COVINGTON, Ga. — The family of a woman shot and killed during a custody exchange Sept. 11 have set up a fund-raising site for funeral expenses and the victim's children. Desiree Cash, 33, and her boyfriend Craig Joshua Thomas, 29, were shot and killed Sept. 11 as they sat in their vehicle at a residence on Pebble Lane in the Pebble Brooke subdivision in west Newton County, deputies said.

A person who set up the GoFundMe account identified herself as Cash's mother, Brenda Guerra. "I won't get into too many details here, but if you know our situation, you understand the importance of this funding," Guerra wrote. "I hope to raise money to help support my daughter's three minor children, my grandbabies, who were left with no mother after a tragic, senseless incident that took her life on Sunday, September 11, 2022. "We cannot get any of their belongings from their home due to the pending investigation & any help would be greatly appreciated. Funds will also be used for funeral expenses for Desiree as well as legal expenses for the best interest of my grandchildren." The account listed a goal of $50,000 to pay for funeral expenses and assist the victim's three minor children. It had raised $5,755 by Tuesday morning, Sept. 20. See FUNDRAISER, A3

The Covington Roots Bicentennial Concert is set for Saturday, Sept. 24, at 5 p.m. at Legion Field, 3173 Mill Street NE. It celebrates the city's founding in 1822 and features musical artists with roots in Covington, including Drew Parker and the Drive Time and Blu Maxx bands. An Atlanta-area favorite, Drive Time is reuniting for the concert. Blu Maxx has been a fixture on the local music scene for more than four decades.

His song, "While You're Gone," spent 34 weeks on the Billboard Country Airplay charts in 2021. "I've been looking forward to the day I get to come back home and play a show for the small town that I love so much!" Parker said in a statement. Over the summer, each of the nominees completed a Teacher of the Year essay pack-et which required answering a number of questions concerning their educational back-grounds, philosophies and teaching styles.

On Tuesday and Wednesday of this week, each teacher will participate in a 20-min-ute interview to be conducted by a panel of volunteer judges representing Newton Coun-ty Schools, the Chamber of Commerce, and local businesses and civic organizations.

Once scores from the essays and interviews are tallied, three finalists will be determined by adding the three highest combined scores.

On Tuesday, Sept. 27, the Teacher of the Year selection committee will observe each of the three finalists teaching in his or her classroom setting.

The teacher with the highest combined score on the essay, interview and observa-tion will be announced as the Newton Coun-ty School System’s 2023 Teacher of the Year during a special ceremony at Newton High School on Oct. 6 at 4:45 p.m.

“The Newton County School System would like to congratulate the school-level Teachers of the Year, as they are each wor-thy of this special honor,” a news release stated.

All 23 Teachers of the Year will be rec-ognized at the reception at Newton High School and presented with a commemora-tive plaque from the Coca-Cola Bottling Co. Each of the two runners-up will receive a crystal award from the Newton Chamber of Commerce.

The 2023 Newton County Teacher of the Year will receive a crystal award and check for $1,000 from the Chamber of Commerce.

Newton County School System will also provide a monetary award for each of the school system’s 23 Teachers of the Year.

Cataract surgeries need prior approval in Ga. but not elsewhere

BY REBECCA GRAPEVINE
Capitol Beat News Service

ATLANTA — Georgians who are members of two large Medicare Advantage plans may face a tougher time getting cataract surgery - a routine eye procedure for older people.

That’s because Aetna and Humana now require doctors in Georgia to get prior approval for cataract removal for Medicare Advantage enrollees.

Georgia eye doctors say the requirements are burdensome and don’t apply in most other states.

The problem began last year when Aetna started requiring prior authorizations for cataract surgeries in its Medicare Advantage plans across the country.

This summer Aetna rolled back the policy - except in Georgia and Florida. Six weeks ago, Humana, another large Medicare Advantage insurer, enacted a similar policy requiring prior authorizations for cataract surgeries in Georgia.

Georgia eye doctors say Aetna and Humana’s new requirements force them to engage in lengthy back-and-forths over billing for what should be routine.

“It’s a burden and a delay,” said Dr. J. Chandler Berg, an Albany-area doctor and president of the Georgia Society of Ophthalmology.

Berg said his practice tries to schedule cataract surgeries for certain Medicare Advantage patients a month - instead of one week - in advance to allow extra time for the prior approval process.

Sometimes insurers require patients to get glasses with anti-reflective coating before they can get cataract surgery. Berg finds that policy a waste of time and money because glasses cannot fix cataract glare.

Dr. Ninita Brown of Atlanta’s Thomas Eye Group said the new policy has added work for her already stretched-thin staff and distressed her patients.

Brown said she understands why some new or rare treatments need prior approval but doesn’t think the requirements should apply for something as common as cataract removal.

“It kind of surprised me that someone would look at this as something that is some type of extra benefit of health care, which really should be the standard of care,” she said. “It’s ... an unnecessary burden on these old folks that are struggling already with their vision.”

Cataracts cloud vision and make people more susceptible to falls and auto accidents. They can even contribute to increased dementia risk, according to a recent study. Most adults will need the procedure at some point, ophthalmologists say, and it’s highly effective and safe. The procedure is one of the most common surgeries in the United States and can be performed at an outpatient surgery center or at a hospital, according to the National Eye Institute.

More than half of Georgians enrolled in Medicare, the federal insurance program for adults 65 and older, are members of private Medicare Advantage plans rather than the traditional Medicare program for their health insurance, according to the Kaiser Family Foundation. Older Americans can enroll in Medicare Advantage plans through private health insurance companies instead of obtaining health care through traditional Medicare.

Medicare Advantage plans have seen rapid growth nationwide over the past five years.

Humana has about 257,000 members in Georgia, the company said. Federal data indicate Aetna has about 133,000 Medicare Advantage members in Georgia, although the company would not confirm the number.

Humana and Aetna said their different Medicare Advantage policy in Georgia is due to a pre-existing relationship with Florida-based iCare Health Solutions, a contractor that handles eye-care claims

“The reason for this change is to better align with Medicare’s approach to determining coverage for these procedures in Georgia,” Humana spokesman Jim Turner said. “iCare ... is using prevailing Medicare coverage criteria ... and follows Medicare timeline guidelines to ensure prompt replies to all requests.”

Aetna analyzed “real-time data about cataract surgeries for a year and, based on its findings, decided to discontinue the prior authorization policy earlier this year, said Kimberly Eafano, a spokesperson for the company, which is owned by CVS.

But the situation in Georgia and Florida is different, she said.

“Aetna has been engaged in a 10-year relationship with iCare Health Solutions to manage ophthalmology and optometry services in Florida,” Eafano said.

The suspect, identified as the girl’s father, Marquez Smith, 34, turned himself in to the sheriff’s office after initially being on the run following the incident, said spokesman Sgt. Jack Redlinger of the Newton County Sheriff’s Office.

Smith was charged with two counts of Murder, Aggravated Assault and Cruelty to Children and one count of Possession of a Firearm, according to sheriff’s office records.

He was being held without bond in the Newton County Detention Center. A first appearance hearing for Smith was held Sept. 14 in Magistrate Court.

According to Redlinger, deputies on Sept. 11 at 6:15 p.m. responded to the location of the shooting at 60 Pebble Lane.

The victims reportedly were dropping off Cash’s 15-year-old daughter but she had refused to go — saying she did not want to stay with her father, identified as Smith.

The suspect then allegedly walked back into the house, retrieved a handgun, came back outside to the vehicle and shot both the man and woman, Redlinger said.

The two victims then attempted to drive away in the car but ultimately hit a mailbox — where deputies say they found them, the spokesman said.

Thomas was the driver and was pronounced dead at the scene. Cash died in the ambulance while being taken to the hospital, Redlinger said.

After the shooting, Smith left the scene driving a silver 2008 Ford F-250 pickup truck. Around midnight, he made contact with Sheriff Ezell Brown and made arrangements to turn himself in, Redlinger said.

Smith has a lengthy arrest history dating to 2005, jail records show.

Niece a chip off the old block

As my frequent remarks in this column suggest, I grew up a compulsive reader and never really gave up the habit.

Reading multiple books in a week, visiting the library and leaving with a stack as tall as I was, missing entire conversations because I had a book in my lap, these were all common childhood occurrences.

But I was hardly the only one with my nose stuck in a book. My siblings were frequently doing the same thing, and sometimes even one-upping me on occasion: my sister is probably the only person I know who read all 1,200-plus pages of “Les Miserables” in middle school, certainly.

So it’s been entertaining to watch my oldest niece, Kara, reflect many of the same patterns.

Kara is 8 and, so far, is the only one of my quartet of nieces who can read. Which she does so, all the time. It’s not uncommon for me to drop by my sister’s house and find Kara reading a book when I walk in the door... at least until she notices me and springs up for a bit of attention.

Recently, though, my sister decided enough was enough. Kara, she felt, was showing too much of a different part of the family nature — the part that collects books without reading them.

It’s well-known my father and I both bear this affliction. We have entire drifts of books on the floors, in closets, stashed away in boxes and side rooms, waiting for us to read them. Instead, we buy more books and the cycle continues, ad infinitum.

Kara was apparently drifting this way. She has developed her own growing backlog of books — many of them given to her by me, I’ll admit — and yet was often seeking to go to the library for more titles, or get one from The Story Shop downtown, than read an unread volume at home.

Not to mention how often she’s reread favorites like “Sailor Moon” rather than tackle new material, much to her mother’s chagrin.

My sister counted all of Kara’s unread books and came up with a list of about 84 books she owned or borrowed but had not read.

The genetics are clear. She is definitely one of us.

Kara is now on a book-buying mortuorium until she’s chipped away at her backlog a bit. I’ve been ordered not to give her books until at least Christmas.

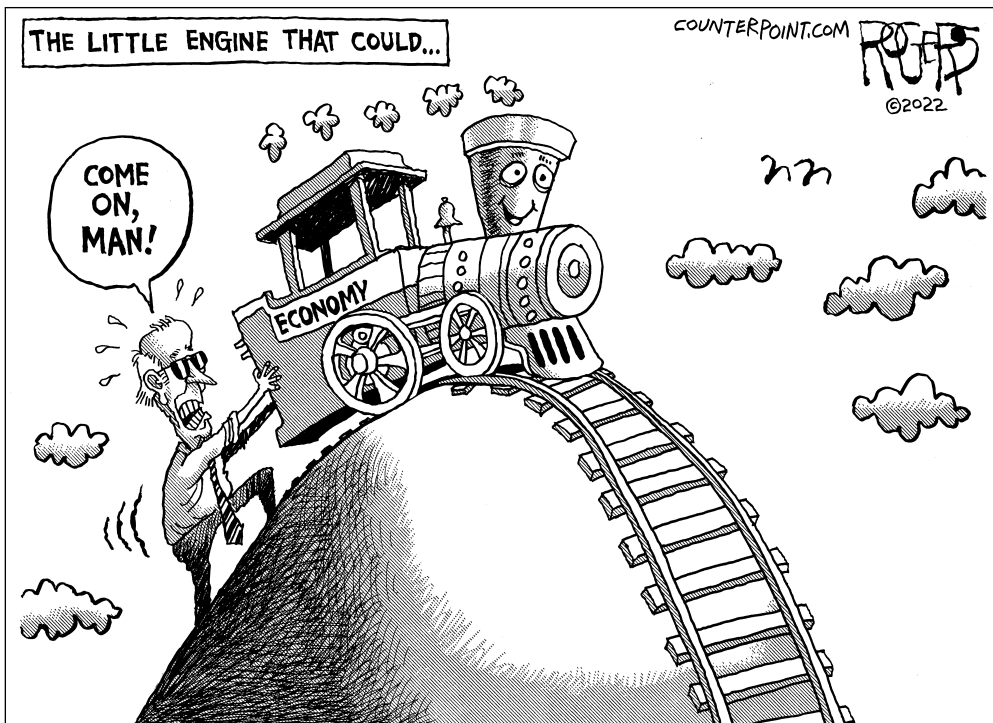

It’s, at best, a rearguard action. Once the backlog starts to grow, it never really stops. After all, for a truly compulsive reader, the backlog essentially represents all books extant in the entire world. There’s always one more to be read.

Still, maybe Kara can do better than her uncle and grandfather are doing with their own to-read piles. Especially since she lent “Sailor Moon” to someone else and can’t read it for the umpteenth time instead. It’s a struggle she’ll face on her own. I certainly have no winning advice...

Democrats scheme to end filibuster, legalize abortion

Vice President Kamala Harris appeared in a pre-taped interview on NBC’s “Meet the Press” last weekend. As is often the case with her interviews, Harris said a few awkward, ill-informed or downright odd things. For example, she claimed that the U.S.-Mexico border is “secure.” When asked if she was confident of that, Harris answered, “We have a secure border in that that is a priority for any nation, including ours and our administration.” It’s hard to figure out what that meant.

The most newsworthy thing Harris said concerned the state of the Senate filibuster. Democrats have been in control of the Senate since the 2020 election, but with a 50-50 tie, they do not control a majority of seats. Their margin of control is the vice president’s tiebreaking vote. But even to get to that point on a partisan measure, Democrats have to unite all 50 of their senators. That has been difficult when two centrist Democrats, Joe Manchin of West Virginia and Kyrsten Sinema of Arizona, sometimes declined to go along with their colleagues.

So a goal of Democrats in this November’s election -- a dream scenario, actually -- would be to win 52 seats. That way, even if Manchin and Sinema defected, there would still be 50 Democratic votes for a partisan measure, and Harris could cast the tiebreaking, winning vote.

Harris made the case on NBC, using abortion as the reason Democrats need a 52-seat majority. “We are looking at a midterm election in which so much is on the line,” she said. “Take, for example, the issue of choice. The United States Supreme Court, in the Dobbs decision, just took a constitutional right that had been recognized from the women of America, from the people of America. Well, how does that relate to the midterms? Our president has said he will not let the filibuster get in the way. If the Senate, through a majority vote, votes to pass the Women’s Health Protection Act, he will sign it into law. You know what that means in the midterms? We need to hold on to the Senate and get two more. And then we can put into law the protections of Roe v. Wade.”

In Harris’ scenario, Democrats first need to get 50 votes for codifying Roe without having to worry about Manchin or Sinema. Then, if they get the 50 votes on the bill, they need 50 votes to eliminate the filibuster, which, were it still in effect, would require 60 votes for passage. According to the plan, Democrats would eliminate the filibuster on a 50-plus-Harris vote, and then codify Roe on a 50-plus-Harris vote. And just like that, the filibuster would be gone, and abortion would be legalized across America.

Killing the legislative filibuster would be, of course, a dramatic move in the Senate. It would change the way the institution works. It would set off a war between the parties and make the Senate even more partisan than it is today. It would lead to the passage of ill-considered legislation. But it is what many Democrats want to do. And now the vice president has laid out the administration’s rationale for doing it: to cement the now-repealed Roe decision into law.

But it’s more complicated than that. “If Democrats get 52 Senate seats or more, [is] the legislative filibuster gone?” NBC’s Chuck Todd asked Harris. “Or just on this issue?” That is, do Democrats want to somehow eliminate the filibuster only for the purpose of codifying Roe, but keep it for other issues? As it turns out, Harris wants to eliminate the filibuster in order to codify Roe, but she also wants to eliminate the filibuster to pass two other high-priority Democratic bills grouped together under the heading of “voting rights”: the Freedom to Vote Act and the John Lewis Voting Rights Advancement Act. Both bills would nationalize elections and reshape the conduct of elections on terms favorable to Democratic candidates.

So when Todd asked, “just on this issue,” meaning abortion, Harris answered: “On this issue and on a very important issue in addition to that important issue, which is voting rights.” She then explained that President Joe Biden “has been very clear. He will sign into law, and not let the filibuster get in the way, the John Lewis Voting Rights Advancement Act and the Freedom to Vote Act ... So everything is on the line in these elections in just less than two months.”

That’s the plan: Democrats want to eliminate the filibuster for the purpose of passing three pieces of legislation: the Women’s Health Protection Act, the Freedom to Vote Act and the John Lewis Voting Rights Advancement Act. Then Todd asked Harris: “Are you comfortable that this could end the legislative filibuster for good, probably, even if you only try to do

A translation guide for 2022 candidates

Have you noticed that when some political candidates and elected officials speak, their words often ring hollow? It’s almost as if they aren’t being honest (imagine that). Wouldn’t you like to know what they really mean? As a public service, I will list some common political doubletalk, followed by the truth. Clip and save this column, and the next time a politician speaks, you’ll have a handy translation guide!

When they say, “I’m worried about Main Street, not Wall Street,” they really mean, “Why would I worry about Wall Street? Their contributions to me are pouring in!”

When they say, “I’m here to talk inflation and jobs,” they really mean, “But I’m not here to talk about the allegations against me.”

When they say, “My position on this has been very clear,” they really mean, “I change my mind often, depending on what the polls say.”

When they say, “My doors are always open, and I will be holding several town hall meetings,” they really mean, “I’ll see y’all again when election time comes around.”

When they say, “My relationship with the governor is very positive,” they really mean, “We shake hands for a photo when it is politically beneficial for both of us.”

When they say, “I’m glad these groups have come to the Capitol with their concerns,” they really mean, “I wouldn’t touch them with a ten foot pole. My base voters would tar and feather me!”

When they say, “This administration’s policies are hurting families, and we must clean up this economic mess,” they really mean, “These are the talking points my party leader has instructed me to say.”

When they say, “I’m the law and order candidate,” they really mean, “I support the police! Unless of course, they investigate or arrest any of the candidates in my party.”

When they say, “I am awarding a check for ten million dollars to your county to improve roads, broadband access, and sewer lines,” they really mean, “Please forget that I voted against this funding, or that I called it a reckless waste of tax dollars. But yes, I’ll take all the credit now.”

When they say, “I’m running for this office because it’s time for me to give back to my community,” they really mean, “What? This position pays $200,000 a year? Well, I had no idea.”

When they say, “We should defund the Girl Scouts! Plus I have evidence that extremists are putting caffeine in child vaccination shots to disrupt our schools, and Howie Mandel is sending secret signals through the TV from Planet Gorf to destroy our dollar stores,” they really mean, “I’m not actually this crazy, but where I’m from, if I say outrageous things I get more votes.”

When they say, “Nobody owns me, and nobody tells me how to think or what to say,” they really mean, “I hope I said that right, or my handlers will put me in time-it for two issues?” Harris quickly answered, “No, I’m not. No, I’m not. No.” When Todd asked whether Harris believes the filibuster “will be held in place on other issues,” Harris answered, “That is very likely, yes.”

Senate Democrats believe they can eliminate the filibuster in order to pass the bills they want to pass, and keep the filibuster to stop the bills they want to stop. It is, to put it bluntly, a crazy idea.

Yes, it’s possible Democrats could pull off a slick maneuver to pass only what they want right now. But do they not believe Republicans will do the same thing the next time they control the Senate? Control of the Senate has changed hands five times since 2000. Don’t Democrats know that will happen again? If it does, they will be in the minority. It might happen in a few weeks. In two years there could be a Republican Senate and White House.

The Senate is a place where what goes around comes around. If Democrats eliminate the legislative filibuster, even if they claim it is a limited elimination applying only to abortion and voting rights, Republicans will eliminate the filibuster to pass bills they’ve always wanted but that have zero Democratic support. Bills like a national right-to-work law, funding a border wall, making tax cuts permanent and much more.

Had they respected the filibuster, Democrats could stop all that.

When they say, “Yes, I know the fake news has me trailing in the polls, but my internal polling shows me with a sizable lead,” they really mean, “I’ve already placed a down payment on a retirement condo in Cancun.”

When they say, “We need term limits! If elected, I will serve only two terms,” they really mean, “Thank God voters have short memories.”

And finally, when they say, “My vote is NOT for sale,” they really mean, “But I CAN be rented now and then.”

If the filibuster is gone, they will have no power to do so.

Five years ago, on April 7, 2017, a group of 27 Senate Democrats, then in the minority, signed a letter defending the filibuster and urging that it not be eliminated. Then-Sen. Kamala Harris was one of those Democrats. Now, she is on the other side.

If she gets her way, Democrats might notch a short-term victory but bring long-term disaster to the Senate.

WE NEED YOUR FEEDBACK!

My first 31 days on the job as editor and publisher of The Covington News have been a whirlwind to say the least.

At times, it’s felt like trying to drink out of a fire hose, as I’ve worked to re-learn a community that I already love, but am now discovering in a fresh way. It’s been a fantastic experience so far.

One of the highlights of my first month came last Wednesday when I was able to sit with our entire staff for the first time to start the discussion of how we can take an award-winning news organization and make it even better.

Yes, The News has been successful, particularly over the last couple of years. And we have the hardware to prove it. But that’s just one part of the puzzle. We can gain every professional accolade known to man and still miss the mark if we’re not giving you, our readers, the local news experience you need.

That’s why, while we’re working on our end to examine everything we do — from digital to print, advertising and sales to community presence — to see how we can do it better, we’re also asking for your help.

We don’t just want your feedback. We need your feedback.

After all, you are the reason why we do what we do. So for the entire month of September, we are asking you to join our efforts — be extensions of our staff, if you will, and help us get better in all aspects of what we do.

Please take some time to answer these questions below and return your answers to me whether by mail, in person, via email or through our Facebook page inbox. You can also give me a call to talk it through if you prefer.

And here’s the good news: We will give a free three-month print and digital subscription or renewal to two randomly selected respondents.

Here’s how you can send you answers:

GROWING UP

Despite Saturday’s loss, coach sees growth in younger players

By PHILLIP B. HUBBARD
phubbard@covnews.com

COVINGTON, Ga. — The 2022 season hasn’t been kind to the Alcovy Tigers to date. The Tigers went 1-2 in their non-region schedule with both losses being lopsided 48-6 and 41-6 against Newton and Eastside, respectively. Alcovy’s Region 3-AAAAAA opener against Mundy’s Mill on Saturday at Sharp Stadium wasn’t much better. The defending region champions were susceptible to the big play that ultimately decided their fate in a 41-12 loss.

But there has been one positive to come out of the season to this point for the Tigers. They are playing a lot of underclassmen in key positions.

Head coach Spencer Fortson highlighted how beneficial this year’s experience, amid the lopsided defeats, could help in the younger players’ long-term development.

“We have to get out of this mindset of, ‘You’re a ninth grader or you’re a sophomore,’” Fortson said. “When we put those players on the field on Friday night, we expect you to live up to a varsity player. These minutes are valuable for those guys and they’ll be able to grow as well.

“But we want them to go ahead and speed up the process just a little bit quicker. But we know in the future, we’re going to have a pretty good team as long as those guys stick together.”

A few younger players have made substantial individual plays this season.

For instance, on Saturday, freshman Tyler Solomon had the Tigers’ lone touchdown in the contest to draw the deficit down to nine points at the time. Bernard Lackey, a sophomore, had two interceptions against Newton in Week 2 as well.

Fortson believes the Tigers are showing signs of a more prosperous future if the players keep working toward getting better.

“When you look at a loss, you want to talk about the things that you could have done, but also got to let [the players] know the things they did do right,” Fortson said. “So they can understand that this is the rock that we need to build on.”

Coming off the three-game losing streak, the Tigers return home this Friday to face another region opponent in Woodward Academy. The War Eagles are 3-1 and beat Morrow High School 52-0 last week to begin its region schedule.

However, entering Week 6, Fortson is focused on him and his team working to improve their chances as the season progresses.

“I told the players tonight, ‘Let’s find the positive things out of tonight so that we can continue to get better with those positive things moving forward,’” Fortson said, “but also don’t overlook the negative things. Find those things you didn’t do right and make sure you’re getting better with those things next week.”

Brown making impact on football field

By PHILLIP B. HUBBARD

COVINGTON, Ga. — Marquavious Brown received news on Sept. 9 that he had been offered his first dual sport scholarship offer from Georgia State University where he is currently committed.

Brown has become a household name for the Newton Rams on the basketball court. He is currently a 4-star senior guard. But, this year, he has also made an impact for the Rams’ football team in his first year with the team as a wide receiver.

The decision to join the football team came after careful consideration. And now, four games into the season, Brown is fully satisfied with his decision.

“I’m actually having fun with this football team right now and it’s been very cool,” Brown said. I love this team. This is a team where some of the players

Lady Eagles looking for ‘competitive fire’

By PHILLIP B. HUBBARD
phubbard@covnews.com

COVINGTON, Ga. — It has been an up and down 2022 season for the Eastside Lady Eagles so far. They stand at 11-10 overall and are sixth in the Region 8-AAAAA standings, still winless in region play.

While head coach Maggie Johnston has been pleased with her team’s development, she wants to see more.

“We like to say, ‘Let’s have that competitive fire,’” Johnston said. “Sometimes, if we win by too much, they get bored and complacent and start playing terribly. Sometimes, when we lose, we don’t think we can be competitive when we really could’ve been.”

Lauren Hall, Bailey Franklin and Payton Robinson are a few players mentioned by Johnston who have taken charge in their individual as well as the team’s progress.

Franklin believes her team can improve to be more consistent across all matches.

“We thrive off of our energy,” Franklin said. “If we have good energy, we’re most likely winning that game. And, when we get big plays, it helps us out a lot and gets us pumped up during the match.”

Hall, a floor captain for the Lady Eagles, stressed the importance of having a competitive nature in practice as well as the matches.

“If we really work together toward a goal and be super intentional with everything we do, instead of just being good we’ll be great,” Hall said.

At the beginning of the season, Johnston wanted her team to come together and play as one unit on the court.

According to senior Payton Robinson, that has helped this year’s team immensely.

“We play our best game when we are all cheering and having fun together as a team,” Robinson said.

“The best part of playing volleyball at Eastside for me has been developing the bonds with all the girls who I have the privilege now to call family.”

Eastside resumed its schedule on Tuesday, Sept. 20 at Walnut Grove. The Lady Eagles will faced Cedar Shoals in the same meet and will host Alcovy Thursday at 7 p.m.

Lady 'Skins begin region play, eye region championship

BY PHILLIP B. HUBBARD
phubbard@covnews.com

SOCIAL CIRCLE, Ga. — For most of the season, it has been smooth sailing for the Social Circle Lady Redskins finishing their non-region schedule with a 9-2 mark. That is all behind them now as region play has begun. Social Circle is 2-1 to begin their Region 5A-Division I slate of games with wins coming against Jasper and Oglethorpe counties and the loss at Prince Avenue. Head coach Chris Davis feels like his team is in a “good spot.” “I told the team, “This is a new season and I look at it as we’re [2-1] on the year,” Davis said. “Are we there yet? No. But we’re better than we were.” The Lady Redskins started their region schedule with an 11-2 win versus Jasper County. Then, Prince Avenue got the better of Social Circle in a 1-0 pitchers duel. The latest region contest was an extra inning, 4-3 victory over Oglethorpe County. In the close games, Davis has credited his team’s competitive nature that they’ve displayed.

From her shortstop position, Kaylynn Scaffie (99) throws a baserunner out at first base against Oglethorpe County on Sept. 15.

Kaylynn Scaffie and Madalyn Spinks believe there’s been an attitude shift, too, with region play beginning. Scaffie stressed the importance of each player’s desire to perform better for the rest of the season. “It’s more serious,” Scaffie said. “There’s a need to win. Even though everyone wants to win every game, now there’s more of a need to.” Scaffie went 2-for-4 at the plate and contributed three RBIs in the 11-2 win over Jasper County on Sept. 8. A part of her performance featured a home run. The moment was huge for Scaffie, too. “That was my first school ball season home run,” Scaffie said. “That was very exciting and it makes me want to keep working more to do it again.” The Lady Redskins entered this season as the defending region champions, when they won the Region 8A-Public crown a season ago. They also finished in the top four at state to conclude arguably one of the best seasons in program history. Spinks recognized how last year’s success makes this year’s team even more hungry to repeat the success. “The pressure’s on,” Spinks said. “You’ve got to do your best. And now it matters. We always play hard and try our best, but there’s always something more when something’s on the line. “We were first in the region last year and we’re trying to get back to that. So, it’s like, ‘win every game.’” As one of the team’s two lead pitchers, Spinks had a solid outing against Oglethorpe County on Sept. 15. Spinks pitched all 11 innings, gave up 10 hits, one earned run and struck out 12 batters to earn the win. Every win Social Circle earns in region play will help improve its chances of winning a region crown, which won’t be an easy task. But the players are confident. “I think we’re better than we were last year,” Spinks said. “We’ve grown and we’re all at a different level now. That’s what happens when your best players are juniors and seniors. Then you’ve got a much better team.” This week, Social Circle faces Madison County, Jasper County and Barrow Arts and Sciences Academy.

Madalyn Spinks (14) pitched 11 innings against Oglethorpe County and struck out 12 batters while only surrendering one earned run.

BROWN:

I played with in middle school.” Brown hasn’t played organized football since his eighth grade season with Liberty Middle School. But it doesn’t seem like he’s lost a step. In his first game on the gridiron, Brown caught a touchdown against Hapeville Charter in Newton’s 20-19 win on Aug. 18. The touchdown came from nine yards out. And, while most football fans refer to that area as the red zone, Brown had a different name for it. “In the red zone is where all my money plays are at,”

Brown said. “I can run a 30-yard post route but in the red zone, it is definitely my money spot.” Differences abound between football and basketball. The biggest difference so far for Brown has been celebrating his score. While he compared it to a dunk in basketball, Brown said scoring a touchdown was better. “Catching a touchdown is way more exciting,” Brown said. “My teammates rushed me and it just feels good. It makes you feel emotions that are through the roof.”

There are some skills Brown developed through his basketball play that have helped prepare him for playing football. For instance, the 6-foot-3, 185-pound senior said his speed, ability to jump and the fact that he has “good hands” has paid off for him on the football field. “I’ve just been blessed with the talent to play different sports,” Brown said. “I’m a big athlete and I love sports.” One thing that has carried over from Brown’s basketball career has been his competitive nature. According to Brown, he stays fully aware of his surroundings on the field and stays cautious at all times. But his experience playing Class-AAAAAAA football in Georgia has also shown him something that he believes will help improve his basketball performance. “You have to be super physical no matter what sport you play. And this sport has shown me that,” Brown said.” In football, you’re playing against some big people. So, when I take that over to the court, I’ll be super physical. Last year, I could jump over people, but I wasn’t physical. I feel like now I could be physical with the best of them.” Now, Brown will continue playing for the Rams’ football team during his senior season. But he will rejoin the basketball team when the season comes around. And, even though his commitment to Georgia State is for basketball, that might be changing. “I’m falling in love with football,” Brown said. “Basketball is my main sport, but I could go to college and play football, I think.”

Georgia job numbers reach all-time high

By DAVE WILLIAMS
Capitol Beat News Service

ATLANTA — While Georgia’s unemployment rate remained at 2.8% last month, the number of jobs hit another record high in August, the state Department of Labor reported last week.

Job numbers increased 15,800 from July to August to more than 4.82 million. The largest gains came in the educational services sector, which added 3,200 jobs; and professional, scientific and technical services, a sector that grew by 3,000 jobs.

Meanwhile, 13 employers are expected to participate in a virtual career fair for metro Atlanta, set for Sept. 29 from 10 a.m. until 1 p.m.

“We have found that the

new normal for jobhunting is less door to door and more virtual connection,” Georgia Commissioner of Labor Mark Butler said Thursday.

“Our agency connects jobseekers with open positions quickly and effectively utilizing Employ Georgia and virtual job fairs benefitting employers and employees across the state.”

The job sector with the most over-the-year gains last month was accommodation and food services — a sector hit hard by the pandemic — which added 32,700 jobs.

For the first time this year, Georgia saw a drop in the number of employed residents to about 5.13 million.

However, the number of unemployed Georgians also fell in August to 149,650, the lowest since January 2001.

Initial unemployment claims declined last month from July by 1,795, or 6%, to 26,750. Over the year, first-time jobless claims have plummeted by 44%.

There are more than 220,000 jobs listed online at EmployGeorgia.com, resulting in a minimum of more than 290,000 unfilled positions. Industries with more than 10,000 job postings include health care, with 37,000 jobs listed, and retail trade, with 21,000 postings. ## Statewide Business Court

Former lawmaker Bill Hamrick confirmed as sole judge

By DAVE WILLIAMS
Capitol Beat News Service

ATLANTA — Members of the Georgia House and Senate Judiciary committees confirmed former state Sen. Bill Hamrick last week as sole judge of the Statewide Business Court.

In unanimous separate votes, the lawmakers approved Gov. Brian Kemp’s nomination of the Carrollton Republican to succeed Walter Davis, who has headed the court since it began operations in 2019.

Georgia voters approved creation of the business court in 2018, and it was codified it into state law during the 2019 legislative session.

The court provides specialized expertise in the adjudication of complex commercial cases with an eye toward efficiency and responsiveness.

After serving in the Georgia Senate from 2000 to 2012, Hamrick was appointed a Superior Court judge in the Coweta Judicial Circuit by then-Gov. Nathan Deal.

“There’s not a better studied, more well-read judge in any other circuit,” state Rep. Tyler Paul Smith, R-Bremen, said Wednesday. Smith, a lawyer, has practiced before Judge Hamrick.

Shortly before Wednesday’s votes, Hamrick told members of the two committees the Statewide Business Court has heard cases from 22 counties since setting up shop.

“Most of the cases have been small businesses, which I think is a good sign,” he said. “I look forward to getting to work and keeping the cases moving.”

Agriscience manufacturer to invest $35M in Jasper County

STAFF REPORT
news@covnews.com

MONTICELLO, Ga. — Global agriscience technology manufacturer Profile Products will invest nearly $35 million to launch a manufacturing facility in Jasper County and create 80 new jobs, Gov. Brian Kemp announced last week.

The Buffalo Grove, Illinois-based company is a developer and manufacturer of sustainable, engineered specialty agriscience materials for horticulture, erosion control, sports turf and other specialty applications.

The new facility will produce wood-based erosion control technologies and horticulture substrates — the material from which a plant grows or obtains its nourishment.

The first phase of the facility development is expected to be complete and operational in October 2022 and will represent only the company’s initial $35 million investment in Georgia, the governor’s office stated in a news release.

Additional development of the facility will occur over the following 36 months. The company is hiring for positions in manufacturing and logistics, and interested individuals can visit profile-

products.com and the Careers page to learn more.

Profile Products currently employs more than 500 globally.

“The response from the community has been amazing. They have welcomed Profile with open arms and we look forward to being a contributing member of the community,” said Jamal Diallo, plant manager at the Jasper County facility. “Giving back where our team members live, work, and play is core to Profile’s company values.”

Profile Products CEO Jim Tanner added, “Georgia offers a great workforce that embraces an aspiration to improve our environment.

“The Jasper County facility marks an incredible step forward in our long-term growth strategy. The world is asking for sustainable technologies. We’re building them... We’re building them right here in Jasper County!”

Monticello Mayor Gail Harrell said, “The city of Monticello is honored to welcome Profile Products, another environmentally sustainable business joining our community.

“We appreciate the opportunity to support Profile Products by providing natural gas and water service to the Jasper County facility.”

Bruce Henry, chairman of the Jasper County Board of Commissioners, said, “The Profile Products expansion in Jasper County demonstrates their ongoing commitment to innovation, engagement and talent.

“Their agribusiness leadership epitomizes the ‘Jasper County standard,’ excelling in integrity, service, and stewardship,” Henry said.

“The company recognizes the strength of Jasper County as an agribusiness and forest industry hub, and we look forward to our continued collaboration. We appreciate Profile Products’ commitment to agribusiness, sustainability, and most importantly, supporting our vibrant community.”

“Agribusiness is a core industry in Georgia, and we’re excited for Profile to begin manufacturing their solutions-oriented products in the state,” said state Economic Development Commissioner Pat Wilson.

Preparing meals with family can be fun way to do daily job

SPECIAL TO THE NEWS

news@covnews.com

Families that want to spend more time together can find a fun way to do just that by working together on something they already do each day. Cooking meals together as a family can add some fun to a task that's already a part of many families' daily routines.

Children can learn quite a bit from cooking, as preparing recipes can reinforce school lessons. Family cooking nights also pose a great opportunity to create lasting memories. Various sources indicate that children are more likely to remember experiences from their youth rather than the presents they receive. Some of those cherished experiences can be enjoyed in the kitchen alongside mom and dad.

In addition to creating lasting, fun memories, cooking together as a family may make children less likely to complain about foods since they have lent a hand in their creation. Furthermore, cooking together fosters a special feeling of unity and may establish a no-pressure, safe space for conversation.

With so many benefits, families may be wondering how they can foster and improve time spent together in the kitchen. Here are some ways to do so.

- Organize age-appropriate tasks. Little hands can only handle so much. A toddler can pour and stir ingredients, while an older child or teenager may be ready to chop ingredients or sauté at the stove.
- Expect some mess. Parents and other adults should go into any meal creation process with children expecting things to get a tad messy. It may be possible to minimize messes by setting up workstations covered by plastic tablecloths which can be folded up and shaken into the trash. Encourage children to sit down so they don't inadvertently spread any messes to another part of the house.
- Begin with simple recipes. An initial foray into family cooking should involve a recipe that's easy to prepare and perhaps doesn't require too many ingredients. Build on each success after that, growing bolder with each subsequent recipe.

- Make it a multi-generational experience. For many families, Sunday was the opportunity to gather at grandma's house after religious worship or to check in and spend time together. Rekindle this tradition by hosting weekly or monthly family meals where everyone gets to take part in bringing the meal to the table. This is an ideal opportunity for grandparents to pass down family recipes and regale grandchildren with funny stories and memories.

- Plan for things to take a little extra time. Preparation time is likely to take a bit longer when multiple hands are stirring the pot.

Families can slow down and employ some patience. Adults should resist the urge to take over when children may not be doing things the right way. If meals need to be on the table at certain times, start an hour or two earlier than you otherwise would to account for some confusion and even a potential restart.

- Eliminate as many distractions as possible. The kitchen may be the heart of the home, but it can be dangerous to be around knives and other cooking utensils and instruments.

Distractions like televisions or phones can draw attention away and potentially lead to injuries from pots boiling over or children getting too close to hot flames.

Cooking as a family is very beneficial and can be made even more so with some handy tips.

Some basic information on milk alternatives

SPECIAL TO THE NEWS

news@covnews.com

Trends in the food and beverage industry come and go. Individuals without any allergies or pre-existing health conditions can navigate these changing trends with relative ease, seamlessly shifting to new items when fads fade and new ones emerge. However, that option isn't open to those who have food allergies, including an inability to consume dairy.

How common are milk allergies?

According to the Asthma and Allergy Foundation of America, around 32 million people in the United States have food allergies. Milk is the most common food allergy for children, but plenty of adults also have dairy allergies. One population-based survey of more than 40,000 adults published in the journal JAMA Network Open in 2019 found that milk was the second most common self-reported allergy.

What are some milk alternatives?

Fortunately, consumers have a multitude of dairy alternatives to consider when visiting their local grocery stores.

The Cleveland Clinic notes that these milk alternatives are a potential option for individuals with a milk allergy; those who are lactose intolerant; people who adhere to a vegan or vegetarian diet; and people concerned about added hormones and antibiotics in cow's milk.

- Almond milk: Almond milk is a popular and low-calorie alternative to cow's milk. Before consuming almond milk, individuals should be tested by an allergist to determine if they have a nut allergy.

- Cashew milk: Another nut-based alternative to cow's milk, cashew milk is low in calories and often fortified with vitamin D and calcium. Cashew milk also is rich in vitamin E.

- Soy milk: Soy milk has long been a popular alternative to cow's milk. Soy milk is lactose-free, making it an ideal option for individuals who are lactose intolerant. Some people are allergic to soy, so this might not be an option for everyone.

- Rice milk: Rice milk is a high-calorie alternative to cow's milk that the Cleveland Clinic indicates also contains around three grams of fat per cup. However, it can be ideal for people with nut or soy allergies or anyone who is lactose intolerant.

- Coconut milk: Though it's low in calories, coconut milk contains more fat per cup (around four grams) than rice milk. Nutritionists also note that the fat in coconut milk is saturated fat, which can be a concern for people with certain preexisting health conditions.

But coconut milk is plant-based, so it's a potential option for individuals with dairy and nut allergies.

- Oat milk: Oat milk has been trending in recent years. Oat milk is plant-based and free of dairy, lactose, soy, and nuts, making it a good option for people with various food allergies.

Oat milk typically contains more carbs and calories than other plant-based milk alternatives.

Dietary trends and health conditions like allergies compel millions of people to seek milk alternatives.

BY GEORGE DICKIE

Diego Luna stars in "Andor," which premieres Wednesday on Disney+.

Disney+'s 'Andor' explores how a Rebel hero is made

The 2016 epic space opera "Rogue One" acquainted "Star Wars" fans with Cassian Andor, the Rebel hero who stole the plans to the Death Star and was subsequently killed by it. Now, they'll learn more about who he is in a prequel series coming to Disney+.

In "Andor," which begins streaming Wednesday, Sept. 21, with the first three of its 12 Season 1 episodes, the story of the burgeoning Rebellion against the Empire is explored through the story of Cassian Andor (Diego Luna, reprising his role from the earlier film). Set five years before the events of "Rogue One," it tracks how a revolutionary is born and how Andor evolved to become a Rebel hero.

The series is created and executive produced by showrunner Tony Gilroy ("Rogue One," "Dolores Claiborne," "State of Play"), and also stars Genevieve O'Reilly ("Star Wars: Rebels"), Alex Ferns ("The Batman") and Adria Arjona ("Irma Vep").

"The story of revolution and what it really means is very complicated," Gilroy explains. "It's very interesting to delve into as a writer. And by the time we get to 'Rogue One,' what's great about building this show back in reverse and seeing the preceding four years is I think that killing will be as sad as it always is. I think it's as sad as it is for (Andor).

"I think if we are successful ..., he continues, "when you watch 'Rogue,' a lot of scenes in 'Rogue' are going to take a deeper significance and a deeper resonance."

Working backwards with the character is also what intrigued Luna, who embraced the chance to explore Andor more deeply and how he got to his ultimate destiny.

"I know where it ends and I can be very creative about how to get there," Luna says. "I think it triggers a different part of your creativity when you start backwards."

"And as audience, not as an actor, as audience," he continues, "I tell you there's nothing I like (more) than going to see big shows about historical moments that I know happened and that I know the end, and characters that I've read about, and then I go and see a movie about them and I get to see what's in between what I read."

"To me ... it celebrates, in a way, and it challenges audiences in a very special way. It's like you know this is possible. You know someone is capable of this. Well, I'm going to tell you something you don't know about what triggered that and, to me, that is when storytelling becomes fascinating, you know. And, again, that's what I search for as audience."

Survivor

8 p.m. on WGCL

After 22 years, 620 episodes, 646 contestants and 639 torch snuffs, it's time for 18 strangers to get stranded on the beautiful islands of Fiji in hopes of surviving long enough to claim the $1 million prize. The two-hour Season 43 premiere brings us yet another social experiment where people must manage risk over reward in a complex social game of wills and skills. Castaways include a U.S. Olympian, a pharmacist, a clinical psychologist, an event planner and a pet cremator. Jeff Probst hosts.

Chicago Med

8 p.m. on WXIA

We were left hanging last season by a devastating fire that had trapped Dr. Will Halstead (Nick Gehlfuss) and Dr. Dylan Scott (Guy Lockard) in an apartment building trying to help an undercover cop (Riley Voelkel) who had her cover blown. In the aftermath of the fire, Crockett (Dominic Rains), Ethan (Brian Tee) and Archer (Steven Weber) work together to try and save the survivors. Meanwhile, Charles (Oliver Platt) and Med's new fellow, Nellie (Lilah Richcreek Estrada), help a paranoid patient. Dylan makes a life-changing decision on the Season 8 premiere episode "How Do You Begin to Count the Losses."

Abbott Elementary

9 p.m. on WSB

Teachers are back for development week, a time to prepare before the students' first day of school. Post-breakup, Janine (Quinta Brunson) is determined to start the year off right and takes on organizing the faculty mixer, announcing a special celebrity surprise she planned for the kids' first day. Meanwhile, Ava (Janelle James) runs a side hustle out of the school parking lot and Gregory (Tyler James Williams), now a full-time teacher, is in over his head with the curriculum in the Season 2 premiere "Development Day."

She soon learns it’s a cheating ring. Under the clique’s influence, Annie starts a relationship with her lacrosse coach, Mitch (Jonathan Stoddard), but is then blackmailed to prevent her from leaving and revealing the ring to the rest of the school in this 2022 thriller.

9 p.m. on WSB
Legendary screenwriter and television producer Norman Lear (“All in the Family,” “The Jeffersons,” “Sanford and Son,” “One Day at a Time,” “Maude,” “Good Times”) celebrated his 100th birthday in July and the icon is feted in this two-hour special. A host of celebrity guests and musical performances pay homage to producer, activist and philanthropist who continues to work, currently planning a reboot of “Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman.”

Law & Order
10 p.m. on WXIA
“Dun-dun.” The legendary Dick Wolf procedural is back with its Season 22 premiere “Gimme Shelter — Part 3,” which wraps up the historic first time that the “L&O” series “Organized Crime,” “SVU” and the original come together for a three-show crossover event covering one crime that requires all units to come together. D.A. Jack McCoy (Sam Waterston), Detective Frank Cosgrove (Jeffrey Donovan), Lt. Kate Dixon (Camryn Manheim), E.A.D.A. Nolan Price (Hugh Dancy) and A.D.A. Samantha Maroun (Odelya Halevi) all return.

Mina Starsiak Hawk

OF ‘GOOD BONES: RISKY BUSINESS’ ON HGTV AND DISCOVERY+

What went through your mind when the architect told you construction costs on the Sanders House renovation would be $600,000-700,000?

How am I going to figure how how to get that money? Why did I buy this house? Everyone did not think I should buy it and basically like how am I going to prove everyone wrong? And again, still I am – it’s a question mark. Like am I going to prove everyone wrong? Or is it going to be a big, fat “I told you so, you shouldn’t have done it”? And that’s still TBD (laughs).

Was your mom one of the ones who was against it?

She didn’t really say anything, which means probably yes. But my sister works for me at the time, my sister-in-law works for me and they were both transitioning out and definitely was not – like we didn’t have extra money in the company to be throwing at this completely unnecessary, super-ritzy project.

Finley, who’s my chief of staff ... she looks at our bank account every single day and I don’t know how she hasn’t lost all of her hair, like it’s just incredibly stressful. And I’m like, “OK, now we need to spend a little more because we actually need to make it livable. We need extra sheets. We need toilet paper.” (Laughs) So every day money is going out and it’s not coming in yet.

Out of 'Order': Kelli Giddish will exit 'SVU' soon

Q: Is Kelli Giddish really leaving "Law & Order: Special Victims Unit"? Is there any chance she'll change her mind? – Sandy Young, via email

A: Well, people can always change their minds ... but as of the time this column was written, and with some reports suggesting that her exit wasn't her idea, she was set to depart from the role of Detective Amanda Rollins by the time the NBC police drama reached the midpoint of its 24th season (which begins Thursday, Sept. 22). Some characters leave the "Law & Order" universe forever, while others have an opportunity to return later. It'll be interesting to see which end of that scale Rollins lands on, though producers are promising a "happy ending" for her. In any event, she'll certainly live on through the bountiful repeats of the series seen on multiple networks and the Peacock streaming service.

Q: I remember the series finale of "M*A*S*H" being unusually long. Were many episodes of the show done that way? – Dan Coffey, Shadyside, Ohio

A: With the series marking its 50th anniversary this month, there were some hourlong shows – typically season premieres – that are split into two episodes when repeated now, but the great bulk of the acclaimed military comedy's stories over 11 years were half-hours to begin with.

That being said, the much-watched finale (subtitled "Goodbye, Farewell, and Amen") was a huge exception for series television in general, running 2-1/2 hours (with commercials). Directed and co-written by series star Alan Alda, it bundled multiple stories that gave each of the regular players his or her moments. The climactic portion, which sees the characters dismantle the 4077th and go off in individual directions, remains one of the most memorable and emotional sequences of TV to date.
