Hailey's vision brought Miracle League

COVINGTON, Ga. — County leaders broke ground on the Miracle League Complex at City Pond Park nearly one decade ago. Now, come fall of 2024, it could be the site of the Miracle League's All-Star Weekend.

About 10 years ago, there were reportedly 2,700 special needs students in the Newton County Schools system, but there were zero playgrounds or programs in place designed specifically for people special needs.

Tommy Hailey, former director of Newton County's now defunct recreation commission, saw the need for such amenities from afar.

Lawsuit seeks reversal of store's denial

Alleges board's action based on opinion of Dollar General

By TOM SPIGOLON
tspigolon@covnews.com

COVINGTON, Ga. — Developers are asking a judge to reverse county commissioners' denial of their plans for a Dollar General store after saying it was based on their personal opinions of the retail chain and the recording of a one-sided "community meeting" she solely managed via Zoom.

Developers SW West Covington LLC and Johnbolt Properties LLC are asking a Newton County Superior Court judge to void a requirement they receive a conditional use permit (CUP) because it is "an irrational requirement that does not serve the public health, safety or welfare, while giving unfettered discretion to (the) Board of Commissioners to deny or approve a CUP request."

They are asking a judge to reverse the Board's Jan. 18 denial of their CUP request; and declare the CUP requirement for a store larger than 5,000 square feet to be voided because there is no rational basis for doing so.

The developers also wanted the judge to rule the Board's denial was arbitrary — based on personal preference rather than a stated reason — and "a manifest abuse of discretion" and award the developers attorney's fees and "such other relief have won.

A review of game film and the Redskins unofficial scorebook indicate that the official scorer for the game inadvertently credited Drew Charter with two extra points during the second quarter.

Conyers Police receive $60K state grant for ICAT training

news@covnews.com

CONYERS, Ga. — More than 100 employees of the Conyers Police Department will be able to participate in Integrating Communications, Assessment, and Tactics (ICAT) training thanks to a $60,000 grant from State of Georgia Law Enforcement Training Program.

Law enforcement officers are called on daily to intervene in mental health and crisis situations. ICAT training helps these officers to be better prepared for such interactions.

“There is nothing more valuable, nothing more important to protect, than human life and this training is a tool to help preserve that life,” Deputy Chief Scott Freeman said. “We’re thankful to the State of Georgia and the Criminal Justice Coordinating Council for being able and willing to support our initiative to protect those we serve.”

ICAT training is scenario based, hands-on training designed to help gather necessary information and create an environment for the best possible outcome during situations that can evolve very quickly. A Conyers Police Department spokesperson said all department personnel including; 911 communications operators, police officers, and supervisors would take part in the training. “ICAT is just one piece of a larger response for dealing with people who are in a crisis situation from the Conyers Police Department,” the spokesperson stated in a news release. “The department requires all officers attend Crisis Intervention Team training and has implemented three less lethal restraint and control force options over the past two years. The added tools include a wrap immobilization device that’s designed to restrain combative persons who may harm themselves during transport, weapons that deploy foam projectiles, and the Bola Wrap that can be used to entangle a subject’s arms and legs from a distance allowing less force to be used to restrain an individual.”

Qualifying week in Georgia off to busy start

BY DAVE WILLIAMS
Capitol Beat News Service

ATLANTA — U.S. Sen. Raphael Warnock and the Republican frontrunner challenging the incumbent Democrat were among the first candidates Monday to qualify officially for this year’s elections, as the weeklong qualifying period began.

Warnock is not expected to face opposition in the May 24 Democratic primary. On the Republican side, both University of Georgia football icon Herschel Walker and Georgia Commissioner of Agriculture Gary Black signed qualifying papers on Monday.

Walker vowed to tie Warnock to what the GOP frontrunner called the “disastrous agenda” of President Joe Biden.

“Washington Democrats plan to spend millions of dollars to protect Senator Warnock and his 95% Biden voting record,” Walker said. “We will spend every day between now and November reminding Georgians that soaring gas prices, skyrocketing inflation and record levels of crime fall squarely on the shoulders of Joe Biden and Raphael Warnock.”

Other federal candidates to qualify on Monday included U.S. Reps. Carolyn Bourdeaux, D-Lawrenceville, and Lucy McBath, D-Marietta in Georgia’s 7th Congressional District.

McBath currently represents the 6th District but decided to run in the 7th after Republicans in the General Assembly redrew the 6th to lean heavily toward the GOP.

“At this critical moment in our nation’s history, when voting rights, women’s health care, and our democracy are under attack, it’s more important than ever to have leaders who are focused on defeating the extremist Republicans in Congress, not fellow Democrats,” Bourdeaux said Monday in a message to constituents.

“I have taken them on over and over again and I’ll continue fighting for common sense, Georgia values as long as I am your representative in Congress.”

Republican Rich McCormick, who lost to Bourdeaux in 2020, signed up Monday to seek the Republican nomination in the 6th District.

“In Washington, I’ll be a bold and unapologetic advocate for the completion of President Trump’s wall, policies that lock down the border, and aggressive interior enforcement to keep cartels and traffickers out of our country,” McCormick said.

Candidates for the top state offices mostly stayed on the sidelines Monday. However, a couple of candidates signed up for the lieutenant governor’s race. Savannah activist Jeanne Seaver vowed to push to eliminate the state income tax.

game, because things could get interesting,” said Social Circle head coach Taylor Jackson. “It turned out to be prophetic.”

Alerted of the scoring issues after the game, Social Circle athletics director Craig Hargrove contacted the Georgia High School Association Sunday morning to report the problem.

On Monday, Associated School Superintendent Carrie Brooher released an email regarding the GHSA’s decision. According to the email, GHSA responded to Social Circle some time on Sunday.

According to GHSA Assistant Executive Director Ernie Yarbrough, he found that “the report I received on this incident by the game officials and the site rep is that proper protocol was followed.” In addition, he noted that video review is not allowed unless it involves a fight. As a result, he said “the result of this game is final and will not be overturned.”

Social Circle appealed to GHSA Executive Director Robin Hines on Monday and asked that the game be replayed either from the point of the discrepancy in the second quarter or in its entirety. However, Hines refused to overturn the earlier decision.

According to Social Circle representatives, at least twice during the game --- once in the second quarter and once at halftime --- the Redskins scorekeeper approached the game’s official scorekeeper, who is appointed by the Georgia High School Association, about the additional points.

The Drew Charter scorekeep-er’s book and Social Circle’s both matched on the initial meeting. During the second meeting, the Drew Charter scorebook and the official scorebook matched.

According to Social Circle, when game referees questioned the score, “the scorekeeper refused to acknowledge or resolve the discrepancy.”

In addition, Social Circle representatives said that the official scorekeeper had earbuds in her ears during the game which could have caused her to be distracted and contribute to errors.

“I hate it for our kids because it feels like it’s being taken from us,” Jackson said. “They worked so hard and they deserve better than this.”

as it regards to be just and proper."

The property at 11390 and 11368 Brown Bridge Road and 28 Kirkland Road now contains structures between 72 and 52 years old, including a restaurant; a vacant, former used tire repair store; and a residential home containing 1,512 square feet and occupied by renters, according to the legal document filed by the developers.

It is zoned for General Commercial (CG) uses but also is in the Almon Road Overlay District, which places additional requirements on the developer to provide landscaping, buffering from neighbors, extra parking and more.

The overlay district also requires any retail building over 5,000 square feet to receive a CUP, which is described as a permit allowing "the board of commissioners to approve a conditional use on a particular parcel without changing the general zoning district."

The proposed building was 10,640 square feet and "complied with all of the design standards of the Almon Road Overlay District," according to the document filed with the court.

It was 1.8 miles from the nearest Dollar General store; was in a development area that allowed the requested use under the county's Future Land Use Plan; and provided a 3.56-acre site which was adequate land area.

It also was compatible with the land use around it and had no adverse impact on streets surrounding it, according to the planning staff and the legal document.

Its building was to face Kirkland Road and the planning staff recommended conditions including a six-foot privacy fence and additional landscaping along the north side of the site; and construction of a deceleration lane on Kirkland Road for traffic to the store.

After the staff issued a favorable report recommending its approval, the county planning commission voted unanimously Sept. 28 to recommend the Board of Commissioners approve the CUP pending completion of a traffic study.

The developers then hired an engineering firm to complete the traffic study and the county traffic engineer concurred with its findings of no significant effects on surrounding roads.

However, during a public hearing at the Dec. 7 Board of Commissioners meeting, three residents who all lived at least 2.6 miles from the Dollar General site spoke, the document stated.

A videotape of the meeting showed Carla Hooper tells the Board of Commissioners she "represented" several community members who were concerned about the "choice of services" that a Dollar

General store represented.

"It's not of the caliber we want in this neighborhood," Hooper told the Board.

Board members voted to delay action — or "table" — the request.

The legal document stated District 3 Commissioner Alana Sanders soon after "announced that she has heard concerns about the Dollar General store from 'numerous people' and that she wanted to have a 'community meeting' to air those concerns."

It stated that Sanders controlled registration for the virtual event on the Zoom platform and invited an unknown number of persons from unknown addresses to attend the meeting on the issue Jan. 6, the document stated.

"Approximately 20-30 persons participated in the Zoom meeting ... which was entirely controlled by Commissioner Sanders. The opponents to the rezoning spoke for 60 to 90 minutes."

Participants complained about crime associated with dollar stores in the community, lack of quality control by store management and the 'proliferation' of such stores, the legal document said.

"When Petitioners' representatives tried to rebut what had been said, they were not recognized by Commissioner Sanders," the document stated.

Sanders shared the Zoom meeting recording with other Board of Commissioners members before she "erased the connection and thereby eliminated the ability to review the Zoom meeting or to share it with anyone else," the document stated.

The District 3 commissioner then told the Board Jan. 18 — before it denied the CUP — that residents had complained about "lack of quality customer service" at Dollar General stores, The Covington News reported.

Sanders said she was responding to residents' wishes in the Jan. 6 meeting she said was "live-streamed" in asking the Board to vote to deny the CUP.

She said nearby Fairview Road residents have incomes of at least $65,000 and "want to have stores that are in their area that fit them and that's what they want in the area where they live." They also complained about a traffic light not being planned at the Kirkland and Brown Bridge roads, she said.

In the request for an injunction, the developers say commissioners did not receive input in a "proper public forum"; the denial was not related to a benefit for public health, safety, morality or welfare; the property is "economically disadvantaged"; and the CUP denial resulted in an unconstitutional "taking of private property without payment of just compensation."

The kind of leadership we need to stop Putin

You and I have lived in a remarkable era of peace and prosperity. Throughout all of history, there have been only two other times when most of the world enjoyed such a long largess. For 200 years, between the reigns of Augustus Caesar and Marcus Aurelius, the Roman Empire enjoyed a Pax Romana. The world knew another 100 years of tranquility in the days when Queen Victoria reigned in her Pax Britannica. And, for the last 80 years, starting with the Allied victory in World War II, the world has enjoyed a Pax Americana, a blessed time of amity that both Democrat and Republican presidents have worked hard to protect.

George Washington forged America’s policy of “peace through strength.” Republican Teddy Roosevelt doubled down on the concept saying, “Speak softly but carry a big stick.” Democrat Harry Truman declared that “it must be the policy of the United States to support free peoples who are resisting subjugation.” And, in his first inaugural address, John F. Kennedy eloquently stated about the Russians, “We dare not tempt them with weakness...Let every nation know, whether it wishes us well or ill, that we shall pay any price, bear any burden, meet any hardship, support any friend, oppose any foe to assure the survival and the success of liberty.”

Yet, peace is being tested now, because Putin thinks we are weak. The opposite is true, of course. The North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO), which consists of Europe, the U.S. and Canada, has seven times more citizens and four times more soldiers than Russia. More importantly, NATO’s gross domestic product is 29 times larger, and it spends six times more on defense than Russia. So, why do we seem so helpless?

No one is suggesting that we fight a war against Russia. Such a conflict could easily escalate into World War III. However, the brutal fact is that if Putin had thought the U.S. would stop him, he would never have dared to invade Ukraine.

The late U.S. Sen. Johnny Isakson described Russia as “a gas station with a flag.” Indeed, Russia’s invasion of the tiny nation of Georgia in 2008 and Crimea in 2014 were both when the price of oil was fantastically high, and thus oil-producing Russia could afford it.

Under the previous administration, the U.S. was energy independent for the first time in decades. Because President Biden has waged a war on U.S. energy, he was then forced to beg the Organization of the Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) to produce more oil, but OPEC refused, raising the price of oil even higher.

Because of this, Putin is able to finance his invasion of Ukraine with the profits he makes from the sale of Russian oil. Only this time it is far worse. The U.S. is buying Russian oil even now as Russian tanks roll through Ukraine. Biden says he wants to “buy American,” yet he refuses to buy American energy even if it hurts the Russians.

In another blunder, the White House implored China to ask Russia not to invade Ukraine. The Chinese flatly refused, making us look even more foolish. Worst of all, of course, was our ignoble retreat from Afghanistan. Despots all over the world saw that debacle as an invitation for mischief. Indeed, it is almost like we are back in the 1970s with Jimmy Carter with record inflation, Russian aggression, an energy crisis and violence in the streets. Do not think Putin will be bothered by the deaths of thousands of innocents. Stalin starved some 10 million Ukrainians to death in the 1930s.

Everyone applauds the Ukrainians for their bravery. Indeed, the current U.S. president brags about their heroic resistance as if it is somehow his victory. If the current U.S. president had been strong in the first place, there would not have been a war. That, after all, was the legacy of NATO – peace in Europe for 80 years – until now.

When Biden asked Ukraine President Volodymyr Zelensky if he wanted to be airlifted to safety, the Ukrainian president replied, “I don’t need a ride. I need ammunition.” That’s the kind of leadership the “free world” is searching for. If we can’t find it, Taiwan will be next.

Rep. Dave Belton represents District 112, which includes Morgan and eastern Newton counties.

America must aim at getting smarter

W h e l f you haven’t visited a school in recent years, you would be amazed at what you’ll find.

Most of them, even in rural and low-income areas are awash in technology. Some provide computers or personal research tablet devices for each student. Everything one needs to know is just a click away.

So America has to be getting smarter, right? Let’s talk about that.

Shifting into grouchy old man mode, I think back to my 1970s school days. When we got to see an educational film in the classroom, it was an event. If the projector was working, and if the pull-down screen wasn’t broken, we could learn all about the human digestive system. (My teacher referred to one ailment as “diarrhea,” but that’s another story).

Now there’s no need for a projector or screen. Google and YouTube have got it covered.

Our eyes got wide when our school introduced an overhead projector. This high-tech device enabled the teacher’s hand-written notes to appear on the big screen. It was if a spaceship had landed. What was next? A robot vacuum cleaner? Don’t be silly.

For reference, we had World Book encyclopedia sets, most of which were outdated. Every few years the school would buy a new set, which would usually end up in the star teacher’s classroom. The old set would be handed down to another teacher, like a pair of worn-out jeans.

In 1997 I visited a low-performing school in Chattanooga for a news story. The school’s most recent encyclopedia set was from 1962. That same year, I would see politicians pounding their desks, looking for someone to blame for low academic scores.

That school now has access to every modern learning tool. Yet its state report card ranking has barely budged.

So the technology is in place, and teachers are doing their best. As an education reporter, I’ve covered countless superintendents and school board members touting their long term goals. Five year plans, 10-year plans, and capital improvement projects that have produced sparkling new buildings. No one can deny that some brilliant students have graduated, and moved on to prestigious universities and rewarding careers. Vocational programs have produced skilled workers who are making good money.

But overall, as a nation, are we really smarter than a half-century ago? Are we sending brighter, more effective representatives to Washington and our state capitals? Are we electing better educated, reasonable people to serve us in local government? Do they study the issues, and offer coherent explanations for their positions? Judging from recent headlines, these are fair questions.

Rioters put up a makeshift gallows with a noose, smearing human waste on the walls of the U.S. Capitol, and some of our leaders refer to the scene as “normal tourists” engaging in “legitimate political discourse.”

The current administration refers to a reporter with legitimate questions as a “wise guy,” and its spokespeople dance the sidestep when challenged on inflation or the dangerous situation in Ukraine.

The Associated Press finds it necessary to provide a lengthy compilation of “What Didn’t Happen This Week.” They attempt to cut through the lies that are spread on various platforms. This includes so-called news channels, social media sites and other breeding grounds of false information. In an effort to prove you can’t believe everything you see, they reveal the truth about altered photographs. I can photoshop my head on The Rock’s body, but my doctor is no fool. He knows I need to cut back on Krispy Kremes.

I worry about our young people. Despite the access they have to devices my generation could have never imagined, they’re ill-equipped to battle the lies and deception.

A few schools are finally offering media literacy classes to help students separate fact from fiction. Let’s accelerate that process. Otherwise they might actually believe Abraham Lincoln said, “Don’t believe everything you read on the internet,” just because they read it on the internet.

We are always advised to “consider the source,” and now we must learn which sources to avoid. Much like your local buffet restaurant, we have too many choices, and it’s tempting to grab what we want, instead of what we need.

How can we tone down our nation’s anger, stubbornness, and rising blood pressure? Just say “no” to those who aim to divide us. The truth is out there. Let’s aim at being smarter.

Purim is the other mid-March celebration

M ove over St. Patrick’s Day, you’re not the only party-hardy holiday to celebrate in mid-March this year. There’s also Purim, a raucous Mardi Gras-like affair that promises its costumed celebrants fabulous food and frivolity.

Why do we Jews observe Purim? To celebrate what we Jews have celebrated throughout millennia — our continued survival against all odds.

And of course, there’s a compelling origin story about the holiday.

Purim, known as the Feast of Lots, is observed on the 14th day of the Hebrew month of Adar. This year the holiday is from sunset on March 16 through sunset on March 17. The Purim story is found in the Book of Esther. Esther was a brave young Jewish woman who became Queen of Persia and at the urging of her guardian, the wise Mordecai, saved her people from a massacre.

The story begins when King Ahasuerus demands that his first wife, Vashti, dance unclothed before him and his drunken court. She refuses and he divorces her. The king then has maidens from across the kingdom brought to him so he may select his next queen.

Esther is chosen but keeps her Jewish identity secret. When the king’s adviser, the evil Haman, convinces the king that the Jews are enemies of the state and must be annihilated, Mordecai convinces Esther to plead for her people’s lives. Esther was putting her own life at risk, because to approach the king without an invitation was punishable by death. Fortunately, the king warmly received her and the Jewish people were permitted to arm themselves against Haman’s followers. Soon after the Jews’ victory over their aggressors, Haman was hanged.

The scroll of Esther, the Megillah, is read aloud in the synagogue on Purim. Congregants twirl noisemakers, stomp and boo every time wicked Haman’s name is mentioned, so as to “blot out” the evildoer. Heinous Haman has come to symbolize the recurrence of malicious anti-Semites throughout history.

At home, families delight in baking and eating hamantaschen. These cake-like triangular cookies are usually filled with fruit jams. Families and friends gather for a festive meal, and the reasonable consumption of alcoholic beverages is encouraged.

Many Jewish religious schools put on a Purim play, to retell the story of Esther. My daughter played Esther when she was in first grade, and my son played Mordecai when he was 5. The kids love to dress up, and most synagogues and Jewish community centers also host Purim carnivals with games, food and costume contests.

Another important tradition at Purim is to give friends and family gift baskets of food and drink, and to donate food items or money to charities that feed the hungry. This mitzvah, or good deed, is known as mishloach manot.

So, “Chag Purim sameach!” Which means, “Happy Purim!”

children were invited to play. They wanted to play baseball just like their peers — making plays and rounding the bases, all while donning a uniform.

And so, the league began. Four teams with 35 players split among them in the first season.

In 1999, the new league gained so much support that more than 50 players participated locally, but there were so many more across metro Atlanta waiting to be reached.

By 2002, the Miracle League was officially formed and had grown to more than 250 players on rosters. The first Miracle League Field was constructed and opened in April 2000. The complex included a custom-designed field with a cushioned rubberized surface to help prevent injuries, wheelchair accessible dug-outs, and a completely flat surface to eliminate any barriers to wheelchair-bound or visually impaired players.

The design also included three grass fields, which could be converted to the synthetic rubber surface as the league grew. In addition, accessible restrooms, a concession stand and picnic pavilion were included in the design.

Today, there are more than 300 Miracle League clubs across the nation, including Puerto Rico, and even a few in Canada and Mexico. These clubs serve over 200,000 children and adults.

Hailey brings Miracle League to Newton

In 2008, Hailey bumped into Davis again — this time while on a walk in his community.

It turned out the two were neighbors.

After continued discussion about Miracle League, Hailey had heard enough. He wanted a Miracle League Field in Newton County.

From there, Hailey had the Newton County Recreation Commission become a member of the National Miracle League Association and started plans to create a nearly $2 million facility that would include a special baseball field and playgrounds.

One year later the recreation department partnered with several civic groups across the county to make Hailey’s vision a reality.

In 2011, Newton County voters approved $1.5 million of a $58 million Special Purpose Local Option Sales Tax (SPLOST) referendum to be designated to fund construction of the Miracle League Complex.

The Georgia Department of Corrections also provided inmate labor to help with the construction, which saved between 30-45% on the project’s overall cost.

A ceremonial groundbreaking event was held Aug. 21, 2012.

“There are 2,074 children in our schools with mental and physical disabilities, and that’s why we are all here,” Miracle League of Newton County consultant Tamara Richardson said at the time. “I am so excited that we are, very soon, going to have something in Newton County for y’all to play.”

Following the complex’s completion, Miracle League of Newton County held its inaugural Opening Day on April 25, 2015.

“It’s very exciting,” Hailey said at the time. “You see something you were able to be a part of starting and overcoming obstacles that we’ve had to overcome with the weather throughout the year. It’s just great to be here and be a part of it.”

Laurie Gates, whose daughter played in the Newton County League at the time, called the opening of Newton’s Miracle League Complex “awesome.” “Because kids like my daughter, we don’t have to travel as far to play now and [we] know that she’s with good company,” she told The Covington News in 2015. “They’ve done all of this for kids so they can play a game just like everybody else... We appreciate everything that everybody’s done.”

SOCIAL CIRCLE, Ga. — The Social Circle girls soccer team is 10 games into its season with a 9-1 overall record. So far, the Lady Redskins have scored a total of 79 goals.

There is one player, in particular, who has produced nearly half of Social Circle’s offense in 2022: Peyton Brooks.

Brooks, a sophomore striker for this year’s team, has already scored 37 total goals on the season. When asked how she was able to score so many goals, Brooks credited her fellow Lady Redskins.

“Even though I get the credit for scoring, I couldn’t do it without my teammates who work hard by getting the ball up the field to me by communicating with one another and making great passes,” Brooks said.

Brooks has been playing soccer since she was three years old. She has also participated in basketball and softball throughout her life, but Brooks stressed soccer has remained her favorite sport to play.

Even so, Brooks recognized various areas she aimed to improve upon heading into her sophomore campaign.

“This season I feel like I have grown in many areas,” Brooks said. “Although I shoot with my right foot, I’ve been working hard to make shots with my left foot to give me more of an advantage during games. I also have been working on ball placement on the field so my shots can be more accurate. Every day I strive to be a better player with the help of my coaches and my encouraging teammates.”

In addition to her position on the girls soccer team at Social Circle, Brooks participates in other extra curricular activities.

BUFORD, Ga. — Despite leading most of the game, the Newton Rams’ season came to an end in the Final Four of the Class 7A state playoffs.

On Saturday, March 5, Newton suffered a 75-72 loss to Norcross, eliminating the Rams from playoff contention.

According to head coach Charlemagne Gibbons, the Rams allowed Norcross to stick around early in the game instead of pulling away.

“We gave [Norcross] opportunities and kept them in the game,” Gibbons said. “We didn’t do what we were supposed to do in certain situations. So, when you don’t, in a high level game, this is what happens.”

Even though the Rams came up short, they had a valiant effort down the stretch of the game to give themselves a chance to come back.

With 40.6 seconds remaining in the contest, Newton faced a 67-60 deficit.

From that point, the Rams seemed to heat up from 3-point range.

Less than six seconds later, Stephon Castle nailed a 3-pointer to draw the score 69-63. After Norcross knocked down two free throws, Castle attempted the same shot but was fouled on VALDOSTA, Ga. — Social Circle’s season ended in controversy and speculation following a 70-66 overtime loss to Drew Charter in the Final Four of the Class A-Public state playoffs Saturday, March 5.

Drew’s win is now coming into question due to reports and evidence of improper scoring during the second quarter in which Drew Charter was given points that were not scored in the game.

With Valdosta State University’s arena seemingly filled with Social Circle fans who were making their presence felt, the game opened with both teams pushing the pace.

Social Circle boys, girls soccer teams off to dominant starts

SOCIAL CIRCLE, Ga. — Both Social Circle soccer programs have hit the ground running into the 2022 season. With a combined record of 17-3 along with a 8-2 record in Region 8A-Public, each team has seemed to hit their stride.

Social Circle Redskins

The Redskins currently stand at 8-2 with a 4-1 region record.

Of the seven wins, Social Circle has shut out five of its opponents along with two mercy rule victories.

Leading the way for the Redskins has been Stetson Evans who has scored 10 goals on the season with Jed Stapp coming in second with seven goals scored along with Cambyl Johnson, Aidan Garner and Jordan Leigh who have recorded six goals apiece.

Ethan Knight and Drake Wilkerson lead the team in assists with five and four on the year, respectively.

According to head coach James Corasaniti, the team’s success has nothing to do with what makes the statistic book.

“The team is bought into doing the little things right,” Corasaniti said. “We have won some close games by the other team making small mistakes. The team is still coming together.”

Lady Redskins

The girls team for Social Circle has an identical overall record of 9-1. The Lady Redskins’ lone loss on the year, though, came in region action losing 5-4 at Commerce on Feb. 7.

Other than that match, however, the Lady Redskins have hardly been challenged.

to separate with a 15-9 lead going into the second quarter.

The second quarter was the most productive for both teams as they traded points and increased the intensity as halftime approached.

KJ Reid for Social Circle and Ced Taylor III for Drew Charter led the charge for their respective teams in the second quarter as both earned points out in space as well as at the free-throw line.

A late push from Social Circle brought the deficit within nine points as Drew Charter went into the break with a 35-26 lead.

Social Circle came out of the locker room with a different energy, slowly beginning to chip away at the Drew Charter lead.

Head coach Taylor Jackson said his team just seemed to settle down coming out of intermission.

“[We came back] because we [finally] got to play the game plan,” Jackson said. “We let [Taylor III] get to the rim and he is extremely talented...we just had a hard time getting stops.”

As the fourth quarter went on, Social Circle began to take momentum on both sides of the ball as the Drew Charter turnovers and miscues began to pile up.

Halfway through the final quarter, Social Circle took the lead for the first time since the opening minute, which caused the arena to erupt in chants for the undefeated Redskins.

“[Pass deflections and the Eagles’ turnovers] were huge,” Jackson said. “We were struggling offensively, and our offensive game plan was dependent on us getting steals so we had to get stuff in transition.”

With both teams neck and neck down the stretch, Drew Charter’s Ja’Kobe Strozier made both free throws to tie the game at 56-56 with only 20 seconds left.

Reid’s last second shot on the next possession for Social Circle bounced off the rim to force overtime.

However, the win is now coming into question due to reports and the attempt giving him three shots at the free-throw line.

Castle connected on all three shots making the score 71-66 with 29 seconds left.

On the ensuing free throws, Norcross went 1-for-2. Castle then found Jakai Newton open and connected on a 3-pointer himself.

Newton’s long range shot made the score 72-69.

Norcross went 1-for-2 again at the charity stripe giving itself a 73-69 advantage. Castle once again followed that up with his second 3-pointer of the quarter drawing the Rams to within one point, 73-72.

But it was a case of too little too late for the Rams.

Norcross knocked down two more free throws and Castle heaved a full-court shot that ricocheted off the backboard and hit the floor.

It was an emotional scene afterward for the Rams.

“Only one team isn’t going to cry at the end of the season,” Gibbons said. “Unfortunately, we’re not that team this year.”

Newton received contributions from everyone despite the loss. Seemingly, the biggest contribution came from MJ Whitlock.

The junior guard exploded off the bench for 18 second-quarter points, which included a stretch where Whitlock scored 16 straight Rams points.

“He’s a helluva basketball player,” Gibbons said of Whitlock.

“He’s done that all season. Tonight wasn’t anything special, it’s just what he does.”

Whitlock led all Newton scorers with 20 points while Castle finished with 17 and Newton recorded 14. Marquavious Brown tallied seven points with Ashton Pennamon recording five points and Miokaye Grant having four.

As a result of Saturday’s loss, the Rams’ season ultimately comes to an end.

Their 2021-22 season ends at 24-6 with a perfect regular season region record of 8-0. In Region 4-AAAAAAA, Newton finished as region runner-ups losing to Grayson in the region championship game.

On their way to the Final Four, the Rams downed McEachern, West Forsyth and Archer high schools.

Despite the Final Four loss, Gibbons hopes this experience helps his team come back next year ready for more.

“It’s been a long season for us,” Gibbons said. “We had a lot of ups and downs as we went through the season. So, I told the guys in the locker room, ‘just try and do everything right both on and off the court.’ That’s all I can ask guys to do. Do everything right, be a great teammate and learn from the things you didn’t do right this year and hopefully you won’t repeat those things in your career.”

But Brooks believes that it will be the team chemistry that will help the Lady Redskins’ chances for a deep run this year.

“This soccer season is going really well for us right now,” Brooks said.

Head coach Heather Richardson credited the team’s camaraderie as a huge factor in this year’s success.

Roadmaster Drivers School celebrates the opening of its new location in Conley during an event Thursday, March 3.

New school seeks to address truck driver shortages

STAFF REPORTS
news@covnews.com

CONLEY, Ga. — A new truck driving school in south DeKalb County promises to bring jobs to meet the shortage of truck drivers and address the nation’s ongoing supply chain issues.

Roadmaster Drivers School officially opened its newest location in Conley Thursday, March 3.

The school is at 4272 Transport City Drive in Conley, which is located off Old McDonough Road, west of Moreland Avenue and south of I-285.

Those in attendance were to include representatives of the Georgia Department of Economic Development; Metro South Community Improvement District; DeKalb and Clayton County governments; and Georgia Center of Innovation.

A news release stated, “This area of Conley, Georgia, has become one of the major trucking hubs in the United States due in large part because of the convergence of highway systems in the area, the proximity to the Atlanta Hartsfield-Jackson Airport and to the Georgia Ports Authority.”

Roadmaster Driver Schools President Brad Ball told Atlanta TV station CW69 that, “The demand for drivers right now is higher than it’s ever been. We’re short about 80,000 drivers in this industry right now.”

The Conley school is Roadmaster’s third school in Georgia and 20th in the U.S.

The Conley Roadmaster facility has about 40 students and the capacity for up to 700 graduates a year. The trucks bear the name of Roadmaster’s parent company, Werner Enterprises, the TV station reported.

Britney Hall, a nail technician, was one of the new truck driving students in their first week of training.

“I’m really excited. I’m really looking forward to finishing. The first week went really, really well,” she told CW69.

Roadmaster is headquartered in St. Petersburg, Florida. In addition to its new Conley location, it also operates Georgia training locations in Atlanta and Savannah.

Governor: Moderna to establish Enterprise Solutions Hub in Atlanta

By DAVE WILLIAMS
Capitol Beat News Service

ATLANTA — Gov. Brian Kemp Thursday announced that Moderna Inc., a biotechnology company pioneering messenger RNA (mRNA) therapeutics and vaccines, will establish a new Enterprise Solutions Hub in Atlanta.

Moderna will create more than 150 new jobs over the next two years. Operations are expected to begin in the second quarter of 2022.

“The life sciences industry has become a leading source of U.S. employment growth, and I am pleased to welcome Moderna to Georgia’s thriving life sciences community,” Kemp said. “Georgia provides the talent to support various sectors of the life science and digital health industries, and our pro-business environment and commitment to innovation provide additional incentive to companies looking for long-term success.”

Newton average gas price up to $3.99 per gallon

tbeck@covnews.com

ATLANTA — Newton County and Georgia gas prices on Monday, March 7, climbed at the pump compared to a week ago.

Motorists are paying an average of $3.99 per gallon of regular, unleaded gasoline at Newton County retailers, which was slightly higher than the statewide average price of $3.97 per gallon.

Prices ranged from $3.96 to $4.07 in Newton County, according to prices reported on Gasbuddy.com.

Monday’s state and local averages were 47 cents more than a week ago, 73 cents more than last month and $1.39 more than this time last year.

Montrae Waiters, AAA-The Auto Club Group spokeswoman, said, “Pump prices sharp rise is primarily due to the Ukraine-Russia conflict, which is causing crude oil prices to climb above $100 per barrel.”

Patrick De Haan, head of petroleum analysis at GasBuddy, said, “Forget the $4 per gallon mark, the nation will soon set new all-time record highs and we could push closer to a national average of $4.50 (per gallon). California could be heading for $5.50 per gallon with more stations charging $6 and beyond,” he said.

“We’ve never been in this situation before, with this level of uncertainty. As we lose a major global producer under the weight of deserving bipartisan sanctions for invading a sovereign country, the cost is high. Americans will be feeling the pain of the rise in prices for quite some time, with little good news foreseen.”

Since last Monday, the national average for a gallon of regular gasoline has increased by 46 cents to $4.06.

Ways to make your diet more nutritious

SPECIAL TO THE NEWS
news@covnews.com

Healthy eating should be a goal all year long. Choosing nutrient-rich foods at the grocery store is a great way to accomplish that goal.

The American Heart Association says research suggests the standard American diet is energy-rich (calorically heavy) but nutrient poor. And according to Canada-based registered dietician Nicole Osinga, though Canadians are making smarter food choices, room for improvement remains, especially in regard to limiting consumption of red meat.

Nutrient-rich foods are those that are high in minerals, vitamins and other nutrients that are vital for health without too much added sugars, sodium and saturated fat. Such foods include fruits, vegetables, whole grains, low-fat dairy, and lean protein sources that can serve as the building blocks of a nutritious diet. These tips can make incorporating nutritious ingredients even easier.

Read nutrition labels

The Nutrition Facts label included on items sold in North America is a significant source of information. Consumers may only read the first few lines, but it's best to read the entire label before deciding whether or not to purchase a given product.

Some foods may feature endorsements on their packaging and the inclusion of such labels indicates they're healthy choices. For example, the American Heart Association's Heart-Check mark indicates the product aligns with their recommendations for an overall healthy eating plan.

Choose more whole grains

Whole grains are low in fat and high in fiber. They're also a smarter source of carbohydrates because they contain complex carbs that keep a person feeling fuller longer. Try to avoid products labeled as "enriched," as they've had the germ and bran removed from the grain to produce a smoother texture, which means they need to be refortified with nutrients.

Eat dark, leafy greens

Green vegetables are rich in vitamins, minerals, phytonutrients, and plant-based omega-3 fatty acids. Kale, spinach and collard greens can be added to soups, stews, scrambled eggs, and salads for a powerful punch of nutrition.

Pick pulses

Pulses are essential to plant-based diets, but they also can be enjoyed by meat eaters. The Global Pulse Federation says pulses, which include foods like lentils and chickpeas, are rich in protein and fiber and low in fat. They also contain complex carbohydrates that take longer to break down. Research shows pulses can lower blood cholesterol, reduce blood pressure and help with weight management.

Go with skim or low-fat dairy

Dairy products are rich in calcium and vitamin D, but those nutrients may come at the cost of saturated fat. Choose reduced fat dairy options in recipes and when snacking. These are just some of the ways individuals can make their diets more nutritious.

Even though sodium has a bad reputation, salt in certain amounts is necessary for the body to function properly.

Pros and cons of sodium consumption

news@covnews.com

The typical Canadian or American diet tends to be high in sodium, with many processed foods containing high amounts of salt for flavoring and preservation. Even though sodium has a bad reputation, salt in certain amounts is necessary for the body to function properly. Here's a deeper look at how sodium can be beneficial and how it can be harmful.

Pros

Sodium is one of the body's three major electrolytes, with potassium and chloride being the others. Salt helps regulate blood pressure and blood volume, transmit impulses for nerve function and muscle contraction, and helps regulate the acid-base balance of blood and bodily fluids. According to SFGate's Healthy Eating, salt can help with healthy muscle contractions and promotes muscle function during physical activity. The Rush University Medical Center explains that sodium also regulates body heat. The hypothalamus, the body's "thermostat," signals the middle layer of the skin to bring salt and water to the skin's surface when a person is overheating (sweating) to help cool the body.

Cons

One of the reasons why sodium is vilified is that too much can lead to hypertension, better known as high blood pressure. According to research by the Dietary Approaches to Stop Hypertension program, directed by the National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute, there is a direct correlation between the amount of salt consumed and blood pressure levels. Exceeding the 2,400 mg daily limit can push blood pressure into dangerous territory. Some doctors suggest ideal sodium intake should not exceed 1,500 mg daily. Too much sodium also can contribute to fluid retention in the body, leading to swelling of the legs and feet, a problem for individuals who are not physically active. The kidneys are the filters of the body, and people with kidney disease could be especially vulnerable to adverse health consequences if they consume too much salt. In such situations, the kidneys may not be able to eliminate the excess sodium in the body, potentially leading to hypertension or heart issues, according to Davita Kidney Care. Also, too much salt may contribute to the formation of kidney stones. Sodium is necessary for life, but overconsumption may lead to health issues that are entirely preventable. People should monitor just how much salt they consume to ensure they stay within healthy ranges.

Lesser known traditional Irish foods

news@covnews.com

Chances are many people have heard of Irish soda bread and corned beef and cabbage, both of which are especially popular on St. Patrick's Day. But there are many different traditional Irish dishes that may not be as well-known and enjoyed outside of Ireland. Irish cuisine is loaded with rich meat and potatoes dishes, and there are some delicious delicacies to be discovered along the way.

Boxty

Many different cultures have boxty-like dishes in their culinary repertoires. Boxty is similar to latkes or German kartoffelpuffer. It is made from both grated raw potatoes and mashed potatoes. Historians believe it originated during the potato famine of the mid-19th century.

Coddle

Being frugal with leftovers means finding delicious ways to reimagine ingredients into new meals. Coddle is a byproduct of that line of thinking. A coddle is a one-pot meal made from leftover sausage, potatoes, onions, and even bacon. The name comes from "coddling" or simmering the stew.

Champ

Fans of mashed potatoes are likely to take to champ, a very similar dish. It is made with potatoes, milk, butter, and scallions. It is customary to make a well of melted butter in the center of a serving.

Colcannon

Mashed potatoes shine once again in this dish that also includes cabbage. Colcannon is typically served with boiled ham in Ireland.

Pudding

Irish pudding is not a dessert but a savory sausage dish. The "black" variety includes pork, fat and blood and is mixed with barley, oatmeal and suet. White pudding is similar, but it doesn't include the pork blood. A slice of both black and white pudding is traditionally served in a complete Irish breakfast

Barmbrack

Usually shortened to "brack," this dish is an Irish fruitcake that features fruit, raisins and spices. Most people soak it in tea and whiskey overnight.

Samuel L. Jackson stars in "The Last Days of Ptolemy Grey," which begins streaming Friday on Apple TV+.

Jackson shines as dementia-ridden man in 'Last Days of Ptolemy Grey'

Ptolemy Grey is a man in decline who's about to get a new lease on life – temporarily, anyway.

As played by Samuel L. Jackson ("Pulp Fiction") in the six-episode Apple TV+ drama "The Last Days of Ptolemy Grey," which begins streaming Friday, March 11, he's a 93-year-old widower living in a roach-infested Atlanta apartment who has rapidly advancing dementia and an inability to distinguish past from present.

So while he's having periodic visions of his beloved wife Sensia (Cynthia Kaye McWilliams, "Bosch") and childhood mentor Coydog (Damon Gupta, "Black Lightning") – both deceased – his mental deterioration demands a caregiver in the form of teenage family friend Robyn (Dominique Fishback, "The Deuce").

But Dr. Rubin (Walton Goggins, "The Righteous Gemstones") has a solution: a vaccine that will restore his faculties for a short time and then no more – for good. Soon, Ptolemy's mental acuity is sharper than ever and he realizes he has urgent business to settle, not the least of which is finding his nephew Reggie's (Omar Benson Miller, "Ballers") killer. And there is also another pressing matter.

The drama, which is based on the novel by Walter Mosley (who is also the showrunner), features a tour-de-force performance from Jackson, and the Oscar-nominated actor says his own family history gave him plenty of preparation to play Ptolemy.

"I'm from a family where I felt like I was surrounded by Alzheimer's ...," says Jackson, who is an executive producer of the series. "And I watched them change, deteriorate and become different people over the years. And being able to tell their story or listening to them and understanding that things in their past are more their present than what's going on in their everyday life and understanding how to convey that to people. And giving an audience an opportunity to know that they aren't the only people who watch their loved ones deteriorate that way."

Matching up with Jackson in most scenes is Fishback, who gives as good as she gets as Robyn. Jackson first saw her playing a teenage drug dealer in the New Orleans-set 2020 crime actioner "Project Power" and immediately knew she was right for this project.

The actress reports that their rapport was instantaneous.

"From the beginning I knew that Sam really wanted me to do it," she says. "So I thought that was really important because one of the first stories that Sam told me was about his family and how much Alzheimer's had affected him. So I knew it was really important. I think he has a really raw sense of humor and I'm from Brooklyn, so I think that we've been able to vibe off of that and kind of know why we were doing it."

Rescuing eateries gets competitive on 'Restaurant Rivals: Irvine vs. Taffer'

Robert Irvine and Jon Taffer share a love of rescuing hospitality businesses. They just do it from differing angles.

While Chef Irvine ("Restaurant: Impossible") approaches saving restaurants from the culinary perspective, believing the food is what will draw in customers, Taffer ("Bar Rescue") takes the businessman's point of view, arguing the overall dining experience is what the diner is after. Now their guiding principles will be put to the test in a new competition series just premiered on discovery+.

In the three hourlong episodes of "Restaurant Rivals: Irvine vs. Taffer," the two men each apply their acumen to a struggling family-owned Southern California eatery. Some may be neighbors, some may be in the same town but all will be made over within the space of 24 hours, getting new menus and improvements to restaurant and staff.

In the end, the two businesses go head-to-head in a dining service that will determine the winner, which is based on food quality, atmosphere and service.

For Taffer, who once owned a restaurant music consulting business, the idea was right up his alley.

"Through my work, I'd proven that I could increase table turns through music," he says. "I can make you chew faster through music. I could stimulate conversation through music. So I used these environmental factors all the time in my concept creations.

"So it's interesting," he continues. "I sort of look at it from the outside in, Robert looks at it from the inside out. I've got to add, I don't have any disrespect for his process or the way he goes about it. That's what makes this exciting for me, is I have complete respect for him and his process."

The problems the two men faced were pretty typical – food quality, poorly trained staff, ownership issues, attitude problems and red ink. Some restaurants were in better positions financially than others but many weren't far from closing.

In addition to offering advice, Taffer and Irvine took on the role of therapist for the owners, because as Taffer says, "You can't fix a restaurant without fixing the owner."

And while there is no grand prize per se, there are regional bragging rights to be won as well as he intrinsic reward of a business saved.

"There was an interesting dynamic ... and that was the competitive nature of it," Taffer explains. "They not only wanted to make their restaurants better, they wanted to win. My guys wanted to beat Irvine. I mean, we wanted to beat him bad, every one of my restaurant teams, and I know the same happened on Robert's side as well.

"So interestingly, I think the competitive nature of the show added to the motivation level of the owners and sort of made them more successful in their execution."

Kyle Larson

What stands out about your NASCAR Cup Series championship season of 2021 for you?

I don't know, there's a lot that stands out. We had a really good year and we won a lot of races and we contended to win a lot more, too. And then capping it off with the championship, I think that's probably what stands out the most, is winning our first championship. So yeah, it was a great year and one that I hope I can repeat again some day. But it's just difficult to do in how tough and competitive our sport is.

Do you feel any added pressure with being the champion?

RACING IN THE PENNZOIL 400 SUNDAY ON FOX

I don't think so. Obviously, you'd like to go out and contend for it again. But as far as pressure goes, I don't see how it would bring any extra pressure. You know, we're all out there kind of trying to fight for it. But yeah, I don't know, maybe I just haven't read into it that much yet.

Do you have races you key on or tracks you like to run at?

Well, I want to win all of them. I would say, though, the one track that I've been close to winning at a lot and haven't yet would be Darlington. I think I finished second there the last three or four times I've raced there, so that's the one that I want to win at, you know, towards the top of my list, for sure, so we'll try again this year. We have two races there again this year, so a couple of chances to win. But yeah, it's a fun place and one that I've come close to winning at a number of times.

tonight's PICKS

Nick Cannon

Survivor

8 p.m. on WGCL

CBS hasn't released many details about Season 42 of its granddaddy of reality competition shows, but the logo for the new season — which was shot in May and June of 2021, shortly after filming on Season 41 ended — teases fans with its images of a lock, a key and maze, which most likely hit at elements of the new season. Season 41 played out in a shorter, tighter format, but because Season 42 production started before Season 41 aired, for the first time this season's players don't have the advantage of studying how the earlier season played out. Jeff Probst returns as host.

The Masked Singer

8 p.m. on WAGA

This game show, in which panelists try to guess the identity of elaborately masked performers, recently found itself at the center of some controversy after a polarizing political figure reportedly was among this season's first contestants to be unmasked. Otherwise, though, all signs suggest that Season 7, which premieres tonight, will offer its viewers the same family-friendly experience that keeps them tuning in. Host Nick Cannon welcomes back judges Ken Jeong, Jenny McCarthy Wahlberg, Nicole Scherzinger and Robin Thicke.

Good Trouble

9:59 p.m. on FREE

Tommy's (Kevin David Lin) trial comes to a close, but Callie (Maia Mitchell) must keep Kathleen (Constance Zimmer) out of legal jeopardy as this drama returns for Season 4 with a premiere called "Turn and Face the Strange." Meanwhile, with the approval of the FCGs, Mariana (Cierra Ramirez) meets with Evan (T.J. Linnard). Elsewhere, Sumi (Kara Wang) serves as acting manager while Alice (Sherry Cola) is on the road. Someone new moves into the Coterie.

Ronnie Adams

Joe Millionaire: For Richer or Poorer

8 p.m. on WAGA
It's time to spill the big secret — the one involving dollar signs and zeroes — in the season finale “Dates, Decisions and Dollar Amount Revealed.” In this final hour, both Joes — Steven McBee and Kurt Sowers — must select their final lady and bid farewell to the other contenders. Then, in the moment of truth, they reveal the truth about how fiscally formidable each of them is, which in turn may determine whether true love outweighs their bank accounts. Martin Andrew also appears as The Butler.

Restaurant: Impossible

8 p.m. on FOOD
Host Robert Irvine finds himself confronted with an all-too-familiar problem — namely a restaurant owner who refuses to change with the times — in the new episode “Holding on to the Past.” This time around, the setting is the Rest Haven eatery in Clarksdale, Miss., where owner Paula’s stubbornness is destroying her father’s Lebanese restaurant. Her son is ready to take the reins, but Robert Irvine must teach Paula to trust her son and her staff or risk losing the family legacy forever.

Fix My Flip

9 p.m. on HGTV
Best known to her legion of fans for her hit series “Flip or Flop Nashville,” licensed real estate agent Page Turner returns to her home turf in California to help overwhelmed property flippers in this new six-episode series. In each episode, Turner meets with clients who have gotten mired in seemingly hopeless financial situations in the middle of a flipping project. In the series premiere, Turner comes to the aid of a mother-daughter duo in Lake Arrowhead, Calif., with a solution that involves undoing some already-completed work.

8 p.m. on WUPA
As they struggle to adjust to life without their sister Macy, Mel (Melonie Diaz) finds welcome distraction in trying new flings at the magical hotspot the Blue Camellia Bar, while Maggie (Sarah Jeffery) takes on more than her share of demon hunting in the Season 4 premiere “Not That Girl.” Elsewhere, Harry (Rupert Evans) wrestle with grief over his lost love, while Jordan (Jordan Donica) tests his newfound powers by teaming up with Maggie. Meanwhile, a young woman in Philadelphia (Lucy Barrett) is about to confront her new destiny.

Sinister Stepsister
8 p.m. on LMN
Life is good for Jeff Mitchell, who seems to have it all: a lucrative and fulfilling job, a loving wife and two exceptional children. Then the universe delivers a sucker punch in the form of Carlee, a young woman who recently lost her mother. Jeff doesn't know that, just before finishing high school, he got his girlfriend pregnant. Carlee, the product of that union, wants to find some answers now that mom is gone. Annika Foster, Tu Morrow and Matthew Pohlkamp star in this 2022 thriller.

Mainstream
8 p.m. on SHOW
Gia Coppola, granddaughter of Oscar-winning director Francis Ford Coppola, directed and co-wrote this uneven but entertaining 2020 dramedy starring Maya Hawke (daughter of Uma Thurman and Ethan Hawke) as Frankie Cabot, a struggling young West Hollywood filmmaker whose career and YouTube profile gets a boost after she runs into an aimless eccentric named Link (Andrew Garfield), who is living off the grid. She posts a video of him in a manic moment that quickly goes viral. Nat Wolff, Jason Schwartzman and Johnny Knoxville co-star.

Feeling Butterflies

8 p.m. on HALL

This new springtime romantic drama definitely earns points for its quirky premise, which is both original and seasonally appropriate. Kayla Wallace stars as Emily, who has launched a new service that provides live monarch butterflies to release at special events. At one such birthday party, she meets Garrett (Kevin McGarry, “When Calls the Heart”), a handsome single dad who sets Emily’s heart aflutter. He and his young daughter also help Emily’s new business spread its wings. Alyssa Gervasi and Ishan Morris co-star.

Mash-Up Our Home

8 p.m. on HGTV

The married design team of Kele Dobrinski and Christina Valencia have an uncanny knack for providing “aesthetic mediation” for couples who are struggling with drastically different design preferences. Each episode finds the duo coming up with a harmonious mash-up of the styles that results in a dream home catering to both unique tastes. In the premiere, Dobrinski and Valencia help a couple torn between neutral minimalism and vibrant colors, devising a mash-up that makes both parties fall back in love with their home.

tonight's PICKS

Liza Lapira

27th Annual Critics' Choice Awards

7 p.m. on WUPA TBS

From the Fairmont Century Plaza Hotel in Los Angeles, Taye Diggs and Nicole Byer host this annual awards show honoring the best in primetime television during 2021. Among the field of nominees, HBO leads with 20 nominations, closely trailed by Netflix with 18. As for individual series, two HBO dramas, “Succession” and “Mare of East-town,” scored 8 and 5 nods, respectively; “Evil,” a Paramount Plus streaming series, also earned five nominations.

The Equalizer

8 p.m. on WGCL

In the new episode “Somewhere Over the Hudson,” Robyn (Queen Latifah) helps a desperate mob accountant recover a lost ledger. It’s a vital piece of evidence he has to turn over to the FBI in exchange for safe entry into the Witness Protection Program. Meanwhile, Mel (Liza Lapira) tries to figure out a way to tell her best friend — who selflessly provided emotional support to Mel in the wake of Harry’s (Adam Goldberg) “death” — that his demise was a fabrication all along.

NCIS: Los Angeles

9 p.m. on WGCL

In the new episode “All the Little Things,” after a newborn child is found abandoned on a Navy ship, Kensi and Deeks (Daniela Ruah, Eric Christian Olsen) launch a desperate search to find her mother somewhere on board the vessel before the infant dies of medical complications. Elsewhere, operational psychologist Nate Getz (recurring guest star Peter Cambor) meets with Admiral Kilbride (Gerald McRaney) and learns about the CIA project from the 1970s and ’80s involving children. Bar Paly, Jeff Kober and Olesya Rulin also guest star.

tonight's PICKS

Terry Crews

9-1-1: Lone Star

8 p.m. on WAGA
Owen, Tommy (Rob Lowe, Gina Torres) and the team of the 126 go speeding to the rescue when an incident of carbon monoxide poisoning takes place at a medieval-themed eatery in the new episode "Parental Guidance." Meanwhile, Paul (Brian Michael Smith) has not mentally recovered from his surgery. Elsewhere, Mateo's (Julian Works) old fire captain offers him a promotion, but Mateo quickly discovers his former mentor is not the man who once knew.

America's Got Talent: Extreme

8 p.m. on WXIA
If the singers, comics, ventriloquists and other more sedate acts of the original "America's Got Talent" have left some viewers a little jaded by traditional variety performances, this four-week offshoot series probably has kept them entertained with its roster of acts including a parkour aficionado who leaps over oncoming vehicles, a professional human cannonball and a trio of "Jackass" fans who set a colleague on fire and bounce on a trampoline covered in mousetraps. Tonight's finale reveals who claims the $500,000 grand prize.

The Julia Child Challenge

9 p.m. on FOOD
Eight talented home chefs who also are Julia Child superfans compete for a dream prize — a three-month all-expenses-paid trip to Le Cordon Bleu cooking school in Paris — in this new culinary competition series. In addition to sharing their own stories about how Child's passion for cooking changed their lives, these cooks will work in a kitchen recreation of where Child herself cooked. Antonia Lofaso is head judge; Michael Voltaggio and Francis Lam join her in the series premiere as two in a rotating lineup of guest judges.

tonight's PICKS

Dwayne Johnson

Young Rock

8 p.m. on WXIA

NBC has released scant information about the sophomore season of this sitcom, which draws freely from actual experiences at different stages of Dwayne “The Rock” Johnson’s life. Given that Season 1 ended on something of a cliffhanger that suggested Johnson wins his (so far fictional) U.S. presidential bid in 2032, it seems likely that storyline will resume in Season 2. Other potential stories may involve Johnson’s time in the Canadian Football League and some of his teenage romances. All the principal actors from Season 1 are expected back.

Mr. Mayor

8:30 p.m. on WXIA

This savvy political comedy from the Emmy-winning “30 Rock” creative team of Tina Fey and Robert Carlock got off to a bumpy start in Season 1, which managed to get only nine episodes on the air due to two production shutdowns forced by the COVID-19 pandemic. Critics mostly liked what they saw of the show, which charts the quixotic administration of Los Angeles Mayor Neil Bremer (Ted Danson). Holly Hunter does inspired supporting work as Bremer’s eccentric vice-mayor, and fans hope this show finally gets to take off in Season 2.

Fixer to Fabulous: Welcome Inn

9 p.m. on HGTV

HGTV fan-favorite renovation experts Dave and Jenny Marrs take on a dream project of theirs, transforming an historic 1880s home into a functioning vacation rental, in this new four-episode series. It’s a complete “gut job,” presenting the couple with unprecedented construction challenges and high financial stakes, so they’ll be recruiting fellow renovation experts for their help. In the premiere, the Marrses begin demolition, their first step toward creating a unique bed-and-breakfast holiday property. The discovery of a massive bee infestation soon gives them pause, however.

Two 'Chicago P.D.' actresses passed in the night

Q: Did Sophia Bush and Tracy Spiridakos ever overlap during their time on "Chicago P.D."? – Jan Klein, Providence, R.I.

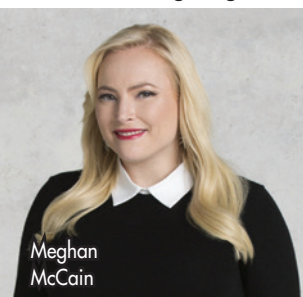

A: They did, during the fourth season of the NBC drama, but not for very long. Spiridakos' Hailey Upton initially was brought in to work a certain case with the unit, but when Bush's Erin Lindsay left – after going too far in interrogating a pedophile, she joined the FBI and relocated to New York – a more permanent place opened up for Upton. Early in her "Chicago" run, Spiridakos was careful not to say she'd been hired as a replacement for Bush, but that essentially was how it turned out.

Tracy Spiridakos

Q: When will "The View" name its new permanent co-host? – Sue Prime, via email

A: Clearly, there's been no rush by the weekday ABC talk show to appoint a permanent successor to Meghan McCain. It's been enjoying having guest co-hosts – and, in effect, giving them on-air tryouts – plus bringing back past "family members," such as Star Jones and Lisa Ling, during the program's 25th-anniversary season. Having to do the show remotely on some occasions probably has affected the process to some degree, too; this far along in "The View's" year, we'd expect that any announcement of someone who's new at the table for good won't come until fall, to give Season 26 a big kickoff.

To complete this puzzle, place the numbers 1-9 in the empty cells, so that every row, column and 3-by-3 box (in bold outline) contains all nine digits.

Each number 1-9 may appear only once in each row, column and 3-by-3 box.

"The one thing for me was probably hearing 'No' so many times and then still betting on myself and believing after having three record deals and being dropped and (having) two cars repossessed and sleeping on couches. It was all a part of the process." – Katy Perry of "American Idol" on ABC

"You don't know what's going to happen to you, and it's the same for a character as for a human being. You've really got to nurture that." – Pamela Adlon of "Better Things" on FX
