Covington statue ruling upheld

- Court of Appeals said two groups lacked 'standing' to halt county's removal of monument
- Sons of Confederate Veterans plans to take case to Georgia Supreme Court for second appeal

By TOM SPIGOLON

COVINGTON, Ga. — The Georgia Court of Appeals' recent ruling that a Newton County court "properly dismissed" requests for a judge to intervene in a statue's removal from the Covington Square likely will be appealed to the state's highest court.

One of the appealing groups, the Sons of Confederate Veterans (SCV), filed an order saying it planned to take the ruling to the Georgia Supreme Court, a Court spokesman confirmed.

SCV attorney T. Kyle King said "naturally" his clients were "disappointed in the ruling."

"We will, of course, seek review of this decision by the Georgia Supreme Court, which ought to take up this matter of significant public importance," King said.

The appeals court said on Thursday, July 22, that Newton County Superior Court Judge John Ott ruled correctly in 2020 that the appellants did not prove they had legal "standing" to file a lawsuit seeking damages and an injunction against the Newton County government's planned removal of the 115-year-old statue.

Covington boy publishes 'inspiring' book at age 9

By TAYLOR BECK
tbeck@covnews.com

Bryson Jamal Stevens loves to read.

Confirmed by his mother, Taticasejuana, 9-year-old Bryson and his 6-year-old brother, Princeton, have read more than 1,000 books within the last year.

"When the pandemic hit, it gave us a lot of time," Mrs. Stevens said. "They're competitive readers ... I'm surprised we didn't [watch more TV], but as a home school mom, I felt like I had to pick up the ball and really make sure we didn't fall behind."

In that same time, Bryson discovered he enjoyed writing, too, so much so that he decided to write his own book.

Bryson Jamal Stevens

The Covington resident first put pen to paper on March 19, 2020, and finished his story July 16, 2020. The 83-page book, "Creating the Winning Team," was officially published July 9, 2021.

"I did this by myself, but my mom is the illustrator," Bryson said. "She wrote all of the pictures while I did all the writing."

The fictional book is centered on 10-year-old basketball player Bryce King and his friends, who also endure a pandemic.

"The unimaginable happens!" part of a book preview states. "The boys always wanted more time to practice and play ball. They got their wish and some. The Earth literally stopped orbiting on its axis. Everything shut down — I do mean EVERYTHING! Team Net Rippers and Bull Gang face off at the 1st Annual 2020 Basketball All Stars Tournament at the King family's lake house. All the boys learn a valuable lesson about perseverance and tenacity it takes to win, even while facing adversity.” Mrs. Stevens said her hope was that the book generates a renewed joy for reading among others, while also sharing a glimpse of Bryson’s big heart. “One of the things we really want to do is get the joy of reading back out, not just for [Bryson’s] peers, but adults, too,” she said. “After reading it, I would say this is really open for all age levels. And without giving the end away ... it really shows the heart of Bryson, who’s always assisting and helping others. “We also want all of our local students and parents to get a copy, because not only will they get a great lesson from it, but it can also inspire them and say, ‘My classmate did this? That means I could do this too.’” When he gets older, Bryson wants to be a police officer like his father, Alfred, because he “wants to be in action.” Mr. Stevens currently works in corrections for the City of Atlanta Police Department. But Bryson also wants to continue writing and share his work with others. “I want them to say, ‘I really love this book; I want to subscribe to his channel,’” Bryson said. Mr. Stevens said he and the rest of their family was thrilled for Bryson’s achievements. “When I was 8 or 9 years old, I wasn’t thinking about writing a book. I was thinking about playing,” Mr. Stevens said. “I think this a big accomplishment for him and we’re just so proud of him. It’s actually kind of

Alvin (Bill) Reed Morrison, 87, of Covington, Georgia, died on Monday, July 5,

2021, after a brief battle with cancer. Born in Maryland in 1933, to the late Harry and Marie Morrison, he was the youngest of six children. He would tell the story that his mother named him

Alvin Morrison

Alvin, but his three older sisters decided to call him Willie. That name stuck throughout his life and his nickname would later be shortened to Bill. While attending military school in Virginia he met, and later married, Jane Elizabeth Manuel (who sadly passed away in 2011). He served in the Army for nine years, and was honorably discharged in 1962. He began his career in the paper product and packaging industry and would continue in that field until his retirement in 2004. Bill and Jane moved to Covington in 1967, where they raised three daughters, Kim, Kelly and Kristi. After retiring, he kept busy by joining a local fitness center, reading, doing handyman and carpentry work, and working at Molly’s Corner. He enjoyed telling stories and was an expert at making a short story long. He is survived by his three daughters and their spouses and families: Billy and Kim Lancaster of Madison, Georgia, Adam and Kelly Grossman of Miami, Florida, Stephen and Kristi Bradford, of Covington, Georgia, six grandchildren, two great grandchildren and other family and friends. Newton municipalities eye hiring consulting firm to analyze LOST agreement with county

tbeck@covnews.com

COVINGTON, Ga. — Area municipalities’ leaders want to be sure they’re getting the most out of the Local Option Sales Tax (LOST) agreement currently in place with the Newton County government, and they’re hiring a consultant firm to help make that happen.

The LOST is a joint county and municipal local option sales tax. If voters approve, the sales and use tax of 1% may be imposed on the purchase, sale, rental, storage, use or consumption of tangible personal property and related services in addition to state taxes.

Per the last LOST agreement struck between Newton County and its municipalities in 2012, the county government receives 75% of tax revenue while Covington receives 18.47%. Oxford gets 3.02%; Porterdale gets 2.05%. Mansfield, Newborn and Social Circle receive less than 1%.

Negotiations for the distribution of LOST revenue are due in 2022. Before those negotiations begin, Covington and other municipalities want to make sure they’re getting their fair share. In order to ensure this happens, the municipalities are entering a joint agreement to hire SDS Consultants to analyze the current distribution terms and determine what changes, if any, should be sought out.

“We will potentially be entering into an agreement with all of the cities in the area to use a consultant to look to see if we can maximize LOST dollars,” City Manager Scott Andrews said during the Covington City Council meeting July 19. “And that is the short summary.”

The total contract cost to hire SDS Consultants is $33,600, Andrews said, but each municipality will be helping cover the cost. Since the city of Covington is much larger than the other municipalities, it would be covering a larger portion of the bill, Andrews said — just under $20,000.

Because it will cost the city under $20,000, it does not require a vote of approval from the city council, but Andrews believed discussion with the city council was necessary “for sake of transparency.”

Social Circle opted to join the agreement during its July 20 meeting. Oxford’s mayor and city council discussed the agreement during its work session July 19 and is expected to hold a vote at its meeting Aug. 2. At the time of publication, it was unclear when remaining municipalities would discuss or vote on joining the agreement.

In years past, the tax has played a key role in the city of Covington’s budgeting process, exceeding $2 million in revenue each year since 2018. For the recently adopted FY2021-22 budget, the city expects up to $3 million in LOST revenue over the next fiscal year.

“It represents significant revenue to us,” Mayor Steve Horton said.

The revenue is typically placed in the city’s General Fund, and there are no specific requirements for how the revenue is to be used, Horton said.

Since 2020, the Newton County government has received more than $10.4 million each year. Per the county’s proposed FY2021-22 budget, they anticipate nearly $11.8 million this fiscal year.

It said the appellants — Covington resident Tiffany Humphries and local and state chapters of the Sons of Confederate Veterans (SCV) — had not proven the county’s planned action would injure them in a “concrete” way rather than an "abstract" way, the appeals court ruled.

The ruling stemmed from the Newton County Board of Commissioners’ July 14, 2020, vote to remove the granite statue from a park in the middle of the Square where it has stood since 1906.

Humphries had filed a lawsuit seeking damages and an injunction in Newton County Superior Court the day before the board of commissioners voted, while the SCV filed a similar suit the day after the vote.

Ott heard oral arguments during a hearing in late July and issued his ruling Sept. 14, 2020, that “the plaintiffs lacked standing to file suit because they suffered no injury and that, even if they had standing, their claims were barred by sovereign immunity.”

The judge later ordered the Newton County government not to remove the statue — as some other counties had done — until all court appeals had ended.

Sovereign immunity was the legal concept in the Georgia constitution in September 2020 that governments cannot be sued for an action done in their official capacities. Georgia voters in November 2020 voted to amend the constitution to waive sovereign immunity on actions taken after Jan. 1, 2021.

The appeals judges — Presiding Judge Stephen Dillard, Amanda Mercier and Verda Colvin — said Humphries and the SCV argued they had a “right to bring a cause of action for any conduct prohibited” by a 2019 state law that halted the removal of Confederate monuments because Newton County has “expressed an intent to remove or have already removed” the statue.

Newton County responded that the appellants lack standing because their injuries are “purely psychic” and were neither "concrete" nor "particularized" — defined as affecting the plaintiff "in a personal and individual way," the ruling stated.

In addition, the judges said the county said in its argument that “‘damages’ must be understood as being defined as 'compensation for injury'" because the 2019 state law did not define “damages.”

“The trial court agreed with (Newton County) that the appellants lacked standing, and so do we,” the appeals court judges wrote.

They wrote that “the appellants allege no injuries beyond complaining that the removal of the Confederate monuments would violate (the 2019 law).”

“Suffice it to say, it is not enough for the appellant organizations to tout their dedication to ‘honor[ing] the memories and legacies of their forefathers who fought for freedom during the War Between the States’ or assert that they ‘will suffer injury to [their] rights and dignity’ if the monuments are removed,” the judges wrote.

“And as for Humphries, she did not allege any degree of concern with the monuments beyond her status as a private citizen of Newton County.

“These vague claims of ‘injury’ are, then, far too abstract to confer standing on the appellants. Accordingly, because each of the appellants lacked standing, the trial court correctly dismissed all of these actions.”

Georgia courts generally determine if a person has legal “standing” to file a legal action seeking damages based on past rulings by the U.S. Supreme Court and other courts, according to information from the Atlanta-based Hasner Law firm and others.

“Standing requires that you sustained the injury before you filed the lawsuit. The harm cannot be based on a future claim or a hypothetical scenario of what could happen,” according to the law firm.

Spokesman Martin O’Toole said the SCV is considering asking the appeals court to reconsider its ruling rather than going to the state Supreme Court.

“We think there are some manifest errors in the decision,” O’Toole said.

King said the SCV believed the Georgia General Assembly’s “clear intention” when it approved a 2019 law to halt removal of memorials except in a few cases was “to confer standing on citizens” by law and “ought to have prevailed” in the case.

The Newton County government did not immediately respond to a request for comment Monday.

person Caitlin Jett said, “On behalf of Sheriff Ezell Brown and the Newton County Sheriff’s Office, I want to thank the Cobb County Sheriff’s Office Fugitive Unit and the U.S. Marshals South East Regional Task Force for their assistance in the arrest of Jabarri (Laing).

“We appreciate all their hard work in keeping our communities safe,” Jett said.

A sheriff’s deputy reported responding to a call just after midnight on July 15 about a “penetrating trauma” at a location identified in an internet search as the Park View Apartments complex.

“When I arrived on scene there was a black male victim who sustained a single gunshot wound to the face,” the deputy reported.

“The victim was air lifted to a hospital and a crime scene was established,” the report stated.

The suspect reportedly had driven from the scene in a white Honda Accord with front end damage.

Investigators collected evidence and took photos of the scene where Harrison had been shot with a handgun, the report said.

Laing was arrested in Smyrna Friday and was being held in the Newton County Detention Center without bond on one count each of Murder, Aggravated Assault, and Pointing a Gun or Pistol at Another.

The Cobb County and U.S. Marshals agencies also arrested Wilson Brown, whom the Broward County, Florida, Sheriff’s Office wanted in connection with an incident involving armed robbery with a deadly weapon. Brown was arrested in Powder Springs, according to information from Cobb Sheriff’s Office.

They also arrested Christopher Bussey in Coweta County. Bussey was wanted in Cobb County in connection to an incident involving aggravated assault strangulation and cruelty to children.

What has 26th Amendment wrought in 50 years?

This month marks the 50th anniversary of ratification of the U.S. Constitution's 26th Amendment that lowered the minimum voting age nationwide to 18 years old. Two-thirds of the states were required to approve its addition to the Constitution and they did it in record time — the fastest a constitutional amendment had been approved.

In an environment of rapid social change amid an unpopular war, Congress approved and two-thirds of the states ratified the 26th Amendment on July 1, 1971 — less than four months after it was introduced. The minimum voting age was officially 18 and could not be altered or denied at any level of government in the U.S. What is interesting to me now is its impact in the half-century since its approval. The spark for social change in this country was lit after World War II when young men between the ages of 18 and 21 were fighting and dying for their country but had no say in how it was run. Post-World War II America also lit the spark for Black men of all ages who were effectively denied the right to vote and treated as second-class citizens despite them also serving in America's two-front war in Europe and the Pacific — but that's another story altogether. Until President Richard Nixon abolished the draft in 1973, young men had little choice but to serve in the military. By the time the 26th Amendment was approved, America had fought one unpopular war in Korea and was in the midst of another in Southeast Asia. Soldiers as young as 18 were bravely serving their country in a hostile, jungle-covered environment where they likely would come under gunfire or mortar attack from an unseen foe — leaving many either wounded or worse. The impact immediately after the amendment's ratification was the nomination of possibly the most liberal presidential nominee in history, George McGovern, in 1972. Facing an uphill battle against Nixon, then a popular, pre-Watergate incumbent, McGovern lost in one of biggest election landslides in history. But the amendment's impact ultimately was to enfranchise young people and give them the right to choose elected leaders at all levels of government. Their level of participation has fluctuated with each election. They also tend to vote at historically lower levels than other age groups — perhaps because they're busy trying to go to school or get their first jobs? Nevertheless, about half of all eligible voters ages 18 to 29 turned out to vote in the 2020 election, compared to 39% in 2016, according to information from the Center for Information

& Research on Civic Learning and Engagement at Tufts University. And a nonpartisan group that studies voting and demographic trends, States of Change, projects that in 2024 millennials and Generation Z for the first time will represent a much larger share of eligible voters at nearly 45%. By 2028, those two age groups will make up almost exactly half of eligible voters, and those born before 1964 will fall below a third of voters, States of Change predicted. In recent years, there was debate — which typically seems to arise every few years — as to whether citizens as young as 18 should be helping to elect our leaders. Recent discussion has thrown young people into the mix of those who will be disproportionately harmed by election law revisions in states like Georgia. One argument is that stricter residency requirements impede young people who move often for work or to go to school. Another is that stricter laws retard efforts to encourage voting and voter education on college campuses, or make it harder for them to cast ballots during early voting periods. Courts also have generally upheld students' right to vote despite use of temporary addresses, according to CNN. Those on the other side of the debate say voters in the 18- to 21-year-old age group are easily influenced and "indoctrinated" by different ideologies being tossed around these days. Young people also are in the midst of learning about how the world operates "in theory" rather than from personal experience, the argument goes. They have not been exposed to the realities of being solely responsible for paying their bills, having to pay property taxes or dealing with raising children. They haven't operated businesses, dealt with employees and been exposed to all that goes with keeping one operating in a rapidly changing environment. It seems to me that, on balance, it's been worth the social and political experiment that has been an 18-year-old's right to vote. It may surprise many older voters but many young people are plugged in to the world around them — they know who the president is while being unsure who their congressman is, just like most Americans of all age groups. Some calls in recent years to lower the voting age to 16 apparently have not gained much traction — and rightly so. But now, just as in 1971, I believe if a person is old enough to fight and die for their country, they're old enough to help select the next person who controls whether the U.S. enters yet another military conflict.

We could all use a break from our tiny screens

About 25 years ago, I was listening to the radio, and I heard an interview with a local business owner. He was asked, "How do you start your day?" He replied, "First, I check my email." Wow, I thought. That must be so cool. He is so important, he gets email messages.

What did I learn from that? Be careful what you wish for. Most of us get plenty of email messages today, meaning far too many. On any given day, I hit "delete" until my finger is sore, without even reading beyond the subject line. I don't know these foreign princes, pharmaceutical miracle workers, or political operatives, but somehow they have found me. Sure, I block them, but that's like playing "whack-a-mole." They'll just pop up again later. It makes me nostalgic for the old days, when all we had to worry about was junk mail. Yes, there was an occasional phone call during dinner, or a random knock on the door from a cookware salesman, but nothing compared to the deluge we face today. Although email is a widely used form of communication, there are many others. People will ask me, "Why haven't you answered my message?" "Gee, I didn't see it," I reply. "Well, I sent it more than a week ago," they say. So I begin my search. How did I miss it? I look in my email junk folder. And how insulting is that? "I didn't get your message because you were in my junk pile." "Well, when did I become junk to you?" My search for the missing message then takes me to social media. Was it a Twitter message? A Facebook message? A text? "No," they will say. "I sent you an Instagram." When I tell them I don't do Instagram, they'll say, "Well, next time, I'll connect with you on LinkedIn." Sorry, you won't find me there, either. "Here, let me give you a business card," I'll say. "Just call me." They look at me like I have a third eye. "You mean, on the phone?" "Sure," I reply. "Well...

if that's what I have to do," they say, as if I had asked them to lift a Chrysler. Unbeknownst to some, those little cellphones they carry still make phone calls. Many believe their primary purpose is to take pictures. Recently, I was using an actual Nikon camera to take some pics, and my younger coworkers laughed as if I were Moses holding the stone tablets. Not that long ago, you would see teenagers crossing a busy street, phone planted firmly on ear. But that is so, so 2010. Now, these "smartphone zombies" are listening through their earbuds, or sending text messages, paying no attention to approaching traffic. Their attitude is, why talk to someone, when you can simply send a text? Does anyone remember the last time a guy actually used the spoken word to ask a girl out? I believe George Bush was president, and I don't mean "W."

I often wonder how life would have been, if texting had come first, followed by the invention of voice phone calls. "Guys, check this out! They've come up with something new! We don't have to use our thumbs anymore! There's no more auto-correct, sending out the wrong words!" (I once sent my wife a text, intending to say, "I will call you later today." Somehow it was auto-corrected to "I will call you Larry today." She replied, "Only if I can call you Moe.") Anyway, the conversation would have continued: "So what's this new invention?" "Well, now you can actually SPEAK to your friend on the other end.. And they can talk back! They can hear you, and you can hear them! It's just like being face to face!" The streets would have erupted in joy, and people would have talked to one another again. Too bad it worked out the other way around. Speaking of by-gone days, back in ancient times you could go on vacation, lounge on the beach, and never hear from anyone at work. No more. Your beloved smartphone is rarely out of reach, leading to awkward conversations like this. "Harry, where are you?" "Oh, I'm at Daytona, just enjoying the scenery." "Great. Do you remember where you filed those papers from that account?" "Uh, dude, I'm on vacation." "Okay. So which shoebox did you file them in?" I long for the days when a vacation meant "a period in which regular activity is suspended," like it says in the dictionary. Those wondrous little phones are eating into our much-needed down time.

Folks, summer is here. We could all use a break from being connected to our tiny screens, and those watches that buzz every time someone sends a funny picture. To quote a memorable line from "Moonstruck," snap out of it! David Carroll is a Chattanooga TV news anchor and radio host. You may contact him at RadioTV2020@yahoo.com.

Fun by the Numbers

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Newton's Fairview Elementary recognized as Title I Reward School for second consecutive year

SPECIAL TO THE NEWS
news@covnews.com

The Georgia Department of Education has named Fairview Elementary School as a Title I Reward School for the second consecutive year.

Reward Schools are among the 5% of Title I schools in the state that are making the most progress in improving the performance of the all-students group over the most recent two years on the statewide assessments.

The department announced the list of Reward Schools in Georgia on Tuesday, July 20.

LaMoyné Brunson, who was principal of Fairview during the period covered by the award, said, "This is a huge honor and I share it with everyone invested in Fairview's school climate," said.

"Fairview's teachers and staff remain committed to the students and all of their different needs, and this recognition is a testament to that commitment.

"The work is complex, especially during the recent two school years, but the obstacles have not been unmanageable. Actually, in some ways, those obstacles have increased our strength because we've had to rethink most of what we do to help students be successful.

"I am grateful to everyone involved in the education of Fairview's children — the staff, the families and the support of the community have all been important in keeping a strong and positive school climate for these children to make progress and enjoy school!"

Superintendent Samantha Fuhrey said, "Congratulations to Fairview Elementary School on a job well-done. This recognition is a testament to the targeted and detailed work of the students, faculties and leaders."

State picking up Social Circle's cost for school breakfast, lunch in 2021-2022

SPECIAL TO THE NEWS
news@covnews.com

SOCIAL CIRCLE, Ga. — Students in the Social Circle City Schools won't have to pay for meals in the upcoming school year.

The school district is taking part in the Georgia Department of Education School Nutrition Program, which gives schools the chance to offer meals at no charge to all students.

Households are not required to complete meal applications to qualify for no-cost breakfast and lunch.

The Social Circle schools remain an "offer versus serve" nutrition program, offering a selection of entrees, fresh fruit and vegetables. A full meal is at least three of the five components, including at least one vegetable or fruit.

Entrees are counted as two components since they include a grain.

Menus for all schools in the district are available online at www.socialcircleschools.com.

Social Circle Schools is taking part in the state's school nutrition program that allows schools the chance to offer free meals to students.

SUMMONS AND PROCESS IN THE JUVENILE COURT OF NEWTON COUNTY, GEORGIA

IN THE INTEREST OF:
A.M. SEX: Male
DOB 12/07/2011
CASE #107-21J-0101
A CHILD Under 18 Years of Age

SUMMONS AND PROCESS

TO: ASTER MEASLES,
Mother

YOU ARE hereby notified that a Petition (Dependency) was filed in the Juvenile Court of Newton County on May 7, 2021, requesting that the minor child be placed in the care, custody and control of the Georgia Department of Human Services, acting by and through the Newton County Department of Family and Children Services.

YOU ARE hereby commanded, personally or by attorney, to be and appear at the Newton County Juvenile Court, 1132 Usher Street, NW, Covington, Georgia 30014, for a hearing to be held on the 26th day of August, 2021, at 10:00 a.m., then and there to answer why the prayers for relief as set forth in the Department's Petition should not be granted.

A COPY of said Petition (Dependency) can be obtained from the Clerk of the Newton County Juvenile Court, at the aforementioned address.

WITNESS THE Hon. Hillary W. Edgar, Associate Judge of said Court, this 14th day of July, 2021. Janell Gaines

CLERK,
NEWTON COUNTY Juvenile Court

READ CAREFULLY

THIS IS a very serious matter. This Summons requires you to be present at a formal hearing in the Juvenile Court.

THE CHILD or children and other parties involved may be represented by a lawyer at all stages of these proceedings.

IF YOU want a lawyer, you may choose to hire your own lawyer. If you want to hire a lawyer, please contact your lawyer immediately.

IF YOU want a lawyer but are not able to hire a lawyer without undue financial hardship, you may ask for a lawyer to be appointed to represent you. The Court would inquire into your financial circumstances and if the Court finds you to be financially unable to hire a lawyer, then a lawyer will be appointed to represent you. Please contact immediately the Newton County Juvenile Court at 770-784-2060 if you wish to request a lawyer to be appointed to represent you. DO NOT WAIT UNTIL THE DAY OF COURT TO REQUEST AN ATTORNEY.

WHETHER OR not you decide to hire an attorney, you have the right to attend the hearing of your case, to call witnesses on your behalf, and to question those witnesses brought against you.

Piedmont ‘major contributor’ to international COVID study

SPECIAL TO THE NEWS
news@covnews.com

Piedmont Healthcare is the No. 1 site with completed data in the international ECMO-CARD study, a large trial examining the effects of ventilation and extracorporeal membrane oxygenation (ECMO) in the critical care setting on patients suffering from the combination of COVID-19 and Acute Respiratory Distress Syndrome (ARDS).

ECMO is a medical device that is used to support patients whose heart and lungs require additional assistance to function, similar to putting a patient on bypass during open heart surgery.

“From the very start of the COVID-19 pandemic, we recognized the need to participate in clinical research regarding treatment,” said Dr. Peter Barrett, M.D., director of Piedmont’s ECMO program and medical director of the Cardiac Critical Care Units. “We will have several publications coming out this year reporting on management of COVID-19, and will continue to learn all we can to best serve the citizens of Georgia.”

Barrett and Dr. David Dean, M.D., surgical director for heart transplant and mechanical circulatory support, serve as Piedmont’s principal investigators for the study, which is based out of Piedmont Atlanta Hospital. The study began in Australia and has come to encompass more than 300 sites in nearly 50 countries. It is scheduled to be completed by Dec. 31.

The primary outcome measure of the study is in-hospital mortality. Secondary measures include death on ECMO, stroke, blood stream infection, and lung complications involving surgical treatment, among others.

Money Talks with Dianne Jennings

Poor credit scores can negatively impact future home purchases

Well if you haven’t heard Wells Fargo Bank as of July 9 has shut down all of their customers’ personal lines of credit (not to be confused with revolving accounts and or credit card) but they did it without notice.

Wow, what a difference a day makes and what a way to start that day, for there are many account holders carrying credit lines up to $100,000. They shut them down but the account holders will still have to pay. There is no discount and no forgiveness. What will happen is Wells Fargo Bank will more than likely take the balance due and amortize it over a period of time until paid in full. There will be absolutely no use of the credit for you, unless Wells Fargo Bank flips the account to a revolving credit card account — now that’s an option.

The personal credit lines, according to Wells Fargo Bank, will be a permanent closer and there is nothing that you can do about it. This account closure I am sure has affected the small business owner who depended upon the line of credit to assist with their business operation. This is a domino effect, because the other issue here is not just the fact that Wells Fargo pulled the plug, they pulled the rug from under your feet causing their credit line account customers to trip and fall over their own credit report. This is what I call “cause and effect.”

For anyone that has received this information, whether directly affected by it or not, we all agree that this is not a good thing.

I can state that there is a lesson here, and we must use it as a teaching moment.

Consumers may not know or understand it, but when an account is closed — whether voluntarily or by force — and it is reported to the credit reporting agencies like TransUnion, Equifax, Experian, FICO etc., and it causes a huge drop in your credit score. So, regardless of your credit line amount, whether $5,000 or $100,000, you will take a hit on your credit report.

It doesn’t seem fair, but that is the credit game. Your scores could be reduced up to, or over 100 points.

Let’s look at it this way: you are in the process of buying a home with a credit score of 680 and this is good, and the higher the score the better, but let’s just use this for example.

Before the closing of your home loan, the lender will pull a final credit report, and this is fact. We sometimes call it a soft pull, but nevertheless, it is done to ensure you have not opened any new accounts, or borrowed any money to make this purchase, or opened other mortgages while you were going through the process. When this is done and the lender sees a dropped score from 680 to possibly 580-630, your real estate purchase is shot. It is either rescinded, denied or the rate will more than likely go up, and we all know: the higher the rate the higher the mortgage payment, the lower the rate the lower the payment.

So even if your score is 800 or better you are not exempt. You will also take a hit and the same principle applies.

How do you combat it or overcome it?

1. Make sure that all of your revolving credit accounts are paid before the due date to ensure the due date cutoff is met.

2. Keep your balance on your revolving credit account to always reflect 20% or below the limit. In other words, if your credit limit is $2,000 your statement balance should never be more than $400.

3. If you’re in position, pay the statement balance in full each month and pay it before the due date.

4. Pay your statement balance in two installments before the due date. This reduces the interest being charged and the reflection of the lower balance increases your credit score.

5. Keep your credit cards revolving. Use them even if it’s for as little of a purchase as $25, because revolving accounts control your credit report. If credit accounts sit dormant for too long, credit issuers can and will shut it down, causing your credit score to drop. And as you can see with Wells Fargo’s credit line cut, you do not want that.

6. Become an authorized user on a revolving account, which is a credit card of a family member, best friend or significant other. If they have a credit account with a high limit and low balance, get added to that account because when their account is reported to the credit bureaus, it will also report on your credit report.

7. Do not open new credit cards accounts right away. The new inquiry may cause a negative hit, and the new account will possibly cause a negative hit for at least 60 days until it catches up.

8. Wells Fargo Personal Credit Line account holders: Ask Wells Fargo Bank to switch the personal credit line to a revolving credit card account.

9. Do not close accounts, no matter what ... that would hurt.

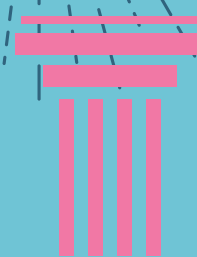

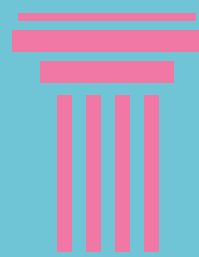

10. Get set up with a reputable credit monitoring service to keep abreast of any changes on your report, that way you can address them immediately. I personally use TransUnion as I find it to be more accurate than others.

11. Lock it up. Putting a lock on your report keeps unwanted, unauthorized inquiries and credit hackers away.

So, my friends, all is not lost. Let’s be proactive and take the necessary steps to keep your balances low and your credit scores high.

The Covington News

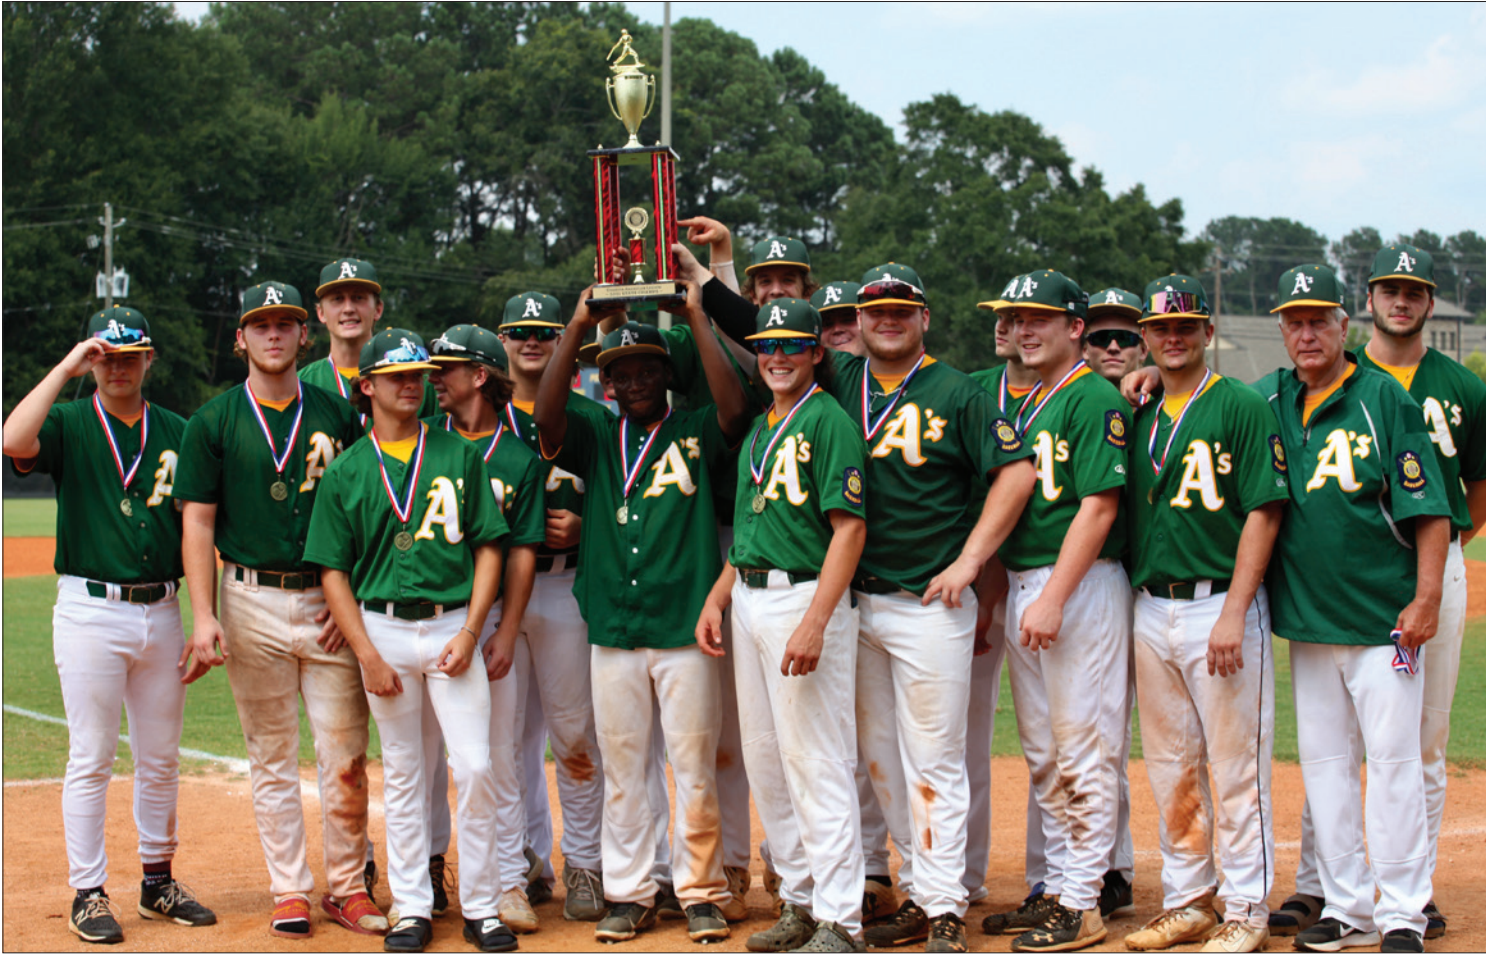

Mason Wittner sports editor

Thank you for everything, Covington!

Where did the time go? I showed up in Covington 18 months ago to serve as sports editor for this publication. Over the past year and a half, I've written countless words, shot thousands upon thousands of photos and told Newton County's stories week after week. Most importantly, thanks to the welcoming community, I built interpersonal relationships with colleagues, players, coaches and citizens that have meant everything to me. But by the time this column is published, I'll no longer be an employee of The Covington News. Why? Well, I'm going back to school. Kinda. I'm trading in my press pass for a red pen and a classroom full of kids. I've accepted an offer to return to my alma mater, Loganville Christian Academy, as a teacher. I'll be teaching writing, grammar, and spelling for fourth and fifth grade. Am I crazy? Perhaps just a tinge. But after months of prayer and council, I know in my heart this is where God is calling me. I'm extremely excited to begin this next chapter of my life. But before I go, I want to publicly express my gratitude to the entire staff at The Covington News for believing in me. For giving a 23-year-old a chance to tell stories he never thought he could. For allowing him to experiment with photography and podcasting while finding his voice through columns and stories. I can be prone to hyperbole at times, but I'm sincere in my belief that I've grown more over the past year and a half than during any other 18-month span in my life. For that, I will be forever grateful. One of my all-time favorite quotes (if you follow me on Instagram, you're likely already familiar) is from late American novelist William H. Gass. He once said: "The true alchemists do not change lead into gold; they change the world into words." It's been an honor to work as an alchemist for Newton County.

The Covington Post 32 baseball team swept Post 192 from Evans, Ga., in a best-of-three series over the weekend to win the 2021 Georgia American Legion State Championship. With the victory, the team will now advance to the Southeast Regional Tournament in Pelham, Ala., starting Aug. 4.

Post 32 sweeps way to state title

By MASON WITTNER

CONYERS, Ga. — For the first time since 2016, Covington Post 32 stands alone as the state's best American Legion baseball team. Post 192 made the trip from Evans, Ga., to Henson-Carr Legion Field in Conyers this past weekend for a best-of-three state tournament series against Post 32. Covington rolled to an 11-0 victory on Friday night before pulling out a 5-4 win in come-from-behind fashion Saturday to complete the sweep. With the victory, Post 32 won the 2021 Georgia American Legion State Championship and earned its spot in the Southeast Regional Tournament in August. "It shows a lot of character in our team that we got out in front early, and then it was kind of back and forth, and a good ballgame. That's what you want to see," Post 32 team manager Bill Dallas said. "It's pretty exciting." Following a back-and-forth affair, the clubs were knotted up at four runs apiece in the sixth inning when recent Eastside graduate Ethan Booth stepped into the box. The South Georgia State signee worked the count full before connecting on a fastball and launching it over the left-field fence to provide the winning run. Booth was subbed into the game after starting catcher Tanner Middlebrooks exited with cramps and an injured thumb. "It worked out perfect that Ethan came in and did a good job and ended up getting the big hit for us," Dallas said. The Southeast Regional Tournament will be held in Pelham, Ala., starting Aug. 4.

Mason Wittner | The Covington News

Recent Eastside graduate and South Georgia State signee Ethan Booth launched a solo home run in the sixth inning of Saturday's game to lift Post 32 to a 5-4 victory.

Chocolate contains four times the amount of catechins as tea, and it contains the same heart-healthy flavonoids as red wine. However, the way chocolate is prepared can affect its potential health benefits.

SPECIAL TO THE NEWS

Chocoholics often feel that nothing beats a rich piece of chocolate, a sumptuous slice of chocolate cake or a creamy serving of chocolate ice cream. Chocolate contains four times the amount of catechins as tea, and it contains the same heart-healthy flavonoids as red wine. However, the way chocolate is prepared can affect its potential health benefits. For those who want a healthy, low-fat chocolate option that's easier on the waistline, smoothies may be the way to go.

This recipe for "Guilt-Free Banana Chocolate Smoothie" from Ellen Brown's "Super Smooth-ies: 100 Recipes to Supercharge Your Immune System" (Crestline) is one way to get a full dose of delicious chocolate (in two forms). This smoothie is chock-full of other ingredients, including a potassium-rich banana, that are part of a healthy, balanced diet. When the kids are indulging in ice cream, this smoothie offers parents the same texture and taste without all the guilt.

Guilt-Free Banana Chocolate Smoothie

Makes 4 1-cup servings

Ingredients:

1 1/2 cups chocolate soy milk
3 ounces chopped dark chocolate

3 tablespoons cocoa powder, preferably Dutch-processed
2 tablespoons bee pollen
2 tablespoons flaxseed oil
2 cups sliced banana
1 cup chocolate frozen yogurt
2 tablespoons shaved chocolate for garnish (optional)

Directions:

Combine soy milk, chopped chocolate, cocoa powder, bee pollen, flaxseed oil, and banana in a blender or smoothie maker. Blend on high speed for 45 seconds or until mixture is puréed and smooth. Add frozen yogurt, and blend on high speed again until mixture is smooth. Serve immediately, garnished with chocolate shavings, if desired.

Eating habits can impact energy level

SPECIAL TO THE NEWS

news@covnews.com

A little extra energy during the day could benefit just about anyone. Late morning mental fatigue and the post-lunch yawns may seem unavoidable, but there are plenty of ways to improve energy levels throughout the day. One such means to getting an extra hop in your step involves utilizing food.

The health care experts at Kaiser Permanente® note that every part of the body, including the brain and heart, require energy to work. The body gets that energy from food.

A dietary approach rooted in eating to energize can change the way people eat, potentially helping them avoid unhealthy foods that won't give them the boost they need.

The American Academy of Nutrition and Dietetics echoes the sentiments of the NHS, noting that eating better is an effective way to improve energy levels. The AAND also recommends additional strategies for people looking to foods to provide an energy boost.

Eat every three to four hours. The AAND notes that eating every three to four hours helps to fuel a healthy metabolism. This approach also can prevent the between-meal hunger pangs that compel many people to reach for whatever food is readily available, even if it's unhealthy. Remember to prepare smaller portions than you would if you were eating three meals per day. The AAND points out that feeling comfortably full but not stuffed is a good indicator that you've eaten enough.

Aim for balance. A balanced plate should include foods from multiple food groups. The AAND notes that even a small amount of fat can find its way onto your plate, which should include a combination of whole grains, lean protein, fiber-rich fruits and vegetables, and fat-free or low-fat dairy.

Choose the right snacks. The AAND recommends snacks have lean protein and fiber-rich carbohydrates. Low-fat Greek yogurt, apples, a handful of unsalted nuts, and carrots are some examples of healthy snacks that will provide an energy boost between meals.

How people eat can help them overcome fatigue or exacerbate existing energy issues.

Slow down and try this new take on succulent fried pork loin

SPECIAL TO THE NEWS

news@covnews.com

Roasting pork requires a watchful eye. If roasted just a few minutes too long, pork can quickly dry out. But in his book "Cooking Slow: Recipes for Slowing Down and Cooking More" (Chronicle Foods), author, teacher and food industry consultant Andrew Schloss notes that immersing pork loin in an oil bath protects it from drying out, resulting in a juicy, delicious meal. Those who want to try this method can whip up Schloss's recipe for "Slow-Fried Pork Loin in Mustard Oil."

Slow-Fried Pork Loin in Mustard Oil

Makes 6 servings

Ingredients:

1 pork loin, about 3 lbs., trimmed of fat and silver skin
1 tablespoon coarse sea salt
1 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
4 cups canola oil
1 cup brown mustard seed

Directions:

Rub the pork with the salt and pepper. Set on a rack on a baking sheet and refrigerate for at least 12 hours and up to 24 hours.

Preheat the oven to 175 degrees.

Combine the oil and mustard seed in a Dutch oven and place over medium heat until the oil reaches 350 degrees on a deep-frying thermometer. A wooden chopstick or the end of a wooden spoon inserted into the oil will emit bubbles when the oil is at the right temperature.

While the oil is heating, remove the pork from the refrigerator. Pat dry. When the oil is up to temperature, turn off the heat. Using tongs, carefully submerge the meat in the hot oil. Cover the pot, transfer to the oven and cook until the pork is 150 degrees, about two hours.

Lift the pork from the oil onto a baking sheet to catch any oil drips. Carve the pork across the grain on the diagonal into thin slices. Drizzle with some of the mustard-scented oil and serve.

"I think she's the only one that can beat Katie," Gaines says. "I really think that in the 200m, 400m and 800m, she's certainly met somebody that can go stroke for stroke with her. But I don't think we've seen the best of Katie. ... Now she's still four seconds or five seconds behind Titmus in the 400m so she's got to find a lot, but I really do believe that she can run the table from the 200m to the 1,500m if she's on like I know she can be."

Caeleb Dressel vies for Team USA in swimming at the 2020 Tokyo Olympics, airing all week on NBC and other outlets.

"She represents a first, for sure, which is really cool," Gaines says. "I've been to Alaska a couple of times for swim clinics, believe it or not, and they have some good swimming there. It's just that it's tough because during the outdoor season, it's hard to find an outdoor 50-meter pool that a lot of states have and they have to go indoors and there are only so many 50-meter indoor pools in Alaska. So it's really great, I think she'll help the sport a lot in that state."

'The Wine Show' explores Portugal in Season 3

James Purefoy wants you to have some respect – at least when it comes to wine.

Indeed, the British actor and co-host of "The Wine Show," which returns for its third season Thursday, July 29, on SundanceTV, Acorn TV and AMC+, feels that the drinking public doesn't pay enough attention to the craftsmanship behind wine and that too often it winds up down the hatch without much consideration.

"There's a tendency, I think, people when they get a glass of wine, they sip it, they don't really concentrate on that first moment," he explains. "I think it's good to pay a little bit of respect to the wine in the glass. Think about it, smell it, think about it, I mean – and then chug it after that. But at least give the wine growers some element of respect that it is actually touching your mouth somewhere rather than just the back of your throat and into your stomach."

The new season brings Purefoy to Portugal, where he and co-host Matthew Goode travel the country and discover some of its best wines while sommelier Charlotte Wilde goes to the Azores to learn who really invented sparkling wine and champagne. Meanwhile, co-hosts Matthew Rhys and Joe Fattorini do lunch at different restaurants around New York City and pair wines with the different international cuisines. And the series introduces a new co-host in Dominic West ("The Affair"), a wine enthusiast who brings his considerable knowledge to bear at the locations and the tastings.

"He knows his wine, Dominic, no doubt about that," Purefoy says, "and he's very knowledgeable and he understands it and he's got a good poetic nature so he can talk well about wines. And no, he's very good. No, I think I am the least experienced in terms of wine of any of us. ... Matthew Goode and Dominic – they know their wines very well out of the actors."

But while Purefoy may call himself a relative newbie out of the show's cast, he did have a powerful reaction to a wine he tried in the Alentejo region of Southern Portugal.

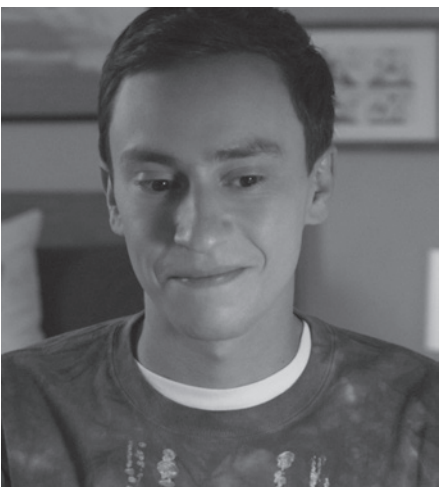

"There was one wine that we had that made me cry it was so good ...," he says. "Somebody brought us a bottle of a Portuguese wine called Ceis. And I don't know whether it was the heat, the tiredness, the exhaustion – I was just overcome when I drank this wine. Or it could just have been an exceptionally good glass of wine.

"So when I tasted it, my eyes started watering," he continues with a laugh, "and of course, Matthew Goode just sort of said, 'Are you actually crying? That wine has made you cry?' But it seemed to be so perfect for that moment ... and it just seemed life was pretty damn good at that exact moment."

OF 'ATYPICAL' ON NETFLIX

Did it feel strange to say goodbye to Sam after three seasons of "Atypical"?

Yeah. I've been playing Sam for, I think all in all, about five years, so we sort of grew up together to some degree. So it's strange to think that I had to say goodbye but it was kind of nice, too. I think certain things can only go for so long and I like ending on a good note, instead of I feel like some shows, they go on and on and on for 10 seasons. And I think we had a good run. So it's been strange but also I like where we ended things.

You say you grew up with the character. How so?

When I started, I think I was 22 or 23, so definitely not a child per se. But definitely you change a lot in your 20s and I am a very different person, I think, than the person who walked on the set for Season 1. But yeah, it's kind of interesting, too, because the character obviously is growing and changing at the same time that you are and so you kind of have this simultaneous evolution, I guess.

tonight's PICKS

Debi Mazar

Some Came Running

8 p.m. on TCM

Released to widespread acclaim, Vincente Minnelli's 1958 film adaptation of a novel by James Jones ("From Here to Eternity") casts Frank Sinatra as Dave Hirsh, a troubled war veteran and author who returns to his Indiana hometown, much to the consternation of his estranged older brother, Frank (Arthur Kennedy, Oscar-nominated as best supporting actor). The film marked the first screen pairing of Sinatra with Dean Martin, as hard-partying gambler Bama Dillert, and Shirley MacLaine earned her first best actress Oscar nomination as a young woman besotted with Dave.

Good Trouble

10 p.m. on FREE

Callie (Maia Mitchell) teams up with Mariana (Cierra Ramirez) in an attempt to figure out what really happened on the night of Zack's death in the new episode "Making a Metamour."

My Feet Are Killing Me

10 p.m. on TLC

Summer is here, and especially now that pandemic restrictions are gradually being lifted, nearly everyone is in a mood to bring on the sunny days, beach bodies and naked feet! The new episode "Summer Shock" finds Drs. Ebonie Vincent, Brad Schaeffer and Sarah Haller trying to help patients get ready for summer, which means treating clients with nasty nails, catastrophic corns and a foot that leaves them completely stunned.

Younger

10 p.m. on TVLAND

After Quinn's (Laura Benanti) new romance goes public, a wary Liza (Sutton Foster) decides it might be prudent to fact-check Quinn's manuscript in the new episode "The Last Unicorn." Meanwhile, Maggie (Debi Mazar) is ready to pinch herself when she gets an exciting new job offer and love interest. Elsewhere, sparks fly between Liza and someone from her old life.

Tom Beets

Gold Rush
8 p.m. on DISC
A spinoff of Discovery Channel's highest rated show, this limited docuseries follows what some familiar miners do during winter months, as arctic conditions make even the simplest outdoor task all but impossible. Instead, miners including Tony Beets, Rick Ness, Dave Turin, Fred Lewis and Dustin Hurt spend these weeks prospecting for new gold-rich claims, purchasing them, and nailing down necessary permits. As the show opens, Beets is hoping to triple his gold haul by gambling millions on a high-risk monster machinery overhaul.

Dynasty
9 p.m. on WUPA
As Dominique (Michael Michele) tries to launch her new fashion line, she and Alexis (Elaine Hendrix) yet again compete for the same thing, but nothing goes as planned for either of them, in the new episode "Everything but Facing Reality." Meanwhile, Sam and Culhane (Rafael de la Fuente, Robert C. Riley) run into an unusual roadblock as they continue their business partnership. Elsewhere, Liam's (Adam Huber) research turns up some interesting information, but he and Fallon (Elizabeth Gillies) are one step behind a mysterious adversary.

Dino Hunters
9 p.m. on DISC
This fascinating docuseries about ranchers and cowboys searching for dinosaur fossils in the badlands of Wyoming, Montana and the Dakotas returns for Season 2, which opens with a premiere called "Doubting Down on Dinosaurs." As the action resumes, Montana cattle rancher Clayton Phipps and his son Luke decide to put it all on the line with their search for a risky raptor fossil buried under 30 feet of earth. Elsewhere, Wyoming cowboy businessman Mike Harris and his son Jake go for broke to prep their multi-million dollar T-Rex skull.

What's Available NOW On

“Turning the Tables With Robin Roberts” (July 30)

The “Good Morning America” co-anchor is host and producer for this four-episode series in which she holds intimate round table conversations with female celebrities from all walks of life, among them Debbie Allen, Sofia Carson, Jamie Lee Curtis, Jenna Dewan, Sheila E., Melissa Etheridge, Mickey Guyton and Billie Jean King. (ORIGINAL)

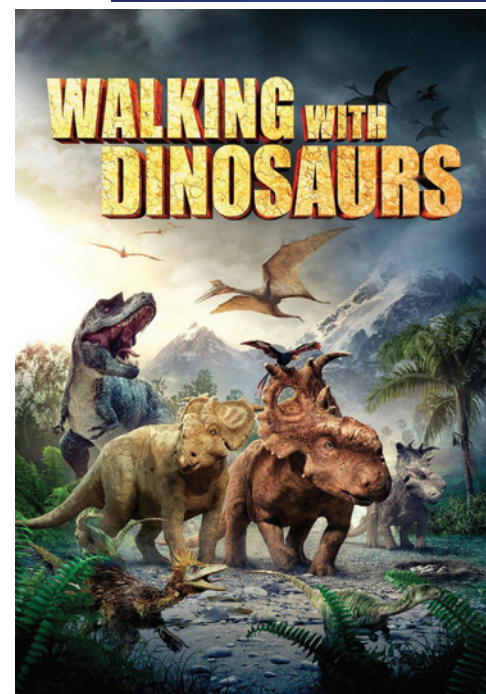

“Jungle Cruise” (July 30)

Based on the Disney theme park water attraction of the same name, this action adventure is set in the early 20th century and follows a riverboat captain who takes a British scientist and her brother on a mission into the jungle to find the Tree of Life, believed to possess healing powers. Dwayne Johnson, Emily Blunt and Jack Whitehall star. (ORIGINAL)

“The Owl House: Season 2” (Available now)

The sophomore round of this fantasy series about teenage Luz, a juvenile delinquent who stumbled through a portal into an archipelago known as the Boiling Isles and befriended a rebellious witch, picks up after the events of the first and follows the efforts to return her to the human realm. Sarah-Nicole Robles, Wendie Malick and Alex Hirsch star.

“Walking With Dinosaurs” (Available now)

From directors Barry Cook and Neil Nightingale comes this 2013 family film that mixes 3D live action with CGI animation to chronicle the treacherous migration of a pack of Pachyrhinosauruses. Karl Urban, Angourie Rice and Charlie Rowe are among the human actors, with John Leguizamo, Justin Long and Skyler Stone voicing animated characters.

tonight's PICKS

Alexa Davies

2020 Tokyo Olympics

7 p.m. on WXIA

With Usain Bolt retired from Olympic competition, the title of “Fastest Man in the World” is up for grabs and it may be decided tonight in the men’s 100m sprint, in which Americans Noah Lyles and Trayvon Bromell figure to vie for podium space. Also seeking hardware are divers in the women’s springboard final, gymnasts in the finals of the women’s vault and uneven bar events and long jumpers in the men’s final.

Wellington Paranormal

9 p.m. on WUPA

A new episode called “Vampire” takes place on an evening shift that is anything but a routine night for Officers Minogue and O’Leary (Mike Minogue, Karen O’Leary), as they race from one weird incident to another. Their calls involve everything from a mysterious plastic bag and a gathering of creepy clowns to more sinister matters such as a human sacrifice ritual and theft from a hospital blood bank.

Kevin Can F... Himself

9 p.m. on AMC

This pitch-black sitcom satire wraps up Season 1 with a finale called “Fixed,” which finds detectives grilling Allison (Annie Murphy) about what happened on the night before. Meanwhile, still reeling from the trauma of the break in, Kevin (Eric Petersen) searches for some meaning in his life by launching a bid for city council. Elsewhere, Kurt (guest star Sean Clements) plants a seed of doubt.

Dead Pixels

9:30 p.m. on WUPA

News that a tradesman is scheduled to visit their flat just as they’re both struggling to complete an in-game mission isn’t well received by Meg and Nicky (Alexa Davies, Will Merrick) in the new episode “Mission.” When this visitor arrives, however, Meg finds him so distractingly attractive that she tries desperately to act “normal.”

tonight's PICKS

Simone Biles

2020 Tokyo Olympics

8 p.m. on WXIA

The eyes of the world will be on tonight's final in the women's floor exercise, in which Team USA's Simone Biles is expected to successfully defend her gold medal from Rio in 2016 as well as continue her pursuit of the record for the most gold medals won by a single gymnast in the history of the Olympics. Also on tap tonight are the finals in the men's 400m hurdles and women's long jump and a quarterfinal match in the women's beach volleyball.

Roswell, New Mexico

8 p.m. on WUPA

As they look for a way to save Max's life, Jones (Nathan Dean) fills Michael and Isobel (Michael Vlamis, Lily Cowles) in on important insights from the past in the new episode "Give Me One Reason." Meanwhile, Maria (Heather Hemmens) is forced to take extreme measures to stop a murder. Elsewhere, Liz (Jeanine Mason) realizes she'll have to confront her past to move forward in her research. Michael Trevino and Amber Midthunder also star.

Darcey & Stacey

8 p.m. on TLC

In a new episode called "Digging Up the Past," Darcey travels to Washington, D.C., looking for answers that will shed light on Georgi's past. Instead, much to her frustration, her trip just leaves her with even more questions. Meanwhile, Stacey and Florian have a difficult discussion about their future lives together. Later, Darcey makes a decision that could put her entire relationship on the line.

The Republic of Sarah

9 p.m. on WUPA

An unexpected snowstorm leaves Greylock stranded with no plows, forcing Sarah (Stella Baker) and the town to come up with some creative solutions to clearing the roads in the new episode "The Perfect Conditions for Disaster."

tonight's PICKS

Harry Houdini

Wendy

8 p.m. on MAX

Director Benh Zeitlin (“Beasts of the Southern Wild”) transplants the “Peter Pan” story to the rural Deep South in this 2020 fantasy drama, which he also co-wrote with his sister, Eliza. Devin France stars as 9-year-old Wendy Darling, whose mother, diner waitress Angela (Shay Walker), gave up her childhood dreams to raise a family. Wendy and twin brothers Douglas and James (Gage and Gavin Naquin) are swept into an adventure, though, as they hop a train with a rambunctious boy named Peter (Yashua Mack). Kevin Pugh plays Captain Hook.

Catfish: The TV Show

9 p.m. on MTV

Still reeling from the trauma of her recent break-up, Brittany finds herself almost wishing that she actually is being catfished — and by her ex, no less — in the new episode “Brittany & Mark.” Specifically, she’s indulging in the pipe dream that her former love has repented and wants to test the waters as far as a reconciliation. Nev & Kamie are able to assess the sad situation more rationally, and they hope to free Brittany from heartache and find out who’s behind a mystery profile.

Motherland: Fort Salem

10 p.m. on FREE

The new episode “Irrevocable” finds Raelle (Taylor Hickson) desperately fighting for her life, just as the Army and the Spree converge on a secret stronghold of the Camarillo. In the middle of all that drama, the thirst for revenge on the part of Abigail (Ashley Nicole Williams) and Khalida’s brother Adil (Tony Giroux) only keeps escalating.

Man vs. History

10:03 p.m. on HIST

Storyteller and historian Bil Lepp explores the daredevil career of “The Real Houdini” in this new episode by putting his very own twist on this showman’s death-defying stunts, testing whether it’s possible for a human to survive a plunge over Niagara Falls.

A new 'View': Who will replace Meghan McCain?

Q: With Meghan McCain leaving "The View," will Ana Navarro be made a regular panelist now? – Kristin Moss, via e-mail

A: Writing this response before a decision has been announced, that certainly would seem to be an option being considered seriously by ABC in determining who secures that seat at the (lately virtual) table for the weekday show's upcoming 25th season. It's always a huge move to fill one of those co-host slots on a permanent basis, and it's also likely to be factored in that McCain was the lone conservative voice among the regulars in the frequently political conversations. If you look at the history of "The View," it has encompassed quite a diverse range of people who have had a sustained tenure there, from series originator Barbara Walters, Meredith Vieira and Star Jones to Rosie O'Donnell, Elisabeth Hasselbeck and Jenny McCarthy. There's no guarantee that McCain's successor will be a woman, either – CBS' "The Talk" has enlisted some male co-hosts since recent departures on that show – but you can be pretty certain that it will be decided by the time "The View" launches its new season in September.

Q: I was disappointed to read that even though a Season 2 of "Lovecraft Country" was ordered, there won't be one now. Why? – Greg Ryan, Grand Junction, Colo.

A: The provision was, since the first season of the HBO series had pretty used up the material from Mark Ruff's novel, that an original second round satisfactory to all involved parties – including HBO executives – could be devised. Evidently, that didn't turn out to be the case, though an extensive "bible" had been created for a sophomore round of the show. It can be tricky to continue a series that was meant only to be "limited" initially, especially in maintaining the saga's spirit. HBO has faced that several times, notably in extending "Big Little Lies" past the Liane Moriarty novel (though it was able to keep teleplay writer David E. Kelley on board, a very important factor). The cable network is in a similar situation with the Kaley Cuoco-starring "The Flight Attendant," which will need to move beyond Chris Bohjalian's novel for its Season 2.

celebrity quotes

"All week long, I just kept trying to slip in 'Star Trek' jokes and references. He was such a good sport about it. I mean, there were a couple of times where I thought he was going to kill me but he was such a good sport about it. But yeah, as much as possible I tried to bend his ear about 'Star Trek.'" – Josh Gates, on diving in the Bahamas with William Shatner on "Expedition Unknown: Shark Trek" for Discovery Channel's recent Shark Week
