Bulldogs (12-1) and the Big Ten champion Wolverines (12-1). It will be televised on ESPN and broadcast on the ESPN Radio Network.

Georgia and Michigan have only met twice before with both meetings taking place in Ann Arbor: 1957 (Michigan 26, Georgia 0); and 1965 (Georgia 15, Michigan 7).

“On behalf of our team and especially our seniors we are excited to be selected for the College Football Playoff and the opportunity to play in the Capital One Orange Bowl,” said UGA head coach Kirby Smart. “The goal of every college football team, coach, player, and fan is to be one of the four teams in the playoff and we are extremely honored. It presents a great opportunity for our fans who have been so supportive of our team throughout the season at home and on the road.”

But this year, there may be some differences in the College Football Playoff.

It was recently announced by the CFP that, if a team is unavailable to play in the semifinals because of COVID-19 issues, the game will be forfeited and the available team will advance to the championship.

The announcement came on Dec. 22 with COVID-19 cases spiking across the country due to the omicron variant.

Georgia has appeared in the Orange Bowl three times: Jan. 1, 1942, Georgia 40, TCU 26; Jan. 1, 1949, Texas 41, Georgia 28; and Jan. 1, 1960, Georgia 14, Missouri 0.

This will be Georgia’s 58th bowl game appearance— second most of any team in the country. The Bulldogs’ all-time bowl record is 33-21-3. Georgia is making its 25th consecutive bowl appearance, which ranks as the longest active streak in the country.

COVINGTON, Ga. — The Newton County pipeline to the NFL keeps running.

Earlier this year, Tay Gowan, the former Newton Ram, was drafted by the Arizona Cardinals in the sixth round of the 2021 NFL Draft with the 223rd overall pick. Gowan opted out of the 2020 season due to the COVID-19 pandemic but spent his red-shirt junior season in 2019 playing for the University of Central Florida after transferring in from Butler Community College. As a junior, he recorded 31 tackles, two INTs and one tackle for loss while recovering one fumble and breaking up eight passes.

MONTICELLO, Ga. — Piedmont Academy senior Davin Waldrop captured the GISA state wrestling championship at 138 pounds last weekend.

Waldrop finished the 2020-2021 season undefeated and won his championship match 6-0.

The senior said he began wrestling during the eighth grade and has worked to improve each year.

“After losing my junior season to injury, this year I worked harder than I ever have, running every day and so on,” Waldrop said. “This year, my senior season, I came back and won state. This was the best feeling I have ever had because I knew that all my hard work and emotions for the sport had paid off...”

COVINGTON, Ga. — The Eastside Football Twitter account released some exciting news about the Eagles’ senior running back.

Dallas Johnson set the single season rushing record for Eastside. He concluded the regular season with 1,517 yards and 17 rushing touchdowns. While accomplishing this, Johnson averaged eight yards per carry.

When he found out the news, Johnson was very happy, but he didn’t hog all the glory that comes with this achievement.

“I wouldn’t be able to do it without my team,” Johnson said. “My offensive line and wide receivers do a great job blocking.”

“My goal was just to come out and perform as best as I could,” Johnson said.

Previously holding the record was former Eastside running back, Git Aiken in 2008.

Head coach Jay Cawthon has coached both Johnson and Aiken.

Miranda Lamb was hired to lead the Lady Tigers into a brighter future.

Joining her as newcomers to the team were four freshmen: Lexie McDonald, Kayla Lovelace, Danyel Vandiver and Emma Mercer.

Since these five individuals came on the scene, Alcovy didn’t have a single playoff appearance. That all changed Oct. 12, when the Lady Tigers traveled to Lee County High School for round 1 of the Class 6A playoffs.

Playing in the first round ended a five-year absence from the postseason.

Aiming for a playoff berth was something Lamb and the Lady Tigers had at the top of their priority list on day one of their time together.

Panthers win TaxAct Camellia Bowl over Ball St.

Georgia State earns second straight bowl victory, school record 8th win of season

STAFF REPORTS
news@covnews.com

MONTGOMERY, Ala. — The slogan for the TaxAct Camellia Bowl is “History Made Here,” and the Georgia State Panthers did their part with a dominating 51-20 victory over Ball State on Christmas Day at the Cramton Bowl. The Panthers made history with their second straight bowl win and their school-record eighth victory of the season.

“Christmas is the happiest day of the year, and it certainly was for us today,” head coach Shawn Elliott said after leading his Panthers to their third bowl win in his fifth season at the helm.

Quarterback Darren Grainger was named the Bart Starr Most Valuable Player after accounting for four touchdowns. The junior completed 15-of-19 passes for 203 yards and three touchdowns while rushing for a career-high 122 yards, including a 34-yard touchdown run.

Grainger’s rushing total put him over the 1,000-yard mark for his career, including an earlier stint at Furman.

Sixth-year senior tight end Aubry Payne had a career-high eight receptions for 109 yards and two touchdowns. The Georgia State defense also scored twice — another first in program history — on Javon Denis’ 37-yard fumble return and Antavious Lane’s 55-yard interception return.

Leading 20-13 at the half, Georgia State blew the game open with 28 straight points in the third quarter for their fourth straight win and seventh in the last eight games.

The first scoring drive of the second half took eight plays for 75 yards as Grainger hit Newton High School alum Robert Lewis from 10 yards out for the score. Lewis’ first career touchdown gave the Panthers a 27-13 advantage three minutes into the third quarter.

Grainger then broke the game open with a 34-yard touchdown run and then a 16-yard touchdown pass to Payne, putting the Panthers up 41-13 late in the third quarter.

On the final play of the quarter, Lane grabbed his school-record fifth interception of the season and returned it 55 yards for a touchdown and to give the Panthers a commanding 48-13 lead.

Noel Ruiz, celebrating his birthday on Christmas Day, added a 45-yard field goal in the third quarter for 51 points, Georgia State’s highest total in a bowl game. Ruiz converted two more field goals earlier in the contest, too.

From there, the Panthers were on cruise control winning their second straight bowl game by 31 points.

Reviews can impact businesses in various ways

SPECIAL TO THE NEWS
news@covnews.com

Online reviews have long been a mixed bag for small businesses. Though positive reviews can help businesses stand out from their competitors, negative reviews can be as harmful as positive reviews are helpful. That's true even when negative reviews do not reflect the average customer's experience. Search Engine Land, which covers digital advertising technology, reports 88% of consumers trust online reviews as much as personal recommendations. Unfortunately for businesses, Inc. magazine and entrepreneur Andrew Thomas found that a customer who has a negative business experience is highly likely to share that experience by leaving a bad review. On the other hand, someone who has had a positive experience is unlikely to leave a good review. Roughly 10% of happy customers say they were pleased by a product or service. Furthermore, Thomas indicates it takes roughly 40 positive customer experiences to undo the damage from a single negative review. Customer happiness should be the goal of businesses, with the added benefit of helping to generate more positive reviews and word-of-mouth recommendations. While that is happening, customers can think twice about online reviews.

- Speak to product quality especially when you have a very good experience with an item. Many retailers request feedback via email shortly after consumers have made a purchase. Take advantage of this opportunity to offer positive feedback.

- Companies gather personal information from customers so they can follow up in many cases. Great customer service helps prevent bad reviews and defines companies' brands. If you are asked for a phone number or email address, provide it. Doing so helps companies improve their products or services.

- Happy customers can reach out to friends and family members to share their experiences with certain companies. Posting your own review on social media also can drum up business for a company you respect.
- Customers should weigh their words heavily and think before posting a review. The marketing and consulting resource The Chat Shop says 31% of customers are interested in grocery store reviews, 60% are likely to read restaurant reviews and 70% rely on technology product reviews. Make an effort to discuss issues with a company before leaving a negative review. You may be pleasantly surprised with the outcome. There's no need to hesitate when leaving positive reviews. Simply explain why you were pleased.

Reviews can make or break a company. Both business owners and customers have a role to play in making online reviews a valuable way to learn about a company.

Explaining the little-known concept of 'good debt'

SPECIAL TO THE NEWS
news@covnews.com

Debt is a four-letter word, and in many instances, a high amount of debt is perilous. However, debt isn't always a black mark on individuals' financial résumés.

Consumers may have heard the term "good debt" at some point and wondered just why owing money to certain creditors is more desirable than owing to others. The debt help experts at Debt.org note that there's a simple explanation for this distinction. Debt that increases an individual's net worth or future value is considered "good debt," while debts that do not positively affect net worth are considered "bad debt."

So which types of debt qualify as good debt? The following are three types of debts that generally qualify as good debt.

- Student loan debt: Student loan debt can be tricky, but it's generally considered good debt. That's because education has long been linked to a greater earning potential. Data from the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics indicates that individuals over 25 who were working full-time and only had a high school diploma had a median weekly income of just under $800. Individuals who had a bachelor's degree had a median weekly income of more than $1,400. However, it's important that individuals recognize that certain degrees do more for their earning potential than others. Taking on a high amount of student loan debt to earn a degree in a historically low-earning field could make it harder to make ends meet down the road. That won't necessarily make the debt "bad" in the eyes of lenders, but it could force borrowers to wonder if they made the right decision.

- Mortgage debt: Mortgage debt is perhaps the most undeniable source of good debt. Historically, the appreciation value of real estate has made home ownership a worthwhile goal, even if home buyers have to finance their home purchases with bank loans. Perhaps nothing has more successfully illustrated the value of home ownership in recent years more than the skyrocketing value of real estate during the pandemic. The real estate research firm CoreLogic noted that home prices across the United States increased by 18% between July 2020 and July 2021. Individuals who already owned their homes, including those who were a long way from paying off their mortgages, saw their equity rise considerably in that time period, even if they continued to make the same monthly payments they'd been making before the pandemic. Though home prices may never again rise that much in a given year, real estate historically has increased in value on a yearly basis. That certainly qualifies mortgage debt as "good debt."

- Business loans: A business loan may carry more risk than a mortgage loan, but it still can turn out to be very good debt if the business ultimately succeeds. However, that's a big "if." Data from the BLS indicates that 65% of new businesses fail within a decade of opening. Many small business owners use personal guarantees to secure business loans, meaning the debt is theirs should the business ultimately fail. But owning a successful business can be a great way to build personal wealth, which is why business loans can be considered good debt.

Hibachi at its best

Japanese restaurant fires up grill in Covington

By PHILLIP B. HUBBARD
phubbard@covnews.com
COVINGTON, Ga.
— Residents in the Covington area recently had an added option for any lunch or dinner plans.

The Hibachi Grill Express officially opened its doors in Newton County on Oct. 16, 2021.

Unlike most hibachi restaurants that have the chef cooking in front of customers, this location offers alternative ways to enjoy their food. There's a drive through, carry out and, still, dine in available for whichever suits the customer best.

Owner and Chef Xiaolong Zhu said he was focused on giving customers choices when visiting the restaurant. However, the decision didn't alter Zhu's primary goal when bringing the Hibachi Grill Express to Covington.

"Even though we're not a traditional hibachi restaurant," Zhu said. "The quality and safety of our food is not compromised."

Zhu continued to stress that all the food is freshly prepared and made, too.

Located at 11425 Brown Bridge Road, there are numerous menu items to select from.

Starting with the appetizers, the Hibachi Grill Express offers French fries, chicken and veggie egg rolls, cheese wontons, an assortment of chicken wings and more.

But, according to Zhu, what's "really been going" has been fried dumplings that come in an eight-count.

That's just for starters, though. There is one main menu item that seems to be a fan favorite from what Zhu has observed.

"Hibachi entree is definitely something people love the most," Zhu said. "It comes with hibachi sauce and yum yum sauce. It just gives the customer a unique taste and spices things up."

The staff at Hibachi Express in Covington prides itself on preparing every meal fresh to order.

In addition to the sauces, the hibachi entree can be ordered in a variety of ways.

It is offered with vegetables, chicken, steak, shrimp and scallops. Customers can also order the entree with combinations of the aforementioned ingredients.

First, there's the "Triple Lover" made with chicken, steak and shrimp. Another one is called the "Land Lover" that comes with steak and chicken whereas the "Sea Lover" comes with shrimp and scallops. The last combo is named "Land & Sea" when customers want the entree to come with one seafood and one meat.

All hibachi entrees are served with a side of fried rice and mixed vegetables.

Just the same, customers can expect more than just quality food when visiting the Hibachi Grill Express. Zhu and his staff pride themselves on providing a "relaxing" experience for all of their customers.

And, for Zhu, he aims to maintain this as a top priority to separate his restaurant from others in the area.

"We're all friendly people and we're all open-minded," Zhu said. "We'll do whatever it takes to satisfy the customer, too. And we really want to create an environment where [customers] can come in, sit down and relax. That way they can truly enjoy their food."

The Hibachi Grill Express is open Monday through Friday from 11 a.m. to 9:30 p.m.; Friday and Saturday from 11 a.m. to 10 p.m. and on Sunday from Noon to 9:30 p.m.

For more information about the restaurant, visit their Facebook page: "Hibachi Grill Express of Covington."

Country-music star Dierks Bentley is among the featured performers in "New Year's Eve Live: Nashville's Big Bash" Friday on CBS.

Dierks Bentley helps Nashville bring the new year to CBS

Dierks Bentley typically spends New Year's Eve on a holiday skiing vacation, but not this time.

Along with many other country-music stars, he'll help CBS get back in the Dec. 31 special-programming game – something the network largely has been out of since its years of featuring bandleader Guy Lombardo and the Royal Canadians. Starting in primetime schedule and resuming after late local news on Friday, Dec. 31, "New Year's Eve Live: Nashville's Big Bash" will present Bentley, Zac Brown Band and Dan + Shay as headliners at the title city's Bicentennial Capitol Mall State Park. Bobby Bones and "Entertainment Tonight's" Rachel Smith will serve as hosts.

"I have a vested interest in this town and in country music, and this spotlight is a big deal for us," the friendly Bentley says. "I love watching the New Year's Eve shows with my kids and seeing the ball drop, but it just seems like it's not what it used to be. It's also really cold in New York, and it's not that it's not fun doing those shows, but there should be one from Nashville. People love country music, so it's about time we have a show coming out of here."

Bentley will have plenty of peers on hand for nearly 50 performances from various Music City venues, and the roster also includes Jason Aldean, Jimmie Allen, Kelsea Ballerini, Gabby Barrett, Brooks & Dunn, Luke Bryan, Elle King, Miranda Lambert, Darius Rucker, Blake Shelton and Cole Swindell. Holding to Nashville tradition, the drop of a "music note" will prompt fireworks at midnight Central time; the new year's East Coast arrival also will be marked.

"I've been touring this year," Bentley reports (though some of his shows were canceled due to COVID-19 protocols), "and with what's happening with audiences out on the road, there's this celebratory feeling and a sense of relief. People are congregating and singing at the top of their lungs, and putting a period on 2021 and hoping for better things in 2022 is going to be a big theme in downtown Nashville. It'll be a much-needed party, that's for sure."

The pandemic has given Bentley – who's won multiple awards from the Country Music Association and the Academy of Country Music – more time than he expected to work on his forthcoming 10th studio album. He already has released its singles "Gone" and "Beers on Me," both of which he expects to perform on the New Year's Eve special.

"You play every show like it's the last one, and you celebrate it like it's the last one," Bentley reasons of the current times. "Wrapping that feeling into a New Year's Eve show, it's going to be incredible."

Chefs turn mystery ingredients into a meal to remember in 'Raid the Fridge'

Dan Ahdoot is a stand-up comedian, actor, food writer and restaurateur with a background as a cook at a Michelin-rated eatery. Which makes him uniquely qualified to host a cooking competition upcoming on Food Network.

In "Raid the Fridge," a six-episode series premiering Tuesday, Dec. 28, Ahdoot oversees the action as four contestants, all professional chefs, are tasked with creating a delicious meal using only the contents of the mystery refrigerator. And they choose these fridges based on appearance, which can be deceiving. So the chef who selected the high-end model might get stuck with leftover pizza and Captain Crunch while the more modest unit with the crayon drawings on it could have lobster or caviar within. Or vice versa.

The contestant whose creations best impress the judging panel of Jordan Andino and Jamika Pessoa wins – wait for it – a refrigerator full of cash.

"It's weird because the chefs can only choose a fridge based on what they see on the outside, like the pictures and magnets," Ahdoot explains. "So it could be a picture of the Statue of Liberty – so what does that mean? Does that mean there's going to be New York pizza in there, New York cheesecake? Or does it mean, well, the Statue of Liberty was made in France so maybe it's French food. There are a lot of loose interpretations of what you see on the outside."

In addition to explaining the techniques of the chefs, it also falls to Ahdoot to get inside the contestants' heads and make them second-guess their choices, thus adding an element of mental anguish to the proceedings.

"My job is to just make their life a living hell for the day that they're shooting with me," he says. "They all unfollowed me on Instagram after we were done shooting. They followed me when they knew they were going to be on the show and after we shot they all unfollowed me because I made their lives hell for the day."

In the end, a real chef can make a great meal from just about anything and Ahdoot says some of the dishes created during the show's shoot were incredible in their creativity and on the level of a Michelin-rated restaurant. But he also adds that life wasn't exactly easy for the contestants.

"It's like 'Squid Games,'" he says, "but nobody dies and it's actually really fun. And there's actual squid."

Dan Ahdoot

Morgan Freeman

OF 'GREAT ESCAPES WITH MORGAN FREEMAN' ON HISTORY

Do you have a favorite jailhouse break? If so, why?

My favorite jailhouse break, the story, is of "The Great Escape," World War II, the airman that escaped from there. I don't think that people who get out of prison escape if they're caught and brought back. If you escape, you're gone. And "The Great Escape" a lot of those guys left. They were gone. They caught a lot of them, too. But most of the time when you break out of jail, you're going to get caught. You're not free. You didn't quite make it.

You're often involved in presenting historical topics, in television for example. How important is history for you?

We still have just an enormous amount of history that we don't know much about that's untold, hasn't been dealt with. I think this project, for instance, is one of those. People don't know about places like Alcatraz and Dannemora and Clinton, Cummings. They know about Shawshank.

Do you yourself love to watch documentaries in your free time?

Oh, yes. Yes, thank you very much for that. I love documentaries, some of which are just so well done and so fascinating on their subject matter. I pray that we manage that once or twice, and we'll do it again. Yes, I watch them.

tonight's PICKS

Richard Gere

Restaurant Hustle

7 p.m. on FOOD

Celebrity chefs Maneet Chauhan, Antonia Lofaso, Marcus Samuelsson and Christian Petroni continue their efforts to pioneer a new culinary future for the food industry in a post-COVID world in this new follow-up documentary from executive producer Guy Fieri. The height of the global coronavirus pandemic in 2020 saw this "fearless foursome" shift into survival mode as they struggled to adapt.

Earth Emergency

8 p.m. on WGTV

Richard Gere narrates this new one-hour documentary in which a number of respected climate scientists explain how human activity causes dangerous warming "feedback loops" that push the climate to a point of no return, and discuss what can be done to stop them. The overall tone of the documentary, while stark in its warning, is somewhat more hopeful than other such projects, presenting a happier future if changes are made soon. Climate activist Greta Thunberg, actress Jane Fonda and the Dalai Lama also are featured.

Ghost Adventures

8 p.m. on TRAV

In the new episode "Conjuring the Devil," Zak Bagans and the crew confront a demonic entity that's tearing a family apart with its relentless, terrifying attacks in Sacramento, Calif. Later, they hit the road again to investigate reports of a mysterious gray entity that is said to be haunting an ancient plot of land in West Haven, Utah.

House Hunters

10:01 p.m. on HGTV

The new episode "The Mayor of Loveland" revolves around a pair of married doctors who are in a serious time crunch to find their first home in Colorado. Their situation isn't helped by their personal natures, either: She's an introvert who cherishes her privacy and doesn't want to overspend, while he's an extrovert who feels they deserve the perfect home, no matter what it costs.

tonight's PICKS

‘Frozen’

Frozen

8 p.m. on WSB

The Disney studio added another animated smash to its inventory with this 2013 fantasy, adapted from Hans Christian Andersen’s “The Snow Queen” and sparked by a woman (voice of Idina Menzel) with the gift — and curse — of turning anything, or anyone, to ice. She runs away to prevent hurting those she loves, but her sister (voice of Kristen Bell) goes in pursuit. Jonathan Groff and Josh Gad also are heard, the latter as a snowman named Olaf.

Knives Out

8 p.m. on USA

Selected as one of the 10 best films of 2019 by the American Film Institute and the National Board of Review, writer-director Rian Johnson’s droll murder mystery boasts an all-star cast headed by Daniel Craig as private eye Benoit Blanc, who is hired to investigate the suspicious death of mystery novelist Harlan Thrombey (Christopher Plummer) on the evening of his 85th birthday. The dysfunctional relatives in attendance make up a rich array of suspects. Jamie Lee Curtis, Chris Evans, Michael Shannon, Don Johnson and Toni Collette also star.

Gone Mom: The Disappearance of Jennifer Dulos

8 p.m. on LMN

Based on actual events, this 2021 docudrama casts An-nabeth Gish as Jennifer Dulos, a wealthy Connecticut mother of five who disappeared without a trace on May 24, 2019. At the time, Jennifer and her estranged husband, Fotis Dulos (Warren Christie), were in the middle of a bitter child custody dispute. Fotis became the prime suspect in Jennifer’s disappearance, but he insisted that his wife had staged her disappearance herself, based on the hit book and movie “Gone Girl.” Jennifer’s body was never found.

Dick Clark's Primetime New Year's Rockin' Eve With Ryan Seacrest 2022
8 p.m. on WSB
A must-see part of many revelers' New Year's Eve schedules, this festive event — originally conceived to be a younger-skewing alternative to Guy Lombardo's more sedate big-band special on another network — marks its 50th anniversary, with current host Ryan Seacrest returning to his perch above Times Square in New York for the 17th time. The show stretches across five and a half hours on ABC, providing musical numbers and coverage of festivities as midnight strikes in each U.S. time zone. Co-hosts include Billy Porter and Ciara.

New Year's Eve Live: Nashville's Big Bash
8 p.m. on WGCL
It's been awhile since CBS ventured into the New Year's Eve special programming arena, but it's ringing in 2022 in a big way with this live five-hour musical celebration featuring some of the biggest stars in country music. TV and radio personality Bobby Bones, joined by co-host Rachel Smith of "Entertainment Tonight," hosts the sprawling presentation, which will originate from several venues in Tennessee's capital city. Scheduled performers include Dierks Bentley, Jason Aldean, Brooks & Dunn, Luke Bryan, Miranda Lambert, Blake Shelton and Kelsea Ballerini, among others.

How to With John Wilson
10 p.m. on HBO
Leave it to quirky filmmaker and host John Wilson to attempt coming up with a plan for acting spontaneously, and that's exactly how he wraps up the sophomore season of his critically acclaimed docu-comedy, with a finale called "How to Be Spontaneous." The half-hour finds Wilson desperately trying to throw his usual caution to the wind and let fate take the wheel, but things don't go as he had planned.

What's Available NOW On

"The Book of Boba Fett" (Dec. 29)

A spinoff of "The Mandalorian," this new series from LucasFilm finds legendary bounty hunter Boba Fett (Temuera Morrison) and mercenary Fennec Shand (Ming-Na Wen) navigating the Galaxy's underworld when they return to the sands of Tatooine to stake their claim on the territory once ruled by Jabba the Hutt and his crime syndicate. (ORIGINAL)

"Million Dollar Arm" (Available now)

This 2014 biographical sports drama stars Jon Hamm ("Mad Men") as down-on-his-luck sports agent J.B. Bernstein, who gets a lucky break when he discovers two Indian cricket players (Suraj Sharma, Madhur Mittal) and brings them to the U.S. to train as Major League Baseball pitchers. Aasif Mandvi, Bill Paxton, Lake Bell and Alan Arkin also star.

"Ice Age" (Available now)

In this 2002 animated adventure, Ray Romano, John Leguizamo and Denis Leary give voice to a cranky mammoth, motormouth sloth and sneaky saber-toothed tiger who join forces to get a human infant back to its tribe. Actually, the tiger plans to take the baby home as an hors d'oeuvre, but he'll come around.

"Edward Scissorhands" (Available now)

In this 1990 Tim Burton film, Johnny Depp stars as the man created from bits and pieces by a nameless inventor (Vincent Price). Unfortunately, the old guy dies, leaving Edward all alone — until the Avon lady (Dianne Wiest) comes calling. She brings him home to meet the family, and he becomes the toast of the town. Winona Ryder also stars as his love interest.

The Office

1 p.m. on FREE

Freeform rings in the new year with a marathon of this Emmy-winning workplace mockumentary, which features 30 of the show's best episodes as selected by fans and the staffs of multiple publications. Opening today's marathon is a Season 3 episode called "The Merger," in which Jim and Pam (John Krasinski, Jenna Fischer) reunite when the Scranton and Stamford branches of the company merge.

When Nature Calls With Helen Mirren

9 p.m. on WSB

This comic nature docuseries narrated by actress Helen Mirren wraps up its first season with two final back-to-back episodes. First, "The Optimistic Mosquito" features a normally pesky insect that wants to do good in the world.

Naked Singularity

10 p.m. on STARZ

Filmmaker Chase Palmer co-wrote and made his directorial debut with this offbeat 2021 adaptation of a novel by Sergio De La Pava, which follows a promising young New York public defender named Casi (John Boyega from the "Star Wars" sequel trilogy). He entered his profession earnestly hoping to make the world a better place, but his idealism is about to flame out after the soul-crushing injustices of the real world. A former client (Olivia Cooke) seduces him into joining a drug heist.

tonight's PICKS

Gordon Ramsay

The Equalizer
8 p.m. on WGCL
In the new episode “Separated,” McCall and Mel (Queen Latifah, Liza Lapira) try to help a desperate deported woman (guest star Andrea Cortes) track down her son, from whom she got separated while the two of them were seeking asylum at the U.S. border. Meanwhile, Bishop (Chris Noth) teams with McCall and Mel in their determined crusade to get Harry (Adam Goldberg) released from prison.

Next Level Chef
8 p.m. on WAGA
Fifteen contestants from all walks of life vie for a chance to win a life-changing prize as they navigate a series of challenges that make up a multi-level culinary gauntlet in this new competition series, which moves into its regular Wednesday time period on Jan. 5 after tonight’s series premiere. Executive producer Gordon Ramsay joins fellow chefs Nyeshia Arrington and Richard Blais to serve as mentors to the contestants, on a set that includes a different kitchen and ingredients on each of its three levels. The winner receives $250,000.

Around the World in 80 Days on Masterpiece
8 p.m. on WGTV
A mustachioed David Tennant brings his patented charm and wit to the role of Victorian eccentric Phileas Fogg in this new miniseries adaptation of Jules Verne’s crowd-pleasing, globe-hopping literary classic, which opens as Fogg — an over-educated but little-traveled Englishman — makes a rash and ill-considered wager that he can traverse the world in only 80 days. Accompanying him on his risky odyssey are his French valet Passepartout (Ibrahim Koma) and fledgling journalist Abigail “Fix” Fortescue (Leonie Benesch). Jason Watkins (“The Crown”) and Peter Sullivan (“Poldark”) co-star.

Kenan Thompson

The Bachelor

8 p.m. on WSB

Clayton Echard, a 28-year-old former NFL player who previously appeared on Michelle Young's season of "The Bachelorette," is looking for love in Season 26 of this unscripted romance series. As the action returns to Bachelor Mansion for the first time in two years, new host Jesse Palmer welcomes Echard and introduces him to the 31 women trying to make both a dramatic entrance and a good first impression on this season's Bachelor. Fans should brace themselves for one of those shocking twists early on, however.

9-1-1: Lone Star

8 p.m. on WAGA

Season 3 opens with a multi-episode opening storyline that picks up the action in the wake of the Season 2 finale. The 126 is shuttered, with the crew dispersed across the city. This state of unreadiness is a disaster waiting to happen and, sure enough, Mother Nature obliges in the form of a massive and unexpected arctic front that smashes into Austin with an ice storm, causing complete chaos. Rob Lowe, Gina Torres and Ronen Rubinstein head the returning cast.

Kenan

8 p.m. on WXIA

Having earned an Emmy nomination as widowed father and Atlanta TV host Kenan Williams in Season 1, Kenan Thompson opens Season 2 of his sitcom with "Dating App," which finds his character warily signing up with an online matchmaking site for which he may not quite be ready. Meanwhile, former father-in-law Rick (Don Johnson) has an interesting date of his own. Elsewhere, Mika and Pam (Kimrie Lewis, Fortune Feimster) try to help Tami (Taylor Louderman) recover from a tabloid mishap. Chris Redd also stars. Another episode immediately follows.

Judge Steve Harvey

8 p.m. on WSB

He's hosted game shows, talk shows and beauty pageants, as well as starred in his own sitcom. Now Steve Harvey gets to play judge, jury and star of this unconventional new one-hour unscripted courtroom comedy. As in other court shows, real-life plaintiffs with real-life conflicts appear before "Judge Steve" to argue their cases. On this show, however, His Honor plays by his own rules, basing his rulings on his own life experiences and good old common sense.

Finding Your Roots

With Henry Louis Gates, Jr.

8 p.m. on WGTV

Actress Rebecca Hall and writer-director Lee Daniels explore their family roots in "Hidden in the Genes," the Season 8 premiere of host Henry Louis Gates Jr.'s consistently absorbing deep dive into celebrity ancestries and family mysteries. Other public figures scheduled to appear this season include fashion journalist André Leon Talley, Anita Hill, writer-producer Damon Lindelof ("Watchmen"), actor John Leguizamo, actress Kathryn Hahn ("Wandavision"), Tony Award winner Nathan Lane, "Saturday Night Live" player Melissa Villaseñor and actor and TV host Terry Crews ("America's Got Talent").

This Is Us

9 p.m. on WXIA

Birthdays have been a recurring theme on this Emmy-winning family drama, and the show's sixth and final season opens with the so-called Big Three (Sterling K. Brown, Chrissy Metz, Justin Hartley) celebrating their 41st such occasion. While fans already may be bracing themselves for the separation anxiety they know is coming, the producers are rolling out this final season without interruption, which means no pesky hiatuses. Even better, the cast members are assuring their social media followers that viewers will be left happy and satisfied by how things wrap up.

How 'Good Morning America's' Michael Strahan got space

Q: How did Michael Strahan get selected to go into outer space? – Jim Phillips, via email

A: Along with Laura Shepard Churchley, eldest daughter of original American astronaut Alan Shepard, the football veteran turned "Good Morning America" co-anchor was invited as an "honorary guest" by Blue Origin ... the Jeff Bezos-headed company responsible for the flight (as well as for the previous one that took William Shatner into orbit). The guests didn't have to pay for their passage, though four paying customers also were on board; however, Strahan did earn a stipend that he donated to The Boys & Girls Club. That star trek wasn't his only major event recently, since he also had his New York Giants jersey (No. 92) retired shortly before he took his brief but memorable ride into the cosmos.

Michael Strahan

Q: When is "Billions" coming back? – Ted Roman, Columbus, Ohio

Damian Lewis

A: Jan. 23. Season 6 of the Showtime drama is able to start fairly soon after Season 5 ended, since production kept going after the cast and crew returned to finish the fifth season ... which was interrupted by a pandemic-caused shutdown. A cast absence will be very noticeable to "Billions" fans since Damian Lewis has left the show, his Bobby "Axe" Axelrod having relocated to Europe to avoid incarceration for his financial "creativity."
