COVINGTON, Ga. — Residents ushered in 2022 with a terrifying twist as a tornado touched down in Newton County on Friday evening. Power lines were downed, vehicles overturned, trees uprooted and a school building damaged as result of the New Year's Eve storm. Only a handful of minor injuries were reported.

Initial reports from county officials and a Newton County Sheriff's Office spokesperson confirmed the tornado swept through the intersection of Salem and Brown Bridge Road around 6 p.m. on Friday. Several power lines and COVINGTON, Ga. — Joseph Gossett believes up to 70 trees on his west Newton County property were uprooted by an EF-1 tornado on New Year's Eve.

Gossett and his wife, Aubree, were outside refilling a deer feeder at their Forest Road home, located just north of the intersection of Salem and Brown Bridge roads, when the twister wreaked havoc on the area.

"We've got a deer feeder out back," Gossett said. "When my wife got home from work about 5:30 p.m., we went outside to go fill it back up."

Walton driver charged in fatal motorcycle crash in Newton

By TOM SPIGOLON
 tspigolon@covnews.com

COVINGTON, Ga. — The Newton County Sheriff’s Office has charged a Monroe resident following an August wreck in which a motorcycle rider was killed in north Newton County.

Laura Wade Spencer, 43, was arrested Dec. 15 and charged with vehicular homicide and other crimes in connection with the Aug. 21 incident on Georgia Hwy. 81 at its intersection with Duncan Road in Oxford.

Michael Lamm, 32, of Lexington was killed and his wife, Kellie Lamm, 36, was injured in the crash after they were thrown from the Harley-Davidson FLHXS motorcycle they were riding.

An investigating deputy reported Spencer was driving in a 2016 Kia Sportage northbound on Georgia Hwy. 81 at Duncan Road at about 12:34 p.m. She told the deputy she “looked away for a split second” and looked up before seeing traffic was stopped.

Spencer then “swerved to her left across the double yellow line to avoid stopped traffic” and struck the motorcycle head-on while it was in the southbound lane, the report stated.

The motorcycle continued traveling, left the roadway and went 70 feet. Both driver and passenger were found thrown from the vehicle on the ground with serious injuries, it stated.

Michael Lamm was taken to Piedmont Newton Hospital where he was pronounced dead. Kelli Lamm was taken to Grady Hospital in Atlanta by Airlife 1 air ambulance.

Spencer was charged with Homicide by Vehicle in the First Degree and Serious Injury by Vehicle, both felonies; and Homicide by Vehicle in the Second Degree, Driver to Use Care/Proper Use of Radio or Mobile Telephone, Improper Passing, Following Too Closely, and Reckless Driving, all misdemeanors.

Residents of Covington who submitted some tornado damage photos, said it seemed like the twister turned up in the blink of an eye with little-to-no notice.

“There was no warning, no emergency siren,” Lauren Greene said. “Just a few flicker [of] the power going off and on, and then ... see the photos.”

The National Weather Service in Peachtree City issued a tornado warning at about 5:45 p.m. for parts of Morgan, Newton and Walton counties including Covington, Oxford and Social Circle.

Veterans Memorial Middle School, located at 13357 Brown Bridge Road, suffered significant damage. Jett said a portion of the school’s roof was taken off by the twister.

No one was inside the building at the time of the incident, a Newton County Schools spokesperson said.

Chief Operations Officer Michael Barr said there appeared to be no structural damage but cleanup would be required before students returned Tuesday.

Barr, as well as Principal Takila Curry and other NCSS Operations staff, went to the school shortly after the storm hit, spokesperson Sherri Partee said.

“We are very fortunate this occurred when school was closed and no one was on campus,” Superintendent Samantha Fuhrey said. “The damage can be repaired. We’re just thankful that no one was there, and that we have no injuries to report. We will work to get the debris cleared and ensure the school is safe for students to return on Tuesday.”

Workers were seen on campus Saturday making repairs at the school.

After the tornado touched down in west Newton, the storm cell could be seen headed toward the city of Covington and into the Social Circle area. No damage from those two specific areas was reported.

Ann Wolfe Wildmon, of WildArt Gallery on the Covington Square, sent photos of the funnel cloud as seen from the downtown area.

She said she had just led her final paint party of the year when she walked out her front door and “could see (a) weird dark cloud down Washington Street.

“It had little gray spirals downward,” Wildmon said. “When it changed colors at the bottom to more brownish, I heard sirens.”

Wildmon said she pulled some tourists from North Carolina into her gallery as the alarms sounded.

“I trust a building built in 1890,” she said. “(I) watched it scoot behind the courthouse. Once it got near Hwy. 278, it got darker.”

At approximately 8:30 p.m., the National Weather Service officially ruled the storm a tornado. A survey of the storm was completed Saturday.

County Chairman Marcello Banes, who was at the site of significant damage at the intersection of Salem and Brown Bridge Road shortly after the storm passed, said Newton County was fortunate there was no loss of life.

“Through it all, it is my understanding that we didn’t have any loss of life,” Banes said in a video message on social media. “And so we’re thanking God for that. I’m so thankful to our sheriff, Sheriff Ezell Brown, and the deputies on the scene. They were out and they were doing what they do. You know, they see trouble and then they run towards trouble, and they help in the times of trouble. Our fire department and chief Mike Conner; I’m so thankful for them as well ... Our EMA Department. I’m so thankful for Jody Nolan and his team. Our Public Works Department ... We’re just so thankful that our first responders were able to get there and assess everything and make sure everybody was OK.”

Covington woman, brother recovering after tornado flips, destroys family car

By TOM SPIGOLON
 tspigolon@covnews.com

COVINGTON, Ga. — Ali-sha Jacques has some bruises and was recovering at home Monday after she and her brother got a little more excitement than they planned on New Year’s Eve.

“I’m trying to get comfortable and lay down but it’s extremely difficult,” she said.

An EF-1 tornado with a 90 mph wind gust picked up her 2015 Ford Escape and flipped it in the parking lot, trapping her and her brother outside Chick-fil-A on Brown Bridge Road Friday night.

“It just picked up and flipped my car three or four times. It landed on my side. The horn was beeping and the windshield was shattered.

“It was horrifying,” she recalled.

Like many others that day, she said she never heard a warning about severe weather approaching the area before traveling with her disabled brother from their home near Georgia Hwy. 212.

“If there was a warning out, I wouldn’t have gone out,” she said. “I hate tornadoes.”

The two had traveled to the restaurant about 5:30 p.m. because it was closing early for New Year’s Eve.

However, just after 5:45 p.m., a severe thunderstorm over Oxford moving east at 25 mph started to form a funnel cloud. Morgan, Walton and Newton counties were then placed under a tornado warning, according to Fox5 News.

Jacques, who works for a cellphone company, said she was waiting for her order in the drive-through line when she saw sparks fly from an electric transformer on a power pole outside the restaurant.

She said the lights went out at the restaurant and the wind began blowing hard.

“(The wind) just gusted all of a sudden. We had no time to think. There was no time to do anything.

“I couldn’t go anywhere.

There was a car behind me ... in front of me.”

She said she tried to pull up beside the truck in front of her “but it didn’t help.”

“I tried to get up to the truck in front of me to, like, pull up beside him. I even pulled up window to window with him and it did nothing,” she said.

“It still picked up my car and threw it. It was crazy.

“We were in the third lane and ended up at the front door.”

She said both of them had seat belts on and — at that point — she was more worried about her brother than herself.

“(At first) I didn’t want him to get out. I want to make sure that he was OK,” said Jacques, who is her brother’s caregiver.

“Thankfully, he was able to get out. I just pushed him to get him out of the car. He was able to get out with help and he pulled me out.”

Her brother was able to get out with help from a Chick-fil-A manager and her brother was able to pull her out

COVID rise leads judge to postpone jury date to February

By TOM SPIGOLON
 tspigolon@covnews.com

COVINGTON, Ga. — Those told to report Jan. 10 for jury duty in Covington will instead begin their service in February.

The January 2022 term of court in Covington will begin the week of Feb. 14 instead of Jan. 10, said Superior Court Judge Jeffrey Foster.

“Please be advised — as a result of the rapidly rising rate of infection and the greater apparent transmissibility of the latest COVID-19 variant, the Newton County January 2022 term of court, regular civil and special criminal trial session, currently beginning Monday, Jan. 10, 2022, at the Judge Horace J. Johnson Judicial Center in Covington, Georgia, has been postponed until the week beginning Monday, Feb. 14, 2022,” Foster announced.

He said jurors summonsed do not need to appear Jan. 10 and will receive a new notice for the Feb. 14 date.

Banes also thanked the crews of Snapping Shoals EMC for their efforts.

“Again, we’re just so thankful because it could’ve been another way,” Banes said. “We’re just so thankful to God that it wasn’t.

“The families that were injured in this, we want to ask Newton County to please cover them in prayer,” he added. “We understand that there was someone that we think had some broken ribs, and someone that broke their wrist. But God is so amazing. He covered this community. Any time something like [this] actually hits your community ... it’s hard to not have a loss of life, but the Lord spared everyone here.”

NWS says tornado’s path stretched more than 2 miles

By TOM SPIGOLON
tspigolon@covnews.com

COVINGTON, Ga. — The New Year’s Eve tornado in west Newton damaged a school and tossed cars like toys but left small gaps untouched on its seven-minute tear through the county.

The EF-1 twister caused six minor injuries and moved at a peak speed of about 90 mph as it traveled on a 2.5-mile, 75-yard-wide path roughly parallel with Brown Bridge Road late Friday afternoon.

It damaged 12 homes, Veterans Memorial Middle School, Publix and a Chick-fil-A, where it tossed two cars 100 feet and flipped them in its parking lot, according to a preliminary report from the National Weather Service (NWS) Saturday, Jan. 1.

In this photo submitted by a reader, the EF-1 tornado that touched down in west Newton County can be seen from Interstate-20, exit 90 for Covington and Oxford. A NWS report said the storm moved at a peak speed of about 90 mph for approximately 2.5 miles.

Road. A few trees were snapped, the report stated.

“Both video evidence and ground surveys suggest the tornado was sporadic in its contact with the ground as evident by small gaps in damage, particularly in the beginning of the track.”

The tornado continued in an east-northeast path along Brown Bridge Road, snapping more trees and blowing down a fence along Glynshire Court and Roberts Road, the report stated.

“The tornado reached peak intensity of 90 mph as it hit Veterans (Memorial) Middle School, removing significant amounts of siding and roofing from the gymnasium and sections of roof.”

It then crossed Slades Mill Court, uprooted trees and caused minor damage to two homes before entering the intersection of Brown Bridge and Salem roads.

of 10 homes along Tulip Poplar Way and Mary Jane Lane before the tornado lifted back up near Shiver Boulevard around 5:46 p.m.

The twister was an EF-1 tornado because it had winds between 86 and 110 mph, which is comparatively weak based on the Enhanced Fujita scale the NWS uses to classify tornadoes. The scale ranges from EF-0 (65 to 85 mph) to EF-5 (more than 200 mph).

The weather service’s report added that it was “subject to change pending final review of the events and publication in NWS storm data.”

In a related issue, the tornado damaged the traffic signal light on Brown Bridge Road at Walmart and it would not be operational until a new signal can be installed, according to information from the county government.

RECOUNTS:

At that time, Gossett said the skies were relatively clear and there were no signs of the monstrosity headed their way.

“All of a sudden, the wind picks up – starting blowing really hard. And then it sounded like a heavy rain was coming,” he said.

“That’s when my wife said, ‘We need to go get back inside.’”

Then, Gossett said, trees across the back of his 5-acre property began toppling down in droves.

“It looked like a T-Rex was coming through the forest,” Gossett recalled. “Trees coming down left and right by the roots — not snapping. They were being pulled up by the roots.”

Gossett said they darted back inside and sought shelter in a bathroom. But almost as quickly as it came, the storm passed.

“We stayed [in the bathroom] for about 15-20 seconds until it was over,” Gossett said. “From the time my wife got home to the tornado coming through, it was just about eight minutes.”

When the couple went to look at the damage out back, Gossett said they couldn’t open their back door — the entryway they utilized just a few minutes before. Forced to walk around the house, they later realized the storm had “slammed everything” into the back door, creating a barricade.

Thankfully, Gossett said, no one was hurt. The worst damage included fallen trees onto their pool and shop. Several other trees were uprooted across the property, he said.

Gossett did say it felt like the tornado tried to pick up the log home but was unsuccessful.

Despite the many fallen trees, the Gossetts never lost access to electricity.

They were not alerted of the storm until after it had passed, Gossett said, and heard no sirens until after the damage was done.

Per an initial National Weather Service report, the tornado first touched down around the Creekside Lane area, about two miles southwest of the Gossetts’ property, and traveled an approximate 2.5-mile, 75-yard-wide path along Brown Bridge Road at about 90 mph.

A total of 12 homes were damaged, as well as a nearby school and some commercial property. Two vehicles were also upended in the nearby Chick-fil-A parking lot. Only six minor injuries were reported as result of the storm.

Numerous trees at the Gossetts’ home in west Newton County were blown down on New Year’s Eve, falling on their shop and pool.

WARNING:

Eve.

Area residents complained on social media they did not hear sirens go off before a tornado damaged a school, commercial establishments and homes Friday, Dec. 31, along a two-mile path through west Newton County.

“I want to know why I didn’t hear any sirens and I live a half a mile away from it,” one resident asked on the county’s Facebook page.

District 113 State Rep. Sharon Henderson, D-Covington, said neighbors near her west Newton home complained to her that they did not hear sirens before the tornado hit around 5:45 p.m.

Nolan said sirens were in place in three locations in west Newton at the time of the tornado: Fire Station 7 at 11662 Brown Bridge Road; Station 14 at 6169 Hwy. 212; and at the intersection of Kirkland and Salem roads.

However, Vaughn Smith, a meteorologist with the National Weather Service’s Peachtree City office, said weather sirens are only effective as warning devices for those outdoors at the time.

They also only warn someone to take cover immediately rather than prepare for a severe weather occurrence, Smith said. The best methods are use of a NOAA weather radio or weather app for smart phones, he said.

Smith said the National Weather Service sends a notification about a tornado warning to a county-level emergency dispatcher in Georgia who then sends a signal to the sirens to activate them.

Nolan said Newton County operates 23 weather sirens which are tested weekly on Wednesdays at noon. They are located in each of the cities in Newton County as well as throughout the county’s unincorporated areas, he said.

The sirens “primarily are placed where they could provide warning” to people outdoors in the nearby area, Nolan said.

Each siren costs $15,000 to $18,000 and can only be “truly effective” as a warning device if one is placed every 1/4 square mile in the county, Nolan said.

“With Newton County having over 276 square miles we would need over 1,100 sirens,” Nolan said.

“Sirens have become less effective due to the insulation factor in homes and businesses,” Nolan said. “A siren only provides minimal service.”

He said Newton County subscribes to a service called Code Red for emergency alert notifications at <https://public.codedred-web.com/CNE/en-US/>

BFB7CC4C6C0A?is-Mobile=true.

“Citizens must register for this service, then they can receive warnings via home phone and or cell phone,” he said. “Citizens can also select to receive text warnings to be sent via email or text messages to their phone.”

“This notification method far surpasses the ability of sirens to warn the public,” he said.

He said the county government has likely done all it can do to publicize the service for which Newton County pays an annual subscription fee.

The county has issued press releases about it and stories about it have been printed in local media outlets like The Covington News,” he said.

“It only takes a few minutes to register. This link is also available on Newton County’s website — I recommend citizens register from a computer rather than their cell phone,” he said.

Henderson said Code Red and other, similar warning services likely are best used in the event of weather emergencies but said she believed the county needs to consider adding more sirens.

“This tornado is a learning experience,” she said.

John Madden's lasting legacies

It's unlikely anyone associated with professional football had more of an impact on the sport in as many ways as John Madden.

To older fans he was a long-time successful head coach of the Oakland Raiders. To fans in the next generation, he will always be remembered as the voice of the NFL along on Sunday afternoons with broadcast partner Pat Summerall. To future generations, he will always be linked to his Madden NFL video games.

While I have been around long enough to remember Madden patrolling the sidelines for the Raiders, my best memories of him were in the broadcast booth.

Madden compiled an impressive 103-32-7 coaching record with one Super Bowl trophy. He advanced to several AFC championship games. When he stepped away from coaching after the 1978 season many felt he would probably return in a season or two. He never did.

Pro Football Hall of Fame coach John Madden passed away at 85-years-old on Tuesday, Dec. 28, 2021. Associated Press

What Madden did, however, was become one of the most memorable color commentators the sports world has known. His over-the-top personality made him an almost instant hit with fans although, like anyone, he did have some detractors.

While Madden would have been great regardless of his announcing partner, his pairing with Summerall cemented his legacy even further. Those Sunday afternoon games on CBS from San Francisco or Dallas simply felt special.

Unfortunately, since the Atlanta Falcons were typically bad, Summerall and Madden were almost always elsewhere.

His end-of-the-season All-Madden teams were credible simply because his name was associated with it. If a player impressed Madden, then you know he was doing something right.

When CBS lost broadcast rights to the NFL after the 1993 season many fans, myself included, felt the greatest announcing team of all-time would be no more. However, Fox, still a relatively new network at the time, hired both of them and they continued as a team until 2001.

Madden would later broadcast Monday Night Football games on ABC before moving over to Sunday Night Football on NBC. Madden's move to Sunday night actually made that game seem more important than the legendary one the following night.

He was the perfect color commentator because his coaching background allowed fans an insight into the finer workings of the game. Current color commentator Tony Romo also excels in this area.

Madden always seems to truly enjoy what he was doing. His genuine excitement for the game, regardless of where he was week to week, was contagious and fans were captivated by his chalkboard diagrams and play breakdowns.

He was a natural actor and his life-loving style was evident in everything he did from commercials to appearances in music videos.

Professional football, at its core, is entertainment. We all watch the games to be entertained. For decades Madden was part of that entertainment each Sunday afternoon and later Sunday and Monday nights.

His voice will live on through NFL Films features as well as YouTube. The broadcast booth hasn't been the same since he left, however, and it's sad to say we all know it will truly never be the same now.

Hugs, handshakes, elbows and fist bumps

Someone outside of my family hugged me last week. It was like a sneak attack, I didn't see it coming.

A lovely lady in my workplace, who works an opposite shift from me, caught me by surprise. We had not seen each other in a year or so because we had both been working limited hours, often from home.

So when I saw her, I walked over to her desk for an in-person greeting, and she sprung to her feet and embraced me. It almost took my breath away, for two reasons. One, she's a serious hugger. She hugs like she means it. And two, of course, is the fear factor. During the past year, my brain has been programmed to avoid human contact, pausing the practice of a lifetime of hugs and handshakes. At what point do I revert to normal? Is that for me to decide?

Just a few weeks into the pandemic, Dr. Anthony Fauci said that we should end handshakes forever. He stated that our long-cherished hand-to-hand greeting was the world's No. 1 germ spreader. When he said that, many of us had no idea what we were getting into. I read his statement, rolled my eyes, and said, "Yeah, right." The handshake would never go away, not if I had any say so.

Well, maybe he has a point. It takes two to tango, and we now know that hand to hand contact is a bit dicey.

I've shaken a few thousand hands in my day, from the bone crushers to the dead fish. I've exchanged high fives, low fives, and responded to requests to "Gimme some skin!"

Thankfully, I have avoided any major illnesses that could be attributed to handshakes and hugs. I imagine most folks could say the same.

But like everything else we see, say, and do, the world has changed. Who wants me to shake their hand, or go in for a hug? And how will I know who's open for business? It's too awkward to wear a sign around your neck, right?

Even so, if I'm open for a handshake, and you're willing to join in, how do I know you've sanitized within the past few minutes? How can you be sure about me? Must we be like dogs, and sniff each other (I'm talking about hands, folks) before we formalize our greeting?

Some "experts" are already promoting alternatives to handshakes. (I put that word in quotation marks because I've always believed an expert is someone from out of town, which makes us think they are superior in some way. This is why I often make speeches outside my hometown, because people who don't know me think I'm smart.)

Anyway, these out-of-town know-it-alls have convinced most of the free world to bump fists or connect elbows in lieu of the feared handshake. Certainly, a case can be made that these are relatively germ-free alternatives, but I wouldn't necessarily call them safe, and they're definitely not graceful.

I have gone in for the fist bump, while my friend has offered an elbow. He or she quickly switches to the fist, at the same time I have countered with an elbow. This is followed by quizzical looks and awkward silence. Not exactly the ideal greeting.

I have also encountered those who think the fist bump should be offered with the same power as a Mike Tyson knockout punch. Same with the elbow greeting, which should be more of a graze, and not a collision. A shot to the funny bone is no laughing matter. Plus, now that we've been trained to sneeze into the fold of our arm, I'll bet a few of those sneezy germs have taken up residence at the Elbow Inn.

As for hugs, it becomes even more complicated. There's the full-bodied, affectionate hug. For a more casual acquaintance, there's the neck-hug. For someone you don't know that well, there's the side-hug. Our "guy" friends get the bro-hug. The most embarrassing hug is the head-knock. Neither side is sure what to do, so in the midst of all the clumsiness, while trying to decide between the full-body, the neck-hug, or the side-hug, your head crashes into the other person's noggin, creating a massive headache for both parties. Those are the hugs I do not miss.

Now, some are suggesting a nod, a salute, a "head dip," a bow, or even a little dance. Who knew a simple greeting could be so complicated?

The next few weeks will tell the tale. I am now fully vaccinated, and yearn to be social again. I have a new book coming out, and will soon be speaking to clubs and churches. Fair warning: unless you're wearing a "CLOSED" sign, I may be coming in for a hug.

Reader says some of Rams' athletic history untold

To the Editor:

My compliments on the Bicentennial Edition for Newton County. The articles on the various histories of our county made for some great reading.

That said, I was disappointed to see a lot of missing information in the Education Section. The article on the three high schools' athletic success has a glaring omission and that the Newton Basketball Teams.

While Ron Bradley was coaching at Newton, the team won Region Championships in 1961, 1962, 1964, 1965, 1966, 1968, 1969, 1970, 1971 and 1972. In addition, Newton's home court winning streak of 129 is the longest of any high school in the country. The old gym on Newton Drive was called "Death Valley" for a reason.

My old yearbooks from 1963-1967 do not indicate whether the girl's teams won any Region Championships but I remember them being State Runner-up in 1963.

Finally, there should have been an inclusion of the RL Cousins High School teams prior to the 1970 consolidation. I remember seeing their football team in the late 1960's and that team was strong.

This part of our history should have been researched in more depth and there are more than a few residents who could have contributed.

Sincerely,
Mike Lassiter

She said she could not find her phone but her Apple Watch was able to activate her car’s emergency system that called the police. An ambulance later transported them to Piedmont Walton Hospital in Monroe.

“Everything hurts,” she said. “Trying to breathe, trying to move around.”

She also said she used her vehicle to do family errands.

Now she is renting a vehicle and facing the task of working with her insurance company to buy a new vehicle, Jacques said.

Covington plans to open warming shelter next week

By TAYLOR BECK
tbeck@covnews.com

COVINGTON, Ga. — With freezing temperatures expected in the coming weeks, the city of Covington has entered into a partnership with two local entities to open a warming shelter.

Bailey Dickinson, who is a ICMA Management Fellow for Covington and led the initiative, said the city’s warming shelter project had been in the works for several months. After many hours of discussion, the city entered into a public-private partnership with Willing Helpers Medical Clinic and Grace United Methodist Church to operate the shelter.

The shelter, to be located at Grace United Methodist Church’s fellowship hall, will be open from 6 p.m. to 7 a.m. each day for the area’s homeless population, Dickinson said. The anticipated start date is Monday, Jan. 10. The shelter is anticipated to end its operation for the winter March 31.

“The city is doing this after months of discussions with faith leaders in the community about homelessness,” Dickinson said. “This is an issue that is important to our community, and the city council wants to do its part towards assisting in the issue.”

Dickinson’s comment alluded to the Covington City Council’s decision Wednesday, Dec. 29, to approve an $100,000 budget amendment to the city’s homeless outreach budget to increase the amount from $25,000 to $125,000. Funds for the project were being pulled from leftover funds across the city budget, Dickinson said.

The shelter would be secured with two private security guards hired to be on site at all times, Dickinson said. Covington police will stop by every two hours to assist in security. A city staff member will be on-call at all times to respond to situations should it be needed, he said.

The budget increase was to account for the cost for security, which amounted to upwards of $80,000, Dickinson told the city council during a special-called meeting.

City Manager Scott Andrews said the issue was a delicate one because, while the desire to help others was great, being fiscally responsible with taxpayer monies was a chief priority.

Councilman Kenneth Morgan believed the shelter was “not a waste of taxpayer money,” and that the council should approve the budget amendment and move forward with the plans for a warming shelter.

Councilman Anthony Henderson said he simply wanted “a place for people to go” while also doing what was financially best for the city.

Councilman Don Floyd said he was more in favor of seeking alternative funding options to provide some relief. Councilwoman Susie Keck suggested looking at using ARPA funds.

“We’ve got millions of dollars that the feds have given to us to use for COVID relief,” she said. “We should be able to use it to make this happen.”

In the event ARPA funds might not be eligible to use for such a project, a motion was made to approve 5-0 the budget amendment and deem the shelter be funded through the city’s contingency fund, but later replaced if funding was found elsewhere.

A few days later, during its Jan. 3 meeting, the council voted 5-0 to approve a formal contract agreement with Willing Helpers Medical Clinic to operate the shelter at a cost of $125,000.

Councilwoman Fleeta Baggett was absent from both meetings on medical leave, Mayor Steve Horton said.

Georgia defensive back Derion Kendrick holds up the trophy after the Bulldogs' win against Michigan in the Orange Bowl NCAA College Football Playoff semifinal game Friday, Dec. 31.

Angry Dawgs

No. 3 Georgia beats Michigan 34-11 in CFP

By RALPH D. RUSSO

Associated Press

MIAMI GARDENS, Fla. — With one overwhelming half at the Orange Bowl, No. 3 Georgia showed that a humbling loss to Alabama did not break the Bulldogs. In fact, it might have made them even stronger. Stetson Bennett threw three touchdown passes, Nakobe Dean led an angry defense and Georgia returned to its dominant ways, beating No. 2 Michigan 34-11 on Friday night to advance to the College Football Playoff championship. “Answered a million questions about our team, bouncing back and how you played,” Georgia coach Kirby Smart said. “We’ve got a lot of high-character guys on this team and they played their tail off today.” Georgia (13-1) earned a rematch with Southeastern Conference nemesis Alabama (13-1) in the title game Jan. 10 in Indianapolis. It was 27 days ago the Crimson Tide rolled through the Bulldogs, shattering their air of invincibility after a 12-0 regular season in which they were hardly challenged. “All our guys did was work,” Smart said about how they responded to the loss and three weeks of being asked what went wrong. The Bulldogs quickly answered any questions about whether the damage from that 41-24 setback would linger. Georgia became the first team in the eight-year history of the CFP to score on each of its first five possessions and led 27-3 at halftime. “We knew we were better than what we showed that last game,” Bennett said. Michigan (12-2) entered its first playoff appearance off a milestone season, having ended a long drought against rival Ohio State on the way to winning the Big Ten. “Let’er rip,” Michigan coach Jim Harbaugh told ESPN moments before kickoff. The Bulldogs most certainly did, playing like a team out to prove a point. Georgia scored touchdowns the first two times it had the ball, moving it at will against Heisman Trophy runner-up Aidan Hutchinson and the Michigan defense. Bennett found freshman tight end Brock Bowers for an 8-yard touchdown pass to cap an 80-yard opening drive. “That set the tone for the game,” Smart said. Georgia grabbed a two-touchdown lead, hitting Michigan with some of the trickery the Wolverines have used so well. Tailback Kenny McIntosh swept to the right

COVINGTON, Ga. — Three local players were recently selected to the Atlanta Journal-Constitution's 2021 All-State football teams.

For each classification, from 7A - 1A-Public, the AJC voted on All-Offensive, All-Defensive and Honorable Mention selections. Selections were unveiled Dec. 30.

Eastside had one player make an appearance on the Class 5A All-Offensive team.

Jalen Farmer was voted onto the team as an offensive lineman, but his defensive statistics weren't anything to overlook.

During his senior campaign, Farmer recorded 50 tackles in addition to his two sacks and one touchdown. His contributions earned him Region 8-AAAAA's Lineman of the Year. He also made an appearance on the All-Covington News team as a defensive lineman.

However, Farmer wasn't the only Eagle to be recognized by the AJC.

Social Circle's Preston to future soccer career at Young Harris

By PHILLIP B. HUBBARD

phubbard@covnews.com

SOCIAL CIRCLE, Ga. — Playing soccer on the collegiate level has been an aspiration of Tess Preston's for the past several years. However, when deciding which college to play for, she said there were many factors. For Preston, deciding to sign to continue her soccer career at Young Harris on Nov. 30 largely had to do with location of the campus. Location of Young Harris' campus was appealing to Preston when she went on an official visit. “Young Harris sits in a valley, surrounded by mountains and is the most beautiful campus that I visited during college tours and the recruiting process,” Preston said. “The academic and athletic facilities were extremely nice as well.”

In addition to location, Preston highlighted other components that were crucial in her final decision. Pointing to Social Circle being a smaller school, Preston said that the smaller school size of Young Harris gave her a pleasant feeling when arriving on campus. But, there was a special individual that Preston met with whose impact carried a lot of weight in reaching her final decision. Young Harris women's soccer head coach Rob King has been at the helm of the Lady Mountain Lions for the past four seasons. According to Preston, and let loose a perfect pass to Adonai Mitchell for an 18-yard TD that made it 14-0 less than five minutes into the game.

The Wolverines had rolled to their first Big Ten championship since 2004 without trailing by as many as seven points this season.

“I mean, we gave everything we got, and we got beat tonight,” quarterback Cade McNamara said. “But I think once we give it a little time, we’ll be able to appreciate a lot of the great things we were able to accomplish this season.”

The Bulldogs tacked on field goals on their next two possessions and Bennett connected on a 57-yard touchdown pass to Jermaine Burton streaking down the sideline to make it 27-3 with 1:38 left in the half.

And that was pretty much that. The Bulldogs outgained the Wolverines 330-101 in the first 30 minutes.

“I thought our (defensive) front controlled the line of scrimmage. I thought our offensive line controlled the line of scrimmage,” Smart said. “That’s a total team effort.”

The Georgia defense that was setting an historic pace, allowing less than a touchdown per game before getting shredded by Alabama, smothered a Michigan offense built to bully opponents.

The Bulldogs were having none of that.

Dean, the Butkus Award-winning linebacker, diagnosed plays before the snap and chased down ball carriers from sideline to sideline.

Dean said he made note of how heading into this game, for the first time all season, Georgia’s defensive dominance seemed to be in doubt.

“We always want to play with a chip on our shoulder,” said Dean, who had seven tackles, two for losses and forced a fumble.

Massive nose tackle Jordan Davis collapsed the middle of a Michigan offensive line that won the Joe Moore Award as the best in the country.

“That was our plan going in, being a physical, more dominant front,” the All-American Davis said.

Cornerback Derion Kendrick, a transfer from Clemson, had two interceptions and was the defensive player of the game.

The Wolverines finished with 88 yards rushing after coming in averaging 223 per game. McNamara was 11 for 19 for 106 yards passing.

Simply, it was no contest and now the Bulldogs will get a shot at redemption against Alabama, trying to win their first national title since 1980.

All that stands in the way is the most accomplished dynasty in the history of college football, and the rival Smart, a longtime Nick Saban assistant at Alabama, has tried to model his program after.

Smart dodged the celebratory Gatorade bath from his players after the game, Smart said he wanted to get a real shower and get to work on catching the team Georgia has been chasing for five years.

“(Alabama) got a five, six-hour head start,” Smart said. “To be honest with you guys, I’m not interested in celebrating that.”

Georgia opened as 2 1/2-point favorites, according to FanDuel Sportsbook.

THE TAKEAWAY

Georgia: There was plenty of talk about whether Bennett should remain the Bulldogs’ starting quarterback after he threw two interceptions against Alabama. Georgia fans wondered if it was time to make the switch back to USC transfer JT Daniels, who was QB1 to start the season before an injury opened the door for Bennett.

The former walk-on completed his first nine passes against Michigan on the way to 307 yards and showed more than enough arm strength on a 53-yard bomb to James Cook in the second quarter. Bennett was named offensive MVP.

UP NEXT

The Bulldogs will face Alabama for the second time in the CFP title game. The Bulldogs have lost seven straight overall meetings against the Tide, including the 2017 CFP championship in overtime.

No.1 Rams suffer first loss of season

By PHILLIP B. HUBBARD
phubbard@covnews.com

COVINGTON, Ga. — The new year didn’t begin on a happy note for the Newton Rams basketball team. They suffered their first loss of the season on Jan. 1 falling to Prolific Prep (Napa, Calif.) 76-63.

Newton’s record drops to 9-1 overall, but it is still considered the top team in Class 7A.

Now, the Rams will look to rebound in their next matchup.

But they’ll have to wait a little longer to bounce back from their first loss of the 2021-22 season.

Originally, Newton was scheduled to open region play at South Gwinnett on Tuesday, Jan. 4. It was announced, via NHS’ athletics Twitter, that that game was canceled and will be rescheduled for Feb. 10. An exact reason for cancellation was unknown at the time of publication.

The Rams were next scheduled to travel to New Orleans, Louisiana, to compete in the Sugar Bowl Classic Jan. 6-8.

Newton’s region opener will now be against Parkview at home Jan. 11.

King was really helpful throughout the recruiting process.

Just the same, it’s been Preston’s coaches so far in her life that have prepared her for the next chapter of her career.

Particularly Social Circle’s head girls soccer coach Heather Richardson and Rockdale Youth Soccer Association (RYSA)’s coach Keion Yearwood were mentioned by Preston as being huge influences on her soccer career thus far.

And, with their help, Preston firmly believes she’s ready for whatever the next level brings.

“At Social Circle High School, the teachers that I have had over the years are top notch and have prepared me to excel academically,” Preston said. “My club coach Keion Yearwood from RYSA and coach Richardson from SCHS have pushed me on the pitch to work hard and be the best that I can be.”

Dallas Johnson, now the Eagles record holder for rushing yards in a single season, received Honorable Mention for Class 5A.

The reigning Region 8-AAAAA Player of the Year had quite the senior season. He accumulated 3,696 rushing yards and scored 34 total touchdowns.

Johnson was also named the All-Covington News Most Valuable Player.

In Class 7A, Audavon Collins, a senior cornerback for Newton High School, was voted Honorable Mention.

Collins, who tallied 29 tackles and collected one interception in 2021, has already accumulated a few accolades prior to this announcement. He was voted First Team All-Region for Region 4-AAAAAAA as well as Honorable Mention for the All-Covington News team.

Jason Isaacs and Sophia Bush star in "Good Sam," premiering Wednesday on CBS.

For Sophia Bush, "Good Sam" is a good reason to get back into series television. The "One Tree Hill" and "Chicago P.D." alum is both the title star and an executive producer of the CBS medical drama premiering Wednesday, Jan. 5. She plays heart surgeon Sam Griffith, who succeeds her no-nonsense father (Jason Isaacs) as their hospital's chief of surgery after a shooting incident leaves him comatose. When he revives several months later and wants his job back, the relatives have intensified conflicts that her mother and his ex-wife (Wendy Crewson) – the site's chief medical officer – tries to mediate.

"Over the last couple of years, it's been really interesting to work more on developing pilots and other content," Bush reflects, "and also, to be honest, to give myself the first break in my adult life from network TV. Really, it was when I had my first meeting with ('Good Sam' creator) Katie Wech about a couple of scripts that she put the bug in my ear about this show ... and as soon as I read the pilot, I knew this was it for me."

Bush maintains she had no qualms about tackling a medical series when there have been, and are, many others: "I realized that the world of a hospital allows us to explore family – whether it's our parents, our partners, our children, our siblings – and it's also about our health. It's a literal container of life-or death experiences, and we show up and we want to help. I think that's why so many of us are drawn to the medical genre.

"One of the things that makes this show so different to me," adds Bush, "is that the heart of it is this generational seesaw between a father and a daughter. There are these Shakespearean moments, yet there's such humor, and I love being able to laugh with a show that can also make me cry. And both (co-stars) Wendy and Jason are so prolific and smart; their chemistry is off the charts."

The new year is starting for Bush after a very eventful 2021: Not only did she begin production on "Good Sam," she got engaged (to entrepreneur Grant Hughes), and she found podcast success by reuniting with "One Tree Hill" colleagues Hilarie Burton Morgan and Bethany Joy Lenz on "Drama Queens." However, she says "Good Sam" occupies a special space for her now.

"The background of COVID-19, and watching what has happened to our health-care workers and our first responders, makes us all feel even more deeply honored to be representing them to the best of our ability on our show," Bush notes. "We're taking their jobs very, very seriously."

'Next Level Chef' – A cooking competition in three dimensions

As cooking competition series go, Fox's "Next Level Chef" certainly takes the prize for originality, both in its concept and its set. And the one-of-a-kind set also gets points for most cubic feet occupied.

The brainchild of Gordon Ramsay, the hourlong series that premieres Sunday, Jan. 2, pits a wide array of competitors – everything from line cooks and home chefs to social media stars and food truck owners – on a gleaming three-story set, each containing a kitchen with a different level of equipment and ingredients. So while the top level has the best of everything, the middle will have somewhat less and the bottom pretty spartan.

Mentoring the contestants through this gauntlet in which they move up and down based on performance will be Ramsay and fellow chefs Nyesha Arrington and Richard Blais, who will each try to bring out the best from their team of competitors.

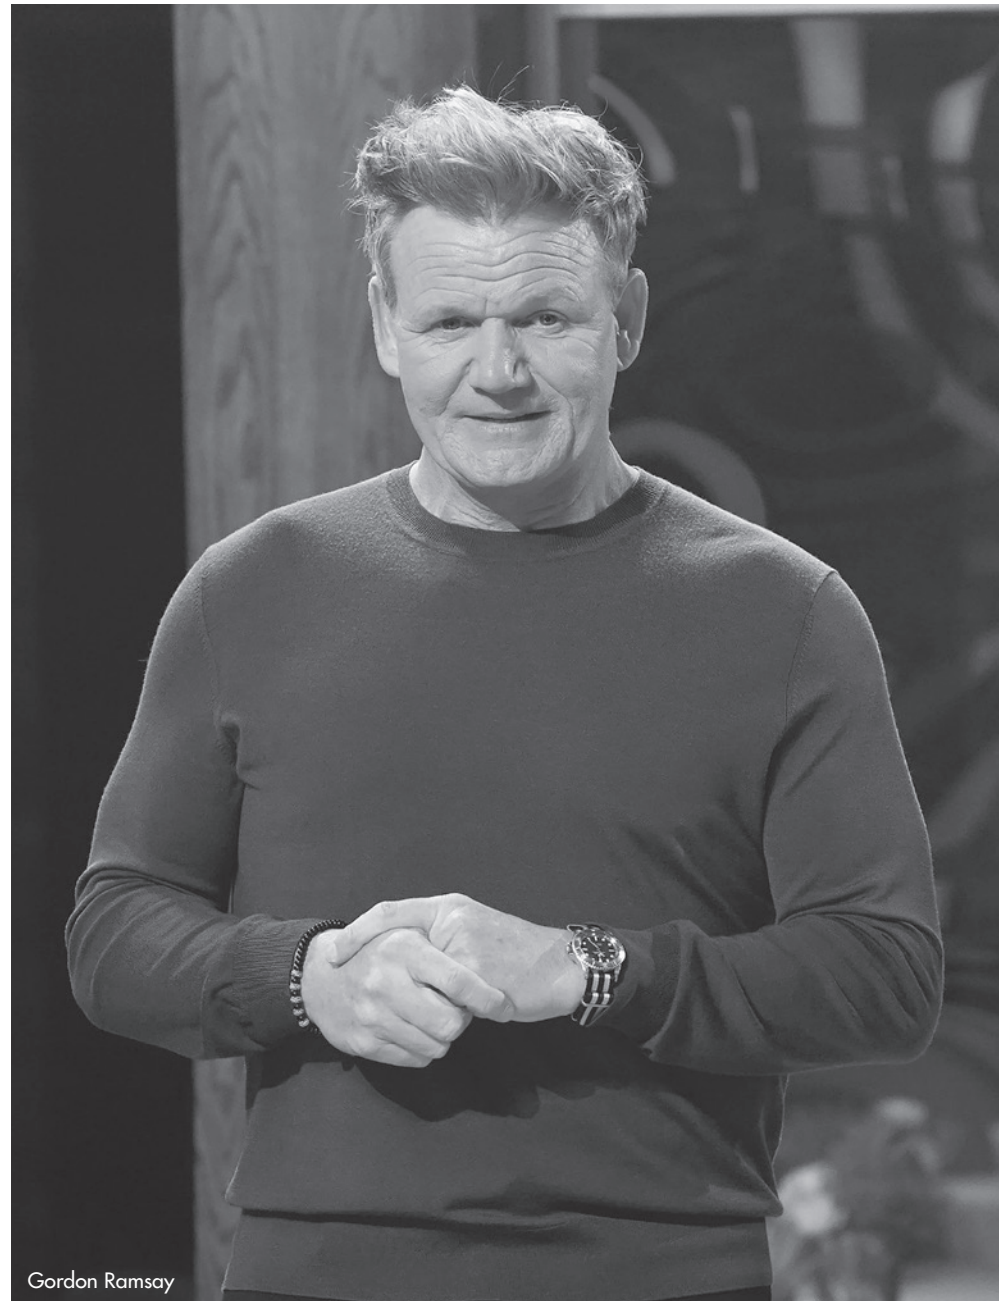

"It's really like the retelling of my career or Nyesha's or Richard's," explains Ramsay, who is also an executive producer here. "We all started at the bottom working in a lousy kitchen before we could make it to the top. So it's a condensed version of any chef's journey but with a twist, thanks to the ingredients platform. That to me makes this competition unique, because you never know what protein may make it to the basement on that platform."

So while a chef upstairs might get a cut of Wagyu beef for their dish, the basement dweller would get ground pork. But that's where the fun begins. Faced with having less at their disposal, the chefs downstairs will have to pull even more tricks out of their hat to compete with those at the top. And that's where the outside-the-box thinking kicks into high gear, according to Arrington.

"I'm in the bottom kitchen so I know that there's not a peeler in this kitchen ...," she says. "(So) when you're grabbing ingredients, you might grab the baby carrots because you know that if you just give those a light scrub they're going to be perfect and you don't have to necessarily go and peel away those older layers of the carrot and you can still bring those to life. So I think something like that is very cool to see the ingenuity behind what they were creating."

In the end, impressive dishes came out of all three levels, both chefs say. But the moral of the story is a real chef can make a delicious meal no matter what they have to work with.

"The bottom level is really about ingenuity and spirit, bringing the spirit of a dish to life ...," Arrington says. "It brought so much emotion out of me just to see the grit and the perseverance that these chefs are bringing to the table. ... You feel like you're on the journey with them."

OF 'RAID THE FRIDGE' ON FOOD NETWORK

What spoke to you about "Raid the Fridge"?

I have always been obsessed with fridges and I started a podcast that is solely an interview show where I interview celebrities based on what's inside their fridge. So when the Food Network told me they were thinking of this idea, I was like, "Oh, it's perfect so long as we can make it a funny show." Because they wanted to be a serious version of a food show, kind of like "Chopped" and that. And I was like, "If you want to make it funny, I'm your guy. If not, you can probably find someone more dramatic and handsome than me. But if you want to make it funny, I'm your guy." So they gave it a shot and yeah, I think we have a fun little show in the making.

Can you talk more about your podcast?

Yeah, it's "Green Eggs and Dan." For a while, it was the number one food podcast in the country. It's basically – again, I interview celebrities and each celebrity has to send me a picture of the inside of their fridge. And we put it on blast and basically we go through it and then it becomes an organic conversation just about their relationship to food.

Like I don't really care about their career or how they became famous. It's more just like, 'I wanna know what does Henry Winkler have for breakfast.' And it's always really fascinating because everyone has a relationship to food even if their relationship to food is that they don't have a relationship to food. And I think that for me, I am so passionate about food that when I'm at a loss for words or loss for conversation, I just start talking about restaurants or food and that's kind of my happy place. So I somehow figured out a way to get paid doing it.

Phil Keoghan

I Carry You With Me

7:05 p.m. on STARZ

Director and co-writer Heidi Ewing's heartfelt 2020 Spanish-language drama, which premiered at the 2020 Sundance Film Festival, chronicles the often turbulent romance of two Mexican men — and aspiring chef (Armando Espitia) and a teacher (Christian Vazquez) — who meet by chance and embark on a relationship that spans decades. Over that time, their love repeatedly is tested by personal ambitions and societal pressures. Michelle Rodriguez, Angeles Cruz and Arcelia Ramirez also are featured. This film festival favorite received extensive critical acclaim.

The Amazing Race

8 p.m. on WGCL

This Emmy-winning reality competition series marks its 20th anniversary as it hits the air with its 33rd edition, which began filming in February 2020, halted during the height of the COVID-19 pandemic, then resumed last fall. The two-hour season premiere opens as 11 new globetrotting teams leave their homes and travel to London, where they must find actor-surrogates playing Queen Elizabeth II and Prime Minister Boris Johnson "having a nosh" together. Phil Keoghan returns as host.

NOVA

9 p.m. on WGTV

As nations around the world try to elevate their prestige with new skyscrapers that rise higher and higher each year, some experts worry that these soaring buildings may be flirting with disaster, despite advances in engineering and architectural practices. The new episode "High-Risk High-Rise" explores the question of how securely these structures would hold up against earthquakes, fires and other potential calamities, as well as what we have — or haven't — learned from past disasters.

Women of the Movement 8 p.m. on WSB

A racially motivated 1950s murder is at the heart of this compelling six-episode limited series, which revisits the notorious Emmett Till case from the perspective of his grieving mother. Tonight's two-hour premiere opens as Mamie Till-Mobley (Tony Award winner Adrienne Warren of Broadway's "Tina") reluctantly agrees to let her restless 14-year-old son, Emmett (Cedric Joe, "Space Jam: A New Legacy"), spend his summer vacation with relatives in Mississippi. Just days after his arrival there, however, Emmett goes missing.

Joe Millionaire: For Richer or Poorer 8 p.m. on WAGA

Fox gives a new spin to a dating show that ran for two seasons in the early 2000s, in which a group of single women competed for the affections of a bachelor billed as a millionaire. Except — plot twist! — the guy wasn't really a millionaire, a fact that was revealed only at season's end. In this new version, 20 women date not one, but two Joe Millionaires, one of whom is rich, but the other one ... isn't. Actor Martin Andrew is the "butler" offering commentary and advice.

Preserving Democracy: Pursuing a More Perfect Union 9 p.m. on WGTV

Airing on the one-year anniversary of the shocking domestic assault on the U.S. Capitol complex in 2020, this new two-hour special explores the ideals and inherent flaws in democracy, as well as what appear to be recurring cycles of progress in racial equality and backlash to those same steps forward. Actress Tamara Tunie ("Law & Order: Special Victims Unit") narrates the documentary, which includes insights from former senior presidential advisor Valerie Jarrett, former U.S. Secretary of Homeland Security Janet Napolitano and author-journalist Robert Costa, among many others.

tonight's PICKS

Lyle Lovett

Undercover Boss

8 p.m. on WGCL

This addictive reality series, in which high-level corporate executives in disguise embed themselves with rank-and-file employees to get a clear-eyed perspective on their company, opens its 11th season with “College HUNKS,” focusing on a Florida-based moving company founded 15 years ago by two Florida buddies. Omar Soliman and Nick Friedman just had a beat-up cargo van when they started their company. Now, they have more than 200 franchises. As they look to an even wider expansion, they want to make sure the company foundation is solid.

Gold Rush

8 p.m. on DISC

In a new episode called “Little Eldorado,” Parker Schnabel gambles 100 ounces to secure prospecting rights on Little Eldorado Creek in Alaska. Elsewhere, Fred Hurt confronts a crew member who’s hiding a secret, while Rick Ness launches a risky mission to rescue Monster Red. Meanwhile, Tony Beets’ crew sink the new D11, chasing gold-rich white channel pay.

Blue Bloods

10 p.m. on WGCL

A reluctant Danny (Donnie Wahlberg) is forced to partner with Maj. Waylon Gates (Lyle Lovett, reprising a recurring guest role), his Texas Ranger associate, to find a newly arrived shipment of illegal narcotics before they flood the New York streets in the new episode “Old Friends.” Elsewhere, while Jamie (Will Estes) is helping a neighbor handle a gambling debt, he makes a troubling discovery about a former mentor. Meanwhile, Mayor Chase (Dylan Walsh) pushes back against Frank’s (Tom Selleck) handling of a brawl between police officers and demonstrators.

What's Available NOW On

"Ice Age: Continental Drift"

(Available now)

In their fourth animated adventure, the prehistoric animal friends — again voiced by Ray Romano, John Leguizamo and Denis Leary — run into new complications, not the least being climate change that breaks their continent apart and causes a literal drift of the pieces. That phenomenon takes them into an encounter with pirates (with "Game of Thrones" award winner Peter Dinklage voicing the captain).

"The Rescue"

(Available now)

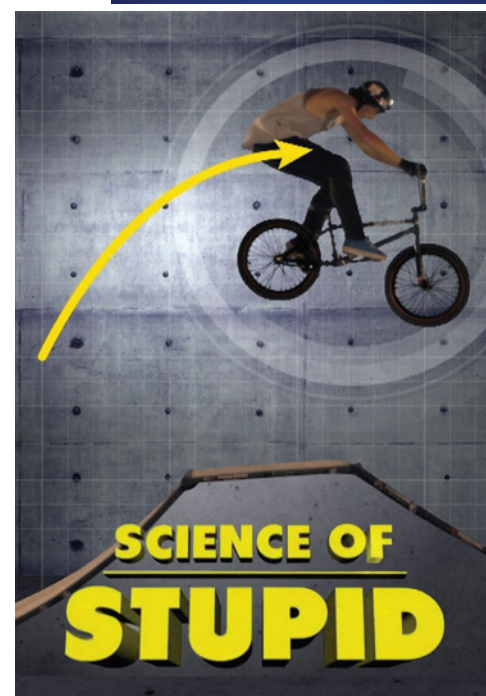

From National Geographic comes this documentary that shines a spotlight on the high-risk sport of cave diving through a story that captured the world's attention in 2018 — the against-all-odds rescue of 12 boys and their coach from deep inside a flooded cave in Northern Thailand.

"Ron's Gone Wrong"

(Available now)

This animated comedy follows Barney (voice of Jack Dylan Grazer), a socially awkward middle-schooler who receives a digitally connected device that's supposed to be his "best friend in a box." But when the bot, Ron (voice of Zach Galifianakis), malfunctions, it sends them both on crazy misadventures. Ed Helms and Olivia Colman are also in the voice cast. (ORIGINAL)

"Science of Stupid: Season 8"

(Available now)

Skydiving without a parachute, a homemade luge track, kayaking over waterfalls and building a champagne tower are among the viral videos to go under the microscope in the eighth and most recent season of this comedic unscripted series from National Geographic. Dallas Campbell ("Airport Live") is the host.

The Hitman's Wife's Bodyguard

8 p.m. on HBO

Following the runaway success of his 2017 action comedy “The Hitman’s Bodyguard,” director Patrick Hughes returned to helm this 2021 sequel, with Ryan Reynolds, Samuel L. Jackson, Salma Hayek and Richard E. Grant reprising their roles from the original. The new story follows suspended bodyguard Michael Bryce (Reynolds) as he very reluctantly re-teams with hitman Darius Kincaid (Jackson) and his wife (Hayek) to stop a madman (Antonio Banderas) plotting a terror attack in Europe. Frank Grillo, Tom Hopper and Morgan Freeman also join the cast.

Spider-Man: Far From Home

10:20 p.m. on FREE

“Spider-Man: No Way Home” is currently in theaters, but star Tom Holland earlier hit it out of the park in this 2019 Marvel blockbuster that not only earned strong reviews from critics but also became the first Spider-Man film ever to gross more than $1.1 billion worldwide. As the story opens, Peter is still mourning the death of his friend and mentor Tony Stark, but he hopes a two-week school trip to Europe with his classmates may be just what he needs. Jake Gyllenhaal also stars.

Ginnifer Goodwin

Call Me Kat

8 p.m. on WAGA

This sweet little sitcom opens its sophomore season with a meta shot from the past, as Kat (May-im Bialik) is shocked and thrilled when Joey Lawrence, Jenna von Oy and Michael Stoyanov from her favorite childhood TV show, “Blossom” — which in real life starred Bialik in the title role — drop by her cat cafe while they’re in town for a celebrity golf tournament. Kat’s also struggling to resolve her current love triangle with Max and Oscar (Cheyenne Jackson, guest star Christopher Rivas).

Pivoting

8:30 p.m. on WAGA

Eliza Coupe (“Happy Endings”), Ginnifer Goodwin (“Once Upon a Time”) and Maggie Q (“Designated Survivor”) star in this new character-driven comedy as three former childhood friends in Long Island, N.Y., who still lean on each other for support in trying times, which currently includes grieving over the death of a fourth member of their group. Tommy Dewey (“Casual”), JT Neal (“Bless This Mess”) and Marcello Reyes (“Modern Family”) co-star in this new series from “The Conners” producer Liz Astrof.

All Creatures Great and Small on Masterpiece

9 p.m. on WGTV

This acclaimed remake of James Herriot’s bestselling novels about a young veterinarian begins a second season of seven episodes, with actress Patricia Hodge (“A Very English Scandal”) joining the cast as wealthy Mrs. Pumphrey, a role played by the late Diana Rigg in Season 1. Season 2 opens as James (Nicholas Ralph) returns from Glasgow, where he has been visiting his parents for Easter. Samuel West, Callum Woodhouse, Anna Madeley and Rachel Shenton also return to the Season 1 roles.

Hilary Farr

9-1-1: Lone Star

8 p.m. on WAGA

That unexpected arctic cold front and an accompanying ice storm continues to wreak havoc on Austin, but that doesn't stop Tommy, T.K. and Gillian (Gina Torres, Ronen Rubenstein, Brianna Baker) as they race to rescue a young boy who fell through a frozen pond in the new episode "Thin Ice." Elsewhere, Mateo and Judd (Julian Works, Jim Parrack) work to help a trapped Paul (Brian Michael Smith), while in the frozen hill country, Owen (Rob Lowe) tries to save a man who was stabbed and left for dead. Billy Burke guest stars.

Tough Love With Hilary Farr

9 p.m. on HGTV

A couple who recently moved back to the United States from Germany can't seem to let go of their memories from abroad. As a result, now the style of their Stateside home and its furnishings are completely out of sync. Hilary struggles to balance what the house really needs to look its best and function most efficiently with these homeowners' changing design choices.

Richard Jewell

9 p.m. on TNT

Set during and after the 1996 Summer Olympic Games in Atlanta, director Clint Eastwood's 2019 biographical drama chronicles how Richard Jewell (Paul Walter Hauser), an aspiring law enforcement officer, is working as a security guard at the Games when he finds and reports a bomb on the premises. Initially hailed as a hero, he is horrified when suspicion mounts that he placed the device himself to gain attention. As Jewell's mother, Kathy Bates earned an Oscar nomination, among other accolades.

The Cleaning Lady

9:01 p.m. on WAGA

When FBI agents show up asking some pointed questions, Thony (Elodie Yung) takes steps to sever ties with the crime syndicate in the new episode "The Lion's Den."

Finding Your Roots With Henry Louis Gates, Jr. 8 p.m. on WGTV

For a new episode called “Activists Roots,” host Henry Louis Gates Jr. explores the family roots of attorney and author Anita Hill, who challenged the Supreme Court confirmation of Clarence Thomas, and Brittany Packnett Cunningham, who served as a member of President Barack Obama’s Task Force on 21st Century Policing. These are two women who have made profound personal sacrifices for social justice, and Gates’ examination of their family histories turns up lost heroes and African-Americans who fought for their rights across past centuries.

Superman & Lois 8 p.m. on WUPA

If fans thought things were getting kind of strained in the farmhouse home of Clark Kent and Lois Lane (Tyler Hoechlin, Elizabeth Tulloch) in Season 1, that situation only escalates as the series returns for its sophomore edition. Season 1 ended with a thunderbolt with the arrival (read: crash-landing) of Natalie (Taylor Buck), the daughter of an alternate version of Lois and John Henry Irons (Wolé Parks). Season 2 also will include an extended arc for Lois’ kid sister, Lucy Lane (Jenna Dewan, reprising a role she previously played on “Supergirl”).

American Masters 9 p.m. on WGTV

This celebrated Emmy- and Peabody Award-winning docuseries launches its 36th season with “Ailey,” a 90-minute exploration of the life and creative impact of visionary choreographer and dancer Alvin Ailey. Born in tiny Rogers, Texas, during the heart of the Great Depression, Ailey grew up hearing blues and gospel music that informed his dances to come, as did the awakening of his own gay identity. The film also shows hip-hop choreographer Rennie Harris as he works on his new ballet “Lazarus,” based on Ailey’s life.

Call her busy: Mayim Bialik continues to juggle TV jobs

Q: I'm interested to see Mayim Bialik coming back in "Call Me Kat" when she's also doing "Jeopardy!" now. Is she just working all the time? – Kim Wendell, Bend, Ore.

A: Pretty much. She obviously had more time for "Jeopardy!" before going back into production on "Kat," which starts its second Fox season Jan. 9. The way she described it to us recently, she spends three weeks of a month on "Kat" and one on "Jeopardy!," but the latter show can tape several episodes in one day and stockpile them for a run over several weeks.

Bialik's "Jeopardy!" commitment (she and Ken Jennings will continue to split the syndication hosting duties for the rest of this television season) also involves hosting special editions for ABC, and she'll be doing that in February with a college-championship edition that will air almost nightly over two weeks. To give up a bit of TV magic, those shows already have been taped, slotted in for production when Bialik had the time for it given her "Kat" schedule.

Q: Where has "Ordinary Joe" been? The show just suddenly disappeared. – Jeff Ryan, via email

A: With the James Wolk-starring drama's highly serialized nature, NBC decided to give it a rest during the holiday period, using that slot for seasonal specials and tryout runs of new shows including "That's My Jam" and "American Auto." However, "Joe" will return to its Monday hour starting Jan. 3 to wrap up its season ... lasting until the network's coverage of the Winter Olympics begins in February.

Send questions of general interest via email to typipeline@gracenote.com. Writers must include their names, cities and states. Personal replies cannot be sent.

"It's an investment for sure, financially and commitment-wise. You have to make sure that you're ready, and that kind of gave my parents the incentive to help me get to where I am now." – Anna Marie Dobbins, seen recently in "Christmas Together" on UPtv, on getting her career started

"Even though Nashville has been known as a huge success, it's the future, too. People just love this music, but it's been ignored a little bit when it comes to New Year's Eve shows. It's a big moment for the city, for country music, and for the fans. They just take this music so personally." – Dierks Bentley, seen recently on "New Year's Eve Live: Nashville's Big Bash" on CBS
