Legislation for direct sales of EVs faces rough go in Assembly

Bill sponsored by Savannah Republican sees much opposition

By TOM SPIGOLON
tspigolon@covnews.com

ATLANTA — Legislation allowing electric vehicle manufacturers like Rivian to sell directly to consumers rather than through dealerships did not make it past last week's Crossover Day but may still have a chance this year.

Senate Bill 398, sponsored by District 1 State Sen. Ben Watson, R-Savannah, faces strong opposition from the trade association representing Georgia vehicle dealers who tend to be major political forces locally.

James Chen, Rivian's vice president of Public Policy and chief regulatory counsel, said Rivian was "committed to working with policymakers in Georgia to do what's right for Georgia consumers, and for the state's long-term competitiveness as a leader in advanced automotive technology."

"Consumer choice and free-market values must be prioritized over narrow special interests if the state is to take that leadership role," Chen said.

However, the Automobile Dealers Association of Georgia stated on its website that, "Ultimately, direct sales by manufacturers will mean dealerships closing and a loss of jobs for hard-working Georgians."

Neither house of the Georgia General Assembly has approved the legislation.

Legislation to allow Rivian and other EV manufacturers to sell directly to the public did not make it past Crossover Day this year.

COVINGTON, Ga. — An outside firm will continue to represent most of Newton County government for its legal affairs after commissioners voted to keep it as their interim attorney while it searches for applicants for a new in-house position.

Board of Commissioners members recently voted 3-2 for a resolution to retain the Cumming-based Jarrard & Davis law firm as its interim attorney while it continues to take applications for the in-house position it has been trying to fill since mid-2021.

District 5 Commissioner Ronnie Cowan said the Board has "got to have an attorney" while it continues to search for applicants.

Commissioners talk funding methods, timing of projects in 10-year parks plan

By TOM SPIGOLON
tspigolon@covnews.com

COVINGTON, Ga. — Newton County commissioners had questions about why some projects were considered and the timing of funding of projects in a plan for future growth of the county's parks program recently.

Commissioners questioned consultants from Lose Design on March 15 about the plan, which suggests $96 million in spending over the next decade for new and upgraded recreation facilities countywide.

It followed a March 1 work session in which they heard details of the Newton County Parks and Recreation 2022-2032 facilities master plan March 1.

An open meeting on the plan is scheduled for Thursday, March 24, at Turner Lake Banquet Hall in Covington.

District 3 Commissioner Alana Sanders asked about what the consultant recommended about the timing of funding for projects in the plan.

Aaron St. Pierre of Lose

Design said the plan calls for a "large capital program" and needed "buy-in" from the community if it is to gain public support.

He said elected officials will need to work to determine the timing of funding.

Newton County Democratic Party

Special to The News

Members of the Newton County Democrats note that Almond J. Turner may be gone, but he's certainly not forgotten. To honor his legacy, Newton County Democrats recently provided a donation to Cousins Middle School and the Newton County School System (NCSS) in his memory. Newton County Democrats' members, Eddie Johnson, Board of Education District 2 Representative, and Anderson Bailey, Board of Education District 4 Representative, presented the check to Cousins Middle School principal, Atosha Logan, and Dr. Shelia Thomas, NCSS Chief Strategy and Support Services Officer. "To honor the Life, Love and Legacy that Mr. Almond Turner left in our hearts, it is with great gratitude that we accept such a prestigious donation at Cousins Middle School," Logan said. "As I always state, 'You can't have family without COUSINS!' but it should really read 'You can't have COUSINS without knowing the impact of Mr. Turner.' He is greatly missed and will forever live in our hearts. Thank you to the Democratic Party for selecting Cousins Middle School as a recipient of this wonderful donation." Pictured, from left, are Bailey, Thomas, Logan and Johnson.

Elections office determining if apartment complex residents are Covington voters

By TOM SPIGOLON
tspigolon@covnews.com

COVINGTON, Ga. — The Newton County Board of Elections may change the voting status of some Covington apartment dwellers after finding they had been city residents but unable to vote in municipal elections. The elections office did not know Leafstone Apartments on Brown Bridge Road was partially inside the city limits, officials said recently. County GIS coordinator Scott Sirotkin said his staff recently determined about 23 of the apartment complex's units are inside the Covington city limits. Leafstone has about 230 total units, according to information from ApartmentFinder.com. State legislators redrew Georgia House of Representatives districts in late 2021 in response to population shifts found in the 2020 federal census. Board chairman Phil Johnson said GIS staff workers discovered the oversight as they surveyed the county's geographic area as part of the process of determining the boundaries of the new House districts. "The whole complex was set to vote in the county," Johnson said. Sirotkin told the board the city's borders appear mostly as a circle on a map because Covington's limits are legally a specific distance in all directions from the center of the city.

As a result, the limits may cut through the middle of some properties without following property lines, Sirotkin said. Johnson suggested asking the county attorney's office to notify the Covington city attorney about the elections office's suspicion about complex residents' voting status. He said officials did not know how many residents currently are affected. Elections officials will work with the complex's owners to determine the number, Johnson said. The board voted to direct Elections Director Angela Davis to list the units within the city to determine which residents are city voters. It also voted to ask the county attorney to tell the Covington city attorney about the situation to allow the city to determine if other similar residential properties are affected in the same way. In other action during the March 14 meeting, the board: • Voted to set Crossroads Baptist Church at 227 Highway 229 as the official Hub precinct location for Election Day voters. • Determined the only Sunday voting day during the Advance Voting period would be May 15 before the May 24 primary elections. The location will be Church of the Good Shepherd Episcopal Church at 4140 Clark St. in Covington.

JDA explains Verner timeline

By DAVID CLEMONS
The Walton Tribune

COVINGTON, Ga. — Longtime JDA Chairman Alan Verner left the organization when it became clear land his family owned would be part of a possible automotive plant, the authority's lawyer said this week. Verner and his relatives own land that has been purchased as part of Rivian Inc. coming to Georgia on a nearly 2,000-acre site that straddles Walton County and his native Morgan County. The Atlanta Journal-Constitution reported this week that the Joint Development Authority of Jasper, Morgan, Newton and Walton Counties holds options to buy 675 acres owned by Verner and four siblings. Verner was a member of the JDA from its founding in 1999 and served as the chairman starting in 2006. He resigned in August 2021, about the time Rivian was zeroing in on Georgia as a finalist for its electric vehicle plant. But talks began early last year, with the JDA discussing possible options for nearby land. Verner abstained from those discussions. "Given his decades of service to the JDA and deep passion for the community, he was willing to resign in advance of Rivian's decision," according to a prepared statement by authority attorney Andrea Gray.

Gray planned to read the statement during the JDA meeting Tuesday morning in Madison. According to Gray, Verner "was not involved in any decisions regarding the project (and) had no inside knowledge or influence on this situation." She said the JDA followed state law which governs development authorities engaging in transactions with its members. Gray said the JDA never marketed the East Atlanta Megasite where Rivian plans to build, but instead the Development Authority of Walton County that marketed the site starting in 2018. "The JDA created and began marketing Stanton Springs North, which is 665 acres in May 2021," Gray said. "The 665 acres owned by the DA does not abut property owned by Alan Verner." JDA bought that land last year to build a frontage road as part of an agreement with Baymare LLC (now Morning Hornet LLC), which said last year it would build a data center at the original Stanton Springs in a $42 billion deal. "Rivian's interest in the site was not the main reason the JDA purchased the 665 acres," Gray said. "At that time, Georgia was only one of the many sites on Rivian's list of potential choices. Without Rivian, the JDA would have constructed the frontage road and marketed it for industrial tenants." Gray also defended the JDA against the allegations by Rivian opponents that the authority acted unethically in pursuing the company. She called those accusations "completely without merit," saying the JDA followed open meetings laws and other best practices. "It is no secret that the JDA has been working to recruit industrial development in this area for 20 years," Gray said. "Nondisclosure agreements have no bearing on how the process was carried out. "Land acquisition matters are discussed in executive session and matters discussed in executive discussion are confidential with or without an NDA."

However, a short-term recommendation for about $18 million for completion of deferred maintenance projects at the county's 13 parks could help show the public the county is serious about implementing the plan, St. Pierre said.

Almost $7 million of the needed maintenance was at City Pond and Turner Lake parks, he said.

He said the next step could include building a project that will benefit the most people, such as one built in the county's most densely populated area, while also providing a smaller project in another area to help encourage support for the plan beyond only one location.

Sanders also noted the consultants only heard from about 100 residents within a population of 113,000 during five public meetings in October.

She asked if the consultants had considered working with Newton County School System officials to gauge what young residents wanted to see built and added to county facilities.

"You have a lot of the centennials and millennial who are not being looked at," she said.

District 2 Commissioner Demond Mason said he was interested in the plan's recommendation that commissioners consider an aquatics center because of his past advocacy for such a facility.

St. Pierre responded

File | The News

Factory Shoals Park presents a 'unique opportunity for us to be able to expand our programming offerings' by adding a 'cultural resource center,' new trails and other amenities, the draft master plan states.

that the plan included an aquatic facility because the county was drastically underserved for such a public amenity.

"We really don't have anything here," he said.

"For a population of 113,000 ... with a significant projected growth in the next 10 years, not having some sort of a quality water recreation facility, whether that's a true aquatic center or a very well-done community pool with a splash pad component, something along those lines, we're a little bit behind the times on that," St. Pierre said.

Newton County is behind other metro Atlanta counties in providing some sort of water-related recreation programming — which can be a factor when Newton is compared against others for their quality of life, he said.

St. Pierre also noted the plan was specific in recommending a multi-use aquatic facility designed for both families and competitive swimmers rather than a facility strictly for competitive swimming — which tends to lose money for its host government.

He noted demand is typically strong for competitive swimming facilities but only affects a small number of people. Having components that interest families, such as splash pads, will help generate the revenue needed for maintaining the facility, he said.

District 1 Commissioner Stan Edwards asked about corporate sponsorship of some facilities. He noted Newton County has "some very, very big players in town and coming to town" that may want to "be in tune with the community," he said.

Katie Troline of GoldMedal Force LLC, who was also a consultant on the plan, said private companies often will assist governments with construction of recreational facilities by providing funding in exchange for public recognition.

Troline said companies typically will provide funding for projects with which they are associated.

"It's all about common philosophy — what they can get from this, the benefits, the exposure, how this relates to this company," she said.

St. Pierre cited examples of Purina pet foods providing the bulk of the funding for a "very nice" dog park in Johns Creek.

Northside Hospital also pays an annual sponsorship fee to Cherokee County for its aquatic center because it offers water-based exercise and recreation, he said.

Growing revenue to help fund recreational projects in the plan also could come from other sources, Troline said.

"In the master plan we do talk about utilizing several revenue sources," she said. "Sponsorships are one, grants are another."

Edwards said he was concerned about the maintenance "backlog" St. Pierre referenced because of potential liability from not upgrading facilities for which maintenance had been delayed.

St. Pierre gave the example of a baseball field with an outfield that is lower than the infield that could lead to injuries to players.

District 4 Commissioner J.C. Henderson said he did not want the plan to "gather dust" as he believed happened with a five-year Comprehensive Master Plan approved in 2005.

He said consideration of the plan in effect made "promises" that facilities in some parts of the county would be built, such as a football field and track to serve such areas as Nelson Heights.

"It just seemed like we had forgot about that and I'm trying to figure out how can we... get that done, keep the promise that had been made and get that done so we can kind of move on," he said.

St. Pierre said the recommendations in the 2022 master plan included development of a new park nearby on Georgia Hwy. 36 that included an open area that could be developed into a multi-purpose field.

He said a separate facility design likely needed to be done to incorporate a playing field and track at the Nelson Heights Community Center in south Covington.

Childhood friend remained a friend for life

Lifelong friend. Classmate. High school star athlete. Hunter. Golfer. Each of these words described Gene Johnston, a fellow member of the Class of 1989 at Piedmont Academy down the road in Monticello. Son. Brother. Father. Uncle. Those words probably describe him better. He accomplished a great deal in his 50-plus years but his family accomplishments are those he was most proud. No doubt they should have been. Husband to Katie and father to Morgan, Mackensie and Maggie, I don't think I ever recall anyone saying a negative word about Gene. How could they? There wasn't anything negative about him. My small hometown is like many small hometowns across the country. We know most everyone. A friendship is a friendship for life.

It's what makes situations like this even tougher. The heartache of Gene's family is shared today by our whole hometown. They are hurting, so we are hurting. Gene and I were technically related but I also viewed him as a good friend. The family ties just made that bond of friendship even stronger. From the time we were young kids, Gene and I shared many interests. From recreation sports to fishing and hunting, Gene and I always seemed to find a common link. I remember us searching the vast network of satellite dish channels to find professional wrestling pay-per-views. We did the same for big boxing events, which typically featured Mike Tyson in those days. Gene was popular with everyone. It's why I often took the chance to let it be known we were related. Perhaps, just perhaps, some of his popularity would spill over to me. As our high school days drew to a close, neither of us was exactly eager for them to be over. Our small class had a family cookout the night before our graduation. After eating we went to have a walk-through for the following night's event. By chance, Gene and I were slated to sit next to each other on the stage in our school gym for graduation. As we hoped against hope our high school days would somehow not end, Gene said, "It will never be the same again after tomorrow." In some ways he was right. In other ways, that night signaled the start of better things. Gene accomplished a great deal in his five decades and I always admired him for those accomplishments. He had many talents but he never took himself too seriously. As we got older our friendship circles grew but we continued to have that bond. I knew he was there for me when I needed him and there was an incident that he always wanted to me share.

"Write about it," he often told me with that ever-present smile on his face. For whatever reason, I never did, until now. It was the fall of 1989. We had only graduated high school a few months earlier. One Friday night we were in the parking lot of the other school in our hometown. The only thing was I didn't know he was there, but as it turned out, I was certainly glad he was. We were both waiting on our girlfriends to take them home following a football game. As the waiting progressed, three current high school students saw me and began walking toward me. I was young and certainly was known to let my mouth write a check that my rear probably couldn't cash. I was a pro wrestling fan, after all. As the three approached it seemed they didn't like me being on their school's turf. It's so silly and absurd in looking back on it. But being young and dumb, I'm sure I said something in response as they demanded to know what I was doing there. As flashes from the movie "The Outsiders" went through my mind, I knew I was about to be on the losing end of an altercation. Suddenly, a voice broke through the darkness. "You don't think I'm going to let this be a 3-on-1 deal," Gene said as he calmly walked up and stood by my side. The three so-called tough guys realized, rightfully so, that Gene could have handled all three of them without whatever help I might have offered during the situation. They knew it. I knew it. He knew it. Gene was the type of football player you would describe with one word: "tough." In basketball, he took the approach on the court of the Detroit Pistons "Bad Boys" of that era. He always seemed to have the ability to drive a baseball over the outfield fence. The fearsome three-some thought better of the turned odds and retreated, their tales between their legs knowing they had been scared off even though they still held the numerical advantage. "Those were the Three Stooges if I have ever seen them," he said smiling like he always did. I laughed as I was now able to breathe again. Gene saved me that night. Through the years we would remember that incident. It got easier to laugh about as the years went by. In the heat of the moment, it wasn't quite as funny. Now Gene is gone, the second from our small high school class to leave us way too soon. I'll miss my friend, my family member, my classmate, just like our entire hometown will. I knew he always had my back whenever I needed it. It didn't matter if we were kids, teenagers, young adults or aging adults now in our 50s. I'll miss you buddy. Here's to those good times growing up in small town America.

Bar scene becoming regular crime scene

Really, people? Is this why you go out to a nightclub or lounge at night — to shoot someone or get shot and, very likely, get killed or seriously injured? And kill or injure innocent bystanders who had no part of your quarrel? Just last weekend, a Virginia newspaper reporter and former Atlanta journalist was one of two people killed during a shooting early Saturday outside a restaurant and bar in Norfolk, Virginia, authorities said. Sierra Jenkins, 25, who covered education for The Virginian-Pilot of Norfolk, died at Sentara Norfolk General Hospital after the shooting outside Chicho's Pizza Backstage, according to officials. Jenkins was caught in the crossfire as she was leaving the bar, restaurant manager Rory Schindel said. Chicho's Pizza Backstage apparently is not some hole in the wall bar on a city backstreet, or some roadhouse out in rural Virginia. It was a somewhat upscale restaurant/bar that attracted college students and young people. The victim's mother said she typically did not go out at night but had gone to Chicho's because a friend was in town and wanted to go. In Atlanta, city officials are asking a judge to shut down a hookah bar near the Georgia Aquarium where more than 170 complaints — many concerning gunfire — have been called in to police since February 2020. The city of Atlanta alleged in a court document that Encore Hookah Bar & Bistro on Luckie Street in downtown Atlanta "attracts an influx of criminal activity" to the area. The city asked a judge to grant an injunction declaring the property a "public nuisance" and closing it down. A Sept. 17, 2021, shooting left one man injured after a brawl outside the club. Several stray bullets entered the aquarium's dolphin enclosure and five dolphins had to be temporarily relocated so the aquarium's dive team could remove shattered glass from the enclosure, according to the filing. "Had there been a trainer on site at the time of the shooting, there is a high probability that he or she could have been seriously injured," the complaint stated. The aquarium was struck by gunfire again earlier this month when a group of women shot into the air following an argument with the bar's owner, according to the city's complaint. Habib Properties first notified the business in September that their lease would be terminated over concerns of "criminal incidents occurring outside Encore Hookah," the Atlanta-based company said in a statement. The business agreed to vacate by Dec. 23 but is still occupying the property as a "holdover tenant." Early Tuesday morning, a 24-year-old Atlanta father was found shot and killed about 6 a.m. outside a hookah lounge on Trinity Avenue outside the Monaco hookah lounge. It was unclear if the shooting took place inside or outside the bar, WSB reported. Think it's only happening in Atlanta? A man died Sunday afternoon after a fight ended in a shooting in broad daylight outside a bar in Lawrenceville, police said. Police said the fight, which involved several men, started in a parking lot outside a bar just after 1 p.m., the Atlanta Journal-Constitution reported. The fight moved two doors down from the bar before one of the people pulled out a gun and shot a man, Lawrenceville police spokesman Lt. Jake Parker said. That man, who has not been identified, died at a hospital, the AJC reported. At some point, either bar patrons need to take more responsibility or bar owners need to be held liable for shootings that occur after fights in their businesses. With the public's easy access to firearms, a lot of innocent victims can get hurt or killed simply by being in the wrong place at the wrong time. Why go to a bar if there's a good chance you could end up dead?

Facebook fading away?

Thirteen years ago I gave in, and joined Facebook. It was at the urging of an old radio pal, who assured me my fears about Facebook were unfounded. Although I had often lectured my teenage sons about Facebook being a waste of time, my buddy told me that it was a great way to reconnect with former co-workers, and even relatives who lived out of town. For a while, Facebook delivered on his promise. Eventually, it devolved into a national clothesline of gossip and disinformation. In its early days, it was a pleasant surprise to get a friend request. Wow, I haven't heard from her since high school! Hey, this is cool: one of my old softball buddies want to friend me, and I had totally lost track of him! Somewhere along the way, the charm disappeared. I get friend requests from people who are already my Facebook friends. Their accounts get hacked, or some underhanded rascal hijacks their photo and identity, and if I hurriedly click "accept" in a weak moment, I'll probably be the next victim.

We fall for scams, in one form or another. The rip-off artists found a sure way to get us to click onto their phony website. They copy a logo from a well-known store or restaurant, offering us 75% off our order at the hardware store, or some other impossibly good deal. Sure enough, many of us take the bait. We never take the time to think that if a swarm of customers load their carts and expect 75% off, that store would go broke in about ten minutes. We play games and answer surveys, often sharing our most personal information and photos. We have no idea who has access to that data. What some believe to be the site's greatest asset is also its most dangerous tool. Facebook enables everyone to be a journalist. One can invent a story out of thin air, slandering anyone in their sights. They may only have ten "friends," but those 10 may have a hundred, who each have a thousand more. Within minutes, a false story reaches a large audience. If it's blatantly false, Facebook may eventually take it down, but the damage has already been done. You cannot put that toothpaste back in the tube.

Georgia House urges DOT to extend I-185

By DAVE WILLIAMS
Capitol Beat News Service

ATLANTA – The Georgia House of Representatives is looking to give Southwest Georgia an economic boost.

House lawmakers unanimously passed a resolution Friday asking the state Department of Transportation to study the potential costs and benefits of extending Interstate 185 south from Columbus to the Florida line and widening Georgia 300 through Albany into four or more lanes.

“These highways could benefit from improvements as an economic development tool for Southwest Georgia,” Rep. Gerald Greene, R-Cuthbert, the resolution’s chief sponsor, said on the House floor.

The four-laning of U.S. 27 south of Columbus was completed several years ago, a project that was done piecemeal over the course of several decades. Extending I-185 along the U.S. 27 corridor through Blakely and Bainbridge would upgrade the highway to interstate standards.

South Georgia House members cosponsoring House Resolution 1467 included Reps. Winfred Dukes, D-Albany; John LaHood, R-Valdosta; Penny Houston, R-Nashville, and Randy Nix, R-LaGrange.

Forts Gordon, Benning among 9 Army bases to be renamed

By DAVE WILLIAMS
Capitol Beat News Service

ATLANTA – Georgia’s Fort Gordon and Fort Benning are among nine Army bases that will be getting new names.

The Naming Commission, which Congress created last year to rename military installations named for historical figures with ties to the Confederacy, has developed a list of fewer than 100 names it is considering. The panel will make recommendations to the U.S. House and Senate Armed Services committees by Oct. 1.

Fort Gordon near Augusta is named for John Gordon, who served as a general in the Confederate Army and went on to become Georgia’s governor. Gordon presided at the formal surrender of the Confederate Army of Northern Virginia at Appomattox, Va., in April 1865.

Fort Benning south of Columbus was named for Henry Benning, who was a leader in Georgia’s secessionist movement before the Civil War. Like Gordon, he was a general in the Army of Northern Virginia commanded by Gen. Robert E. Lee.

Other Army bases due to be renamed include Fort

Bragg in North Carolina, Fort Rucker in Alabama; Fort Polk in Louisiana, and forts A.P. Hill, Lee and Pickett in Virginia.

The commission visited the installations last year for listening sessions with military commanders and community leaders and to gain feedback including preferences for new names. During the listening sessions and a public comment period, the panel received more than 34,000 submissions for renaming, including 3,670 unique names.

“It’s important that the names we recommend for these installations appropriately reflect the courage, values and sacrifices of our diverse military men and women,” said retired Navy Admiral Michelle Howard, the chair of the Naming Commission. “We also are considering the local and regional significance of names and their potential to inspire and motivate our service members.”

Suggestions for new names include former President and five-star Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, abolitionist Harriet Tubman, former Gen. and Secretary of State Colin Powell and World War II Gens. Omar Bradley and George Marshall, who also served as secretary of state and secretary of defense.

the House or Senate to have enough time for final approval that session.

Since this is the final year in the current two-year General Assembly, any legislation not approved this year must be refiled in 2023.

Yet, bills that gain late support in General Assembly sessions typically can be brought back up and approved late in the session — or added to other bills that are still alive.

California-based Rivian is planning to invest $5 billion in a manufacturing facility and research center that will employ up to 7,500 on a 2,000-acre site partly in Social Circle. The site is adjacent to I-20 and straddles the line between Walton and Morgan counties.

The state government recently agreed to take control of the planning process and appointed a series of committees that will plan the facility.

It also has agreed to build an on-site training center for the company and provide a series of road improvements, including a new I-20 interchange linking to Old Mill Road in Morgan County.

Senate Bill 398 specifically allows electric vehicle manufacturers to sell their cars directly in an unlimited number of locations in Georgia and requires EV companies to provide maintenance services for their cars.

A similar bill was filed in the state House in 2021 but Rivian officials said they did not base their decision to locate their manufacturing facility in Georgia based on that bill’s success, company officials said.

Tesla is the only vehicle manufacturer allowed to sell to customers directly in Georgia. State lawmakers voted in 2015 to allow the company to sell cars without going through local dealers but limited its direct sales to five locations statewide.

The Automobile Dealers Association said Tesla was a start-up and the only U.S. EV-only company when it was allowed direct sales in 2015. Now, it is among a group of larger U.S. companies like Rivian and Lucid Motors, and smaller manufacturers like Nikola and Fisker, according to industry analysts.

Direct sales will "impact the jobs of more than 3,000 Georgians directly employed at franchised auto dealers in order to line the pockets of wealthy, out-of-state investors," the Association stated in an FAQ section on its website.

"If any of the proposed legislation passes, it won’t just be dealers and their employees who suffer. Georgia citizens will pay more for electric vehicles than they would if sold through franchise dealers.

"They will also pay more for service, and there will be fewer, if any, repair facilities that Georgians who own directly sold EVs can access with convenience. This means warranty repairs and recalls could be delayed or denied."

"Moreover, many of the economic benefits from these companies will not stay in Georgia, as they do with franchised dealers."

utilizing, I suppose, the group that we've had, which is Jarrard & Davis," Cowan said.

"I've got no problem with them until such time we make a decision to move forward with it," he said.

Commissioners' approval of the resolution includes a fee schedule ranging from $240 to $200 per hour depending on which attorney does the work.

Chairman Marcello Banes said the cap on spending for legal services during the 2022 calendar year will be $650,000.

However, County Attorney Patrick Jaugstetter of Jarrard & Davis said that amount does not include expenses for defending the county government in court.

"If you get sued, because we have no control over those fees ... the fees related to litigation would be ... separate from the cap," he said.

The resolution stated the firm would continue to work for the county until Dec. 31, 2022, despite commissioners discussing the firm's continued employment until it hired an in-house attorney. No explanation was given about the apparent discrepancy.

District 4 Commissioner J.C. Henderson, a regular vocal critic of the law firm, said he could not believe the Board was still negotiating with it after telling the public it was hiring an in-house attorney.

He said he believed hiring an in-house attorney would cost less than continuing to employ Jarrard & Davis.

Henderson regularly publicly criticizes the firm at meetings after it assisted with an audit and later investigation into questions about financial management of a Covington community center the commissioner helped manage.

The FBI later dropped the investigation and Henderson publicly considered himself vindicated.

The in-house attorney position has been posted on the county website at a salary of $185,000 since October 2021 but has seen little interest from applicants.

Henderson and commissioners Alana Sanders and Demond Mason in August 2021 voted to offer former Jarrard & Davis attorney Megan Martin a six-month contract for the in-house position — and later declined to hire her.

Martin later threatened to sue the Board in federal court after alleging they rejected her because of her age and interfered with her employment contract with the law firm after Sanders contacted the firm to complain about Martin's job performance.

The action does not affect county offices led by the sheriff and tax commissioner who employ former county attorney Tommy Craig for legal services.

FACEBOOK: Continued from A4

During the pandemic, Facebook has been among the most effective spreaders of medical misinformation. How many people have died because of “Facebook doctors?” I really don’t want to know. I will surely get sick if I hear that number.

Maybe that’s why, for the first time ever, Facebook is seeing a decline in daily active users. Perhaps people are finally fed up with the clutter, the politics and the lies.

Young people are jumping the Facebook ship, for sure. It is somewhat ironic that teens and college students were the first adopters, but as soon as Grandma and Uncle Felix began sharing (and snooping), the kids found other social playgrounds.

Think back to the world before Facebook. Did you know your hardware store clerk’s choice for president? Did you know your beloved former teacher’s political views were the exact opposite of yours? Did you even care?

On several recent occasions, I was jarred to learn, via Facebook, that some of my friends’ long-term relationships, even marriages, had ended. I suppose I would have eventually found out somehow, but seeing personal laundry aired online just seems wrong.

This is not to say Facebook is entirely evil. On any given day, we are asked to send up prayers for ailing neighbors. You can enjoy a great new joke now and then. If a friend shows me an easier, tastier recipe for loaded chicken and potato casserole, I will print it. And goodness knows I can never see enough cute babies, puppies and kittens.

But much like the telegraph, the fax machine, and pagers, Facebook may soon run its course as a means of communication and messaging. Something new will take its place, and as always, kids will lead the way.

In the meantime, I’m gradually cutting back. With any luck, actual face-to-face communication may soon make a comeback, and not a moment too soon.

Area players make up 2022 All-Covington News team

By PHILLIP B. HUBBARD
phubbard@covnews.com

COVINGTON, Ga. — The 2021-22 boys basketball season was packed with a lot of high profile games and historical moments. Featured in those games and moments were some notable performances by local student-athletes in the Newton County area.

With the basketball season’s end a few weeks removed, The Covington News staff compiled the All-Covington News boys basketball team to recognize the area’s top players.

This year’s team begins with three special honors: Most Valuable Player, Newcomer (Freshman) of the Year and Coach of the Year.

MVP: Stephon Castle (Newton)

Having three Division I commits in the starting lineup for the Newton Rams was sure to bring a lot of attention to this year’s team. The player seemingly rising to the occasion game in and game out was Stephon Castle.

During his junior campaign, the UConn commit averaged 16.6 points, 6.5 rebounds and 3.2 assists per game. Castle’s averages led the Rams, too.

In addition to his stat line, Castle racked up quite a few accolades throughout the season.

Castle earned a spot on the 2022 Sugar Bowl National Prep Classic All-Tournament team. He also made an appearance on the Hard in the Paint All-Tournament team. Lastly, during the Region 4-AAAAAAA tournament, Castle was announced as the region’s Player of the Year.

Newcomer of the Year: Timothy Prather (Eastside)

Before the season even began for Eastside, head coach Dorrian Randolph spoke highly of a freshman joining this year’s team named Timothy Prather. Randolph told The Covington News that he believed Prather would make an immediate impact on the Eagles’ program.

Prather seemed to answer the call.

The freshman Eagle finished averaging 8.1 points, 2.5 rebounds and 2 assists per game. Prather’s points per game were second on the team behind only senior Raje

Benton.

Not only was Prather’s final statistics noteworthy, but considering the fact that he served as the team’s point guard and, as a result, the Eagles’ primary ball handler, Prather seemed to handle all the pressure and responsibility well all season.

Coach of the Year: Taylor Jackson (Social Circle)

In his third season at the helm of the Social Circle boys basketball program, head coach Taylor Jackson led the Redskins to heights unimaginable just a few years ago.

And, even though the Redskins’ season ended in controversial fashion, it does not take away from what this year’s team accomplished.

To start with, Social Circle finished with a 30-1 overall record, which included an unblemished 25-0 regular

Eagles sweep Jackson County in region-opening series

By MASON WITTNER

COVINGTON, Ga. — Eastside couldn’t have asked for a better start to region play.

The Eagles opened their Region 8-AAAAA slate with a two-game sweep of Jackson County, punctuated by a 5-4 win over the visiting Panthers at the Eagle’s Nest on Thursday. After stumbling out to a 1-8 start, the club has turned tides around in head coach Brandon Davis’ first season by winning four of its last five.

“Anytime you pull out a region win, you’re ecstatic,” Davis said. “But [Thursday] was hard-fought. They went out there and battled. That’s just Eastside team baseball right there.”

Colton Fincher led off the home half of the frame by lining a double to left field. Junior Josh Bates, who pinch-ran for Fincher, advanced to third base on an out. He later came around to score when senior Caleb Williams ripped a two-out single back up the middle.

Williams’ RBI knock proved to be the game-winner.

The Eagles handed the ball to Williams on the mound Thursday. He battled through five innings, doing his part both on the bump and at the plate to keep Eastside in the game. He was relieved in the sixth by junior Brady Marbut, who silenced the Wildcat bats while the Eagle offense roared back to life.

“You almost can’t put into words what Brady did,” Davis said. “He went out there and put the team on his back and shut the door.”

Alcovy’s Dukes steps down

By PHILLIP B. HUBBARD
phubbard@covnews.com

COVINGTON, Ga. — Jason Dukes announced Friday via Twitter that he was stepping down as Alcovy’s head football coach.

After his initial statement, Dukes told The Covington News he is accepting a defensive line coach position at Thomas County Central High School.

“It’s an opportunity to help restore one of the great football programs in Georgia to, I believe, its rightful place at the top of high school football in Georgia,” Dukes said.

Dukes’ departure comes after completing three seasons as the Tigers head coach.

During his stint, Dukes compiled a 9-20 overall record. Last season, in 2021, the Tigers made history by capturing the Region 3-AAAAAA championship — the first in school history — and finished 5-0 in region play. Receiving a first-round bye in the Class 6A playoffs, Alcovy’s second round matchup with Carrollton High School was its first appearance past the opening round in school history, too.

In his initial statement, Dukes acknowledged the process it took to get the Tigers’ football program where it currently is.

“I promised our players that if they held themselves and their teammates accountable, embraced the process of transformation and simply committed themselves to ‘The Cove,’ we would find ourselves exactly where we worked so hard to be, on top,” Dukes stated.

Two days before his announcement on Twitter, Dukes said he met with players and staff to let them know that he was leaving for another position. And, even though the meeting came as a shock for some, Dukes said he did get his message across.

“I just let them know how much I love and care about them,” Dukes said, “and that it was a decision that wasn’t easy for us. But, through discussions and prayer with my family, we felt it was the right thing for us to do as a family.”

Dukes will now be joining Justin Rogers’ staff in Thomasville, Georgia, after Rogers was announced as the Yellow Jackets’ new head football coach in December 2021.

Even though Dukes will no longer be a part of the Tiger program, it doesn’t take away from his excitement about the future of Alcovy football.

“There are some extremely good young players in that program,” Dukes said. “There are guys who understand what dedication and work is all about. And I know that they are going to be successful in the future.”

Fuel prices drop as Kemp signs tax suspension bill, oil prices decline

By TAYLOR BECK
tbeck@covnews.com

COVINGTON, Ga. — Gas prices Monday in Newton County were about 12 cents lower than the week before but remained a few cents higher than the state’s average.

In Georgia, a gallon of regular unleaded gasoline cost $4.12 on average, according to AAA on Monday afternoon. But in Newton County, the average was $4.18 per gallon.

While slightly higher than the state average, Newton County’s gas prices were lower than one week ago ($4.25 on Thursday) when fuel cost rates reached all-time highs.

Prices across Georgia are expected to continue decreasing after Gov. Brian Kemp signed legislation Friday to temporarily suspend the state’s tax on gasoline, and as oil prices continue to drop.

The state has suspended the gasoline tax in the past when fuel supplies were disrupted, most recently when the Colonial Pipeline shut down last May following a ransomware attack.

The governor is legally allowed to suspend the tax by executive order when the General Assembly is not meeting. In this case, with lawmakers in session, Kemp waited until the bill he proposed made its way through the House and Senate.

The suspension is due to expire May 31, according to a report from Capitol Beat News Service, unless the governor decides pump prices are still high enough to warrant continuing it.

Suspension of the tax will save Georgians 29.1 cents per gallon of gasoline, said Senate Finance Committee Chairman Chuck Hufstetler, R-Rome, before the bill passed through the Georgia Senate on Thursday.

Several Georgia Republicans have blamed the Biden Administration for the higher gas prices.

Hufstetler went on to accuse the Biden administration of contributing to higher gas prices through the Democratic president’s decision to cancel the Keystone XL project last year and ban drilling for oil and gas in the eastern Gulf of Mexico and on federal lands in Alaska.

Sen. Greg Dolezal, R-Cumming, said gas prices started rising well before Russian troops entered Ukraine three weeks ago.

“Gas prices were up last year by $1 a gallon,” he said.

But Senate Democrats said the oil industry is to blame for holding down oil production in the U.S., not the Biden administration. Energy Secretary Jennifer Granholm called on the industry last week to step up production of oil and gas.

“The administration only has control over drilling on federal lands,” said Sen. Nan Orrock, D-Atlanta. “It’s the fossil-fuel industry’s decision not to drill. ... There are permits oil companies have that they’re not accessing ... because it’s not cost-effective. They’re making decisions on the expectation that demand for fossil fuels will decrease.”

Hufstetler said temporarily suspending the gas tax will cost the state an estimated $300 million to $400 million in lost revenue. That gap will be covered by reserve funds, he said.

According to AAA, the price of oil has moved lower due to market concerns that crude oil demand will decline, as it did in 2020 when countries sought to curb COVID-19 transmission rates. Additionally, the Energy Information Administration (EIA) reported that total domestic crude stocks increased by 4.3 million barrels last week to 415.9 million barrels. The recent growth in total domestic crude inventories also contributed to the current reduction in crude prices.

Newton residents’ unemployment rate up from previous month

By TOM SPIGOLON
tspigolon@covnews.com

COVINGTON, Ga. — Newton County began the new year with the unemployment rate increasing among its residents from the previous month as more made themselves available for work and more were classified as jobless.

However, January typically includes an unemployment rate increase as retailers eliminate their end-of-year holiday retail positions.

The jobless rate for Newton County residents increased from 3.1% in December 2021 to 3.6% in January 2022.

A total of 436 more Newton residents entered the labor force in January, with 143 additional residents listed as employed and 293 more residents classified as unemployed compared to the previous month, the Georgia Department of Labor reported.

January’s numbers still were better than January 2021 when 1,457 fewer residents were in the workforce and more than 900 additional residents were listed as unemployed.

Neighboring counties’ January 2022 unemployment rates among their residents included Rockdale, 3.9%; Henry, 3.5%; Butts, 3.0%; Morgan,

2.8%; Walton, 2.8%; and Jasper, 2.7%.

The 29-county metro Atlanta region — which includes Newton — recorded a 3.3% unemployment rate, up from 2.8%.

The statewide average also was 3.3%.

Oconee County recorded the lowest January rate at 2.1% while Clay County in southwest Georgia had the highest rate at 9.5%.

Despite the increase, metro Atlanta saw all-time highs in labor force and number of employed for the month of January, officials said in a news release.

“Even though we continue to see Georgia’s workforce be successfully employed in record-breaking numbers, there is still much more work to do as we continue to see hundreds of thousands of jobs needed to be filled,” said state Labor Commissioner Mark Butler.

The labor force increased in Atlanta by 20,719 and ended the month at an all-time high of almost 3.2 million. This number is down 30,535 since January 2021.

The number of employed was up 5,992 to 3.09 million, an all-time high, in January from December 2021. From January 2021 to January 2022, the number of employed was up 149,363.

The number of unemployed was up 14,727 to 104,754 from December. From January 2021 to January 2022, the number of unemployed was down 54,904.

Metro Atlanta ended January with almost 2.9 million jobs. Jobs were down 22,200 (0.8%) over the month and up 164,900 (6%) over the year. Job numbers were at an all-time high in Information, 114,700, Financial Activities, 191,600, and in the Health Care and Social Assistance sectors, 315,600.

The sectors with the most over-the-month job gains included Professional, Scientific and Technical Services, 4,000, Finance and Insurance, 1,100, Wholesale Trade, 1,100, Health Care and Social Assistance, 900, and Repair and Maintenance, 700.

A total of 296 Newton County residents also applied for unemployment benefits in January 2022 — a 41% increase from 210 in December 2021 but a 74% decrease from January 2021, according to the department.

By comparison, the number of initial unemployment claims went up by 55% in the metro Atlanta region in January. When compared to January 2021, claims were down by about 80%.

Enjoy hot cross buns this Easter

news@covnews.com

A number of foods are enjoyed during Easter celebrations, from hard-boiled eggs to ham to roasted lamb. Sweets such as candies and chocolates also take center stage on Easter Sunday. In addition to these traditional favorites, hot cross buns have become must-haves for many Easter celebrants.

Hot cross buns are yeast-based sweet buns that are lightly spiced and studded with raisins or currants. The tops are marked with a cross that is often piped with icing. While there's no clear explanation of how hot cross buns came to be, there are indications that they once were reserved only for Good Friday. Others say they were consumed throughout Lent. The cross is a Christian symbol of the crucifixion and Christ himself.

Hot cross buns are soft and sweet, and they're easily created. Enjoy this recipe, courtesy of King Arthur Flour.

Hot cross buns have become must-haves for Easter celebrations.

Hot Cross Buns
Yield 12 to 14 buns
Ingredients:
Buns
1/4 cup apple juice or rum
1/2 cup mixed dried fruit
1/2 cup raisins or dried currants
1 1/4 cups milk, room temperature
2 large eggs, plus 1 egg yolk (save the white for the topping)
6 tablespoons butter, room temperature
2 teaspoons instant yeast
1/4 cup light brown sugar, firmly packed
1 teaspoon ground

cinnamon
1/4 teaspoon ground cloves or allspice
1/4 teaspoon ground nutmeg
1 3/4 teaspoons salt
1 tablespoon baking powder
4 1/2 cups King Arthur Unbleached All-Purpose Flour

Topping
1 large egg white, reserved from above
1 tablespoon milk

Icing
1 cup + 2 tablespoons confectioners' sugar
1/2 teaspoon vanilla extract

Pinch of salt
4 teaspoons milk, or enough to make a thick, pipeable icing
Directions:
Lightly grease a 10" square pan or 9" by 13" pan.

Mix the rum or apple juice with the dried fruit and raisins, cover with plastic wrap and microwave briefly, just until the fruit and liquid are very warm and the plastic starts to "shrink wrap" itself over the top of the bowl. Set aside to cool to room temperature. Note: If you worry about using plastic wrap in your microwave, simply cover the bowl with a glass lid.

When the fruit is cool, mix together all of the dough ingredients (including the eggs and egg yolk from the separated egg); hold out the fruit for the time being. Knead the mixture, using an electric mixer or bread machine, until the dough is soft and elastic. It'll be very slack, sticking to the bottom of the bowl and your hands as you work with it (greasing your hands helps). Mix in the fruit and any liquid not absorbed.

Let the dough rise for 1 hour, covered. It should become puffy, though may not double in bulk.

Divide the dough into billiard ball-sized pieces, about 33/4 ounces each. A heaped muffin scoop (about 1/3 cup) makes about the right portion. You'll make 12 to 14 buns. Use your greased hands to round them into balls. Arrange them in the prepared pan.

Cover the pan, and let the buns rise for 1 hour, or until they've puffed up and are touching one another. While the dough is rising, preheat the oven to 375 degrees.

Whisk together the reserved egg white and milk, and brush it over the buns.

Bake the buns for 20 minutes, until they're golden brown. Remove from the oven, carefully turn the buns out of the pan (they should come out in one large piece), and transfer them to a rack to cool.

Mix together the icing ingredients, and when the buns are completely cool, pipe it in a cross shape atop each bun.

Ingredients, supplies needed for anyone to brew their own beer

news@covnews.com

Millions of people are interested in brewing their own beer at home. Craft brewing may start as a hobby or curiosity, and once successful, turn into something individuals do again and again. While it's possible to eventually make money by brewing, most people engage this hobby for the pride that ensues after sipping their own ales, pilsners and stouts and sharing them with friends and family.

Brewing supplies

Those ready to engage in home brewing will be happy to learn that there are plenty of resources available for getting started. Even with a simple set-up, it's possible to brew a decent beer. Here are the items to consider.

- Brew pot: Home brewers will need something in which to boil the wort, which will eventually become the beer. This vessel should be made of aluminum, stainless steel or enamel-coated aluminum and be large enough to handle the size batch of beer.
- Fermenter: Fermenter vessels will hold the beer while it is going through the fermenttation process. Food-grade plastic buckets or glass carboys are options. The fermenter should seal tightly to keep out air and micro-organisms, but have a space for an airlock that will allow the carbon dioxide to escape.

- Tubing and siphon: A siphon and vinyl tubing is needed to rack the beer from one fermenter to the next or from the fermenter to bottles.

- Hydrometer: A hydrometer, according to Beer Tola, a resource on brewing and beverages, is a tool that measures the density of liquid, known as

Sanitation
Sanitation is essential when brewing, and all equipment needs to be sanitized correctly so that the beer is not introduced to micro-organisms that can affect taste or even the fermentation process. Only the yeast used for fermentation should be present. Many experienced brewers say that sanitation is the most important part of the process. Brew shops sell specialized chemicals for sanitizing all equipment, but some home brewers also stand by boiling water for cleaning gear.

Ingredients
The basics of beer recipes include hops, grains, water, and yeast. When the hops and grains are boiled down, one has wort, which essentially is sugar water. The yeast will feed on this sweetened water to produce carbon dioxide through fermentation.

The beer-making process is one any beer lover can explore. And with so many beer kits for sale with step-by-step instructions, any initial foray into brewing beer can be successful.

Pablo Schreiber stars in "HALO," premiering Thursday on Paramount+.

Paramount+ brings an iconic videogame to television with 'HALO'

Almost a decade in development, a sci-fi action series that's based on an iconic videogame finally arrives amid much anticipation on Paramount+.

In "HALO," an adaptation of the Microsoft videogame franchise first introduced in 2001 that premieres Thursday, March 24, an epic 26th century battle of good versus evil plays out in a conflict between humanity and an alien threat known as the Covenant.

At the center of it is Master Chief John-117 (Pablo Schreiber, "American Gods"), a supersoldier fighting for the United Nations Space Command, who through a series of events winds up reconnecting with his humanity and questioning his existence as a walking weapon.

That leads to him going rogue and taking up the protection of Kwan Ha (newcomer Yerin Ha), a shrewd, audacious 16-year-old from the Outer Colonies who he meets when her outpost on the planet Madrigal is decimated by a Covenant attack. Her goal is to liberate her world from UNSC control, and their partnership puts him in direct conflict with his superiors in the UNSC military.

The series, which was originally developed for Showtime by 343 Industries and Steven Spielberg's Amblin Entertainment, also stars Natascha McElhone ("Californication"), Jen Taylor ("Halo: The Fall of Reach"), Bokeem Woodbine ("Fargo"), Shabana Azmi ("Fire"), Natasha Culzac ("The Witcher"), Charlie Murphy ("Peaky Blinders") and Danny Sapani ("Penny Dreadful").

As one would expect of a videogame adaptation, the series is loaded with breathtaking special effects and action sequences. The latter was the easy part for Schreiber, a muscular 6-foot-5-inch actor who had extensive military training when he filmed "Den of Thieves" in 2018. But taking on the videogame was another matter.

"I grew up without television or videogames," the Canadian-born actor explains, "and so I'm on a new journey of learning about 'HALO' that started when I was approached with this. ... I've had all this military training, so I know how to carry guns, use guns. I've shot every gun you can imagine. But as soon as I get into the 'Halo' universe, I get killed by all the beginning stages, and all the grunts can kill me continuously. So, it's been humbling, but I'm getting better as I practice."

But "HALO" isn't strictly about action and effects. The series also promises to explore more deeply the personal stories and humanity, or lack thereof, behind the iconic characters that the game's fans have come to know and love, all set within an epic battle for the future of humanity.

"We set out to build a huge, epic sci-fi 26th century world, with brutal aliens, with Spartan supersoldiers, artificial intelligence, military politics and ancient mystery ...," executive producer Kiki Wolfkill explains. "(So) we really tried to explore: How much of our humanity are we willing to sacrifice in order to save it?"

New culinary series and specials for your consumption

Back in the day, TV viewers seeking food knowledge were limited to Julia Child, “The Galloping Gourmet” and a handful of other shows. Not that they were bad – quite the contrary, they were landmarks of the genre. They just weren’t enough.

These days, in the so-called Golden Age of Television, there are more foodie shows across broadcast, cable and streaming than there is time to watch them. And new ones keep cropping up all the time.

One of the more noteworthy offerings upcoming is “Be My Guest With Ina Garten.” Premiering Saturday, March 26, on Food Network and discovery+, the multi-platform series finds the “Barefoot Contessa” host welcoming friends into her East Hampton, N.Y., home for a day of conversation, food and visits to some of her favorite local spots. It’s also created in three different versions – a half hour for Food, an hour extended cut for discovery+ and a companion podcast.

In the opening episode, “The Good Wife” actress Julianna Margulies drops by for margaritas and to make Garten her signature halibut with herb butter.

If you like your culinary content with a side of construction, then “Girl Meets Farm: Our Farmhouse Renovation” may suit your taste. Airing Sunday morning, March 20, on Food, the hourlong special follows host Molly Yeh, her husband Nick and a crew of builders as they update their 1964 ranch house to include enough space for Molly’s TV show and their family. She’s also in the kitchen whipping up a hearty spread of loaded salami sandwiches, a chicken paprikash hotdish and meat-lover’s pizzas for the hungry crew.

Over on Netflix, baking fans will want to check out “Is It Cake?” Hosted by “Saturday Night Live” cast member Mikey Day, the competition series challenges talented bakers with creating hyper-realistic cakes that look exactly like everyday objects – at least enough to fool a panel of celebrity judges. The one who does it best wins a cash prize.

For those who want to get nostalgic, the ongoing “Adam Eats the 80s” may satisfy. Airing Sundays on History, the half-hour series follows food author and culinary entrepreneur Adam Richman as he travels around the country reliving his childhood and tasting some of the most iconic and forgotten foods of the 1980s.

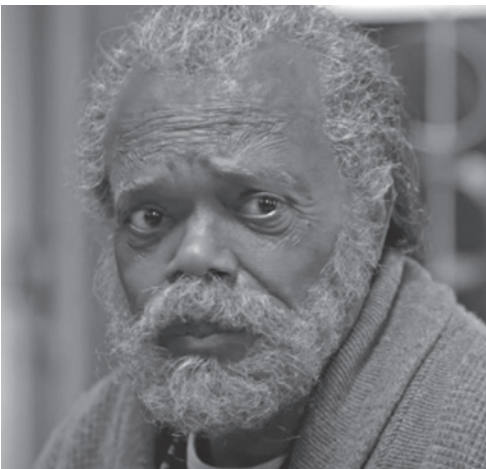

And on a completely different note is Netflix’s “Bad Vegan: Fame. Fraud. Fugitives.” The four-part documentary series explores how Sarma Melngailis, former owner of the New York vegan raw food eatery Pure Food and Wine, went from being the queen of vegan cuisine to being known as the “Vegan Fugitive,” convicted of tax fraud and stealing from an investor.

Samuel L. Jackson OF 'THE LAST DAYS OF PTOLEMY GREY'

ON APPLE TV+

What is it like doing the hardest parts of the scenes? Are you able to sink into that and just stay in that character or do you come out of it between takes and shooting days?

I’m not a Method actor. I kind of do all that work before I get to work so that when it’s time for the work to happen, I just kind of flow into it.

I’m sure Dominique (Fishback, his castmate) will tell you how silly I can be sometimes coming out of a scene where she’s all emotional and crying and I’ll just look at her and go, “What’s wrong with you?!” But I kind of do all that work before we get there. It’s something that I’ve been preparing for for a long time.

Walter (Mosley, the series’ executive producer and writer) can tell you how long we’ve talked about doing this and how badly I’ve wanted to do it. I’ve seen this series for about 10 years in my head, so when it was time to do those things I just kind of turned on the emotional asset that I’m able to access and do it. And then when I get off, I talk to my agent on the phone about things that I need to do later on.

tonight's PICKS

Alvena August and Jarod Joseph
Murdoch Mysteries
7 p.m. on OVA

Responding to a frantic call from a guest at the Brearly Hotel claiming that someone is threatening his life, Inspector William Murdoch and Constable George Crabtree (Yannick Bisson, Jonny Harris) race to the scene in the new episode “Love or Money.” On their arrival, they find a dead man in his hotel room, with George’s Aunt Zinnia (guest star Debra McGrath) kneeling over the corpse. The victim turns out to be a conman who preyed on older women, and Zinnia soon looks like a prime suspect. Clare McConnell also stars.

A Second Chance at Love
8 p.m. on HALL
Launching Hallmark Channel’s “Spring Into Love” programming event, this new 2022 romantic drama stars Alvena August (“Nancy Drew”) and Jarod Joseph (“The 100”) as Alicia and Arnold, whose marriage appears idyllic, at least to the casual observer. Privately, however, trouble is brewing, as Arnold is ready to become a father, while Alicia tacitly resists the idea. Instead of confronting the issue, she distracts herself by meddling in the dating lives of her divorced parents (Gloria Reuben, Eriq La Salle).

Kaylan

The Oscars
8 p.m. on WSB
The 94th Academy Awards ceremony is scheduled to take place at the Dolby Theater in Hollywood, honoring the best in films released between March 1 and Dec. 31, 2021 (last year's Oscar race extended its eligibility period through February 2021 to compensate for the extended pandemic lockdown). Amy Schumer, Wanda Sykes and Regina Hall will share hosting duties. Samuel L. Jackson, Elaine May and Liv Ullmann will receive honorary Academy Awards for their distinguished careers. Additionally, Danny Glover will receive the Jean Hersholt Humanitarian Award.

NCIS: Los Angeles
8 p.m. on WGCL
When the partner of DOJ Agent Lance Hamilton (guest star Bill Goldberg) gets killed, Sam (LL Cool J) once again assumes his undercover persona of "Switch" to find the culprit in the new episode "Bonafides." Meanwhile, Kensi and Deeks (Daniela Ruah, Eric Christian Olsen) team up with Rountree and Kilbride (Caleb Castille, Gerald McRaney) to catch an aerospace engineer who stole some classified Navy schematics. Another new episode, directed by series star Ruah, immediately follows.

March
9 p.m. on WUPA
After a long, challenging season, the band finally gets to kick back and enjoy some shared fun as a group in "We're All We Need," the Season 1 finale of this docu-series. It's also graduation day for Kaylan, who is struggling through a tough transition into "adulthood." The drum majors make their case as to who should be up next as the band looks to the future.

Joe Spano also reprises his recurring role as Tobias "T.C." Fornell.

9-1-1: Lone Star

Michele Tafoya moves on: Where she's gone

Q: At the end of the latest Super Bowl, Al Michaels and Cris Collinsworth said some sort of goodbye to Michele Tafoya. Is she leaving NBC Sports? – Mark Grace, via email

A: She already has. Tafoya is getting into the political arena, having very visibly dipped a toe or two into it when she was a guest co-host on ABC's "The View" several months ago. She has become the co-chairperson of a Minnesota gubernatorial candidate's campaign; she and her family reside in that state, and she previously had stints in both television and radio there. After earlier network runs at CBS, ABC and ESPN, Tafoya spent just over a decade with NBC Sports before her recent exit from that outlet.

Q: What was the first movie ever shown on Turner Classic Movies? – Jack Lawrence, via email

A: That's an easy one, since it's widely known to be the favorite film of channel founder Ted Turner. "Gone With the Wind" inaugurated TCM on April 14, 1994 ... and it wasn't the first time Turner used it to launch one of his properties. The 1939 Oscar winner starring Clark Gable and Vivien Leigh also was the first attraction on TNT when Turner started that outlet in 1988.

celebrityquotes

"I remember (when) I made 'Trainwreck' with Judd Apatow, there was something that I was like, 'Oh, that's a little close to the stand-up special that I did a couple of years ago,' and he was like, 'OK, well, 50,000 people saw that and 50 million people are going to see this.' So if it's thematic, I'm less worried about repeating my own work and more focused on the story or the message." – Amy Schumer of "Life & Beth" on Hulu

"I think that a lot of the times people forget like how technical and skilled the makeup and hair and costume departments have to be. They get called 'glamour' a lot and you forget that the original concept of glamour is that you're putting a spell, that you are creating an illusion. And we don't get to create that without that exquisite skill of those departments. And so yeah, you don't have a show without them (laughs)." – Anna Chlumsky of "Inventing Anna" on Netflix
