Newton family seeks truth in middle Georgia murder

By TOM SPIGOLON
tspigolon@covnews.com

SOCIAL CIRCLE, Ga. — A Newton County resident says she just wants to know what happened before her sister's death from a gunshot wound as she sat next to her baby boy in a truck in Middle Georgia in late October. Social Circle resident Leah Davis said a $2,000 reward has remained unclaimed more than three months after the Macon Regional Crimestoppers organization began offering it for information that leads to an arrest in the Oct. 30 murder of Alexandra "Alex" Davis. "For me, it's just getting my sister's truth out there,"

Alexandra Davis

Leah said. "I want Alex's truth to be told." Alex Davis, 29, was a former Newton County resident. She was shot and killed in Musella in Crawford County west of Macon as she sat with her 7-month-old son, Wyatt Lane, in the backseat of a Dodge Ram 3500 Crew Cab truck. Those donating to a benefit auction to raise funds for Wyatt said it was an act of road rage in their initial appeal for donations in a Facebook post in November. However, the Georgia Bureau of Investigation, which took over the investigation from Crawford County authorities soon after the incident, has not publicly called it road rage or given other details — only that Alex was shot and killed while traveling near Musella Baptist Church.

"Supposedly, there was some kind of altercation," Davis said. "She was an innocent bystander in whatever situation occurred," she said. "She was being a mother." Alex was an Atlanta native and grew up in Jackson as the youngest of four before moving to the Social Circle area, said her sister. See MURDER, A3

Inaugural Black History Parade seeks to highlight 'positive attributes' of heritage

By TOM SPIGOLON
tspigolon@covnews.com

COVINGTON, Ga. — Organizers of the inaugural Newton County parade honoring Black History Month are seeking to highlight "the positive attributes of Black American heritage, culture and history" by hosting the event later this month. And they are asking marching bands, dance teams, churches, bike and car clubs, fraternities and sororities and others to participate. The Newton County Black History Parade is set for Feb. 26 at 10 a.m. with the parade route along Brown Street and streets on the Covington Square. Newton County Historical Committee on Black Heritage Preservation is hosting the event and has organized the annual June-teenth parade in Covington for about a decade. Terri James, who was a founder of the nonprofit, said the event seeks to add to the events highlighting Black Americans' contributions to society. She said it was difficult to find a program that showcases African-American general contributions. "As a visionary myself, my committee and I thought it would be the greatest accomplishment to have the first-ever Black History Parade in Newton County," James said. Organizers said they plan to honor six New-

State House honors T.K. Adams as funeral services set

By TOM SPIGOLON
tspigolon@covnews.com

COVINGTON, Ga. — A Celebration of Life service for Newton County arts legend T.K. Adams is set for Feb. 12 at Grace United Methodist Church in Covington.

And District 113 State Rep. Sharon Henderson, D-Covington, recently honored Adams with a presentation on the floor of the Georgia House of Representatives at the Georgia State Capitol in Atlanta.

Adams, who died Jan. 25 at age 87, served as the band director at R.L. Cousins High School and Cousins Middle School for 36 years and was elected Teacher of the Year on multiple occasions, according to information from the Newton County School System.

He also founded the Newton County Community Band in 1993 and served as its director for regular Christmas and Fourth of July concerts in Covington for 21 years before a final July 4 concert on his birthday in 2014.

The service for Adams is set for 11 a.m. at the church at 3145 Washington St. SW in Covington, with burial in New Covington Cemetery. Visitation with the family is set for Feb. 11 from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m., according to an obituary from Lester Lackey & Sons Funeral Home which is in charge of arrangements.

Henderson said she decided to recognize Adams because of “all the accolades” he received for his work over the years — and the many tributes given him after his death.

“I looked at the Facebook posts that were pouring in about him,” she said.

She said she met Adams and spoke with him in August 2021 when she presented him and wife, Louise, with “Outstanding Georgia Citizen” awards from Secretary of State Brad Raffensperger.

“He said, ‘Rep. Henderson, no matter what you do, don’t let anybody stop you from doing good in the community. You represent us well,’” she said. “That made me feel good.”

On Feb. 1, Henderson spoke about Adams during the Georgia House of Representatives’ Morning Orders part of its daily calendar.

Henderson told the Georgia House that Newton County was “deeply saddened by the loss of Mr. T.K. Adams” before she asked members to observe a moment of silence for him.

“Mr. Adams added a ton of wealth to our community,” she said.

“Most of all, he was a man of God with a heavy heart of love for God’s people,” she said, as a photo of Adams and Mrs. Adams were displayed on a screen overlooking the House floor.

Afterward, she said some longtime legislators, including the longest-serving state House member, District 135 State Rep. Calvin Smyre, D-Columbus, told Henderson about their admiration for Adams.

Smyre has served in the House for five decades and was familiar with Adams, Henderson said.

“He said, ‘Great man, very well-deserved,’” Henderson said.

Jones exits governor’s race, will seek Newton congressional seat

By TOM SPIGOLON
tspigolon@covnews.com

ATLANTA — Former state Rep. Vernon Jones dropped out of the Republican gubernatorial race Monday and announced instead he will run for a congressional seat representing Newton County.

Jones will be running for an open seat in the 10th Congressional District that includes eastern Newton County.

He will seek to replace U.S. Rep. Jody Hice, R-Greensboro, who is leaving Congress to run for Georgia secretary of state with the backing of former President Donald Trump.

Jones joins a crowded field of GOP candidates in the heavily Republican district. The 10th stretches from Henry and Newton counties northeast to the Georgia border, including Athens.

File | The News

Vernon Jones greets members of the Newton County Republican Party during a campaign stop in Covington in July.

In a post on Twitter, Jones threw his support in the May 24 GOP gubernatorial primary behind former U.S. Sen. David Perdue, who is challenging incumbent Gov. Brian Kemp for the Republican nomination.

“He is a good man who loves our state and loves our country,” Jones wrote of Perdue.

Jones, a former Democrat and former DeKalb County CEO, was an early challenger to Kemp’s reelection bid.

Most political observers did not give Jones much of a chance of winning the primary, and Perdue’s entry into the race in December further lengthened Jones’ odds of success.

Others believed Jones would take away crucial votes from Perdue in his challenge to Kemp if Jones were to remain in the race.

Perdue said of Jones, “Vernon Jones is a conservative patriot who cares deeply about Georgia. We need his voice and we need him in the fight.

“I’m proud to have his support of our Trump-endorsed campaign. Conservatives are united and ready to beat Stacey Abrams. I appreciate Vernon’s willingness to serve and look forward to working together to get big things done for Georgia.”

Others who have announced they will seek the Republican nomination or are actively campaigning for it include Andrew Alvey, Timothy Barr, Paul Broun, Mike Collins, David Curry, Todd Heussner, Marc McMain, Matt Richards, Charles Rupert, Alan Sims, Mitchell Swan, Mary West and Patrick Witt. Democrats include Jessica Fore, Phyllis Hatcher and Paul Walton.

New Oxford Police chief to prioritize training, bonds with community

By SARAH DAVIS
news@covnews.com

OXFORD, Ga. — “I believe in working together.”

This is the philosophy that newly appointed Chief Mark Anglin brings with him into his new position leading the Oxford Police Department and one that has been cultivated over a 32-year career in law enforcement.

“A law enforcement relationship is not just with the law enforcement agency, it’s with the community,” Anglin said. “If you don’t have the backing of your community, you’re not going to be successful in anything you do.”

Anglin was sworn in as chief during the Oxford City Council meeting Jan. 3. He succeeded Dave Harvey who served as chief from 2011 to his retirement in 2021.

Entering into a historically understaffed department that polices the small town of Oxford and works with the Emory Police Department to patrol the area around the Oxford College campus, Anglin said he has his work cut out for him.

“My time as chief so far has been a little difficult,” Anglin said. “It’s a rebuilding of the whole department, and you walk into the known but the unknown.

“I’ve been in administration before and it’s a lot of work, but I’ve had a lot of staff to assist me prior.”

Currently the department consists of two employees: himself and another police officer. Anglin said he hopes to prioritize hiring two new officers, as well as structuring regular and updated training into the department’s system.

One of the officers Anglin said he plans to hire will serve as an in-house trainer for the department.

Anglin, who has been trained and served as a police officer trainer at Georgia Piedmont Technical College and Georgia Public Safety Training Center, stressed the importance of regular and updated law enforcement training for police officers.

“My No. 1 goal with this department is to ensure that each officer has proper training they need to effectively serve the citizens and protect the citizens of Oxford,” Anglin said.

The state of Georgia requires that all police officers undergo 20 hours of annual training, which can be done from a computer. Anglin said that he would like to see his officers undergo more regular and in-person training.

While some police agencies don’t ask their officers to undergo additional training, citing a lack of resources and time to send employees to training outside of the 20-hour requirement, Anglin said, “I don’t buy that.”

“I believe if I have to come and work your shift as the chief, then I’m going to come and work your shift because you need to go get the most up-to-date training,” Anglin said.

“We can sit at a computer and watch an hour’s worth of train-

Davis said Alex started riding horses when she was very young. She became so skilled at riding that she competed professionally in events like barrel racing.

But she also was a horse trainer and riding instructor who worked with special needs children, said her sister.

Alex had moved from Newton County to Butler in Taylor County in recent years to live with her boyfriend, identified in her obituary as Tim Butler, whom she had met because both were rodeo and horse enthusiasts, Leah said.

When Alex found out she was pregnant with Wyatt "she was over the moon," her sister said.

She said motherhood changed Alex.

"I finally saw my sister come into her own," Leah said. "I just saw a totally different person."

She said her sister was returning from the Georgia State Fairgrounds in Perry with Wyatt and her boyfriend. The vehicle was in the parking lot of Musella Baptist Church on Georgia Hwy. 341 between 8 and 8:30 p.m. when shots came from another vehicle that had pulled behind them and struck Alex, Leah said.

Her parents and family, which mostly reside in Newton County, are devastated. They often see Wyatt, who is nearing a year old and lives with his father.

However, the family has not added to the reward because "we're taking the GBI's lead on everything we do," she said.

"They're very much investigating this case," Leah said.

She said she wants someone to "do the right thing" and give information that will help lead to an arrest.

"I very much feel that we will know Alex's truth," she said.

Anyone with information about the case is asked to call the GBI Perry Office at 478-987-4545 or CrimeStoppers Tip Line at 877-682-7463.

discovered that a bullet had struck a patrol vehicle.

"The officer taking the report was standing near this unit when the vehicle was struck," Malcom said.

No one was reported injured, he said.

Malcom said officers "have been working aggressively on these cases non-stop, saturating the area impacted with additional patrol personnel."

"Innocent people's lives are being put in harm's way because of these senseless acts," he said.

He said Covington Police are asking that anyone with information on the cases contact Detective Dave Stewart of the C.P.D. Criminal Investigative Division at 678-625-5562.

The department is offering a reward for information on these four cases, Malcom said.

Meanwhile, in an apparently unrelated report in the same area, a Covington officer reported being on a different call and hearing gunshots from the Green Acres area Friday about 8:12 p.m.

The officer determined that two men had shot into the air in an attempt to break up a fight between two women. At least one used a 9 mm pistol, a report stated.

The two women were detained and interviewed about the incident, the report stated.

In another unrelated case, Newton County sheriff's detectives were investigating after deputies responded Thursday, Feb. 3, at 4:20 p.m. to a report of a shooting during a domestic dispute at a residence on Aiken Court.

The complainant stated her mother exited the residence and shot one round at her father who was standing in the driveway.

The 58-year-old father then left on foot and refused assistance from deputies, the report stated.

He told deputies that similar incidents had occurred before this one. No alcohol or drug use contributed to the incident, a deputy reported.

The deputy also reported trying to make contact with the complainant's mother but she refused to speak to the deputy.

"The complainant left the residence with her juvenile children. No charges will be taken at this time," the report stated.

Google's monopoly isn't a game for newspapers

It is no secret that Google has secured a near monopoly in the search and local advertising world. However, the impact on newspapers hasn't been quite as obvious.

A number of lawsuits have recently been brought that call Google to task for its practices. These lawsuits signal the government's acknowledgement of Google's unfair practices and initiates steps to hold them accountable.

The first suit, an antitrust action filed by the Justice Department in October, accuses Google of abusing its position over smaller rivals by operating like an illegal monopoly through exclusionary agreements that have hurt consumers and competitors.

The second suit, an antitrust suit filed in mid-December by Texas and nine other states, alleges that the company has stifled competition and enjoys monopolistic power, specifically as it relates to digital advertising.

The third suit, filed just days after the second suit by 38 U.S. states and territories, accuses Google of abusing its market power to maintain its search engine dominance. The suit doesn't seek monetary damages, but instead seeks broader remedies and an order to end any agreements or other behavior that it finds to be exclusionary.

But why does this matter, and what does it mean to you or to your community?

Almost everyone uses Google in some way or another. It has become part of our lives, and Google has used this to its advantage. Google games the marketplace through search algorithms to its financial gain. The result is an uneven and often unfair playing field for small and local businesses. At a time when local businesses are struggling to overcome the impacts of COVID, the need to be able to compete fairly has never been greater.

But what it means to local news, including this newspaper, is that Google uses content from newspapers and other news providers without compensating

Doctor says the virus doesn't care about your politics

As we approach the two-year mark of COVID, I sense a lot of confusion.

I see two worlds in my own zip code. There's one in which churchgoers are masked, cautious, and separated. In the other, restaurant patrons are partying like it's 1999.

I'm in the first category. My workplace has been hit hard, and I'm trying to stay on my feet.

I play the odds. When doctors tell me to get vaccinated and boosted because those who don't are more likely to get seriously ill, I listen.

I'm not a gambler. Some family members took me to a casino 30 years ago in Atlantic City.

I walked in, dropped one quarter in the slot, and the machine spat out $150. I took the cash and left the casino.

"Where are you going?" my family asked. "I'm done," I said.

I beat the odds. No need to push my luck again.

Recently a friend of mine gambled and lost. He was a young man who left a grieving family behind. I sent a message to his father, offering to help in any way. He responded, "Tell people to get vaccinated. My son was an anti-vaxxer." I later learned he didn't take it seriously, and waited too late to seek help.

Throughout the pandemic, a family physician has been quite vocal. His name is Christopher Haddock. He tries to counter the constant spread of false information. He has practiced for 20 years in his north Georgia hometown. The region has one of the nation's lowest vaccination rates. Some of the area's elected officials have loudly denounced vaccines, and ridiculed those who take the virus seriously.

Although some have advised Dr. Haddock to ignore COVID deniers, he says he cannot sit by silently. He admits that the nation's chief medical adviser, Dr. Anthony Fauci, has had to backtrack at times, but says, "Science doesn't sit still. He and other medical experts have issued guidance based on the best information available at the time."

He adds, "The fact is most people that get COVID are going to recover no matter what any physician does, vaccinated or not. However, a smaller subset of patients, around 5-8%, will develop moderate/severe COVID with respiratory issues and require higher levels of care. Our current case fatality rate in the U.S. is 1.2%. That means 12 of every 1000 people who get diagnosed with COVID will die."

He continues, "That's where it becomes a problem. When you apply these relatively small percentages to the millions of people diagnosed, you see where millions are going to get seriously ill, and we are now approaching one million deaths."

I asked, "What about those who complain that their family is fully vaccinated, and they got sick anyway? And the vaccinated people who have died?"

Dr. Haddock replied, "The vaccine doesn't prevent you from getting the virus. That was never its intention. But it does decrease your chances of developing severe COVID and possibly dying by 95%. So a family can say we didn't get the vaccine, we all got COVID, and we're still here. That doesn't mean no one should get the vaccine. We know that eventually if enough people in that extended family get COVID, some could get severely ill and some may die. Our hospitals are showing 85 to 95% of patients in the ICU and on a ventilator are not vaccinated."

I also asked about masks. It is not uncommon for people wearing masks to be the target of insults.

Dr. Haddock said, "The masks are not perfect. They will not protect you and those around you 100% of the time. However, they decrease the spread of COVID and other respiratory viruses. They save lives. Yes, they're a pain. However, they impede transmission of the virus, and decrease the number of cases we are treating."

Dr. Haddock also addressed the gorilla in the room. He said, "This virus doesn't care about your politics. The vaccine was developed during the Trump administration, and he supports the vaccine."

(Political leaders from both parties have been vaccinated and boosted, and encourage others to follow suit. The same can be said for some influential TV hosts.)

He added, "I want to encourage vaccination, and masking where appropriate. In our region, we've finally gotten above the 50% vaccination rate. I'm hopeful that with increasing vaccination rates, and those with natural immunity, we may eventually get to some sort of herd immunity."

Dr. Haddock concluded, "The stories of ardent anti-vaxxers getting sick and dying of COVID are numerous. The singer Meat Loaf died, and he was anti-vaxx. A Washington state trooper who resigned rather than be vaccinated has died. These are tragic and preventable. It breaks my heart to see people die for these beliefs."

Special anniversary for 2 special people

The year was 1964 and it goes without saying our world was a very different place.

Our country was still reeling from the assassination of President John F.

Kennedy. The mere name "Russia" caused great fear for our political and military leaders and especially for our country's citizens.

The streets weren't as crowded as they are now and a dollar certainly went a great further. Of course, it was also tougher to earn.

Another notable occurrence in the year 1964 (on Feb. 14 to be exact) was when Paul Bridges married Melba Bowden. It would be several years before their first-born son, the one writing the words you are reading, was born. Four years later their second son was born.

My parents will celebrate 58 years in a few days. That is an accomplishment only a few will reach. Almost six decades is notable for any marriage, for anything really.

Stability is a characteristic most of us desire. Longevity certainly is we long for but often fail to achieve.

For me, having a stable family environment has been one of my biggest assets. My parents still live in the house I grew up in. The memories are there every time I walk in. They speak to me to this day.

My brother and I were fortunate growing up. We got 100% of what we needed and 99% of what we wanted.

I don't have to look back on my childhood in a negative way. I had a support system which was as solid and sturdy as a brick foundation. That system remains in place today, more than 50 years after I was born.

My parents encouraged both of their children to always give their best in whatever they tried. They didn't expect us to be the best, simply to give everything we had.

They were always there to support us. My father coached his sons in recreation baseball. It wasn't to make us the star of the team. Rather it was to be there to support us.

When my brother and I reached high school, my parents were always in the stands for our basketball the publisher. If you use Google to seek information about current events in your community, chances are, the results will be from your local newspaper and other news providers. Google monetizes the content produced by the publishers, creating even more problems for an industry that was already challenged as a result of changing news consumption habits in an internet-connected world.

The shift to digital readership has been inevitable. However, the use of locally produced content by Google without adequate compensation has accelerated a financial crisis in the newspaper industry — forcing newspapers to make reductions. If the local newspaper goes away, Google doesn’t replace the content. It just has less viable responses to searches for local information. The ultimate result is significantly diminished coverage in local communities on the issues that matter most — local government, schools, health, environment and all the issues that impact local citizens day-in and day-out.

A successful newspaper is critical to the health of a local community. Encourage your representatives in Congress to support legislative action to require Google to play by the rules and fairly compensate newspapers for the content they develop. When I went off to college my mom would send hand-written letters each week. This was in 1989 when people didn’t carry their phone in their pocket or fire off an email. I made calls home on a pay phone in my dorm and eagerly checked my college post office box each day.

Football was an enjoyment my father passed on to his sons. I went to my first college game in 1979. The number of high school games we went to is beyond my memory’s reach.

My parents are well known and respected in Monticello. My father is a regular at the Coffee Club each morning at a local eatery. He makes a regular trip on Wednesday evenings to buy the local newspaper. That tradition dates back decades and I’m sure it influenced me in terms of becoming a writer.

Both have been enjoying retirement for several years now. My father enjoys watching the deer each evening at his farm. He catches numerous football games on television. My mother enjoys the numerous plants and trees at our home. Their two cats keep them on their toes.

Much has changed since 1964 but thankfully some things do remain the same as always.

Senate committee holds hearing on legalizing recreational use of marijuana

By DAVE WILLIAMS
Capitol Beat News Service

ATLANTA — A state Senate committee held a hearing Thursday on three legislative proposals related to marijuana ranging from expanding Georgia’s medical marijuana program to legalizing recreational use of the drug.

But in the conservative General Assembly, the odds of the Senate Regulated Industries and Utilities Committee voting on any of the measures are long at best.

Sen. Sheikh Rahman, D-Lawrenceville, has introduced a constitutional amendment calling for a statewide referendum asking voters to decide whether to legalize the production and sale of marijuana in Georgia for the recreational use of adults ages 21 and older.

Tax revenue from marijuana sales would be dedicated to education and transportation infrastructure.

An accompanying bill would spell out how the production and sale of marijuana would be regulated in Georgia, including the licensing process that would govern the industry.

“This would be highly regulated, not just selling out of convenience stores,” Rahman said.

A third bill pertains only to the existing medical marijuana program the General Assembly authorized in 2019. It would broaden the current program by authorizing more dispensaries to sell low-THC cannabis oil and for the first time allow qualifying adult patients in Georgia to receive up to 2 ounces of leafy marijuana along with low-THC oil.

Studies in the 18 states that have legalized recreational use of marijuana have found it has not led to increased use of other drugs, including opioids, Rahman told committee members.

But several opponents of Rahman’s bills who addressed the committee disagreed.

Jeff Breedlove, chief of communications and policy with the Georgia Council on Substance Abuse, cited a report from the Colorado Health Institute showing opioid abuse rose in that state after recreational use of marijuana was legalized.

“Any notion that marijuana is not a gateway drug is absurd,” said Breedlove. “This bill is dangerous to the people of Georgia.”

Sen. Frank Ginn, R-Danielsville, said legalizing marijuana also would wreak havoc with commercial trucking in Georgia because of the length of time marijuana stays in a person’s system after using the drug.

“There’s no field sobriety test like there is for alcohol,” he said.

Representatives of a couple of faith-based groups also testified in opposition to legalizing marijuana for recreational use.

Groups which are part of the organizing committee include the District 3 Community, which is affiliated with Sanders; and the Covington Area Alumnae Chapter of Delta Sigma Theta Sorority Inc.; Washington Street Community Center; and The National Action Network.

James said famed Black historian Carter G. Woodson laid the "foundation" for celebrating Black History Month.

Woodson was the author of numerous books in the early and mid-20th century detailing the history of Black Americans.

He is credited with spearheading the effort to celebrate a month highlighting Black history in the U.S. and chose February because it is the birth month for both Frederick Douglass and Abraham Lincoln.

"Everything began with a dream and that dream started with an idea from Mr. Carter G. Woodson," James said. "He was frustrated and believed that Black people should know their past to participate intelligently in society.

"Newton County’s Black History Parade, along with countless others, will attract individuals around Newton and neighboring counties featuring marching bands, VIP guests, floats, and children’s groups to celebrate the culture, heritage, history and accomplishments of Black Americans in the United States and around the world," James said. "This is a significant reason we have a parade during this month."

The parade will form its lineup beginning at 9 a.m. at New Hope Baptist Church at the corner of Ivy and Brown streets.

It will step off from the church grounds and run along Brown Street to Washington Street. It will take a right turn and continue to Church Street; take a left and go to Clark Street; take a left and continue on Clark past the Historic Courthouse to Brown Street; and take a left and continue along Brown Street back to New Hope Baptist.

Deadline to register to participate in the parade is Friday, Feb. 11. Visit <https://www.georgiajuneteenth.com/blackhistoryparade> and click the link to register and see rules for participation.

Organizers are asking participants to wear masks and provide descriptions of the vehicles when registering and have a poster or sign attached to each side to identify the group.

No printed materials, candy, gifts, merchandise or other items will be allowed to be handed out or thrown along the parade route, organizers said.

For more information call 404-861-0707 or 770-315-8949.

The organization also is hosting a ribbon-cutting and dedication of a cultural arts center in the old Cousins school band room to honor Adams.

The event is scheduled for Feb. 24 at 11 a.m. at 8134 Geiger St. in Covington, a parade organizer said.

the man he is today, including James T. Jones, Garland Hillman, T.K. Adams and many more.

“When I think of the ones who inspired me, there is not one person but many who I stand on the shoulder of,” Brown said. “My path to leadership was shaped and molded by several great men in this community, but most importantly, by my father.”

Brown said Jones taught him the lesson of “not settling for today’s wins but striving daily to do better, be better, leave your mark, and creating a path for someone else to follow.”

Hillman, who was the first African American member of the Newton County Board of Education and also a rental property manager/owner, taught Brown how to invest in his future.

“Do something that will take care of you, your children and your children’s children,” Brown said. “He chose the rental business, education and church.”

Community leader and band director T.K. Adams always said to “how yourself as a friendly person; and in doing so, you will always be rich, admired and loved,” Brown said.

Brown said patrolmen Lonnie Gleaton and Homer Marks; Lt. Junus Clark, who was the first African American with rank; deputies Henry Goss and Daryl Henderson; and Sgt. Cleo Banks helped mold Brown into a quality law enforcement officer.

In 2008, Brown was elected the county’s first African American sheriff. He said Banks was the only one from his “squad” who lived to see Brown take office.

While Brown had many great influences in his life, he strives to be an example and inspiration for the next generation.

“Since 2008, I’ve tried to be someone that lets children know that their dreams can come true, just like mine did,” he said.

As Newton County’s chief law enforcement officer, Brown has a direct impact on quality of life for not only the Black community, but for everyone.

"I work every day of my life, personally and professionally, to ensure that Newton County is the place that people from every walk want to call home," he said. "I believe that the desire to raise children and grow old are characteristics among our community. Life is not perfect, but where does that place exist? Our community is made up of neighborhoods that are both alike and different. I realize that I am not [on] an island, nor is the sheriff's office. So, we work in partnership with a number of organizations and community advocates to improve the quality of life for all."

Brown said some of those organizations include the NAACP, members of the Divine Nine Fraternities and Sororities, National Action Network, and other civic groups and faith communities, which have formed a “critical safety net” that allows various groups within the Newton County to voice and address any concerns.

“We work hand-in-hand to positively impact and improve our community,” Brown said. “Continuous quality improvement is the lens through which we view our mission ... We [the Newton County Sheriff’s Office] strive daily to ‘serve and protect’ all.”

ing, which is OK. But, when you actually go to a training class, it kind of renews your spirit. It renews your drive as to why you’re a police officer because you do get burned out with law enforcement.”

Under the previous administration, Anglin said the department had been utilizing certain policing tools without updated training. This will change under his direction, he said, emphasizing the importance of regular training for all officers in the department.

“It’s going to start from the top,” Anglin said. “If I’m going to say you have to be trained, then I have to be trained as well to carry that type of tool we have at our disposal. I take my job very seriously and I’d rather be over prepared than underprepared.”

A resident of Covington for 17 years, Anglin has long-standing ties to Newton County and a familiarity with Oxford College, with his wife having attended the school for the first two years of her undergraduate education.

Anglin came to Oxford from a job as an investigator for the Newton County District Attorney’s office.

The bulk of his career was spent serving as an officer with the DeKalb County Police Department from 1990 to 2006; and as chief investigator in the DeKalb County Medical Examiner’s Office from 2006 to 2019.

After retiring from the medical examiner’s office, he worked at the Georgia Public Safety Training Center as a law enforcement instructor; and with Risk Consultants of America Inc. as a safety and security professional before working in the DA’s office.

Though the tensions nationally between law enforcement and people of color over the past two years has not appeared to spill over to Oxford, Anglin said he plans to approach policing the same way he always has: with a will to help others.

In one of his first days in Oxford, he said he stopped by and met the pastor of Mt. Zion Baptist Church, an African-American church, and offered to assist its food pantry distribution.

These kinds of community relationships, Anglin said, are the ones he hopes to foster in his new role.

“[It] has a lot to do with just changing people’s mindset,” Anglin said. “It’s not us against them, it’s not them against us. We’re all in this together.”

Rams to lean on top juniors ahead for anticipated postseason run

By PHILLIP B. HUBBARD
phubbard@covnews.com

COVINGTON, Ga. — Going into the 2021-22 season, there has been one goal for this year's Newton Rams team: Win the state title.

Leading the way to making that goal a reality have been four individuals who have been heavily recruited.

Juniors Stephon Castle, Jakai Newton, Marcus Whitlock and Marquavious Brown have all received offers to play Division I college basketball. Three of them have already committed to colleges.

Castle is a Connecticut commit, Newton has committed to Indiana and Brown is committed in-state to Georgia. Whitlock currently has three offers from Presbyterian, Grambling State and Alabama-Birmingham, too.

Head coach Charlemagne Gibbons pointed to the tenacity of the four players as to what makes them a special group.

"The combination of all of those guys and their spirit is really good," Gibbons said. "I don't think you'll ever come and see these guys not give effort. They may not play great every night, but they always give effort."

Castle, Newton and Brown are all starters while Whitlock seems to serve as the team's sixth man off the bench.

But, there's a feeling like no other when all four players take the court at once.

"We've been playing AAU together," Newton said. "We all got chemistry together and we know how to run the floor and make big plays."

Their chemistry and play-making ability has helped the Rams to a 19-4 overall record which includes a 6-0 record in Region

Area coaches talk earlier season start

By PHILLIP B. HUBBARD
phubbard@covnews.com

COVINGTON, Ga. — If it seems like the 2022 high school soccer season has started a few weeks earlier than in years past, that is because it has.

Earlier this year, the Georgia High School Association (GHSA) adopted a revision causing the start date of this year's schedule to be moved up a week. As a result, GHSA teams could start practicing as early as Jan. 3 whereas last season was Jan. 11.

Last year's regular season schedule began on Feb. 1 compared to this year's start on Jan. 24.

Local coaches have voiced their concerns about the GHSA's decision to change the 2022 season and the effects it has already had on their team's this year.

The first noticeable effect that coaches have highlighted has been the earlier practice start time.

Jan. 3 fell on the first Monday of the new calendar and a day before Newton County School System and Social Circle city schools students had to report for the second semester.

Since that was the case, each team had to hit the ground running with their conditioning and game planning for the season ahead.

In that regard, Social Circle girls soccer head coach, Heather Richardson definitively disagreed with the move.

"We started right after Christmas break," Richardson said. "When I first started coaching, we didn't usually start until the Tuesday after Martin Luther King Day. So, now we're three weeks sooner than that. I do wish it would go back at least two weeks if not three."

Another area that the GHSA's decision has altered how coaches approached 2022 has been which players would be available for their team at the beginning of the season.

Each coach labeled the concern as an "overlap."

SOCIAL CIRCLE, Ga. — A dream came true for Stephen Bishop on Jan. 27.

Bishop inked his National Letter of Intent to continue his golf career at Truett McConnell University in Cleveland, Georgia. He has been a member of Social Circle's golf team for the last four years.

"It was always my dream to play golf at the next level," Bishop said. "I started playing with my dad when I first played seven years ago. It has always been my goal since my freshman year of high school."

Though Bishop has aspired for this moment for four years now, he's still excited for what's to come in the fall.

After receiving advice from family members, old teammates and coaches, Truett McConnell was the clear decision for his next step.

"I am looking forward to being able to develop my game in the next four years," Bishop said. "And develop my faith in the Lord. It is a great school for me to grow my faith and my golf career."

Bishop realized that this opportunity to continue his career wouldn't have been possible without Social Circle High School and its support.

Overall, though, he's grateful for all the people he's come in contact with the last four years.

"Social Circle has taught me how to develop friendships and how to be a leader," Bishop said. "Being in a smaller school really opened doors to closer relationships with my friends, teachers and coaches. I will appreciate the lifelong friendships I have made and enjoy every second."

catcher.

But, it won't be the stat line or the accolades that Henderson will remember the most. It'll be something a little more special.

"I will miss the girls and the support the team had for each other on and off the field," Henderson said.

Now, starting in the fall of 2022, Henderson will take that support and all the memories of the last four years with her to Chattahoochee Valley.

For that, Henderson feels grateful for her time as a Lady Eagle.

"I mostly appreciate how coach [Heather] Wood, Shane Griffin, Caitlyn Ray and also my travel ball family all have shown me how it's more than just playing a game," Henderson said. "It's about true friendships and forever-lasting memories."

However, Chattahoochee Valley sits in Phenix City, Alabama, which is 142 miles from Covington.

With that in mind, Henderson highlighted how that makes the next step a little nerve-racking sprinkled into her high anticipation.

"It's scary, but also exciting," Henderson said. "I'm moving two and a half hours away from home to live my childhood dream, but I get to be a part of a new team filled with girls with the same goal as me."

During her senior campaign at Eastside, Henderson recorded a .319 batting average while batting 19 runs in for the Lady Eagles.

Newton has also gone out of the state to achieve great success.

In particular, on Jan. 8, it claimed the 2022 National Prep Sugar Bowl Classic in Louisiana, going 4-0 to win the tournament.

At the time of this publication, the Rams were ranked No. 2 in Class 7A by numerous outlets.

Throughout all the success, though, the big four of the Rams recognized that there's still room for improvement.

"I think if we can get back defensively like we were earlier in the season, I think we will be fine," Castle said. "We're doing all the other stuff, we're just not defending as well as we were earlier."

Even so, each player highlighted areas that they can improve individually to help their team have even better success moving forward.

All four players stressed the importance of watching film, learning from their mistakes and improving on their rebounding numbers to improve their chances at a state championship.

In that, however, they stressed how more improved the current team is compared to the team that tipped off the season on Nov. 13, 2021.

"When we first started playing, we were kind of off a little bit," Brown said. "But we picked up our game and took it to another level."

While they've been contributing on the court, each player admitted that the progress during this season wouldn't have been possible without their head coach.

They all said how Gibbons has done a lot for each one's confidence on and off the court.

"When I first came, he already knew what I could do," Whitlock said. "He said that I could just add to the team."

Now, they said they aspire to take the confidence from their head coach as well as the lessons they've learned during this season to fuel a deep playoff run.

Their regular season finale will be on Wednesday, Feb. 9, at South Gwinnett and the region tournament will be at Newton High School from Feb. 12-17.

But, for this group of players, their preseason goal has remained top priority, but more so now than ever.

Playing a game in front of a home crowd, too, is the best part about playing basketball at Newton High School, according to Norris.

But being a Lady Ram has meant more to the senior guard than just playing basketball.

For Norris, it has completely changed her mindset about various areas of her life.

"This school has made me open my eyes about some things," Norris said. "Basketball itself taught me a lot of life lessons during my high school career. The decisions I make on the court are similar to decisions I make off the court."

Norris' favorite class at Newton High School is forensics. After she graduates in May, Norris plans to keep playing basketball and learn how to make anime.

Newton's McCamy signs with Navy

By PHILLIP B. HUBBARD
phubbard@covnews.com

COVINGTON, Ga. — On National Signing Day Feb. 2, Nolan McCamy officially signed his national letter of intent to join the U.S. Naval Academy to continue his football career.

As McCamy came onto the stage and sat down to put pen to paper, he had a huge smile on his face and hugged head coach Camiel Grant Jr. “Going up [on the stage], I was confident in my decision,” McCamy said. “I knew where I wanted to go.” The first time McCamy visited the Naval Academy was their football game against Southern Methodist University (SMU) on Oct. 14 during the 2021 football season.

Even though it was an unofficial visit and Navy hadn't offered at that time, McCamy already knew it was the right choice for him.

“It was a beautiful place,” McCamy said. “I was like, ‘OK, this is where I want to go.’”

The final decision didn't come for McCamy, though, without some help and guidance along the way.

As a matter of fact, McCamy began his signing ceremony by stating that one of Grant's famous sayings stood at the forefront of his mind throughout the recruiting process.

“Be comfortable being uncomfortable,” McCamy recalled. “That really stuck with me, because life isn't going to be easy, things are going to be uncomfortable but, at the end of the day, I've got to be comfortable being uncomfortable.”

McCamy is the reigning All-Covington News Defensive Player of the Year in addition to his appearance on the first team all-region team voted on by coaches of Region 4-AAAAAAA.

During his senior campaign, McCamy led the Rams defensively with 65 total tackles, two sacks and also collected an interception.

But, for McCamy, Newton has meant more to him than just the stats and the accolades.

“It's a real family thing here,” McCamy said. “At Newton High School, I know

I've got a home. It just feels great.”

Now, McCamy is off to join the Naval Academy beginning in the fall.

Though he's excited to experience what's next at the collegiate level, McCamy recognized it's going to be difficult to leave Newton High School behind.

But, as he departs from Covington, he hopes people remember him for simple reasons.

“I want to be remembered as a good guy,” McCamy said. “And as someone who'll look at you and say, ‘Nolan was a part of the community. He's a community guy who I can go to no matter what.’”

SEASON:

In their remarks, the coaches recognized that the overlap was already present, but more so now with the GHSA's alteration.

Head girls soccer coach Joel Singleton of Eastside highlighted that a few of last year's main contributors will be absent for the first part of the season due to playing other sports.

“For me, I've got a couple of girls in the basketball program that won't be with us until February,” Singleton said. “And now that makes it one more week of games that they're going to have to miss.”

As a matter of fact, Social Circle head boys soccer coach James Corasaniti said that there are a few players from last year's team that aren't even coming out as a result of the overlap.

“We've got some wrestlers now that we really need on the team,” Corasaniti said. “But they won't come out because by the time they do, the season will be halfway over.”

Richardson had the same issue with her team, too.

The third common issue mentioned by local coaches has been the colder weather conditions as a result of the season moving up.

Eastside boys soccer coach, Champ Young highlighted that, in addition to overlap, the conditioning aspect is made more challenging in early January.

“For the players, if they play a winter sport, they are missing one-third of their season because of the massive overlap,” Young said. “Couple that with the elements and attempting to get into game shape in the coldest time of the year.”

In fact, the Social Circle teams had to play their preseason scrimmage against Southwest Dekalb while snow fell on Jan. 21.

All four coaches lamented that they feel like it's just too cold for players to perform in those conditions.

The coaches are not alone in all of their concerns.

A petition was signed by close to 400 coaches and sent to GHSA in disagreement of the start change. But the GHSA stood by its decision announced in May 2022 in spite of the opposition.

Now, being on the other side of the preseason preparations with the season being in full swing, the coaches have recognized that they made the best out of the situations.

But that doesn't mean they were blind to the challenges this one slight change by the GHSA caused for the 2022 season.

“It's made things very difficult for us as coaches in many facets of the game,” Young said.

Factors to consider before investing in real estate

SPECIAL TO THE NEWS
news@covnews.com

The appreciation of real estate over time has long made owning a home or an investment property a sound financial strategy. Prospective home buyers spend considerable time looking for a property they’re hoping to call home. Various factors, including property taxes and the reputation of local schools, may be considered as homeowners decide where to look for a new home. That vetting process is equally important, albeit slightly different, when buyers are consider investing in properties they don’t intend to live in. Real estate can be a great way to diversify an investment portfolio and earn extra income. Before shopping for an investment property, novice investors may want to consider certain factors to determine if real estate is the best investment vehicle for them. Rental potential and the local labor force Location is a significant factor to consider when investing in real estate, but recent shifts in how and where people work could change the real estate investment landscape. A 2020 Gartner, Inc., survey of more than 300 financial executives and leaders in the finance industry found that roughly 25 percent will move at least one out of every five of their on-site workers to permanently remote positions in the years ahead. Economists note that this shift to remote working could be among the more lasting trends to emerge from the pandemic. Before investing in real estate, prospective investors should examine local trends to see if more and more locals are working remotely, and whether or not that’s affecting the market for rentals. To flip or not to flip Flipping properties gained popularity in the second decade of this century, but figures from the property database curator AT-TOM Data Solutions indicates that returns on investments in flipped properties declined for the third straight year in 2020. Though flipping can still yield a strong return, investors may not realize the returns on flipped properties that they might have realized as recently as five years ago. Potential investors should conduct some research regarding real estate market trends, including flipping data where available, to make the most informed decision possible. Condition of the property Product shortages were another trend to emerge during the pandemic, and disruptions to the supply chain will not necessarily go away anytime soon. In addition, the cost of various products associated with home improvements, including lumber, skyrocketed during the pandemic. The National Association of Home Builders noted that while lumber prices declined in 2021, the price of lumber packages quoted to builders remained high. That means real estate investors who invest in properties that will need work could be forced to pay a lot to fix these properties. And ongoing supply chain issues could extend the time it takes to renovate a property. Investors must be able to bear these costs and lag times to make the most off their real estate investments. Investment properties can be a great way to diversify a portfolio. Potential investors must consider a host of factors to determine if real estate is an investment they want to make.

Novice investors may want to consider certain factors to determine if real estate is the best investment vehicle for them.

AAA reports prices at the pump continuing to rise statewide

news@covnews.com

ATLANTA — Georgia gas prices increased at the pump compared to a week ago. Georgia motorists are now paying an average price of $3.25 per gallon for regular unleaded gasoline. Monday’s state average is about 4 cents more than a week ago, 13 cents more than last month, and 96 cents more than this time last year. It costs motorists $48.60 to fill a 15-gallon tank of gasoline. “Russia’s intentions toward Ukraine continues to influence higher crude oil prices,” said Montrae Waiters, AAA-The Auto Club Group spokeswoman. “Higher oil prices will likely lead to higher pump prices for Georgia drivers. The national average for a gallon of gas has risen to $3.43, seven cents more than a week ago.” Rising crude prices drive national average higher According to data from the Energy Information Administration (EIA), total domestic gasoline stocks grew by 2.1 million barrels to 250 million barrels last week. On the other hand, gasoline demand dropped from 8.51 million barrels a day to 8.23 million barrels a day. An increase in total stocks and a decrease in demand typically put downward pressure on pump prices, but rising crude prices continue to push prices higher instead. At the close of last Thursday’s formal trading session, WTI increased by $2.01 to settle at $90.27. The tension between Russia and Ukraine continues to contribute to rising oil prices. Russia is a member of OPEC+, and any sanctions based on their actions toward Ukraine may cause it to withhold crude oil from the global market. Moreover, OPEC+ announced this week it will stick to its plan to increase crude production by 400,000 barrels a day next month despite calls for it to increase output more to help meet demand. The current stock level is approximately 13% lower than at the end of January 2021, contributing to pressure on domestic crude prices.

Newton County Average fuel prices in Newton County were at $3.24 per gallon — just below the state average, as of Monday. Most expensive state metro markets Brunswick ($3.41), Savannah ($3.34), and Hinesville-Fort Stewart ($3.32). Least expensive state metro markets Catoosa-Dade-Walker ($3.15), Warner Robins ($3.17), and Columbus ($3.18).

Determining the best time to downsize

SPECIAL TO THE NEWS
news@covnews.com

Individuals work hard to save enough money to purchase their homes. And the hard work doesn’t end there. Once homeowners settle into a new home, they may set their sights on renovations that suit their individual needs. And even when buyers find a home that needs no such work, maintenance requires homeowners’ utmost attention. All that hard work is perhaps one reason why seniors may be a little reluctant to downsize as they advance through their golden years. In addition to the sweat equity homeowners put into their homes, all the memories they’ve made within their walls can make it harder to put a home on the market. Downsizing is a difficult decision that’s unique to each homeowner. Seniors who aren’t quite certain if downsizing is right for them can consider three key factors to make a decision that’s in their best interests.

- Cost: Perhaps no variable affects senior homeowners’ decisions to downsize their homes as much as cost. No one wants to outlive their money, and downsizing to a smaller home can help seniors reduce their monthly expenses by a significant margin. Even homeowners who have long since paid off their mortgages can save substantial amounts of money by downsizing to a smaller home or even an apartment or condominium. Lower property taxes, reduced insurance premiums and the need to pay for fewer repairs are just some of the ways downsizing can save seniors money.
- Space: Many people love the extra space that single-family homes provide. But seniors can take a walk through their homes and see how many rooms they still use on a consistent basis. If much of the home is unused, seniors can probably downsize without adversely affecting their daily lives.
- Market: The real estate market is another factor to consider when deciding if the time is right to downsize. A seller’s market can help seniors get the biggest return on their real estate investment, potentially helping them make up for meager retirement savings. For example, home prices skyrocketed across the country during the COVID-19 pandemic, making that a great time for sellers to put their homes on the market. Seniors selling to downsize may capitalize on such spikes since they won’t be looking to turn around and buy larger, equally expensive homes once they sell their current place. If the market is down and seniors can withstand the work and cost a little longer, it may be best to wait until things bounce back in sellers’ favor. Downsizing requires careful consideration of a host of variables. No two situations are the same, so seniors should exercise due diligence to determine if downsizing is right for them.

Mikaela Shiffrin is among the athletes expected to compete in the 2022 Winter Olympics Monday on NBC and NBCUniversal networks.

Shiffrin, Yuzuru, Kim favorites for gold at 2022 Winter Olympics

The 2022 Winter Olympics moves into its first full week of competition in Beijing and with it comes a number of high-profile sports and athletes. All events air on NBC, Peacock, USA Network, CNBC, NBCOlympics.com and NBC Sports app.

Probably the biggest gets underway early Monday, Feb. 7, when Mikaela Shiffrin begins a slate of potentially five events when she takes to the slopes of the National Alpine Ski Center in Yanqing to compete in the final of the women's giant slalom, the event she won gold in at PyeongChang in 2018.

The 26-year-old native of Vail, Colo., comes in looking to add to her three career Olympic medals, two of which are gold. She's considered the favorite in the GS but she'll face stiff competition from Tessa Worley of France, Petra Vlhova of Slovakia and Italian skiers Federica Brignone and Marta Bassino. Shiffrin will also face off with Vlhova in the slalom on Wednesday, Feb. 9, and with Ester Ledecka of the Czech Republic in the super-G on Thursday, Feb. 10.

Also on Monday, men's figure skating kicks into gear at Capital Indoor Stadium with the short program. Hanyu Yuzuru, the 27-year-old Japanese skater, comes in as the two-time defending Olympic gold medalist and has to be considered the favorite here. His chief competition will likely come from 22-year-old American Nathan Chen, the three-time World Champion who has yet to top a podium in Olympic competition but could break through here.

Wednesday, Feb. 9, women's snowboarding takes flight at Genting Snow Park with the final in the halfpipe, in which Chloe Kim of the United States is the heavy favorite to win a second straight gold medal. In 2018 at PyeongChang, Kim scored a near-perfect 98.25 out of 100 and at 17 became the youngest snowboarder to win a gold medal at the Olympics. She's also the reigning World, Olympic and X Games champion in the halfpipe. One who could challenge her is 17-year-old prodigy ONO Mitsuki of Japan.

The final in the men's halfpipe on Thursday features a loaded field including Australia's Scotty James and the Japan contingent of Yuto Totsuka, Ayumu Hirano and Ruka Hirano vying for gold in an event that historically has been dominated by American Shaun White, who at the advanced snowboarding age of 35 will be vying to become the first snowboarder to win four Olympic gold medals.

Sunday, Feb. 6, is the men's slopestyle final, where Red Gerard and Dusty Henricksen will look to keep the United States' winning streak alive. The Americans took gold in the two previous Games (including Gerard's in 2018) but that won't stop a field that includes Canada's Mark McMorris and Norway's Marcus Kleveland from challenging them for the top spot on the podium.

Other finals to watch for this week include the women's slopestyle and men's singles luge (Sunday), the women's freeski big air (Monday), mixed doubles curling (Tuesday) and the 10km event in women's cross-country skiing (Thursday).

Roy Choi spotlights what needs fixing in Season 2 of 'Broken Bread'

The title may be "Broken Bread" but it's about so much more than food.

In each episode of the series, which currently streams its second season Tuesdays on Tastemade, Los Angeles-based host, chef and restaurateur Roy Choi examines social justice issues such as gentrification, cultural erasure and the corporate takeover of food and farming through the lens of food, celebrating the people who are making big changes to the food landscape, what is eaten and where communities gather, all in an effort to raise awareness.

"Our whole focus at 'Broken Bread' is finding good people doing great things against all odds," Choi explains, "and we really try to look at and empathize and be connected to the food system and what's not working within it. ... So we like to show just the strength of the human character and the people that are doing something, even without the camera or with no benefit to themselves. They're doing it because they know it's the right thing."

That's evident in the Tuesday, Feb. 8, episode "Food as Resistance," which looks at the long-buried history of the Chavez Ravine neighborhoods where Dodger Stadium in Los Angeles now stands. Choi meets some of the people actively working to preserve Latinx cuisine and seeks out some of the city's top taco makers.

Standing among food kiosks on a hilltop overlooking the stadium, he also discusses the cultural erasure that took place when three neighborhoods of Latinos were displaced by the venue's construction and the paradox of those who root for the Dodgers today.

"How are we the biggest fans of this sport but at the same time this sport and this team were directly responsible for erasing three of the most vibrant communities of our history? ...," Choi says. "The head of the snake was Dodger Stadium because it's such an iconic place in Los Angeles. It really makes like the growth of the city and that mid-century modern architecture in the 1950s (possible)."

"But also, we looked at it (through) a prism of how people are treated today," he continues. "It's kind of like when somebody wants something, it's as if no one was there before. You know, the Columbus-ing of things like, 'These people don't matter. There's no value. That land is valuable.' It doesn't matter whether or not there are communities there that have built traditions and culture and lived for generations. So we wanted to really look at that and get people to understand that this championship team comes at a cost."

Other topics this season include gentrification in Los Angeles' Chinatown; the vibrant food, nightlife and cultural scenes of the oft-misunderstood Tijuana, Mexico; and the unsustainable financial model of the restaurant industry.

Joe Mantegna OF 'AS WE SEE IT' ON AMAZON

As a parent of an autistic daughter, was playing the father of an autistic son in "As We See It" an immediate look for you?

It's the great thing but also the difficult thing. When I got this, I didn't know whether I wanted to keep the separation between my life and my job. There's a blending here, where I leave one situation and go into a similar one in a different way ... but it's OK. I was afraid of it, but it's been interesting in a good way. I think that's because of the quality of the show, and it will help others. It's even helped me.

How does your daughter feel about your doing "As We See It"?

Her degree of being on the spectrum of autism is stronger than that of any of the actors on the show, so her comprehension is not quite as easy to define or understand. I'm pretty sure she's aware of what I'm doing, and like anything else, she embraces it. She's so pure of heart and so open, as long as it looks like I'm having a good time, all is right with the world.

She has a background in makeup, and (the series' producers) offered her a position on the crew ... but to spend 10 or 12 hours in a trailer on the set, just to touch up people, her time is better spent doing a lot of other things we have her involved in. She's always welcome to be a part of that, though.

2022 Winter Olympics

8 p.m. on WXIA

Tonight in Beijing, all eyes will be on American snowboarder Chloe Kim to see if she can successfully defend her 2018 gold medal in the women's halfpipe. Four years ago in PyeongChang, Kim scored a near-perfect 98.25 out of 100 and at 17 became the youngest snowboarder to top a podium at the Olympics. She's also the reigning World and X Games champion in the halfpipe. One who could challenge her is 17-year-old prodigy ONO Mitsuki of Japan.

One of Earth's most beloved birds is celebrated in the new episode "Penguins: Meet the Family," which features all 18 species of penguins for the first time, in environments stretching from the Galapagos Islands and Antarctica to New Zealand and Cape Town, South Africa. In addition to the expected moments of whimsy, the hour also doesn't shy away from covering the perils these charming creatures face, ranging from break-neck rock-climbing to extreme temperatures and voracious predators.

Worst Cooks in America

In the new episode "The Good, the Bad and the Burnt," chefs and mentors Anne Burrell and Cliff Crooks introduce their recruits to cowboy cuisine, Southwestern flavors and ingredients, and teach them how to make eggs Benedict. tonight's PICKS

LeToya Luckett

Moonlight

8 p.m. on BET

One of the most acclaimed dramas of 2016, writer-director Barry Jenkins' piercing come-of-age drama chronicles three stages in the life of its main character, a young Black man named Chiron, played as an adult by Trevante Rhodes (Alex Hibbert and Ashton Sanders play Chiron as a child and teenager, respectfully). As a drug dealer who becomes a surrogate father to the boy, Mahershala Ali won an Academy Award as best supporting actor, while Jenkins earned an Oscar for this adapted screenplay. The film itself was named the year's best picture.

Line Sisters

8 p.m. on LIFE

This new thriller is set on the Outer Banks of North Carolina, where four sorority sisters — Valerie, Cassandra, Simona and Dominique — have reunited for a Black Greek Weekend celebration. The quartet had met years earlier when they pledged Alpha Beta Omega sorority together, but that's not the only bond they share: They're also somehow linked to the tragic death of a pledge 15 years ago. Soon after they arrive for this gathering, strange, sinister events begin to unfold. LeToya Luckett, Kierra Sheard-Kelly, Ta'Rhonda Jones and Drew Sidora star.

Puppy Bowl XVIII

2 p.m. on ANPL
Martha Stewart and Snoop Dogg return as hosts of this year's event, picking up a new role as well: coaches! With Snoop coaching Team Fluff and Stewart repping last year's champions Team Ruff, the pair will cheer on their puppy players while giving each other a few challenges along the way. Celebrity pet groomer Jess Rona also drops by to help the coaches get their adorable — and adoptable — pooches ready for play. As always, the big goal is to find forever homes for rescue pets.

Super Bowl LVI

6 p.m. on WXIA

In a fluke of scheduling, tonight's Super Bowl LVI between the Cincinnati Bengals and Los Angeles Rams designates the Rams as the visiting team, despite that the game is on the Rams' home field of SoFi Stadium. Both teams got here via thrilling victories, Joe Burrow and the Bengals via their 27-24 overtime win over the Kansas City Chiefs in the AFC Championship game, and Matthew Stafford and the Rams with their hard-fought 20-17 triumph over the San Francisco 49ers in the NFC title contest. So this game, called by NBC's Al Michaels and Cris Collinsworth, has a lot to live up to.

Around the World in 80 Days on Masterpiece

8 p.m. on WGTV

Episode 7 finds Fogg, Passepartout and Abigail (David Tennant, Ibrahim Koma, Leonie Benesch) racing through the Rocky Mountains on their way to making a critical train connection. Very much against his preference, Fogg reluctantly lets a laconic lawman and his fugitive prisoner share their chartered stagecoach, unaware the captive's cronies are in hot pursuit. Events reach a climax in a violent showdown at sunset. John Light and Gary Beadle guest star; Jason Watkins and Peter Sullivan also star.

Bob Saget was 'Funniest' first

Q: I was sorry to learn of the passing of Bob Saget. Was he the first host of "America's Funniest Home Videos"? – Kara Connors, via email

A: He was. ABC enlisted him to help inaugurate that show in 1989 (as a special before it became a regularly scheduled series), two years after he debuted in "Full House" for the network, and he stayed as the presenter of viewer-generated videos until 1997. John Fugelsang and Daisy Fuentes then became the hosts for two seasons.

The show then reverted to recurring-special status with a variety of hosts including Steve Carell and D.L. Hughley, and became a weekly series again in 2001 with Tom Bergeron presiding. He stayed until 2015, when Alfonso Ribeiro (who has said he had Bergeron's active support to follow him) succeeded him.

Q: I watch a lot of "Chicago Fire" repeats, and I've noticed that the character Brett isn't in earlier episodes. When did she join the show? – Jamie Dodge, Wheeling, W. Va.

A: Kara Killmer has been a regular on the show in the role since the start of its third season, when Sylvie Brett was introduced as a paramedic partner for Gabby Dawson (Monica Raymund) after the death of Leslie Shay (Lauren German). Episodes involving Shay instead of Brett continue to show up regularly in weekly "Chicago Fire" marathons on USA Network and ION Television, and all of the existing episodes are available on the Peacock streaming service.

"I think that's when you do your best work, when you know a subject in and out, and you can help with ... hopefully, not your bias, but with your open eyes. A lot of times in meteorology, I've been told that I don't need a script, because I just speak what I know." – Ginger Zee of "Good Morning America" and "Hearts of Heroes" on ABC

"I connected with (title star) Élodie (Yung) immediately. We just hit it off, and almost too much ... because we're supposed to be doing a drama, and half the time, she's cracking up during the scenes that are not supposed to be funny in any way, shape, or form." – Oliver Hudson of "The Cleaning Lady" on Fox
