COVINGTON, Ga. — Jarvis Sims may be new to Newton County but he was well-versed in the details of its economic potential before he arrived.

And that is what helped attract the veteran government administrator to apply for the interim county manager position in Newton County, he said.

"It was just my reading on the things that are happening in this particular region," Sims said. "I think Newton County is set for greatness, for explosiveness."

COVINGTON, Ga. — It was 1988 and Susette Monk was considering running for the soon-vacant District 3 seat on the Newton County Board of Commissioners.

The Covington businesswoman recalled a former commissioner coming to her home and telling her what he thought of her chances for election, Monk said.

Cancer notification becomes first bill approved for Newton lawmaker

By TOM SPIGOLON
tspigolon@covnews.com

COVINGTON, Ga. — The idea came to State Rep. Sharon Henderson as she awaited treatment at Cancer Treatment Centers of America.

Henderson said she had gone to the medical clinic for a checkup that later showed physicians had caught her suspected breast cancer early enough to stop it.

Not so with another patient there who was in a wheelchair, she said.

The 43-year-old woman, named Shelly, told Henderson she wished she was in the same condition as Henderson.

She said she had not known about the American Cancer Society’s recommendation that women receive annual cancer screenings after a certain age, Henderson said.

“She did not know she was supposed to start at age 40 to get a mammogram,” Henderson said.

“Three years had passed and, in one year, her cancer had spread to five different organs and she was only 43 years old,” she said.

The interaction led Henderson — a Covington Democrat in her first term representing House District 113 — to sponsor legislation that became her first bill to gain full Georgia House of Representatives approval in the Republican-dominated governing body since she was elected in 2020.

Henderson said House Bill 937 was based on her experience “being there in the treatment center and hearing other women’s stories.”

“Shelly’s story is the one that took it to another level,” Henderson said. “She’s my daughter’s age and she’s a beautiful young lady but her life is such that she’s in a wheelchair and she didn’t know.”

The bill requires insurers to remind women statewide at age 40 and annually thereafter about their insurance coverage for mammograms and pap smears used to detect the presence of cancer.

The full Georgia House of Representatives approved the bill 170-1 on March 15 and the Senate Health and Human Services Committee has voted to recommend the full Senate approve it.

Henderson said the bill was originally only going to apply to those Georgians on Medicaid, but it was changed to apply to private insurers as well.

The House approval was all the more significant in that she was able to gain passage of legislation sponsored by a freshman member of the minority political party in the Republican-led House.

Henderson said other lawmakers had praised her for gaining passage of legislation she sponsored. One legislator told her about being in the General Assembly for 10 years and not gaining approval of sponsored legislation, she said.

“Cancer touches everybody’s lives whether it’s [a] friend, family, and everybody can relate to it,” Henderson said. “Republican or Democrat, it doesn’t matter.”

It also follows the full General Assembly’s approval of another first-term Newton County legislator’s bill in 2021.

District 110 State Rep. Clint Crowe, R-Jackson, sponsored a bill that requires the GBI to maintain a position that provides information about a sex offender’s criminal history to the Sexual Offender Registration Review Board in order to determine the risk an offender may commit a crime again.

The bill — which the governor signed into law in 2021 — also allows the Sexual Offender Registration Review Board to employ its own investigators.

City of Covington

Survey shows city residents want farmers market

By TAYLOR BECK
tbeck@covnews.com

COVINGTON, Ga. — Improving the city’s quality of life starts with the addition of a farmers market, according to recent survey results.

In December, the city of Covington launched a two-question survey for residents to offer input on how to improve the community’s quality of life and also share what they think should be done with a rundown baseball field and gymnasium on Conyers Street.

After garnering about 1,500 responses, a local farmers market was the clear-cut No. 1 amenity that residents wanted to see in Covington, which came as no surprise to the city.

“Just based off community input from casual conversations, we fully expected a farmers market to top the list,” said Trey Sanders, who is Covington’s community development director. “The farmers market was a consensus No. 1 response, and we have already started putting that together for the community with a scheduled first market date of May 21.”

Sanders said the farmers market would be located in Heirloom Park at the Welcome Center on Oak Street. As vendors are still being sought, Sanders said more details about the market would be announced later.

Survey results also showed residents prioritized installing permanent lighting along the Cricket Frog Trail, investing in infrastructure to attract restaurants, having an aquatics center and also maintaining open green space over other items.

“With the energy surrounding the Cricket Frog Trail over the past year, it wasn’t surprising to see that at the top either,” Sanders said.

Sanders said building an aquatics center in Covington would be a massive undertaking, but discussion of how to make it happen would certainly be on the table.

“There are so many pieces to it that make sense that it would be great to bring to fruition,” he said. “Piedmont Newton Hospital could use it for rehab; our schools are going out of county for swim practice and meets, and the YMCA could utilize it heavily. That doesn’t even take into consideration the recreational benefits for the community. With that said, it would take a tremendous amount of community support and funding to pull off.”

A master plan prepared for the Newton County government also recommended elected officials consider construction of an aquatic center somewhere within the county.

Of a total of 14 items residents were asked to rank, 6-10 were an enhanced amphitheater at Legion Field to handle larger acts; the addition of a splash park, a brewery, free putt-putt course and a bike share program. Ranked 11-14 were the addition of a skate park, increased public art initiatives, public transportation and installing golf cart charging stations.

As for the future of Baker Field and Conyers Street Gym, survey results showed most residents wanted the facilities to be renovated for its original intent — simply to play ball. Others wanted the city to restore the field, but invest in infrastructure in the gym to attract various eateries for a potential “food hall” location.

Newton County voter ordered to stop sharing photos of ballot

By TOM SPIGOLON
tspigolon@covnews.com

ATLANTA — The State Election Board has voted to order a Newton County voter to stop posting photos of his election ballot on Facebook more than five years after he violated state law by doing so.

James Aaron Brooks posted a photo of his ballot in violation of state law after he voted in the November 2016 General Election in Newton County, according to a Final Order approved by the State Election Board March 16.

Assistant Attorney General Charlene McGowan wrote to Board members that the Attorney General’s office recommended that “the Board resolve this matter by a Final Order issuing a cease and desist and public reprimand.”

It stated the Georgia Secretary of State’s office investigated Newton County Board of Elections and Registration’s complaint that Brooks voted early at the Newton County Elections Office before the November 2016 General Election and “on the same date, photographs of an electronic ballot appeared on his Facebook page.”

His action violated Georgia law which states, “No person shall use photographic or other electronic monitoring or recording devices, cameras or cellular telephones while such person is in

Care technician opens home to COVID patient with nowhere to go

SPECIAL TO THE NEWS
news@covnews.com

COVINGTON, Ga. — When Conroy Ledgister relocated from Boston, Mass. to Covington, Ga., the 57-year-old contractor and father of four had plans to buy a house and flip it; instead, he contracted COVID-19 in December and spent his first two months in Georgia at Piedmont Newton Hospital.

“I was one machine away from the ventilator,” Ledgister said of how serious his case was.

When he was nearly well enough to be discharged, there was just one problem: he wasn’t sure where he would go, not having found a place before he got sick.

With this on his mind, Ledgister didn’t sound as excited as his patient care tech at Piedmont Newton, Shana Andrews, expected him to be about going home after so long in the hospital.

“I said, ‘You know, you’re going to be going home soon.’ ... He was happy, but he didn’t seem so happy about going home,”

Conroy Ledgister

Shana Andrews

Andrews recalled.

The two got to talking about the circumstances, which gave Andrews an idea: her family recently inherited a house from an aunt who passed away and it was just sitting empty; Ledgister could stay there until he fully recovered.

Andrews, who has worked as a patient care tech at Piedmont Newton for three years, said she wanted to help Ledgister like her extended family had helped her and her husband before they could rent their own house with their three-month-old son.

“He’s sick. I was saying to myself he shouldn’t have to stay in a hotel,” Andrews explained. “I really didn’t think too much into it. I was just thinking about helping somebody.”

But the gesture is making a big difference for Ledgister. As a diabetic, it is important for him to eat right, so he was especially worried about going from the hospital to a hotel, where he would have been eating mostly fast food.

Ledgister has been discharged from Piedmont Newton and is currently staying at Andrews’ family’s house in Monticello, Ga. On a recent afternoon, when Ledgister’s blood sugar levels weren’t what they should have been, he was able to grab an assortment of berries from the kitchen—something he could not have done so easily at a hotel. He also enjoyed a walk around the neighborhood.

“If I have my own place, I can go grocery shopping and cook my own food and I can be a little bit more safe and take care of myself. So, her finding this place and offering it meant everything,” he said.

The invitation has also meant Ledgister can remain in the area and pursue his dream of starting his own business.

“I can’t wait to buy my first property and flip it,” Ledgister said.

Newton, Social Circle schools receive thousands in state Opportunity Grants

STAFF REPORTS
news@covnews.com

COVINGTON, Ga. — Newton County-area schools will have the funds to help establish new mentoring, foreign language and physical education programs after the schools were named recipients of state Opportunity Grants recently.

More than $19,000 in grants were awarded to Social Circle High School, the Newton County School System and five of its schools from federal stimulus funds the Department of Education received under the federal American Rescue Plan Act.

The Georgia Department of Education is giving Opportunity Grants totaling almost $900,000 to school districts statewide to expand options and opportunities for their students, State School Superintendent Richard Woods said Thursday.

The Newton County-area recipients and amounts:

- Social Circle High School received $3,000 in a Fine Arts Consumables and Equipment (FACE) grant to allow fine arts teachers to implement sustainable fine arts education instruction initiatives to increase access to quality fine arts education, a news release stated.
- Newton County School System received $5,000 in an AP Teacher Mentoring Grant to provide financial support for districts to design a mentoring program for teachers, including mentoring activities.

The grant funds will allow schools to offer focused support to new or experienced AP teachers who seek to improve their instructional practices, the release stated.

- West Newton Elementary School

received $ 4,369 in a Physical Education Project (PEP) grant to provide physical education teachers opportunities to implement sustainable physical education initiatives and increase access to quality physical education.

- Palmer Stone Elementary School received $2,000 and East Newton Elementary School $2,000 in Student Fitness Education Program and Equipment (STEP) grants to provide physical education teachers opportunities to implement sustainable fitness education instruction initiatives and acquire the necessary equipment to increase access to quality fitness education.
- Eastside High School will receive $2,000 and Clements Middle School $1,000 in World Languages Innovation grants to provide opportunities for public schools in Georgia to create and enhance existing programs and activities that connect world language instruction with other academic areas.

Woods said the grants “allow schools and districts to continue to expand opportunities and ensure an excellent education for students across the state.”

State telling local leaders how to operate is ironic

Why elect school boards or, for that matter, hire administrators to operate school systems in Georgia when the Georgia General Assembly is seeing fit to take over that task?

After all, they now are telling local systems essentially how to govern the schools in their areas with one-size-fits-all legislation for Georgia schools no matter where those schools are located — or even if the school systems are doing the same tasks already.

The same rules will apply whether the schools are in inner-city Atlanta, rural Dawson County or suburban Alpharetta.

State lawmakers in the current General Assembly session are telling school boards and administrators how they should enforce health rules in their schools, how they should govern school board meetings, what books should go in their schools' libraries, and what can't be taught.

All this controversial legislation is well on its way to passage in this election year as the Republican-controlled General Assembly files bill after bill basically designed to fire up its base as it sees its chance to retake control of Congress and legislatures nationwide.

The Georgia House of Representatives has adopted a bill backed by Gov. Brian Kemp — currently in a fight for re-election against a candidate backed by former President Donald Trump — that would create what Kemp calls a parental bill of rights.

Proponents say parents have the right to see what their children are being taught — but if a parent objects to a method of teaching spelling or math they can demand to see what is being used.

It also would give parents authority over whether their children can participate in audio recordings, photos and videos; and requires school boards to allow parents to review all locally-approved methods of instruction — which already is in state and federal law.

Another bill, Senate Bill 226, would allow the state to ban certain books from Georgia's public schools if the books are deemed inappropriate.

"If parents do not want young children reading some very degrading type material, then this is a parent engagement process and allows due process for those parents to be able to challenge these materials," said House Judiciary Non-Civil Committee Chairman James Burchett, R-Waycross, as quoted in the Atlanta World.

But most school systems — including that bastion of liberalism DeKalb County — already have media policies in place that use local boards of parents and teachers to monitor which books should and should not be available to students.

Should lawmakers from rural Georgia — who come from a different world in many ways from urban educators — be telling administrators in the city of Atlanta what is best for students to read? Especially when half the battle these days is to get young high school students to read and understand anything beyond their last text message?

Many of these books encourage young people to consider the many schools of thought concerning everything from racism to finance to government.

Another bill roaring its way to passage in this election year is HB 1084, which would prevent teachers from promoting "divisive concepts" in schools.

The bill is sponsored by State Rep. Will Wade from rural Dawsonville and says divisive concepts include the superiority of one race over another, that a person is already racist because of the color of their skin, and more.

It also is among a series of Republican-backed initiatives introduced in several states this election year that mention critical race theory, which has never been taught in any Georgia schools and few colleges.

So, yes, many disagree with the assumptions of this arcane topic. But to ban it altogether and not allow discussion among young people entering a world where questions about race still dominate social media and popular culture?

Does this mean teachers would fear for their jobs if they teach about the little-discussed marks on our past such as lynchings or forced segregation?

Opponents say such concepts are not being taught in Georgia schools. State Rep. DoREEN CARTER, D-Lithonia, said young people "have hard questions" but a teacher would shy away from discussing them.

But proponents say nothing in the bill would prohibit the teaching of slavery, racial segregation or the Holocaust.

Kemp also is pushing legislation that bans school systems from imposing mask mandates in their buildings.

Proponents say parents are the best decision-makers when it comes to the health and education of their children. Opponents say the pandemic is not over and school systems — who sometimes are the de facto parents for students from some homes — should be able to control what goes on in their buildings.

Georgia's leaders don't like it when the federal government imposes rules they deem as too intrusive or ... liberal. But they have no problem telling officials at the local level how to operate.

Our View on the Issue

Let's take litter problem into our own hands

When something needs to get done, oftentimes we are forced to take matters into our own hands.

Since the pandemic began more than two years ago, litter across Newton County has been an unfortunate growing issue.

On Saturday, Keep Newton Beautiful Manager Laurie Riley said getting volunteers to help clean the county's roadsides was more important than ever, because prison details that had been tasked to pick up that trash hasn't been allowed to do so.

While the Newton County Board of Commissioners has hired workers to do this, litter continues to be a problem.

Friends: it's time to take matters into our own hands.

"What do you mean?"

It's time that we, as a community, make a more concerted effort to regularly clean up our roadsides. It could be as often as just a couple hours per week. And it's as simple as sporting a pair of gloves and grabbing a bag or two.

And it doesn't have to stop there.

Hold others accountable. Odds are that anyone willing to get involved in cleanup efforts aren't litter bugs. Encourage those who may be carelessly tossing their trash to change their ways and dispose of their waste properly. When a person chucks a can or bag of food boxes out the window, call 911 and report them.

If you want to help keep our community clean, reach out to Keep Newton Beautiful at newtonclean@co.newton.ga.us or 770-784-2015 to learn more and request trash-bags, gloves and vests.

And also reach out if your family, neighborhood, church, scout, club, fraternity/sorority or school group is interested in the Adopt a Mile program.

Newton County is a rising star in the world of industry and filming. It's quickly become a tourist destination, as well as the perfect place to live, work and play. But if we want to keep it that way, we must work to clean up after ourselves and ensure sure this star will forever continue shining.

Learning to fly Elon Musk's starship may be the challenge I need

At this stage of my life, I need a challenge. It's time to take on something most people will never conquer. Sure, I could go the easy route and become a rocket scientist. Nah, let's go with brain surgery, that might test my limits. Or if I wanted to excel physically, I could climb Mount Everest. But none of those will do. I want to truly go where no man has gone before. I want to figure out how to get the best deal on TV viewing by cutting the cord.

My hometown cable provider is strongly encouraging me to make new choices. Programming, they say, has become too expensive, so they want to cut their losses by shedding a few thousand of us from their customer list. They are more than willing to keep up my internet and my landline phone, but cable boxes are now as antiquated as a, well... a landline phone. (I'll open that can of worms in a future column).

So they have told me to start streaming. I have already dipped a toe in the water by subscribing to a couple of streaming services. They have such cute names. Let's see, there's Sling, Fire Stick, Cube, Hulu, Roku, Vudu, Philo, Pluto, Fubo, Burp, Snort, Furball, HackySack, Slurp, Stirr, Groucho, Chico and Harpo. OK, I may have made a few of those up.

The point is, the choices are overwhelming. In my childhood, the entertainment options were 3, 9, 12 or go outside. Now, even with basic cable, one can spend hours flipping between endless reruns of Gunsmoke, Law and Order, and the most recent Tim Allen sitcom. You know, the one in which Tim switches out daughters more frequently than I change the air filters.

In the early days of cable TV, Bruce Springsteen wrote a song called "57 Channels (and Nothin' On)." He had no idea where this was going. Now there are thousands of channels. Some are devoted to poker, cornhole and movies that didn't even attract moths to the big screen. There are infomercials galore, ranging from preachers who will send you a "gift" in exchange for $99.95 to miracle cures for fungus-damaged toenails.

Having said that, all I really want to watch are my local channels, the major network news and sports channels, a few good movie channels and, of course my beloved Atlanta Braves.

Regular readers may know that I have followed the Braves since childhood. Throughout the 1970s and 1980s, I stuck with them through thin and thin.

Of course, now the defending World Series champions are a valuable commodity, and those of us who have spent our youth and adult lives watching them for little or nothing will soon have to pay the price.

Bally Sports, whose channels now carry most Braves games, is owned by Sinclair Broadcasting, which is not a charity. It has been reported that Sinclair is actively negotiating the rights to move their major league sports programming to streaming apps, which could cost customers around $25 a month.

With sports programming prices skyrocketing (hey, someone's got to pay Freddie Freeman's salary), your neighborhood cable company will soon draw the line, if they haven't already. So that's why I am now furiously earning my degree in Cord Cutting.

After posing the question on Facebook, I got 314 different answers from 314 different people. In our relatively new digital broadcast environment, some are fortunate enough to receive signals from their local stations via antenna, but others are not. The digital signals are fantastic if you live in the flatlands, but in our hilly region, not so much.

Some folks have spent days and weeks researching the pluses and minuses of various apps and streamers, and are patching together their own packages of news, entertainment and sports, only to learn that the accumulated total of the various subscriptions rivals or surpasses the cable packages they left behind.

There are no easy answers, and whatever you choose in 2022 could be obsolete or overpriced in 2023.

For now, I sit juggling my four remote controls, confidently knowing that if I ever master them, I could surely learn to fly Elon Musk's new Starship.

The State Election Board voted in April 2019 to refer the case to the State Attorney General’s office.

Officials have said election law cases typically take years to resolve because of the amount of investigation needed and lack of manpower.

Brooks faced a possible $5,000 fine and other requirements for violating the law.

In addition, if Brooks had not complied with the investigation he could have been cited for contempt of court, according to state law.

He is still a registered voter in Newton County, according to information from the county elections office.

SURVEY:

The redevelopment and renovation of Conyers Street Gym and Baker Field was at the center of controversy months ago after an Alpharetta-based developer, on behalf of Covington Historic Places LLC, proposed a $14 million plan to transform the site by constructing 40 apartments and retail space while preserving the history and integrity of the beloved facility.

After holding a town hall event in October where residents offered mixed reviews, the city council discovered the Covington Housing Authority was involved in the project as Covington Historic Places LLC. Various council members suspected an ulterior motive by the housing authority. Following the council’s findings, Covington City Manager Scott Andrews said in a statement that the city had chosen to decline the proposal.

However, an internal investigation conducted by the city attorney proved there was no scheme taking place, and the housing authority’s involvement was in good faith.

The Conyers Street Gym

has been vacant for several years and is in poor condition.

While the survey provided insight on residents’ view, what exactly will happen to the facility remains to be determined, Sanders said.

“I am certain this will be a major topic of discussion at the April retreat,” he said.

Only 1,500 responses translates to about 10% of the city’s population, but Sanders said that number was deflated due to how surveys were completed.

“Approximately half of the 1,500 responses we received were from people who got the survey in their utility bill, so it is a safe assumption they filled the survey out on behalf of their family. That brings the number of voices that had input in the survey up significantly.”

Sanders said the city “exercised every method possible” to get the most community participation.

“In recent memory,” he said, “this is the best response we have had to any type of survey we have conducted.”

about 40,000 residents in 1988 — almost two-thirds smaller than today's population. The District 3 seat had been held by one man, Bob Bates, for almost two decades and Monk recalled the Board being a "good ol' boy network" of commissioners.

She said she believed she brought a "female touch" to issues with which the Board dealt. "We needed a representative for that vote," Monk said, in reference to female voters.

Some members were not "thrilled" with spending on such things as an animal control department or a Court-Appointed Special Advocate (CASA) program that advocated for children caught in the court system, she said.

"We had our differences .. our knock-down, drag-outs," Monk said.

But she also said the board on which she served, which included such civic leaders as Harold Cobb and Chairman Roy Varner, boasted people genuinely concerned about their community.

Monk served one term before leaving the District 3 seat and making an unsuccessful bid for the county chairman job. She also ran for state House of

Representatives and other positions, including her old District 3 seat in 2016.

Four years after Monk left office, the second female commissioner, Leanne Long, won a special election in 1996 for the District 2 seat when Ester Fleming ran for county chairman.

Long also recalled the Board being a "boy's club." She recalled constituents calling her home during her two years on the Board and being content to talk to her husband rather than Long.

The DeKalb native had moved to Newton County in 1990. She began her service on the Board in 1997 when District 2 in western Newton was still primarily rural, but the county's population was rapidly growing after a long period of little population growth.

Homebuilders were meeting the increasing demand for housing by rapidly building homes that Long and others believed could have been larger and of higher quality.

"The western end was being pounded," Long said.

"I was firm about raising the square footage," she said. "The citizens wanted it."

But she said others on the Board favored fewer constraints on the housing market and she was outvoted.

A decade later, the widow of former chairman Davis Morgan, Kathy Morgan, won election as Newton County's first female county chairman.

Kathy Morgan had been a major part of the family's construction business, MOPAC Inc., and, later, was in the banking business when her husband served as chairman from 1992-2000.

By the time Mrs. Morgan was elected in 2008, she said she had worked in a male-dominated business world for years.

"It was not an issue I had ever considered," she said.

She said she "did notice there were situations where people wanted to patronize me" and she would ask her male county manager, John Middleton, to join in the discussion.

"Once they got to know me, the issue never came up," she said.

She said older men typically had a harder time dealing with a woman — though she often knew more about road construction than her male counterparts because of her work in the family business.

However, the timing of her election and her term of office from 2009-2013 were not favorable for her administration or the county. The Great Recession severely affected Newton's residential construction-dominated economy.

"Real estate hit us greatly," Morgan recalled.

The county government was forced to cut about 30% of its General Fund as tax revenues plummeted within months in 2009. County leaders then had to make painful cuts and laid off 70 employees, Morgan said.

Davis said her background in the private sector gave her the experience needed to deal with such reductions but it was difficult, nonetheless, she said.

"Every time I had to do it, it was an individual I knew and cared about," she said. The activity around Covington's square also little resembled the tourism-heavy traffic of today, she said.

But Warner Brothers Studios approached the local governments around this time and began using the downtown area as locations for its new show, "Vampire Diaries."

Baxter Pharmaceuticals also contacted county leaders around this time with plans for what became the first major industry to locate in Stanton Springs industrial park, she said. It now operates as Takeda Pharmaceuticals.

Morgan now serves as the administrator of the Highway 278 Community Improvement District, which seeks to improve the economic condition for residents and businesses along U.S. Hwy. 278 in Covington.

U.S. Rep. Hank Johnson, D-Stonecrest, recently honored her and eight other area women with "Trailblazer" awards in recognition of their "pioneering careers and service to the greater community."

Johnson honored Morgan for being the first and only woman elected chairman of the Newton County Board of Commissioners.

minutes to Atlanta — as well as being on a major interstate, Interstate 20, creates great opportunity for this region and I'd like to be a part of it."

The Georgia native began work as interim county manager March 7 and has hit the ground running leading the day-to-day operations of most of Newton County government.

Among his first duties was preparing the 2023 budget for presentation to the Newton County Board of Commissioners.

Sims said he already is working with the finance department on the early stages of compiling the document and is sorting out the needs of the individual departments and government offices included in the annual spending plan.

In anticipation of the beginning of a round of public workshops for the 2023 budget process Tuesday through Thursday this week, Sims said he has met most of the 20 department heads individually and all those under his direct supervision in a group.

"The HR director as well as the chairman said I was coming into a great team of department directors that were dedicated and understood and knew their craft," Sims said, "I can tell that right away."

He also has worked to meet all the constitutional officers — sheriff, clerk of courts, tax commissioners and probate judge — as well as the district attorney and Superior Court and Juvenile Court judges.

Last week, he worked to meet representatives of the nonprofit organizations that annually seek appropriations from the county government, such as Viewpoint Health and Alcovy Court Appointed Special Advocate (CASA).

The 2022 budget totaled $77.6 million in its General Fund and $118.6 million with all funds combined.

The proposed 2023 budget is tentatively scheduled to be presented to the Board May 24 with public hearings planned for May 31 and June 7.

Sims said his experience with Richmond County after years working in municipal government helped prepare him for the Newton County role.

He said his past experience working in Georgia governments — rather than coming from another state — also helped prepare him. Many Georgia counties mirror each other in the types of departments they operate, such as a landfill, public works and others, he said.

"You see a lot of similarities in the different counties in the state," he said.

Sims said his goal is for the county government to be innovative, transparent and effective while providing "excellent service."

The county government should have a consistent approach when dealing with the public — along the lines of how Chick-fil-A restaurant works to provide a consistent level of customer service at all its locations, Sims said. The new interim county manager grew up in Atlanta and is a graduate of Walter F. George High School — which later merged with another school to form what is now South Atlanta High School.

Sims earned a bachelor's degree in criminal justice from Georgia State University, a master's degree in business administration from Mercer University and an online certification in government digital transformation from Harvard University.

He said he first saw himself working in law enforcement rather than city and county governments.

After working in the private sector for IBM and Sears Credit, Sims began a 16-year career with the East Point city government. He began work as a crime analyst in the early 2000s and worked his way up to manager of capital projects and public safety administrator.

He then was hired as deputy administrator for Augusta-Richmond County consolidated government in August 2018 and stepped in as interim administrator when the administrator resigned in April 2019. He served a year and a half in the position — including the months when governments nationwide struggled to deal with the effects of the COVID-19 pandemic.

However, he lost his job as part of a political reshuffling when a new administrator was hired in early 2021, according to a report in the Augusta Chronicle.

Sims said a "mentor" from Newton County he declined to name helped guide him along the way. He also regularly traveled through Newton County when traveling from Augusta to visit relatives in Atlanta during his time in east Georgia.

He agreed Newton County is facing the same challenge other public and private employers are facing in competing for workers as the Atlanta area emerges from the pandemic.

He said he is glad the county is considering doing a compensation study designed in part to make its wages more competitive.

However, the Newton County government already has a "family environment" that helps convince existing employees to stay and could help attract new workers, Sims said.

"Sometimes you don't have the family environment that I've experienced here so far," he said.

mostly involves roadside litter cleanup.

"We are one affiliate of many across the country that are working on this day and other Saturdays to pick up trash around town," Riley said. "And for Newton County, it's a great way to bring awareness to the litter problem, because we do have a lot of litter on our roadways right now because the prison details haven't been out picking up trash since COVID started. And so we need everyone to pitch in and help us clean up."

Main areas of focus for volunteers on Saturday included Brown Bridge Road, Covington ByPass Road, the Cricket Frog Trail and some areas in Oxford.

Riley said the clean up initiative will run through May 31, "but we clean up all the time, everyday."

"All of this [equipment needed to pick up trash] is available to people who want to clean up anytime," Riley said. "We have supplies every day that people can come and pick up at our office, and we're glad to support cleanups whenever anyone wants to have one."

The Keep Newton Beautiful office is located at 1113 Usher St., Suite 201, in Covington.

Newton County resident Linda Triggs was one of several to take part in the clean-up event on Saturday. Since moving to the area in 2003, Triggs has placed great importance on helping keep the environment litter-free.

"This is my community, in which I live, and so how can it not be clean if I don't help try to ensure the beauty of it?" Triggs said. "We are a product of the environment, and in order to sustain the environment, we have to put in our effort to do it. Not only just to do it, but to help it to breathe and live, and continue to be edified."

County Chairman Marcello Banes was among the many volunteers who helped kick off the clean up initiative. He was thankful for the turnout and hoped the community would continue working together to keep the county looking its best.

"If we can all remember that each of us has a responsibility to maintain the beauty of our community, I know we will see a reduction of litter in our community," Banes wrote in a social media post after the event. "By working together, we can continue to make a better Newton County."

Covington Assistant City Manager John King and a group of city employees were among the first to start picking up trash along Brown Bridge Road.

But her scoring ability isn't what Menchaca highlighted as the area she believes she has improved the most this season. "During preseason conditioning, we would play some teamwork related games, and I always had a hard time opening my mouth to communicate with my teammates," Menchaca said. "Now, I can actually open my mouth, and make something come out that would be helpful." Scoring goals for the Lady Tigers soccer team isn't the only thing Menchaca does as a student at Alcovy High School. In addition to her position on the soccer field, Menchaca is also a member of Alcovy's chapter of FFA. Right now, she's just a member but aspires to run for an officer position in her junior year. Currently, Menchaca is taking Essentials to Biotechnology at the Newton College and Career Academy (NCCA). And, even though she's a sophomore, Menchaca says this class has birthed her future plans for after high school.

"I plan to attend college to get a degree in biotechnology and become an agricultural biotechnologist, which is someone who can genetically modify plants to help them grow better or medicines for animals to improve health," Menchaca said. But, for now, Menchaca is focused on the remainder of the soccer season for the Lady Tigers. She believes that, with the mindset of her and her teammates, they can accomplish much more this season. "I love each of my teammates and coaches very much," Menchaca said. "I will always remember this team as the team who never gave up and always tried their hardest no matter what the score is."

Notae, Arkansas run ends against Duke in Elite Eight

By PHILLIP B. HUBBARD

SAN FRANCISCO — Arkansas' 78-69 Elite Eight loss against Duke on March 26 at the Chase Center ended the Razorbacks' 2022 postseason run. However, before the season ended, Arkansas added some madness to their March schedule. Leading the way for the Razorbacks, too, was former Newton Rams star JD Notae. In the first round of the bracket, Arkansas, as a No. 4 seed, downed Vermont 75-71 on March 17. Notae had 17 points and seven rebounds in the win. Then, facing New Mexico State in round No. 2 on March 19, the Razorbacks triumphed over the Lobos 53-48. The leading scorer was Notae with 18 points. He also had four rebounds, three assists and eight steals. Following that performance was arguably one of the biggest upsets of this year's bracket. Notae and the Razorbacks went up against No. 1 seed Gonzaga and sent the Bulldogs packing with Arkansas winning 74-68 on March 24. Scoring a team-high 21 points was Notae who also recorded six rebounds, six assists and three steals.

it still begs the question: Will we ever see another lifetime Atlanta player ever again? Will there be another Chipper Jones again? My guess will be no. And here's why. First of all, superstars like Chipper spending their careers in one place is rare on its own. I mean, even the beloved Hank Aaron spent parts of his career elsewhere. But, more importantly, the current culture in sports doesn't allow for players, for any sport, to stick around for long anymore. In the era where players can get big pay days by jumping ship or an organization not willing to pay to keep a franchise player, there is just a lack of loyalty in sports on both sides of the equation. Simply put, our sports world today does not allow for a franchise player anymore, in my opinion. In fact, the only player I see proving me wrong right now is Trae Young of the Atlanta Hawks. I believe he'll be the closest for a while to become a lifetime Atlanta player. With that said, I do think, if the Hawks prove that they can't help Young win a championship, he'll more than likely be gone, too. I hope I'm wrong, but I don't see many current players who could stick around for their whole careers. Which, if it plays out like that, maybe we should've celebrated Chipper more than we did when he retired? Phillip B. Hubbard is sports editor for The Covington News. Reach him at phubbard@covnews.com

Rams fall in region opener

Bullpen leads way for Grayson's 5-1 win over Newton

By GARRETT PITTS
Correspondent

COVINGTON, Ga. — Grayson's pitching proved too much for Newton as the Rams dropped the series opener at home 5-1 Monday afternoon.

With the Rams opening their region matchups against each other, both were looking to set the tone for what will be an important final stretch of the season.

Grayson's Stephen Slezak took the mound against Newton and mowed through the lineup on his way to five full innings.

Slezak racked up nine strikeouts through five, allowing four walks and no earned runs.

"[Slezak] was definitely tough, he kept us off balance with really good off-speed," head coach Derwin McNealy said.

Newton's lone run of the night came across the plate on a throwing error in the first inning from Grayson third basemen Wyatt Williams, which allowed Collin Brightwell to score.

Grayson took the lead in the second inning after an RBI single from Blair Barnes led to a sacrifice fly from Kameron Byrd to give them a 2-1 lead over Newton, which lasted a majority of the game.

Caden Brown took the mound for Newton in game one, holding the Grayson offense to two runs through five innings despite being in multiple jams throughout.

Both teams switched pitchers in the sixth inning, as Grayson made the move to

Will we ever see another Chipper Jones?

The date was June 28, 2013. I found myself in the stands at Turner Field attending the jersey retirement for Chipper Jones — a hall of fame third baseman who played his entire 19-year career with the Atlanta Braves.

Fans cheered, did "The Chop" and celebrated a living legend who just retired the season before in 2012.

As I look back on that day, I remember my daddy, brother and me talking on the ride back home how we believed Freddie Freeman would be the next lifetime Brave. Freeman was just in his third season in the majors, but even then you could tell Freeman was slowly becoming the face of the franchise.

Now, obviously, following the news of Freeman joining the L.A. Dodgers, he won't even spend his entire career in Atlanta.

Then, days after that, news broke that the Falcons traded Matt Ryan to Indianapolis. Again, another player who I thought would spend his whole career in the Peach State went to join another organization.

These two events happened under very different circumstances, I know, but

Eastside boys' slow start leads to 8-1 loss against Johnson

By MIKE HARRISON

COVINGTON, Ga. — Every Lady Eagle made a contribution in Eastside's 6-0 win over Johnson High School at home on Thursday.

Lizzie Teasley assisted on the first goal of the match, getting the ball to Mia Mostek who proceeded to net the goal with 25:25 left in the first half. Less than three minutes later, Joanna

Hearty rice dish spices up special occasions

SPECIAL TO THE NEWS
news@covnews.com

Lamb is a common component of spring meals. Lamb is a go-to dish for springtime religious celebrations, most notably Easter dinners. Many cultures have their own unique takes on preparing lamb, which can be enjoyed in chops, roasts and even in stews.

When Indian immigrants arrived in the Caribbean, they brought with them their rich culture, including their cuisine. One popular dish was pelau, a traditional spicy rice dish featuring meat and vegetables. While traditional Indian cuisine may use beef, chicken and even pigeon when making pelau, lamb can provide a tasty twist that remains true to the dish's origins. Individuals interested in a new way to serve lamb can try "Lamb Pelau" from "The Complete Mexican, South American and Caribbean Cookbook" (Metro Books) by Jane Milton, Jenni

Fleetwood and Marina Filippelli.

Lamb Pelau
Serves 4
Ingredients:
1 pound stewing lamb
1 tablespoon curry

powder
1 onion, finely chopped
2 garlic cloves, crushed
1/2 teaspoon dried thyme
1/2 teaspoon dried

oregano
1 fresh or dried chile
2 tablespoons butter or margarine, plus extra for serving
2 1/2 cups beef stock, chicken stock, or coconut milk

1 teaspoon ground black pepper
2 tomatoes, chopped
2 teaspoons sugar
2 tablespoons chopped scallion
2 1/2 cups basmati rice

Scallion strips, to garnish

Directions:

Cut the lamb into cubes and place in a dish. Add the curry powder, onion, garlic, herbs, and chile, and stir well. Cover with plastic wrap and leave to marinate for 1 hour.

Melt the butter or margarine in a pan and fry the lamb for 5 to 10 minutes. Pour in the stock or coconut milk, bring to a boil, then lower the heat, and simmer for 35 minutes, or until tender.

Add the black pepper, tomatoes, sugar, chopped scallion, and rice. Stir well and reduce the heat. Make sure that the rice is covered by 1 inch of liquid; add a little water if necessary. Cover the pan; simmer the pelau for 25 minutes, or until the rice has absorbed the liquid and is cooked. Spoon into a serving bowl and stir in a little extra butter or margarine. Garnish with scallion strips and serve.

Enhance game night with outstanding appetizers

SPECIAL TO THE NEWS
news@covnews.com

Families and friends will soon be gathering to cheer on their favorite teams in the season's pinnacle match-ups. To ensure guests have enough energy to ride out the drama, hosts should provide plenty of food.

Finger foods are preferential on game days because they are easy to grab and eat by hand, especially when clamoring for space in a crowd. Sliders or cheese sticks are go-to options, but for a more gourmet offering, think about crab cakes. These "Best Crab Cakes Ever," as they are billed in "BBQ Revolution" (Harvard Common Press) by Mitch Benjamin, are a tasty change of pace.

Best Crab Cakes Ever
Makes 6
Ingredients:
1/2 cup unsalted butter, plus 1 tablespoon
2 celery ribs, minced
1/2 yellow onion, minced
1/2 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper, preferably toasted, plus more as needed
1 teaspoon plus 1 tablespoon Old Bay Seasoning
1 tablespoon hot sauce
2 pounds smoked jumbo lump crabmeat
6 tablespoons heavy whipping cream
3 large eggs
26 Ritz crackers, crushed
Vegetable oil, for pan-frying
2 tablespoons chopped fresh flat-leaf parsley
2 lemons, cut into wedges for garnish

Directions:

Heat a stick of butter in a small pot over low heat until the solids separate. Skim off the white foam that rises to the top with a little ladle and pour the clear butter aside to cool.

In another small pot, melt the remaining 1 tablespoon of butter and add the minced celery and onion as well as the 1/2 teaspoon of black pepper and the 1 teaspoon of Old Bay Seasoning. Cover and sweat this over medium-low heat for about 10 minutes or until the vegetables are nice and soft. It's going to smell amazing, but don't start eating now!

Remove the veggies from the heat and let them cool down. Transfer the veggies plus the clarified butter and the hot sauce into a large mixing bowl. Add the crab and heavy whipping cream and mix gently. The worst thing you could do here is overmix the crab and break up the fat lumps you just paid a premium for.

Cover and place this mixture in the freezer for 30 minutes or so. Remove and form the mix into 5-ounce balls (the size of a snowball) in your hands. Again, be gentle; you aren't packing these snowballs for war. You should be able to get six good ones out of the mix. Cover in plastic wrap and then return to the freezer for at least 4 hours or up to overnight. You need to get these nice and cold since you aren't using any filler/binder in these crab cakes.

While the mix is chilling, whip your eggs in a small mixing bowl with a crack of freshly ground black pepper. Add the crushed Ritz crackers to another bowl with the remaining 1 tablespoon of Old Bay Seasoning. Go ahead and preheat the oven to 350 degrees for later.

Remove the frozen crab cakes from the freezer and dunk them in the egg and then into the seasoned Ritz crumble mix. Cover completely. Repeat with all the crab cakes and set aside. Get about 1/8 inch of your vegetable oil ripping hot in a cast iron pan over coals on the grill. I like to cook these crab cakes outside in order to keep the oil smell from taking over the kitchen. There's nothing better than a cast iron skillet over hot coals. If you must, place over your gas stove at home. Get it hot. I like to drip water droplets in to see when the oil is hot enough. The droplets will sizzle and pop, and that's how you know it's ready.

Carefully drop the crab cakes in the pan and press down on them lightly just to slightly flatten them so they appear a little more cake-like and lay nicely on your plate. Fry for 4 to 5 minutes on each side until you have made a perfect golden crust (don't burn the outside). Then, put the entire cast iron skillet in the oven for 20 minutes. If desired, you can use a fish spatula or slotted spoon to transfer the cakes to a baking sheet — and leave the oil smell outside.

After 20 minutes, remove from the oven and plate up.

Pete Holmes (left) and Chi McBride star in "How We Roll," premiering Thursday on CBS.

'How We Roll' is right up Pete Holmes' alley

In his new sitcom, Pete Holmes has a ball, very literally.

The comedian who previously starred in "Crashing" and "The Pete Holmes Show" makes a leap from cable to broadcast television — and also from semi-autobiographical material to someone else's saga — in "How We Roll," a CBS sitcom debuting Thursday, March 31. The show is based on the true story of Tom Smallwood, a downsized Midwestern auto worker who decides to pursue his dream of becoming a pro bowler, supported by his wife ("Scandal" alum Katie Lowes) and an alley proprietor (Chi McBride, "Hawaii Five-0").

Noting such previous bowling-themed projects as TV's "Ed" and the movies "The Big Lebowski" and "Kingpin," Holmes muses, "I'm not too familiar with the lingo, so I'll just say that this is about real, heavy-ball bowling. My experience with bowling is similar to that of maybe most Americans ... it's something I don't do that often, but when I do, I remember how much fun it is."

"I was lucky enough to have a few lessons with professionals," Holmes notes of his preparation for the series. "I didn't learn so much how to bowl, but how to look like I know how to bowl. And they told me very interesting stories about hustling when they were growing up and taking people for a lot of money, because nobody expects anyone to be very good at bowling. But these people were."

Still, Holmes is relieved that he has to look proficient only to a certain degree: "Even when we do an episode that hinges on a tournament, in most of the scenes, I've either just finished bowling or I'm about to bowl. The reason for that is that the show really is about friendship and family and the work relationships you have. In this case, the job is bowling."

Since much of his earlier comedy stemmed from his own life, Holmes finds "How We Roll" a major change in that way. "I really like it," he maintains. "Coming from a comedy background, my first concern is always nailing the joke. Then, it slowly hit me that I have an opportunity to build a character here. It's what so many actors do on so many jobs, but so often, I've played myself. I'm starting for the first time to go, 'Wait. I'm going to answer some questions about this person just for me.'"

In the end, Holmes hopes the appeal of "How We Roll" will be that of the game it deals with. "One of the things I've learned," he reflects, "is that bowling used to be a sport for the elite, and it's just sort of evolved into an event for everyone."

Chefs look for a 'Rat in the Kitchen' in TBS cooking competition show

There is a "Rat in the Kitchen" – but no need to call the health department – in a cooking competition show upcoming on TBS.

The premise of the 10-episode hourlong series that debuts Thursday, March 31, is pretty straightforward. Professional chefs and home cooks compete in a series of creative cooking challenges, earning cash in their bank for every dish that chef Ludo Lefebvre ("The Mind of a Chef," "Ludo Bites America") gives his thumbs up. But one is the titular rodent trying to sabotage the others' creations. So in addition to impressing Lefebvre, they're also trying to determine the mole among them.

In the end, if the cooks correctly guess the guilty party, they win the contents of the bank. If not, the saboteur gets the cash.

Bringing the layperson's perspective is comic and actress Natasha Leggero ("Another Period," "Let's Be Cops"), whose job as host is to keep things light as the competition progresses. But she also found her palate getting sharper with all the tasting.

"Now, it's just very hard for me to go to any restaurant," Leggero explains. "My husband's telling me I'm complaining about food all the time, and I'm like, 'No, I'm just dissecting it.' So I think that just really getting into the food and the game, it just kind of all came.

"And Ludo is so passionate and serious about the food and his standards are so high," she continues. "So just having fun with that and defusing it, and I think that we did strike a good balance between how serious Ludo is about the food and also not taking it completely seriously. He was very fun to riff with, and Ludo's very funny, too."

But spotting the rat wasn't so easy. Sabotage on this show comes in so many forms, from slipping unwanted ingredients into a dish to neglecting to plate a part of the meal to encouraging a fellow cook's bad idea. Lefebvre admits he was glad he didn't have to do it.

"It was hard to figure out what's going on in the kitchen," the chef says. "I was not used to seeing a kitchen, like so many different foods in the kitchen, movement, creativity. I mean, there's a lot of chefs in one kitchen, and a lot of things going on. It's very difficult to find the rats. ... The kitchen was very painful."

OF 'KILLING EVE' ON BBC AMERICA

Was it sad saying goodbye to your character Carolyn and "Killing Eve"?

It's so sad. I can tell you I was really, really sad. I ended my bit on a kind of iconic bit of London and that was rather wonderful, that my last scene was on a wonderful bit of London near the river, and I was very sad to see it all go. But you know, we were all sad saying goodbye to each other, but particularly the camera crew, who were pretty well the same crew all the way through. That's been amazing. Julian (Court), the cinematographer, has really set the tone of it and somehow you felt very close to those guys who spent all those years (with us).

How was it working with a new writer in each of the four seasons?

It's very interesting. As I say, Carolyn is very proscribed. I mean, she exists within a certain framework. So I've always enjoyed the new writers because in the end, everybody has to come in and landed on the same mental energy of Carolyn. And in terms of plotting, I think "Killing Eve" like many series that are very popular becomes a huge pleasure for the audience just to spend time with those characters.

So the issue of plots or style – you know, it's four years old, the show, and even in four years the world has changed a lot. So it's been quite interesting to have new writers who have a slightly different take on things than the writers ... at the beginning. You know, it's good that it changes. You set up a prototype with the first writer. That's where the thing is conceived, really. The first writer is more than a writer. The first writer is God (laughs).

Kim Wolfe

Why the Heck Did I Buy This House?

9 p.m. on HGTV

Designer, home renovator and mother of three Kim Wolfe brings the smarts and tenacity that helped her win Season 24 of "Survivor" to this new home improvement series, in which she rescues hapless homeowners who snapped up their home at first sight, but now are suffering a painful case of buyer's remorse. The series premiere features a couple whose love for a beautiful yard blinded them to the woeful house attached to it. Kim rebuilds their chaotic and cramped quarters into a home fit for a growing family.

When We Were Bullies

9 p.m. on HBO

This Oscar-nominated documentary short from Jay Rosenblatt ("Phantom Limb") follows the filmmaker as he tracks down members of his fifth grade class to see what they might remember about a schoolyard bullying incident that took place 50 years ago. Using archival material, found footage, animated recreations and interviews with classmates and a teacher, Rosenthal weaves together a collage that revisits that moment in time that had been obscured by the elusive nature of memory yet still resonated decades later.

Good Trouble

10 p.m. on FREE

Mariana (Cierra Ramirez) tries to get information from the Revitalize Beauty girls that will help the FCGs land brand-name clients in the new episode "It's Lonely Out in Space." Meanwhile, Gael (Tommy Martinez) has a hard time balancing Yuri's (Craig Parker) needs with those of Isabella (Priscilla Quintana). Elsewhere, some food truck shenanigans bring Dennis (Josh Pence) closer to Isabella, and Joaquin (Bryan Craig) asks Kelly (Anastasia Leddick) to tell him about Diana Graham (guest star Kate Bond).

Jared Padalecki

Walker

8 p.m. on WUPA

The future of the Walker family ranch hangs in the balance as tensions between that clan and the Davidson family reach a boiling point in the new episode "Common Ground." As Walker (Jared Padalecki) finally reaches the end of his rope with Denise (guest star Amara Zaragoza), she bitterly sets her sights on revenge. Keegan Allen, Kale Culley, Violet Brinson, Molly Hagan and Mitch Pileggi also star.

Rat in the Kitchen

9 p.m. on TBS

Culinary chaos is given free rein in this new cooking competition series hosted by comic Natasha Leggero and celebrity chef Ludo Lefebvre. The high-stakes kitchen game employs a cat-and-mouse format that invites viewers at home to play detective. Over the course of the 10-week season, a combination of professional chefs compete in a series of cooking challenges to earn cash by impressing Chef Ludo with their dishes. There's a rat in the kitchen, though: One of them is a mole trying to sabotage their efforts.

How We Roll

9:30 p.m. on WGCL

Based on the life of professional bowler Tom Smallwood, this new comedy series stars the amiable Pete Holmes as Tom, a Midwestern husband and father, who finds himself at a crossroads when he is laid off from his assembly-line job at an auto plant. Instead of wallowing in depression, Tom impulsively decides to pursue his old dream of professional bowling. He's got the support of his loved ones as he chases his joy. Katie Lowes ("Scandal"), Chi McBride, Julie White and Mason Wells co-star.

Perdita Weeks

John and the Hole

8:05 p.m. on SHOW

Nicolás Giacobone adapted his own short story “El Pozo” for director Pascual Sisto’s 2021 coming-of-age psychological thriller about a boy (Charlie Shotwell, “Captain Fantastic”) who stumbles upon an unfinished bunker in the woods next to his home and puts the space to chilling use. Michael C. Hall, Jennifer Ehle, Taissa Farmiga, Ben O’Brien and Lucien Spelman co-star in the film, which was selected for screening at the later-canceled 2020 Cannes Film Festival and subsequently had its world premiere at the 2021 Sundance Film Festival.

Magnum P.I.

9 p.m. on WGCL

Higgins (Perdita Weeks) finds herself in a dizzyingly complicated situation when a 12-year-old asks for her help solving a triple homicide that involves the girl’s mother in a new episode called “Remember Me Tomorrow.” Elsewhere, while doing volunteer work with the No Veteran Dies Alone program to comfort veterans now in hospice, Magnum (Jay Hernandez) bonds with a terminally ill yet still vibrant patient and tries to reunite him with his family. Brian “Q” Quinn

Hang 'Em High

8 p.m. on SUND

After starring in a run of spaghetti Westerns, Clint Eastwood came home and made this pasta-free tale of frontier justice. He plays a former lawman who's almost killed by a lynch mob for a crime he didn't commit. Encouraged by a judge and armed with a marshal's badge, he sets out to even the score with his would-be executioners. Inger Stevens, Ed Begley and Pat Hingle also star in the 1968 Western.

The Heat

9:15 p.m. on FREE

Sandra Bullock and Melissa McCarthy merge their comedic styles as seemingly mismatched law enforcers in this 2013 action comedy that reteams McCarthy with her “Bridesmaids” director, Paul Feig. The action isn't shortchanged as Bullock plays an uptight FBI agent teamed with an earthy Boston cop (McCarthy) to find a violent drug kingpin. Co-stars include Demian Bichir (“The Bridge”), Marlon Wayans and Jane Curtin.

Impractical Jokers

11 p.m. on TNT TRUTV;
12 a.m. on TBS

Former cast member Joe Gatto may have left the building, but Brian “Q” Quinn, James “Murr” Murray and Sal Vulcano are getting back together for a high-profile reunion that's also being simulcast on sister channels TBS and TNT. Eric André (“Bad Trip”) joins the trio for a half-hour of horseplay that airs as a new season of “Impractical Jokers” is currently in production for an anticipated return in Summer 2022.

tonight's PICKS

Megan Cusack
Lover Come Back
6 p.m. on TCM
Hey, if it ain't broke, don't fix it. For their follow-up to their 1959 smash "Pillow Talk," Rock Hudson and Doris Day star in this 1961 story about a guy who's trying to seduce a woman who hates him by pretending to be someone else. This time around, they're rival ad agency executives, and she's trying to win away from him an account for a product that, technically, doesn't exist. Tony Randall and Edie Adams also star. The film airs as part of Doris Day's 100th birthday marathon.

Call the Midwife
8 p.m. on WGTV
Sister Hilda's (Fenella Woolgar) feathers are ruffled when the ailing Sister Julianne (Jenny Agutter) asks Shelagh (Laura Main) to take over planning for an event to mark the centenary of the order's work in Poplar. Meanwhile, Nancy (Megan Cusack) cares for a meth-using patient during his final days, and Violet (Annabelle Apsion) resolves to provide facilities to help locals struggling with alcoholism. Elsewhere, Phyllis (Linda Bassett) helps an expectant mother whose pregnancy could threaten her dreams of a singing career.

Transplant
10 p.m. on WXIA
As the days pass, Bash (Hamza Haq) becomes painfully aware that Rania's (guest star Nora Guerch) unsettling arrival has triggered some memories he had been just as happy to repress in the new episode "Contact." Meanwhile, Mags (Laurence Leboeuf) is growing increasingly frustrated that she can't find a way to win the approval of her new boss, Dr. Novak (Gord Rand). Jim Watson, Ayisha Issa, Kenny Wong and Torri Higginson also star.

Benjamin Franklin

8 p.m. on WGTV

This two-part, four-hour documentary from Ken Burns, which concludes Tuesday, explores the life and work of one of the most consequential figures in U.S. history. While some have celebrated Benjamin Franklin's life as quintessentially American, the man himself was anything but typical, and he led many of the 18th century's most revolutionary changes in science, technology and government. The premiere, "Join or Die (1706-1774)," reviews Franklin's early success and explores how he sought to keep England and America together even as politics was tearing his family apart.

The Invisible Pilot

9 p.m. on HBO

Adam McKay ("Don't Look Up") is an executive producer on this wild three-part docuseries from Emmy-winning filmmakers Phil Lott and Ari Mark, which chronicles the saga of a charismatic husband and father who stunned his family and Arkansas community by jumping from a bridge in 1977. Everyone who knew him believed Gary Betzner was a happy family man with a successful career as a pilot. His body never was recovered, but years later a bizarre story involving crop-dusting, cocaine-smuggling and the CIA comes to light.

Mud, Sweat & Beards

11 p.m. on USA

Wilderness experts and real-life BFFs Donny Dust and Ray Livingston take on Mother Nature in this new four-part adventure series, which finds the pair traveling to some of the most remote locations on Earth to do what they love best: building primitive paradises. Dust and Livingston spend 10 days in each location, where they undertake such tasks as building elaborate shelters and tracking down natural food sources, while enduring extreme weather, hunger and predators. To them, it adds up to a fun vacation. First up: the Alaskan wilderness.

tonight's PICKS

Tony Hawk

Gentlemen Prefer Blondes

8 p.m. on TCM
This acknowledged classic from 1953 stars Marilyn Monroe and Jane Russell as two showgirls who land in the middle of a blackmailing scheme after making some unwise choices in men during a voyage to Paris. A highlight is Monroe's unforgettable rendition of "Diamonds Are a Girl's Best Friend." Elliott Reid, Tommy Noonan, Charles Coburn and George Winslow also star. The film kicks off a "Girls on Film" theme night with TCM host Alicia Malone, based on her recent book of the same title.

Tony Hawk: Until the Wheels Fall Off

9 p.m. on HBO
Intimate new interviews with skateboarding superstar Tony Hawk are a key component in this all encompassing new look at Hawk's life and storied career, as well as his relationship to the sport with which he has become virtually synonymous. Still pushing his limits at age 53, this pioneer of modern vertical skating remains one of the most influential skateboarders of all time. Other interviews include another skateboard pioneer, Stacy Peralta, and pro skateboarders Rodney Mullen, Mike McGill, Lance Mountain, Steve Caballero and Neil Blender, among others.

Big Restaurant Bet

10 p.m. on FOOD
Celebrated chef and restaurateur Geoffrey Zakarian has $250,000 of his own money that he's looking to invest in a new rising star of the restaurant world in this new six-episode culinary competition. The show follows Zakarian as he puts eight talented chefs through a series of challenges to determine which of them seems best suited to run their first restaurant. That dream is tougher than ever to realize in the current reality, but Zakarian is ready to do whatever he can to lift up a new generation of chefs.

Field had her dreams: An Oscar winner's TV roots

Sally Field

Q: I enjoyed seeing the recent weekend marathon of Sally Field shows on Decades. How many series did she star in before she became a movie star? – Ron Hire, Columbus, Ohio

A: The three she starred in were the three that were encompassed by that marathon: "Gidget," "The Flying Nun" and "The Girl With Something Extra." Field started doing movie roles over the course of those shows – in 1967, "The Way West" proclaimed that it was "Introducing Sally Field," though she already had done a season of "Gidget" – but her big-screen stardom really started to kick in after those series, with such features as "Stay Hungry," "Smokey and the Bandit" and certainly "Norma Rae," the latter bringing Field her first Oscar.

Q: Is it true that "Ellen's Game of Games" has been canceled? – Tammy Wade, Port Orange, Fla.

A: It is. The NBC show's fourth season, which aired in 2020-21, turned out to be its final one. Based on games DeGeneres has staged on her soon-to-end syndicated weekday talk program, the series began as a very strong performer – giving very distinctive exits to players when it was time for them to leave – but its ratings eventually trailed off. The coronavirus pandemic also might have been a factor in the show ending, since it likely would be tough to maintain safety protocols completely with the frequently frantic physical activity involved.

celebrity quotes

"There's a best-picture marathon the day of the Oscars (March 27), so if you want to gear up for the awards, my colleague Alicia Malone is going to have 'All About Eve' and 'An American in Paris' back-to-back ... two of the best best-picture winners of all time. What a great way to get psyched for that night!"
