Cinelease announces Covington studio expansion

Cinelease | Special to The News

Cinelease-Three Ring Studios anticipates breaking ground on its expansion plans later this month.

Plans for 8 new stages, totaling 276,000 squarefeet at Three Ring

> STAFF REPORTS news@covnews.com

COVINGTON, Ga. — Cinelease will expand Three Ring Studio in Covington by adding new performance and office space by next year, Gov. Brian Kemp announced Monday.

The expansion at Three Ring will include eight new stages, enhancing the campus to a total of 14 purpose-built sound stages and providing a total of 276,000 square feet of stage space, 100,000 square feet of office space, and an additional 72,800 square feet of flexible space, upon its completion in 2023.

Kemp said, "Georgia is proud to be home to a wide range of job creators, including those in the entertainment industry."

"With this substantial investment and expansion of their infrastructure, Cinelease is making it known that they are a major player in film and TV production," Kemp said. "I look forward to the new opportunities this expansion will bring to hard-

Workers gather at the Access Road bridge site Monday as part of a project to demolish the structure and replace it with a new one. Work was delayed more than three months for an ongoing federal investigation after an October collapse killed a worker.

Bridge work resumes

Investigation continues of October collapse on Access Road in which worker died

By TOM SPIGOLON tspigolon@covnews.com

COVINGTON, Ga. – Work has resumed on a bridge replacement project more than three months after a worker died when part of the decades-old structure collapsed into the Yellow River.

Work resumed last week on the the Access Road bridge with the focus on demolition of parts of the structure that remain following the Oct. 19 incident, said GDOT spokesperson Kyle Collins.

"The deck section in the river will be the last item removed," he said.

Demario Battle, 33, of Atlanta, an employee of subcontractor B&D Concrete Cutting Inc., was killed and two others injured when a 70-foot section of the bridge fell about 50 feet into the river.

U.S. Occupational Safety and Health Administration spokesperson Erika Ruthman said the agency's "investigation into the bridge collapse in Newton County is ongoing."

"Therefore we are unable to share additional details at this time," she said.

Workers with general contractor Georgia Bridge & Concrete and a demolition subcontractor were at the bridge site Monday, Jan. 31, after returning to work last week, said John Carmack, general manager for the Tucker-based company.

Eastside student selected to perform at Carnegie Hall

SPECIAL TO THE NEWS

Gracie Bates, a junior at Eastside High School, has been selected for the 2022 High School Honors Performance Series at Carnegie Hall. Bates will perform as a soprano in February with the High school Treble Choir. Participation in one of the five Honors Ensembles is limited to the highest-rated high school performers from across the world.

Gracie auditioned for the Honors Performance Series last year and was recently accepted after a review by the Honors Selection Board. Acceptance to the elite group is a direct result of the talent, dedication, and achievements demonstrated in her application and audition recording.

Bates has studied music for five years and is a member of Oxford Youth Singers and Eastside High School's Acapella and Show choirs. Gracie has also auditioned for and been selected for Allstate Chorus this year. In response to her selection as a finalist, Bates said, "It is an honor to be selected for this program and I am excited to travel to New York and experience something new."

She added, "I'm super excited. It's going to be a great experience. I'm going to meet so many new people and get a new perspective on a lot of things. It's going to be cool to be around people who value music like I do and enjoy performing and singing like I do."

JDA asks to postpone Walton rezone hearing set for Thursday

By DAVID CLEMONS

MONROE, Ga.

 The Joint Development Authority has asked to postpone a public hearing on changing zoning for land that would be part of a car plant in southern Walton County.

The four-county JDA is on the Planning Commission agenda for Thursday night with a request to rezone 13 parcels over about 180 acres from Rural Estate District to the special zoning for the Stanton Springs Business Park.

Those properties are part of the nearly 2,000 acres where Rivian Inc. wants to build a plant to make electric vehicles. Gov. Brian Kemp announced the company's $5 billion project Dec. 16.

But not all of the land where Rivian wants to build was under the control of the JDA, a state-sanctioned authority owned by Jasper, Morgan, Newton and Walton counties. The JDA recruited Rivian and is developing the site.

The authority's attorney, Andrea Gray, sent this statement Monday on behalf of the JDA:

"Over the last several weeks, the public input surrounding the Rivian announcement has produced a thoughtful dialogue on how best to plan and prepare for an economic development opportunity of this size, unprecedented in both size and scope.

"This public interest has not gone unheard or unnoticed. This is a generational opportunity for our community, and we want to get

District wins GSBA Leading Edge Award for customer service initiative SPECIAL TO THE NEWS

COVINGTON, Ga. — Representatives from the Georgia School Boards Association (GSBA) recently presented Newton County School System (NCSS) Superintendent Samantha Fuhrey and school board member, Shakila Henderson-Baker with the prestigious 2021 GSBA Leading Edge Award for the district's customer service initiative—Family Friendly Schools.

"A key to student success is making sure parents and students feel welcome in our schools," said NCSS Superintendent Samantha Fuhrey. "We know that welcoming environment is fundamental and plays an important role in many areas of school and district success. With that in mind, we increased our commitment to high-quality customer service."

According to Fuhrey, all goals and objectives of the Customer Service initiative were aligned to the NCSS Goal Area III: Culture, Climate, and Communication, of the District's Strategic Plan. "To help us attain our goals and improve customer service across the district, we partnered with the American Association of School Customer Service," Fuhrey explained. "AASCS helped us create and implement our plan, conducted a district-wide customer service needs assessment, and evaluated the district and school sites based on assessment results. AASCS also worked with us to develop a five-year Customer Service Training Plan for our employees." "We had two major goals for the Customer Service initiative," added Shelia Thomas, NCSS Chief Strategy and Support Services Officer. "They were improving the quality of twoway communication with all stakeholders and strengthening school and community relation-

The district's ongoing Customer Service initiative was developed with school and district level-teams. They worked collaboratively in the initial planning, decision-making, and training for the program, and adopted the mantra, "Family-Friendly Schools" as the most important aspect of the initia-

"With that focal point, we were not only asking ourselves what services were provided to our stakeholders, but also how friendly and inviting those services were," said Thomas. "We then had the American Association of School Customer Service conduct a very thorough investigation of district and school practices with a customer service audit that examined both in-person and electronic customer connections."

In-person evaluations consisted of face-to-face site visits to experience customer service firsthand. Phone calls, emails, and websites comprised the electronic evaluations. Through phone calls and emails, auditors could determine how customers were treated regarding their wants and needs. Through website evaluations, auditors could determine customer usability, website function and design, and working Georgians." Three Ring will be one of the largest film studios in the country when complete and the only public-private partnership that has developed infrastructure for the film and TV industry in Georgia, according to information from the governor's office.

The 90-acre, $144 million facility in north Covington is owned and developed by a joint venture between Rahim Charania with Atlanta-based real estate firm Woodvale and Cary Goldman with Chicago-based real estate firm Timberhill Group.

With Cinelease Studios leading the management of the media campus and the supply of media equipment, Cinelease Studios-Three Ring will be Georgia's first vertically integrated production campus.

"Cinelease has been a pioneer in Georgia's entertainment industry. Our senior leadership had the foresight to see the potential in the state, and we are proud to have acted as a magnet for the regional expansion of our industry," said Gannon Murphy, general manager of Cinelease Studios.

"We can confidently say that investing in an expansion of this magnitude reinforces Cinelease's commitment to making an impactful contribution to the workforce, tax base, and client experience in Georgia."

Cinelease currently serves the Peach State's film industry via three locations in Clayton, Gwinnett, and Newton Counties.

The company opened its Atlanta doors in 2007 with 8,000 square feet of warehouse space in East Point. It now employs nearly 60 Georgians.

Located at 11642 Georgia Hwy. 142, Cinelease Studios Three Ring is a media campus built for television, film, and custom content

creation.

Phase I of the studio was built in 2017 and currently offers 110,000 square feet of sound stage space, 60,000 square feet of support space, 30,000 square feet of office, and 600 parking spaces on 50 acres.

The studio was originally known as Three Ring Studios but changed names after Los Angeles-based Cinelease announced a partnership with the facility in July 2020.

The Georgia Film Office, which is part of the Georgia Department of Economic Development, has worked closely with Cinelease on their Georgia projects. The company is also a member of the Georgia Screen Entertainment Coalition, as well as the Georgia Studio and Infrastructure Alliance.

"We are excited that Cinelease has had such success here in Georgia," said Pat Wilson, commissioner of the Georgia Department of Economic Development.

"This announcement is a testament to the resiliency of Georgia's film industry over the last two years. A big thank you to Cinelease for housing productions and providing film industry services to the many film and television shows that have filmed here and are currently shooting in Georgia."

Georgia Film Office Director Lee Thomas said, "Cinelease's expansion is a testament to the success of Georgia's film tax credit. While it is only film and television projects that are qualified to earn the tax incentive, thousands of taxpaying support service companies like Cinelease — are able to grow as well, in response to the level of business.

"Thank you to Cinelease for their continued commitment to the State of Georgia, and thank you to the state legislature for their continued support of this transformative legislation."

To celebrate its expansion, Cinelease Studios-Three Ring will hold a ceremonial golden shovel event in the coming weeks.

Community without a newspaper? Bad news hat would my town be without a newspaper? If you haven't asked yourself that question, perhaps it is time to consider just what the newspaper means to this commu-

Because the doleful fact is, too many small towns and mid-sized cities are losing their newspapers right now. An extensive study from the University of North Carolina released in January found that by last year, 2,100 newspapers had disappeared, or almost 25% of the 9,000 newspapers published in 2004. That translates to 1,800 communities that 15 years ago had their own newspapers that now have no original local reporting, either in print or digital.

Note that this report was released just weeks before the coronavirus pandemic swept up newspapers in the same financial catastrophe that's devastated businesses of all types and sizes and thrown millions out of their jobs and households into terrifying economic uncertainty.

What does a community lose when it loses its newspapers?

The most obvious is the community's access to news about itself: The workings of its town hall; information about taxes and property values; the operation of schools for its children; the achievements, or the criminal activities, of local residents; the scores of local ball teams; schedules and concerts, restaurants and books; and the offerings of local small businesses.

During this pandemic and in spite of their deep financial troubles, newspapers continue to provide the unique local news and information about COVID-19 - fromtesting spots to restrictions and openings to dining options — unavailable from any other source.

But the less obvious losses when a newspaper disappears may be the most devastating to a community.

Researchers in 2018 found that when a local newspaper closes, municipal borrowing

Our Founding Fathers didn't see this one coming reviews of movies,

■ ver do a reboot? ◄ I do this when my computer stalls, or when the picture on my TV freezes. I unplug it, plug in and go through its start-up routine. Soon we're back to normal.

If only we could do that for the United States of America. Some say it just isn't working, and you can't get parts for it. If it were a computer, it would baffle the Geek Squad. Are we still under warranty?

What to fix first? I'd start with presidential campaigns. When did they become a noisy, never-ending marathon? Back when our nation ran a little quieter, we didn't constantly dwell on politics between presidential elections. Now, not one day goes by without rehashing the 2020 election, or speculating about the next one.

Our current president had barely moved into the Oval Office when the cable opinion networks and social media sites lit the fuse: Can the 2020 results be overturned? Will he run again in 2024, with a new running mate? Will the former president attempt a comeback?

In my youth, every president dealt with criticism from newspapers, jokes from IV comedians, and opposition from inside and outside his own party. But one thing was clear: he had been elected to a four-year term, and during that time, most of us pulled together and tried to keep America strong.

When faced with a crisis (the Persian Gulf war, the 9/11 terror attacks, or a major recession), Americans quickly locked arms to show the world that we would survive and prevail. Any political repercussions would have to wait until the next election. We would eventually vote out an incumbent in 1992, and we would choose a new president from the opposing party in 2000, 2008, and 2016. The Founding Fathers smiled. Their grand experiment seemed to be working.

But increasingly the atmosphere has become toxic. There is a daily drumbeat designed to incite anger. There is no longer time for a presidential administration to plan, to govern, and to do the job it was elected to do. Every president, from either party, is Public Enemy Number One, much to the amusement of our enemies.

Political talk shows have been on TV since the 1950s. The oldtime hosts reflected the civility of that era., and focused on the facts. Much like the courtly senators they covered, they rarely raised their voice.

Compare that with the off-the-rails discourse of today. The cable overlords have learned that "sensational" draws more viewers than "factual," so they encourage their prime time opinion stars to make outlandish statements, and they instruct their producers to craft wildly misleading headlines. Both sides are guilty of this. Even a casual viewer with one hand on the remote can land on inflammatory rhetoric. Too often the viewer takes the bait, and absorbs the misin-formation. There is of course a blame game, and nobody wins. Democrats say Trump supporters started attacking Biden on Day One, and have never let up. Republicans say Trump's detractors gave him nothing but grief for four years. The Democrats counter that Trump and his followers had attacked Obama during both of his terms. A Republican state representative defended the recent congressional district gerrymandering by saying, "I don't like it, but it's payback. The other party did it to us for 40 years, and now it's our turn." When I asked if two wrongs make a right, he replied, "Not really, but that doesn't apply to politics."

And so it goes, like a tiresome 2nd grade playground fight. "You started it!" No, YOU started it. Oh yeah? "Yeah!" Eventually everyone is covered in mud. The Founding Fathers begin to have their doubts as their creation begins to crumble from within. In what seems like a distant memory, Southern voters once sent independent-thinking senators from both parties to Washington (examples: Tennessee's Howard Baker, Alabama's Howell Heflin, and Georgia's Johnny Isakson). They would "cross the aisle" when they believed it to be in the best interest of the nation. They would compromise, negotiate, and even stand up to a president from their own party. In 2022, those who dare to buck the party line endure name-calling, threats. and certain defeat at the polls. The ballot might as well state it in bold print. You're either on Team Left or Team Right.

Why must our elected representatives bother to show up for House and Senate votes? We already know who's voting red, and who's voting blue. Most major issues are decided well in advance, strictly along party lines. Observers predict the results with pinpoint accuracy.

All the while, the cracks get deeper, the noise gets louder, and the political divide grows wider.

That's why some of us are trying to figure out how to reboot. The Founding Fathers didn't see this coming.

Quinnipiac poll, Walker polled 81% among likely GOP primary voters. His closest competitor was current state agriculture commission Gary Black with 6%. The next candidate had 2%with everyone else at 1%.

It goes to show how much name recognition will do for you. Walker is an icon in the state even though it has been decades since he led the University of Georgia to the national championship in 1980.

His professional career has been complete for a long stretch as well but he remains so popular that his full name is not needed when talking about him. Just say "Herschel" and everyone knows.

Of course, popularity doesn't mean one will make a good U.S. senator. It doesn't mean Herschel wouldn't be a good one but his campaign likely wouldn't be gaining so much traction without his previous icon status in the state.

Herschel also has an advantage, as if he needed another one, in being the preferred choice of Donald Trump. The former president is still very active in politics and his support is actively sought by many GOP primary candidates.

One has to wonder what Black thinks about this. In any other campaign he would likely be the front-runner. Black has drawn positive reviews during his time as agricultural commissioner and he entered the U.S. Senate primary long before Walker.

Ironically, Walker's campaign appearances, as few as they have been, are met with curiosity. Even die-hard Republicans say Walker doesn't appear to be a seasoned campaigner (which he is not) but they have also admitted costs — and therefore residents' taxes — go up. Why? Losing a paper, the study said, creates a "local information vacuum." It turns out that lenders depend on local reporting to judge the value of government projects — and the officials in charge of them. Without that information, lenders tend to charge higher rates.

Communities without newspapers are also more likely to be victims of corruption petty and grand, local incidents the national media will never uncover. The most glaring example comes from the small California city of Bell, where without the eyes of a local newspaper on them — the city council engineered passage of a virtually unnoticed referendum to get around a new state law capping council member salaries. Within five years, council members were taking home a cool $100,000, the police chief was being paid $450,000 – and the city manager of this municipality of just 37,000 souls was making nearly Fortunately, there are steps you can take to avoid becoming another "news desert." For one thing subscribe.

But there is also pending bipartisan legislation that deserves your support. The Local Journalism Sustainability Act (H.R. 7640) provides for tax credits that support the three pillars of trusted, fair and accurate journalism: people who subscribe to newspapers or other local media; businesses that advertise in local newspapers; and newspapers that staff their newsrooms with journalists who cover the community. The tax credits aren't permanent and sunset after five years.

A portion of the LJSA was included in the recent Build Back Better bill that was passed in the House and was being considered in the

In a nutshell, this bill would provide every taxpayer tax credits up to $250 a year to spend on subscriptions to qualified local newspapers. It would give businesses with fewer than 1,000 employees tax credits of up to $5,000 the first year and up to $2,500 for the next four years for advertising in local newspapers or local media. And it would give local newspapers a tax credit of 80% of its com-

These are tax credits not a handout, not a bailout. And the tax credits go away after five years. But this legislation provides a lifeline for everyone affected by the pandemic: local readers, local businesses, local news

Council requests General Assembly approve city homestead exemption

By TAYLOR BECK

COVINGTON, Ga. – Residents could soon get a tax break like never seen before in Covington.

City council members voted recently to submit a formal request that the Georgia General Assembly approve a homestead exemption from ad valorem taxes levied by the city.

Homestead exemptions are enacted to reduce homeowners' ad valorem taxation burden, or property taxation rate. All homeowners who occupy their home or property as of Jan. 1 of the year they file their application can apply for homestead exemptions, according to the Newton County Tax Commissioner's website. If a person moves into their property after Jan. 1 and files an application, the homestead exemption goes into effect the following year.

The homestead exemption only applies to property owned and occupied by a taxpayer as their legal residence. People are ineligible for the exemption if receiving one on any other property. Homestead exemptions do not exempt applicants from such fees as solid waste and streetlights.

Homestead exemptions have never been observed in Covington, but in December, Newton County Tax Commissioner Marcus Jordan told The Covington News he had been working with city leaders to implement such an exemption.

During the council's Jan. 18 meeting, Mayor Steve Horton also said Jordan had been working with the city to get a homestead exemption in place.

Per the request, the city's proposed homestead exemption amount "shall not exceed $10,000. The value of the residence in excess of the amount so exempted shall remain subject to taxation."

Homestead exemptions already available for unincorporated Newton County property owners include:

- Standard Homestead Exemption - $4,000 exemption deducted from the assessed value of the property. Resulting in a savings of $132.87 (based on average home value of $150,000).
- Individuals 65 years of age or older as net income is defined by Georgia law -$30,000 exemption deducted from the assessed value of the property. Resulting in a savings of $996.54 (based on average home value of $150,000).

- Individuals 62 years of age or older as net income is defined by Georgia law — $20,000 exemption deducted from the assessed value of the property. Resulting in a savings of $664.36 (based on average home value of $150,000).
- Qualified disabled veterans or their un-remarried surviving spouse or minor child — $90,364 exemption deducted from the assessed value of the property. Resulting in the homeowner paying a minimal amount for fire district (based on average home value of $150,000).

When the request will be presented in the General Assembly remains to be seen. Legislation pertaining to Covington's request had not been filed as of Jan. 31.

Cornelia senator files bill targeting gaps in criminal justice data reporting

By DAVE WILLIAMS

Capitol Beat News Service

ATLANTA – Republicans in the Georgia Senate will introduce legislation next week aimed at plugging significant gaps in the state's criminal justice database.

A bill sponsored by Sen. Bo Hatchett, R-Cornelia, would modernize the current system with input from the various criminal justice agencies involved in implementing the proposed changes.

"As the nation grapples with rising crime, all facets of the judicial system must be properly equipped to respond immediately and effectively," said Lt. Gov. Geoff Duncan, the Senate's presiding officer. "Current reporting data shows unacceptable metrics that pose a major public safety risk for communities."

"Solving this ongoing issue is critical to keeping our communities and crime victims safe," Gov. Brian Kemp added. "When communication breakdowns exist between law enforcement, crime victims, prosecutors, judges, and potential employers, then justice cannot be effectively served."

The Criminal Record Responsibility Act would update requirements for submitting documents to the Georgia Crime Information Center and remove unnecessary, outdated steps from the submission process.

The bill also would empower the Council of Superior Court Clerks to set rules for electronic filings and create a grant program to help local governments responsible for submitting data to the system pay for technological upgrades.

Mask told the Board of Commissioners on Jan. 18 that one donation had already been received, and that came from the Vineyard Family Foundation in the amount of $25,000.

Bruce Vineyard Jr., a trustee and officer of The Vineyard Family Foundation, said he hoped the donation as a "clarion call" other businesses and organizations throughout the community.

"The Foundation's benefactors believe in the Miracle League's mission and hope the Foundation's initial donation will serve as a clarion call to the rest of Newton County," he stated. "Together, we can provide a once-ina-lifetime experience for children with disabilities who, without the Miracle League, would be limited to watching a baseball game from the stands.

"The Miracle League offers children with disabilities the opportunity to play baseball. And the All-Stars is the pinnacle opportunity of them Hutcherson elaborated further stating that it was even more special seeing her family and friends in the stands cheering her on.

Additionally, the freshman guard recognized that her game has evolved since the beginning of this season.

Prior to the 2021-22 season, Hutcherson highlighted that she needed improvement in dribbling with her left hand, her jump shot and her overall ball-handling skills, too.

With her development, Hutcherson said she has become more sure of herself as a basketball player.

"There was a time when I wasn't confident with taking it to the hole," Hutcherson said laughing. "But that is no longer the case. I'm going full throttle, nothing but net."

Hutcherson's drive to improve her basketball skill set stems from her favorite subject, math.

Right now, she is taking Algebra 1 at Alcovy High School. Hutcherson's love for math, in general, comes from solving problems.

But it goes further than that.

"After all, everything around us has to do with some sort of adding, subtracting, multiplying and dividing," Hutcherson said. "For instance money. Who doesn't like counting money? Wouldn't you say that's fun?"

Even though Hutcherson is only a freshman, her aspirations for after high school are already formed.

She plans to keep developing as a basketball player to earn a scholarship to play college basketball in pursuit of a professional basketball career. Hutcherson has a backup plan, though, where she wants to become a veterinarian, her team up for success in 2022.

"I told [the team], you'll see a difference in the girls who have come," Boldin explained. "Even if they come once a week all the way leading up to the season versus the girls who haven't come."

By holding so many workouts the past few weeks, Boldin has noticed a few players who have stepped up and taken ownership of this team.

Seniors Eva Fuhrey and Julia Anderson in addition to junior Savannah Massey were highlighted by Boldin who's helped this program in a big way.

Boldin didn't stop there, though, as a few underclassmen have caught the attention of their head coach, too.

Arriana and Amber Gresham, a set of twins on this year's squad, both have shown great strides in their progression, according to Boldin. Eris Sellers, a freshman, hasn't been outdone either.

Now, with the season upon the Lady Rams, each member of the team will look to put the pieces together in 2022 to start building the program.

Boldin stressed how each player's contributions will be crucial to the success of the Lady Rams both this season and beyond.

"We want to become a family," Boldin said. "That's what we're trying to build is a family and a community. We want to be one together and grow that this year."

RAMS

On the boys side for Newton, head coach Duane Williams described the offseason as "challenging." He said it was difficult to get players out to participate due to COVID-19 concerns and other factors.

As a result of the challenges, the Rams' team will feature a lot of new faces this year. With that, Williams has prioritized each player to buy in and develop a team comradery in 2022.

"We're just trying to build our team work," Williams said. "We're a totally new team. We do have a few returners, but it'll mostly be a brand new team."

Having a new team presents a lot of difficulties all in itself. However, Williams has primarily focused on the benefit of having new people running around the soccer field at Newton.

"I got a bunch of newcomers," Williams said. "So, our future looks promising."

Now, the Rams are ready to go for the 2022 season that kicks off very soon.

As the season's start approaches, Williams stressed that there have been many players who have really put their best foot forward to assist the Rams this year.

Even so, in this current stage with their non-region schedule up first, Williams just wants to keep it simple for his new team.

"Early on, I want to see the commitment of the players," Williams said. "And I want to see that drive to start working together so they can build a rapport with each other."

PREPARES:

season to begin. He continued to stress that it'll be that same energy to help build the foundation for the future of the program.

"We're focused on establishing trust, discipline and forming good relationships," Graydon said. "We want an 'I can' attitude this season in setting our expectations for the season."

Reinstalling a program comes with growing pains and various difficulties, Graydon highlighted, too. However, the Lady Tigers have accomplished something already noteworthy for them.

In setting their goals for the 2022 season, at the top of the list for Alcovy was just having a team this go around.

They've done just that.
"One of those expectations was just trying to get a soccer team back going again," Graydon said. "So we have at least met our first expectation."

As the season progresses, Alcovy plans to mark more of their goals off the list, too.

The Lady Tigers' season has already begun. Their next match will be on Wednesday, Feb. 1 versus Salem High School at home.

TIGERS

For the boys' team, they'll be fielding a lot of players who have never played soccer before.

But head coach Michael Williams isn't focused on the newness of this year's players, but how the players establish themselves as one collective unit.

"The biggest thing is, if these guys buy into this program, become a team and stop focusing on individualism, then there's not a team out there that we can't be competitive with," Williams said

Williams believes that team comradery will develop as the season moves along in 2022.

The main focal point of that team chemistry is leaning on the players who know more about the sport. Williams doesn't want to see separation due to knowledge of the game, but see each player helping one another out throughout the season.

"In the past, we've had this differentiation of people who have skill and those who haven't," Williams said. "I'm trying to move past that with the idea that those who have skill, become big brothers to those who are still working."

Williams is hopeful that Alcovy will see that come to fruition with the season already upon it.

Following the season opener at Jackson County, the season.

"I have a lot of respect for coach Randolph as well," Prather said. "I'm happy he gave me a chance as a freshman. It's an honor."

Just being a member of this year's team hasn't been enough for the freshman, though. Prather has taken steps toward being a leader for the Eagles now and moving forward.

With his work ethic, Prather has recognized significant progression in his game as the season has journeyed along.

"I've learned that through adversity you can be all you can be if you allow yourself to stand out," Prather said.
"People will notice you when you least expect

Even so, Prather has recognized that it's been an up and down year for the Eagles squad thus far.

But that hasn't deterred his or the team's goals set back over the offseason.

"We've beat some teams that were really tough," Prather said.
"I think if we play as a team we can win our region and prepare for state."

Throughout his first year as an Eagle, has focused all of his attention on his basketball career.

But he doesn't plan to keep it that way.

Unlike last season, Prather is going to try out for the 2022 football team at Eastside. Outside of athletics, Prather is planning to join Eastside's Beta Club, too. All of his efforts now and in the future will be going toward Prather's future aspirations of playing college football or basketball while also majoring in sports medicine.

On March 18, that all changed.

When I walked in the classroom, Lane came to me and asked if I could fill in to announce both the girls and boys games. I, of course, hesitated at first but eventually agreed to do so.

Little did I know what would ensue just a few short hours later.

There are many ways to streamline breakfast and still get to school or work on time.

Use slow cooker, build burritos to enhance most important meal

SPECIAL TO THE NEWS

news@covnews.com

Breakfast long has been touted as the most important meal of the day. After a good night's rest, breakfast refuels the body and energizes it for the day ahead.

Hectic mornings compel many people to skip breakfast. That's especially so for parents who are pulled in multiple directions each morning. There are many ways to streamline breakfast and still get to school or work on time. The following are some tips to save time and enjoy healthy homemade breakfasts each morning.

- Put your slow cooker to work. Slow cookers are not just for dinner. Use them to cook a variety of breakfast foods, including oatmeal, eggs or grits. Simply mix up your ingredients, set on low and let the breakfast cook itself overnight.
- Mix up your macros. Macronutrient is the scientific term for proteins, fats and carbohydrates. Nutritionists suggest mixing macronutrients in meals to get the most benefits from well-rounded meals. Aim for 20 grams of protein, 15 to 20 grams of fat and about 50 grams of carbs, with at least five grams of fiber.
- Develop a custom granola. Oats, nuts, dried fruits ... mix it all up to make a signature granola blend. It's easy to eat dry or with milk and make a quick, healthy breakfast.
- Embrace the nocook oatmeal method. Master the art of making overnight oats, which don't require any cooking. Simply layer oats, Greek yogurt, applesauce (or other fruit purees), cinnamon, and almond milk in a mason jar. Place it in the refrigerator overnight. The oats will get tender without cooking and the meal will be ready in the morning.
 - Build a smooth-

ie. Do prep work for healthy vegetable- and fruit-rich smoothies by chopping and preparing all ingredients the night before. Simply blend with protein powder or oats in the morning with ice.

 Consider breakfast burritos. Pre-scramble eggs with diced peppers and onions and store in containers in the refrigerator. In the morning, place the mixture onto a tortilla, top with cheese and heat in a skillet or in the microwave.

Even individuals whose mornings are especially hectic can find ways to enjoy a healthy breakfast every day.

Kidney stones are a painful condition that affect millions of people. The Cleveland Clinic says researchers conclude one in 10 people will get a kidney stone in their lifetimes. Natural options to avoid kidney stones, such as drinking tea, may benefit some people. But the key may lie in which tea individuals consume.

Kidney stones typically form from various substances when there isn't enough urine volume passing through the urinary system. Calcium, oxalate, uric acid, phosphate, and even cystine or xantine can become highly concentrated in the urine and crystalize into "stones." A kidney stone may not be diagnosed until it moves out of the kidney into the ureter or urethra, where it can contribute to considerable pain. Symptoms of kidney stones include pain in the lower back, nausea or vomiting, fever or chills, blood in the urine, and inability to urinate. Kidney stones have to come out one way or another. Some pass with urine and others require surgery. Anyone who has experienced kidney stones in the past likely does not relish their return, making kidney stone prevention a major goal. Drinking tea may help in those efforts, but it's important to recognize that not all tea is effective.

Experts vary in their opinions on tea and its relationship to kidney stones. In 2013, the Mayo Clinic indicated drinking black tea may help lower the risk of kidney stones in some women. Drinking green or black tea also may reduce the risk of developing bladder cancer. However, other medical professionals

state that not all teas are the same in regard to preventing kidney stones. WebMD reports that tea often is listed on the "avoid" list for those prone to oxalate kidney stones, as black teas have higher amounts of oxalate content that can exacerbate risk.

Data posted on KidneyStoners.org cites a 2003 study that found when healthy volunteers drank six cups of two types of black tea over a 24-hour period, the net result of drinking those cups of tea resulted in negligible increases or decreases in urinary oxalate excretion in urine.

Another study published in 1996 in the American Journal of Epidemiology suggested there's a strong link between drinking tea and reducing risk for kidney stones.

People with a predisposition to oxalate kidney stones may be more sensitive to oxalate-containing teas. Green and oolong teas have lower oxalate amounts, so those may be the best teas for people vulnerable to kidney stones. A September 2016 study published in the Asian Journal of Urology indicated blumea balsamifera, or sambong, decreased the size of laboratory-grown calcium crystals. Sambong also may prevent the formation of these crystals. Sambong comes from a tropical shrub. In addition, coumarins, which are beneficial compounds found in the hydrangea shrub hydrangea paniculata, may have protective qualities for kidney health.

Individuals must carefully weigh the pros and cons of drinking tea in relation to kidney stone formation. Such individuals are urged discuss the pros and cons of tea with their physicians.

Eating disorders can lead to serious health issues

SPECIAL TO THE NEWS

Eating disorders are serious conditions that can negatively affect an individual's overall health. These persistent eating behaviors affect emotions and various systems of the body by creating nutritional deficiencies that put individuals' overall health in serious jeopardy. The heart, digestive system, teeth, and bones all can be affected by eating disorders, and malnutrition may lead to other diseases.

The Mayo Clinic notes that common eating disorders include anorexia nervosa, bulimia nervosa and binge eating disorder. Anorexia is characterized by not eating enough and excessively limiting calories. One also may use laxatives or dietary aids to shed pounds. Bulimia involves dangerous episodes of bingeing and purging, as well as restrictive eating during the day. Individuals with binge eating disorder eat quickly and consume more food than is necessary. Some stands what contributes to the formation of eating disorders. However, Psychology Today indicates eating disorders may emerge from a complex relationship between personality traits, genes, childhood experiences, stress, or traumatic events.

Here's a closer look at some additional factors that may contribute to eating disorders.

Cultural beauty standards

Men and women may believe they have to look a certain way to be considered attractive or accepted in society. Feeling the need to be a certain weight or body shape may influence how one eats or exercises to the point of extremes.

Family history Better Help, a mental health wellness site, says having a close relative with an eating disorder may be a risk factor for eating disorders. Prior history of constant dieting and dissatisfaction with body image are additional risk factors.

Mental health issues Another potential cause of eating disorders is a medical history that includes another mental health problem, including anxiety, obsessive-compulsive disorder, depression, post-traumatic stress disorder, and drug abuse.

Genes

The health and wellness resource New Health Advisor says studies have shown that genetics contribute to eating disorders. People with specific genotypes are at a higher risk of developing eating disorders.

Personality traits

Individuals with certain personality traits may be at risk for eating disorders. Excessive persistence and rigidity, impulsivity, neuroticism, harm avoidance, perfectionism, and obsessive thinking are traits often seen in people with eating disorders.

Stress

The Mayo Clinic says stress also can contribute to the formation of an eating disorder. Big stressors, like getting a new job, starting a family, leaving for college, or a loved one's illness, can increase risk of an eating disorder.

Eating disorders can have life-threatening complications. It is important to seek help immediately if any signs or symptoms become noticeable.

Back to Beijing: Chinese capital hosts 2022 Winter Games

Anyone who tuned into the Opening Ceremony of the 2008 Summer Olympics in Beijing bore witness to an event they wouldn't soon forget.

The four-hour, nine-minute display of special effects, lights and ingenuity set a new standard for an Opening Ceremony and drew raves from international media for being spectacular and spellbinding, a show that no host city has since matched in imagination and magnitude.

Almost 14 years later, the Chinese capital is once again in the spotlight as the host of the 2022 Winter Olympics, which get underway Wednesday, Feb. 2, two days before the official Opening Ceremony on Friday, Feb. 4. NBC, Peacock, USA Network, CNBC, NBCOlympics.com and NBC Sports app will again team up to provide 3,000-plus hours of coverage over 17 days of a record 109 medal events in 15 sports, among them figure skating, alpine skiing, snowboarding, ice hockey, speed skating, freestyle skiing, biathlon and luge.

International athletes expected to vie for hardware at these Games include Mikael Kingsbury (freestyle skiing, Canada), Hanyu Yuzuru (figure skating, Japan), Mikaela Shiffrin (alpine skiing, U.S.), Francesco Friedrich (bobsled, Germany), Suzanne Schulting (short track speed skating, Netherlands), Charlotte Kalla (crosscountry skiing, Sweden), Nathan Chen (figure skating, U.S.), Eileen Gu (freestyle skiing, China), Sara Takanashi (ski jumping, Japan), Tina Hermann (skeleton, Germany) and Ester Ledecka (snowboarding, alpine skiing, Czech Republic).

Of course, the ongoing COVID-19 pandemic will also play into the storylines as conditions continue to change. For their part, the International Olympic Committee and Olympic organizers have made clear that these Games will go on and the athletes will be subject to strict protocols, including requiring vaccinations, keeping them isolated inside the Olympic "bubble" and not allowing them out among the citizenry.

One interesting thing to watch is the performance of athletes from the host country at these Games. China is not known for winter sports and in the lead up to these Olympics have hired international coaches to coach its athletes in hopes of inspiring more Chinese to try skiing, snowboarding, figure skating and other winter sports and thus make the country a more significant presence on the international stage.

As for opening week sports to watch, curling kicks things off on Wednesday, Feb. 2, with the U.S. facing Australia. Women's hockey then faces off on Thursday, Feb. 3, with Team USA opening its defense of its 2018 gold medal with a preliminary contest against Finland.

Figure skating then gets going Friday, Feb. 4, with men's short program, ice dance rhythm dance and pairs short program prior to the Opening Ceremony. And on Saturday, Feb. 5, freestyle skiing makes its first appearance with the final in men's moguls, in which Canada's Kingsbury will attempt to defend his gold medal from 2018 in Pyeongchang, South Korea.

'Mary Makes It Easy' to turn out great meals in new Food Network series

There is a certain intimidation factor that comes with cooking, posits Mary Berg, which she hopes to remove from the equation with her new series on Food Network.

In "Mary Makes It Easy," premiering Saturday, Feb. 5, the Toronto-based chef and cookbook author shares easy and delicious recipes that she guarantees will impress family and friends and offers up tips and tricks designed to take the stress and fear out of meal prep.

"I really don't think there's anything you should kind of steer clear from," Berg, the Season 3 winner of "MasterChef Canada," explains. "I think if you're a little worried, you just have to shake it off and go in with an open mind of 'I'm going to learn something today,' and it might be how to not wreck something. Or it might be how to make the absolute most perfect thing that you didn't even know that you can make. It's all opportunity in the kitchen."

In the 13 half-hour episodes, Berg endeavors to break down cooking techniques and meal planning into easily attainable steps as she shows what to do with a fridge full of leftovers or how to add pizzazz to chicken, the ubiquitous dinner staple that is versatile though at-times boring.

And, Berg says, deceptively easy to mess up.

"(The) chicken is dry, you're worried about undercooking it and then you overcook it," she says. "You're worried about that kind of lackluster, kind of pale skin. You want a good goldenbrown crust. It's boring. There are so many things about chicken that people complain about that none of those things are true or have to be true."

So in Saturday's premiere, Berg demonstrates easy recipes for a classic roast chicken with gravy, chicken parmesan, chicken noodle soup and hoisin chicken with green onion pancakes.

As for her favorite techniques and tricks, Berg mentions searing, cooking with bacon fat and using generous amounts of salt when boiling pasta as things any home cook can pick up. And old schoolers shouldn't turn their noses up at using using electric appliances like a food processor or hand mixer if they have them.

"Anything that can help you get food on the table quicker," she says. "If you don't want to do something by hand, I think take it. I love those things. I love shortcuts and I love those things that help you feel as successful as possible when you put dinner on the table."

very serious problem?

celebrity q&a

It's really hard (laughs). It's really hard. I kind of knew it would be when I first read the script, which is I think part of why I wanted to do it. I like a challenge. But yeah, I was constantly kind of checking in with Jenni (Konner, series co-creator), checking in with Simone (Finch, also a co-creator), checking in with my castmates and the amazing directors that we had come in and really trying to toe that line.

Because I try to never play the joke and play all of it as truthfully as possible. But yeah, tonally as a show I find it to be tricky. I think if we can get it, though, and we hit it right, it's hopefully very rewarding because my favorite kind of shows are the ones that make you laugh until you cry.

How was it working out Sam's complicated relationship with with her mother, with the actress who plays her, Ally Sheedy?

OF 'SINGLE DRUNK FEMALE' ON FREEFORM

It was a total dream. She's so kind and talented and intelligent, and she was I think drawn to the story for all the same reasons we were. It felt really relatable and honest. And she's a very maternal person and took great care of me on set and she's really amazing.

2022 Winter Olympics

6:30 a.m. on WXIA After its tour-de-force Opening

Ceremony for the 2008 Summ Olympics, Beijing will have the eyes of the world on it once again as it officially pulls the curtain up on the 2022 Winter Games. More than 2,800 athletes from 87 countries will parade into Beijing National Ceremony — aka "the Bird's Nest" — to mark the official beginning of these games, which run through Feb. 20 on NBC, CNBC, UŠA Network, NBCOlympics.com, Peacock and the NBC Sports app.

8 p.m. on MAX Screenwriter David Loughery borrows several pages from the "Fatal Attraction" playbook for Deon Taylor's 2020 thriller, which stars Michael Ealy as a former pro basketball star turned sports manager. Under multiple business and marital pressures, he succumbs to temptation during a trip to Las Vegas and has an overnight fling with a mysterious woman (Hilary Swank) he picks up in a bar. She turns out to be a police detective with several emotion al screws loose. Mike Colter, Geoffrey Owens and Danny Pino co-star.

8 p.m. on SHOW

What Breaks the Ice

Writer-director Rebecca Eskre earned positive reviews for this 2020 coming-of-age thriller set during the sweltering summer of 1998, when many Americans were held captivated by the political scandal involving President Bill Clinton and Whit House intern Monica Lewinsky Against this backdrop, Emily and Sammy (Madelyn Cline, Sofia Hublitz), two teenagers from vastly different worlds, become improbably close, but their idyllic friendship takes an ominous turn when they become accidental accomplices in a violent crime. Lukas Gage ("The White Lotus"), Aimee Mullins and Catherine Curtin co-star.

What's Available NOW On DISNEY+

This 2021 animated adventure follows Mirabel, a young Colombian girl and the only child in her magical hilltop village to not have a special power. But when she discovers the magic of Encanto is in jeopardy, she realizes she may be everyone's last hope. Stephanie Beatriz, John Leguizamo and Angie Cepeda head the voice cast.

"Miraculous Tales of Ladybird & Cat Noir: Season 4" (Available now)

The fourth season of this animated series finds Marinette Ladybug, the superheroine that protects Paris from the attack of villains, now the guardian of the Miraculous. Now she must keep not only her identity hidden, but also the existence of the turbulent creatures, the Kwamis. Cristina Vee, Bryce Papenbrook and Keith Silverstein head the voice cast.

"Return of a Legend" (Available now)

From the world of "The Book of Boba Fett" comes this featurette in which writers/executive producers Dave Filoni, Jon Favreau and Robert Rodriguez and stars Temuera Morrison and Ming-Na Wen talk about Boba Fett, the decision to bring the character back and what to expect from the new series.

This featurette sits down with actress Ming-Na Wen to discuss what she says is her dream role of master assassin Fennec Shand in "The Book of Boba Fett," the roller coaster ride of her demise in "The Mandalorian" and her resurrection in this new saga.

2022 Pro Bowl

3 p.m. on WSB ESPN

The NFL's version of an all-star game doesn't quite match up to those of other sports leagues, but the AFC/NFC Pro Bowl is still fun for fans and players alike. Once played after the Super Bowl and in Hawaii, the game now takes place the week prior and this year it's in Las Vegas. You can't really say it's the NFL's best players either, as no players from either team headed for next Sunday's Super Bowl will take part. ABC and ESPN carry all the action from Allegian Stadium.

Power Book IV: Force 9:15 p.m. on STARZ The latest series spinoff in the "Power" franchise revolves around Tommy Egan, the fan-favorite character played by Joseph Sikora. As this new drama opens, Tommy has put New York in his rear-view mirror after cutting ties with his former associates. He makes what he intends to be a quick detour to Chicago, where he unexpected finds himself entering a labyrinth of family secrets and lies. In no time, Tommy finds himself draw into the city's drug game. Isaac Keys, Lili Simmons, Gabrielle Ryan, Shane Harper and Tommy Flanagan also star.

The Righteous Gemstones 10 p.m. on HBO After he very narrowly survives a violent attack, Jesse (Danny McBride) decides to take matters into his own hands in the new episode "Never Avenge Yourselves, But Leave It to the Wrath of God." Elsewhere, Eli (John Goodman) tries to make amends, while Kelvin (Adam Devine) struggles to maintain control over his increasingly fractious flock. Edi Patterson, Cassidy Freeman and Tim Baltz also star.

tonight's PICKS

9-1-1: Lone Star

8 p.m. on WAGA

Owen's (Rob Lowe) first date with Catherine (guest star Amy Acker), the Texas governor's beautiful and accomplished chief of staff, goes off the rails in the new episode "Child Care. Meanwhile, the members of the 126 team are summoned to a house where a couple's young daughter has gone missing. Later, Judd (Jim Parrack) encounters a teenager who has a profound impact on him. Liv Tyler. Ronen Rubinstein and Sierra McClain also star.

of Slavery 8 p.m. on SMITH

Emmy-winning actor Courtney

B. Vance narrates this compelling new four-part weekly docuseries, which airs in conjunction with Black History Month. Co-produced by Vance and his actress-wife Angela Bassett, the series explores the legacy of slavery and ways in which that shared history can create a better future. Among those sharing their perspectives in sit-down interviews are lawyer Bernice King, youngest child of Dr. Martin Luther King and Coretta Scott King; Sen. Čory Booker; iournalist Soledad O'Brien: and actors Dulé Hill. David Harewood and CCH Pounder,

9:01 p.m. on WAGA Garrett (Oliver Hudson) puts Thony (Elodie Yung) in a threatening position after a party bus cleanup job takes a turn for the worse, forcing her to choose between her loyalty to Arman (Adan Canto) and her wish to save Fiona (Martha Millan) from deportation in the new episode "The Icebox." Meanwhile, after bending over backwards to find a viable new business for Hayak (quest star Navid Negahban), Arman is completely blindsided when Hayak chooses his daughter over him. Eva De Dominici also guest stars.

tonight's PICKS

Jeopardy! National College

Championship 8 p.m. on WSB

Mayim Bialik hosts this brandnew primetime tournament, in which competitors from 15 colleges and universities across the United States go head to head for two weeks of intense competition as they try to correctly answer questions on a variety of topics — or rather, given this game show's distinctive format, provide questions to go with the answers the game gives them. Each of the winning contestants receives a grand prize of $100,000.

Commercials: All-Time Classics 8 p.m. on WGCL CBS Sports analyst Boomer

Super Bowl Greatest

Esiason and "CSI: Los Angeles" star Daniela Ruah co-host this interactive countdown special where viewers can vote in real time for their favorite Super Bowl commercial ever, selected from 10 all-time classic spots. The winning commercial will be revealed at the end of the hour The special also goes behind the scenes of one of the bigges commercials that will run in this year's Super Bowl, a spot from a global automotive brand, including exclusive interviews with the A-list stars who appear in it.

The Resident 8 p.m. on WAGA

Conrad and Cade (Matt Czuchry, guest star Kaley Ronayne) must discern what happened to a lost child who is brought into the ER bearing signs of physical abuse in the new episode "Now You See Me." While out shopping, Devor and Leela (Manish Dayal, Anuja Joshi) run into a woman who has struggling to breathe, so they bring her into Chastain for examination. Elsewhere, Billie (Jessica Lucas) resolves to con front her past, while Bell (Bruce Greenwood) sets his sights on an empty seat on the State Medical Board. Jane Leeves also stars.

Michelle Obama's 'black-ish' visit: How it happened

Q: How did Michelle Obama come to guest-star on "black-ish"? - Ellen Kerr, via email

A: It was thanks to the show's Tracee Ellis Ross, a personal friend of the former first lady. The way Ross has told it, she simply picked up the phone and asked ... but the show's knack for mixing social relevance into its humor also was a strong lure for Obama, who got to promote her When We All Vote initiative during the episode that launched the home stretch of "black-ish" in heading toward its ABC finale.

Q: I love watching ABC's "World News Now" overnight, and I see it's celebrating its 30th anniversary. Who were its first anchors? – Adam Green, Providence, R.I.

A: Aaron Brown and Lisa McRee were the first duo to hold down that anchor desk in the wee hours. George Stephanopoulos, David Muir, Anderson Cooper, Kendis Gibson, Janai Norman, Kenneth Moton and Diane Macedo are among the currently prominent newscasters who also did stints there.

Given the hours entailed by the "World News Now" job (with the same anchors handling "America This Morning"), there's a certain shelf life to the position, which is why there's been so much turnover in the course of the program's three decades. Each anchor's exit is marked by the addition of their picture to a "Wall of Fame."

"I can't help but think of me when I was 23 years old, doing 'Carlito's Way.' That was my first film, and I was walking through Spanish Harlem with the legendary Al Pacino, and I was driving this hot rod. I used to show up to the set when I wasn't working." – John Ortiz of "Promised Land" on ABC, on working with younger co-stars now

"I think what we realized really quite quickly was that we had a wonderful ensemble and as much care was being taken of it as could possibly be. And from then on, it was just a pleasure." – Samuel West of "All Creatures Great and Small on Masterpiece" on PBS
