Covington man charged with murder of spouse

By TAYLOR BECK
tbeck@covnews.com

COVINGTON, Ga. — A local man was arrested this weekend for the alleged killing of his wife.

According to a Newton County Sheriff's Office report, Albert Johnson, 70 of Covington, was charged with Malice Murder, Aggravated Assault, Possession Of A Firearm Or Knife During Commission Of Or Attempt

Albert Johnson

To Com-mit Certain Crimes, and Pointing Or Aiming A Gun Or Pistol At Another. The first three charges are considered felonies.

The reporting officer said he was dispatched Saturday to Johnson's residence on Spring Valley Way to conduct a welfare check. Shortly before he arrived to the home, dispatch told the officer that Johnson had turned himself in to Chatham County Sheriff's deputies, saying he had committed a crime. When the officer arrived to the residence, he was able to determine a crime was, in fact, committed and turned the case over to investigators.

The victim, Diane Johnson, worked as a nursing assistant for Rockdale County Schools, a district official confirmed.

Motive and exact cause of death were not available at the time of this publication; however, the murder was described in the incident report as non-negligent — or voluntary — manslaughter, and a handgun was apparently used.

As of Tuesday, Johnson was being held at the Newton County Detention Center without bond.

Neighbors of the couple told The Covington News members of the Spring Valley Estates subdivision would hold a "gathering" Saturday at 6 p.m. to honor the life of Diane Johnson. Coverage of the vigil may be found online and in a future edition of The News.

Surge hitting hospital

Official: Two-thirds of patients in Piedmont Newton have COVID

By TOM SPIGOLON
tspigolon@covnews.com

COVINGTON, Ga. — Two out of three patients now hospitalized in Piedmont Newton Hospital are COVID-19 patients, a top hospital official said.

The number of COVID patients now has exceeded by 20% the number the hospital typically saw during the last surge in January, said hospital chief medical officer Dr. Norris Little.

It was seeing about one COVID patient per day in June before the fast-spreading Delta variant of the disease took hold about four weeks ago, Little said.

"It's a very significant number of people in the community who are ill," he said.

As a result, the 103-bed hospital in Covington has been forced to add extra beds on hospital floors and in the intensive care unit, Little said.

Newton County has seen an increase in its seven-day average of new cases from 39 on Aug. 13 to 64 on Aug. 29, according to the Georgia Department of Public Health.

Little said the surge also is

Costumes to quilts

Covington resident creates items for DragonCon charities

COVINGTON, Ga. — A Newton County woman has become a super hero in a small way by helping Atlanta's famed science fiction-themed convention raise funds for area charities.

Covington resident Melissa Feuer takes donated scraps of costumes worn during DragonCon and other sci-fi-related memorabilia and creates cloth items to benefit the convention's DragonCon Superheroes program that raises money for local and national charities.

"I think it's a fun thing," she said.

Many participants in DragonCon choose to create their own unique and colorful costumes for the annual Labor Day weekend event that typically draws 80,000 or more to downtown Atlanta.

Cloth is left over from the construction and sewing process and Feuer uses some scraps convention costumers send her to create unique quilts she sends to convention organizers to auction.

DragonCon attendees also donate the six-inch fabric squares from their collections of sci-fi-themed items, she said.

"It's kind of a collaboration," Feuer said. "It's not just me. It's a community thing."

This year, Feuer said she created a twin-sized quilt, quilted throw and coverings for four pillows. The money they bring will benefit DragonCon's 2021 charity Big Brothers & Big Sister of Metro Atlanta.

COVINGTON, Ga. — Covington Police Department has fired one of its detectives after his arrest on a series of charges related to an “altercation” at an apartment complex in the city Monday.

Detective Pokey Daniels was terminated after he was charged in connection with the domestic dispute Monday at Wellington Ridge Apartments on Georgia Hwy. 142, said CPD spokesman Capt. Ken Malcom.

Malcom said officers were dispatched to a call at the apartment complex at 10:50 a.m. After interviewing

Pokey Daniels

Daniels, the victim and neighbors who witnessed the incident, officers determined that probable cause existed to make an arrest, Malcom said in a news release.

Daniels was charged with Battery under the Family Violence Act, Cruelty to Children, Interference with a 911 Call, and Criminal Trespass.

He was released Monday on $7,350

bond, according to jail records.

Daniels already was on administrative leave and the Georgia Bureau of Investigation was investigating him for an unrelated issue before Monday’s incident, Malcom said.

He said the Newton County District Attorney’s Office is now reviewing results of the GBI investigation of Daniels.

Pandemic-driven court backlog blamed for state crime wave

The partial shutdown of the court system in Georgia during the coronavirus pandemic is contributing to the crime wave plaguing Atlanta and other cities, a representative of the state's prosecutors said Tuesday.

"We have to get our courts operating again," Pete Skandalakis, executive director of the Prosecuting Attorneys' Council of Georgia, told members of a legislative committee. "If we get COVID under control, jails will be able to hold people longer."

Georgia House Speaker David Ralston asked the House Public Safety & Homeland Security Committee last spring to hold hearings this summer to examine what's behind a rise in violent crime across the state — particularly in and around Atlanta — and look for solutions.

A crime wave that began during the early months of the pandemic last year in Atlanta and other large U.S. cities has picked up momentum this year. Gov. Brian Kemp responded in April by forming a multi-agency Crime Suppression Unit to work with local police departments to address the worrisome trend.

Col. Chris Wright, commissioner of the Georgia Department of Public Safety, told the committee Tuesday the unit is making progress.

Since April, members of the unit have made 10,953 traffic stops resulting in 7,618 citations, he said. They have made 285 arrests for driving under the influence and 207 for reckless driving while arresting 188 people on warrants, including 11 murder suspects, he said.

Wright said the agency's board voted last week to make the Crime Suppression Unit permanent and assign 10 state troopers to full-time duty with the unit in metro Atlanta.

But Skandalakis said there's a limit to what law enforcement can do to fight violent crime when a lack of indictments and jury trials has created a backlog of pending criminal cases. The backlog is causing jails to become overcrowded with suspects awaiting trial, which forces authorities to release repeat offenders charged with violent crimes on bond, he said.

"We can't arrest our way out of the problems occurring today," he said. "With the pandemic, we've had a perfect storm of repeat offenders with access to firearms."

Rep. Alan Powell, R-Hartwell, said the delay in prosecuting cases is promoting a lack of accountability in the criminal justice system.

"It's creating a general level of disrespect," he said. "Many people think there's no consequences for their actions."

But there have been some successes. Atlanta Police Chief Rodney Bryant testified Tuesday that the level of gun violence in the city went down after his department, working with the FBI and the Georgia Bureau of Investigation, launched Operation Phoenix targeting the most violent offenders.

Another initiative aimed at crime around nightclubs also has paid off, Bryant said.

"We have begun to see the level of violence, especially downtown and in Buckhead, take a hit," he said.

Several witnesses who appeared before the committee Tuesday said more state funding to hire more prosecutors and law enforcement officers would help.

Kemp recently committed up to $7 million from the Governor's Emergency Fund to help finance the Crime Suppression Unit.

Ralston has proposed putting $75 million toward boosting law enforcement and mental health services in Georgia.

Lt. Gov. Geoff Duncan, who presides over the state Senate, is calling for a $250 million tax credit to raise funds for crimefighting.

Georgia joins 20-state lawsuit aimed at transgender rights

Georgia has joined 19 other Republican-led states in suing the Biden administration over directives allowing transgender workers and students to use bathrooms and locker rooms and join sports teams matching their gender identity.

The lawsuit, filed Monday in Tennessee, accuses the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission and U.S. Department of Education of issuing guidance in June that improperly expanded the scope of a U.S. Supreme Court ruling last year.

"The administration is willfully circumventing the authority of Congress and ignoring the rule of law with this regulatory overreach," Georgia Attorney General Chris Carr said Tuesday. "There is an established process to change antidiscrimination law, and federal agencies lack the authority to change the law in this way."

The Supreme Court decision prohibited employers from firing workers because of their gender identity or sexuality. The ruling had nothing to do with whether employers or schools could maintain sex-separated bathrooms and locker rooms or whether students born male could compete on girls' sports teams, the plaintiffs claimed.

Several bills prohibiting "biological boys" from playing in school sports against "biological girls" in Georgia didn't make it through the General Assembly this year amid criticism they discriminated against transgender students. However, the legislation remains alive for consideration during the 2022 session.

The states' federal lawsuit asks the court to declare the agencies' guidance invalid and to prohibit its enforcement.

The states participating in the case with Georgia are Alabama, Alaska, Arizona, Arkansas, Idaho, Indiana, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, Ohio, Oklahoma, South Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee and West Virginia.

Collins backs Gary Black for Senate

Former U.S. Rep. Doug Collins has endorsed Georgia Agriculture Commissioner Gary Black for U.S. Senate.

Black, who is seeking the Republican nomination to challenge Democratic Sen. Raphael Warnock next year, picked up Collins' support during a campaign event Tuesday at Black's farm in Commerce.

Collins, R-Gainesville, left Congress last year to run for the Senate in a crowded contest eventually won by Warnock.

"Gary Black is somebody who will stand up for our values in Georgia," Collins told a crowd of Black's supporters. "We're in desperate need of new leadership in Washington, D.C."

Nervously awaiting another football season for Bulldogs

If you don't know by now, I love my alma mater, the University of Georgia, the oldest state-chartered university in the nation. I am a proud graduate and a past president of the national alumni association. I have a haughty-looking portrait hanging somewhere in my beloved Grady College of Journalism and Mass Communications, where I give what I consider a rather generous number of shekels each year to benefit the outstanding students who are fortunate enough to gain admission.

I am wont to brag incessantly on the academic achievements of my university, like the 25 Rhodes Scholars we have produced (We pause here for supporters of You-Know-Where Institute of Technology to remind me once again about their number of astronauts – 14 - since they've only had six Rhodes Scholars. Bless their hearts.)

But as much pride as I have in the academic success at UGA, I get cold sweats when football season comes around. This coming Saturday, the fifth-ranked University of Georgia Bulldogs kick off the 2021 football season against the second-ranked Clemson Tigers in Charlotte and I am as nervous as a tom cat in a coonhound kennel.

You must understand that when I was in school in Athens, Georgia won 10 games. The problem is that it took them three seasons to do it. To make matters worse, I lived through the humiliation of The Drought, an era that will live in infamy. That was when You-Know-Where Institute of Technology beat us eight straight years, four in which our side didn't even score a touchdown. During that time, we lost every way imaginable. We lost heart-breaking squeakers and we lost big. Those were dark days, Things changed dramatically when Vince Dooley arrived in 1964. His first year at Georgia, he won seven games, beat Tech and went on to win 201 games before winding up his Hall of Fame career in 1988. But as successful as he was, he did nothing to cure my angst.

I love Vince Dooley and consider him a good friend. Nobody was prouder than I when the Board of Regents – with a nudge from Gov. Brian Kemp (UGA Class of 1987) – finally and rightfully named the field at Sanford Stadium for the man.

However, the coach

imbued in me the perpetual fear that no matter who the Bulldogs were playing on Saturday, we would be at a serious disadvantage. I distinctly recall him once citing a Vanderbilt punter who excelled in coffin corner kicks as a reason the Dawgs could very well lose their upcoming game with the Commodores. It nearly ruined my week. I don't remember the final score but it was something like 41-0, Georgia.

But the damage was done. Because of all the past traumas, I have become Mr. Doom-and-Gloom, turning off the television at the first intercepted pass or fumble or tackle behind the line. "Well, that's the ballgame!" I moan. My bride would always remind me that there were still 10 minutes left in the first quarter. I would turn the TV back on only to turn it off again when whoever Georgia was playing made a first down. Another "Well, that's the ballgame!" On-and-off it would go every football Saturday. It still does.

Now, Georgia fans are talking about a national championship. Oh, please. If we beat Clemson – and we are a three-point underdog – the University of Alabama Birmingham will be coming up the following week. In case you are not aware, the Blazers won the Conference USA title in 2020. Their quarterback ranks fourth at UAB in career touchdown passes and fifth in career passing yards. I am afraid to ask about their punter's coffin corner expertise.

Should we survive the regular season and make it to the SEC Championship, chances are that Nick Saban and the Alabama Crimson Tide will be awaiting us. Remember Nick Saban? He's the guy who changed quarterbacks at halftime in the National Championship game and still beat us. Somehow, that doesn't seem fair.

So, let the games begin. I will leave it to the Johnny-Come-Latelys to worry about national championships and all that stuff. My focus is on Nov. 27. That is when we face You-Know-Where Institute of Technology and the memories of The Drought come flooding back. But before we get to them, we have to get by Charleston Southern. As Vince Dooley would remind us, the Buccaneers once beat Coastal Carolina who beat Brigham Young last year. Egad. I just hope my television's on-off switch survives the season.

Winning teams do what's best for team

Atlanta's native son Cam Newton was cut by the New England Patriots this week, which was considered by many a surprising move.

The former MVP and three-time Pro Bowl quarterback was the team's starter just one year ago and was practically the pick to lead the team this year.

But in the eyes of six-time Super Bowl-winning head coach Bill Belichick, someone better came along.

The Patriots drafted former Alabama quarterback Mac Jones with the 15th overall pick in this year's NFL Draft, and he's done nothing but shine in preseason play and impress the coaching staff.

Despite a bit of controversy revolving around the topic of COVID vaccinations, Belichick declared the decision to cut Newton was strictly about football.

"I feel like whatever we do in the next couple days, like every day, should be what's best for our football team and that's what we'll try to do," the head coach said during a press conference. "... We'll do what's best for the team."

While this could be considered overused coachspeak, it's the right mindset to have when trying to put a team in position to succeed.

Based on "expert" opinions, Newton's play style didn't bode well for the team's preferred play style. Newton is considered a run-first guy. He's never had the best arm talent, and isn't a pocket passer. He's also 32 years old, which is considered end-of-prime, nearing retirement territory for most athletes — obviously there are exceptions; see a guy named Tom Brady.

Jones, on the other hand, is a pocket passer. He has quality arm talent and played in a similar system in college. Unlike Cam, Jones isn't flashy and will likely never have the charisma of the Auburn product. Jones also isn't a proven leader in the NFL like Newton. We can never forget the year Newton led Carolina to a Super Bowl appearance.

But regardless of how unpopular or surprising the decision was to cut Newton, if it was truly best for the team, the results will prove it.

Though it isn't related to sports, we have a similar situation taking place in the Newton County Board of Commissioners' quest to hire a full-time, in-house attorney.

Currently, Megan Martin of the Jarrard & Davis law firm serves the county in an interim role and has been doing so for a number of years. Based on her production, she appears to be a quality candidate and deserves to be considered for a full-time role. And that's exactly why she was offered a six-month contract to take on the position.

Now, there has been much speculation about the intent of this offer. Many believe other factors not pertinent to the job are the reason for such an offer. I must agree, it is quite hard to believe that after hearing from four other candidates the best our commissioners could agree to offer Martin was a six-month contract to leave her current post and essentially jumpstart and lead a new county government department. Frankly, there isn't much security or stability with that type of offer.

Rather than beat up our commissioners or fail miserably at telling them how to do their job, I'd rather remind them of something: At the end of the day, winning teams do what's best for their team, and in turn, successful organizations do what's best for the organization. Whatever differences there may be among our commissioners and our county employees, I hope the unimportant and irrelevant matters can be laid aside so every decision made is with the people of Newton County's best interest at the forefront. And if this happens, we'll not only see the results, but we might like them, too.

Local COVID patients overwhelmingly unvaccinated

The highly contagious Delta variant continues to devastate our community.

According to the Georgia Department of Public Health, there has been a tenfold increase in confirmed cases of COVID-19 between July 1 and now in Newton County. We do not know exactly how long this fourth wave will last.

As a hospital executive, I think it is my responsibility to tell you what I am seeing in our Emergency Department and ICU. At the beginning of the summer, Piedmont Newton Hospital had almost no COVID patients. Now, as we approach the end of summer, we have almost as many COVID patients as we have had at any single point since the start of the pandemic more than a year and a half ago.

Our patients with COVID are younger now, too. The number of people in their 20s, 30s and 40s who are hospitalized with COVID is significantly higher than during previous surges. Across Piedmont Healthcare's 16 hospitals, the average age of patients hospitalized with COVID is 53 years old. At Piedmont Newton, we currently have patients in their 30s on ventilators in the ICU.

One thing is clear from what we are witnessing in our hospital: the vaccine works. While it may not stop you from getting COVID, it will stop you from ending up in our hospital with COVID. Over 95% of patients in Piedmont hospitals with COVID are unvaccinated and over 97% on ventilators are unvaccinated. Crucially, the vaccine also can keep you from dying from COVID: 99.2% of our system's deaths have been among the unvaccinated.

Every day, I hear from our incredible staff that they are experiencing more death than at any other time in their long medical careers. While they would never complain, I can see that they are exhausted and sad. Fortunately, unlike during previous surges, there is something you can do to help. Please get a COVID-19 vaccine.

Newton County residents are getting vaccinated more slowly than the state as a whole. Currently, 41% of Newton County residents have had at least one dose of the vaccine—that's compared to 50% of Georgia residents overall. Meanwhile, just 35% of Newton County residents are fully vaccinated, compared to 43% of Georgia residents overall. What we need more than anything right now is for you to get vaccinated and, if you are vaccinated, to encourage your loved ones to do the same.

You can find all the information you need on the COVID-19 vaccines, including answers to frequently asked questions, at <https://www.piedmont.org/covid-19/vaccine-faq>.

Salem church hosting vaccine clinic

Pastor says church seeks to 'bring health right down to our local area'

By TOM SPIGOLON
tspigolon@covnews.com

COVINGTON, Ga. — A historic west Newton church is giving its new health care ministry the task of helping health care workers take on the top public health concern on the planet.

Salem United Methodist Church will host a COVID-19 vaccination clinic in tandem with the Gwinnett-Newton-Rockdale Counties Health Departments Sept. 13 from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m..

Health department employees will administer the Pfizer vaccine with help from church volunteers, said the Rev. David Cott, the church's pastor.

Cott said the church wanted to help provide an opportunity to improve the state's vaccination rate — which is among the lowest in the nation at 44%.

"We're seeing some of the highest numbers of new cases and hospitalizations from COVID in Newton County," Cott said. "This is just one way of us trying to reach out to our community and show them that we care."

The seven-day moving average of COVID cases in Newton County rose from 39 on Aug. 13 to 64 on Aug. 29, according to Georgia Department of Public Health statistics.

Cott said the effort is part of the 197-year-old church's new initiative to work with area health-related agencies and businesses "to bring health care right down to our local area, right in the Salem community."

"We want to reach out to our community — be more engaged in the Salem community," Cott said.

He said he contacted the health department recently for it to work with the church in an unspecified way on its new ministry. Department officials responded by suggesting a vaccine clinic "which we felt very strongly about supporting," Cott said.

He admitted some of his 120-member congregation may be hesitant about receiving a COVID-19 vaccination but is generally supportive of hosting a vaccine clinic.

The church returned to in-person services earlier this year and offers two services on Sundays to allow for less attendance and more space for social distancing, Cott said.

The vaccination clinic could lead to other health-related events at the church, such as health screenings, he said. It is scheduled to partner with CVS pharmacy to host a flu shot clinic Sept. 26 at 10:30 and 11:45 a.m.

Michele Kehler, spokeswoman for Gwinnett, Newton and Rockdale County Health Departments, said appointments and identification are not required to receive the no-cost vaccine during the church's event.

She said the Health Department currently provides walk-in COVID-19 vaccines Monday through Friday at four health center locations, including Newton County Health Department, and a mass vaccination site at the former Sears store in Gwinnett Place Mall.

"In addition, the department uses mobile vaccine teams to bring the COVID-19 vaccine into our communities at locations such as schools, churches, community centers, and other sites throughout our three counties.

"When COVID-19 vaccine demand was very high, the department focused on providing vaccinations at our mass vaccination sites, such as Gwinnett Place Mall, to quickly and efficiently vaccinate as many people as possible," she said.

"In addition to ongoing mass vaccination efforts and those at our health center locations, mobile vaccine teams allow us to serve hard-to-reach populations who often experience trouble accessing vaccines due to challenges that include transportation and language barriers.

"Our mobile teams work closely with partner organizations, local churches, and community groups — often seven days a week — to meet demand," Kehler said. "This event is a wonderful opportunity for Newton County community members to get vaccinated against COVID-19."

Salem United Methodist Church is at 3962 Salem Road in Covington. For more information about the vaccination clinic, call 770-786-6027.

State rep to tell BOC about funding concerns

By TOM SPIGOLON

tspigolon@covnews.com

COVINGTON, Ga.

— A Newton County state lawmaker says she plans to relay her constituents’ concerns to county commissioners about federal COVID-19 relief funds not being distributed despite the county having them for months.

District 113 State Rep. Sharon Henderson, D-Covington, said she has received “many calls and emails” about how $10.5 million in federal American Rescue Plan funds the county government received in May should be dispersed.

She said constituents in her northwest Newton district complained about the money not being sent out despite such recent developments as the U.S. Supreme Court not allowing the Centers for Disease Control to extend an eviction moratorium.

“A lot of people are hurting,” Henderson said. “There’s a laundry list of concerns.”

Henderson said she met with County Manager Lloyd Kerr about future use of the funds but declined to give details of what she said she will tell commissioners.

However, she said she felt there was a need to “act now” on the funds in the wake of the U.S. Supreme Court’s Aug. 26 ruling that only Congress had the power to extend the moratorium.

The decision puts hundreds of thousands of tenants at risk of losing their homes while President Joe Biden’s administration struggles to speed the flow of billions of dollars in federal funding to people who are behind in rent because of the coronavirus pandemic and associated economic hardship, the New York Times reported.

Henderson also hinted she had some “very good news” she will give to commissioners and county residents at the Tuesday meeting.

Kerr told commissioners on wwwAug. 17 the county has been unable to spend the $10.8 million in funds because it is still waiting on the federal government to issue final rules on how to spend the money to cover local costs associated with COVID-19.

The $10.8 million represents the first half of what the county ultimately will receive. It is due another $10.8 million payment in May 2022, he said.

He said he knows the funding will only be allowed to be used for costs specifically linked to COVID-19.

However, he said the state’s county government advisory group, the Association County Commissioners of Georgia, has advised counties to “move slowly” on use of the funds.

Governments will be required to pay back any funding the federal government says was spent on ineligible projects or requests.

Kerr also said that once the county has the rules, he wanted to use some of the money to hire a third-party manager to administer the funds.

The county does not have the personnel with the experience required for such a major program, he said.

He said he could produce a Request for Qualifications within 30 days and would “hope for a good, quick response” before sending a final contract to commissioners. The administrator would perform such tasks as doing a community needs assessment, developing a project list and budget, and setting the criteria for eligibility, Kerr said.

It then would do periodic reporting to the Board of Commissioners through the end of the program, likely in 2026. The Board would have final say on any use of the funds, he said.

District 3 Commissioner Alana Sanders said she “had an issue” with spending some of the funds to hire a manager when some neighboring counties had allowed nonprofit groups like United Way to administer their funding in the past.

Kerr said funding would be needed to pay whoever administers the funds — even nonprofits. He suggested the Board could allow more than one agency to administer the funding

Florida getting results with COVID-19 treatment

By DAVE WILLIAMS
Capitol Beat News Service

ATLANTA - Florida Gov. Ron DeSantis has absorbed a storm of criticism in the national media for refusing to let school districts in his state impose mask mandates to discourage the spread of COVID-19. But DeSantis has launched a statewide initiative to fight the virus that could take some pressure off his state's hospitals.

The Republican governor has been crisscrossing Florida this week touting the success of monoclonal antibody treatment, which is now available at state-run sites.

"Since we've been doing those treatments, we've seen a decline in the hospital census for COVID," DeSantis said Wednesday during a news conference in Fort Myers, Fla. "We've seen a decline in the emergency visits for COVID."

While, DeSantis continues to promote vaccines as the best defense against COVID-19, some Floridians who have contracted the virus credit the treatment with keeping them out of the hospital.

Monoclonal antibodies are laboratory-produced proteins that function like the antibodies made by the immune system in response to infection. Until recently, only hospitals offered the treatment, which was done through infusions.

Florida has opened 21 centers across the state that offer the antibodies to patients at no cost. Each patient receives four injections.

Monoclonal antibody treatments typically are used to prevent patients who have tested positive for COVID-19 from getting sick enough that they have to be hospitalized.

Georgia has yet to follow Florida's example by launching a statewide initiative for monoclonal antibody treatments.

However, the treatments are available at 136 locations in Georgia under a U.S. Food and Drug Administration emergency use authorization, state Department of Public Health spokeswoman Nancy Nydam said Friday.

"At this time, the Georgia Department of Public Health is exploring all options for making monoclonal antibody treatment more accessible to Georgians," Nydam said.

Georgia certainly could use the help of treatments that reduce the need for hospitalization of coronavirus patients.

The state set a record for COVID-19 hospitalizations this week at 5,880, topping the previous high mark set last January.

As of Thursday afternoon, 1,103,756 Georgians had been diagnosed with COVID-19. The virus had resulted in 73,777 hospitalizations since the pandemic began in March of last year, with 23,006 confirmed or probable deaths.

Trump endorses Walker, Jones

By DAVE WILLIAMS
Capitol Beat News Service

ATLANTA - Former President Donald Trump has endorsed University of Georgia football great Herschel Walker for the U.S. Senate and state Sen. Burt Jones for lieutenant governor.

Trump's friendship with Walker goes back to 1984, when Walker signed with the United States Football League's New Jersey Generals, a team Trump owned.

Trump urged Walker to seek the Republican nomination for the Senate seat now held by Democrat Raphael Warnock for weeks before Walker entered the race last week.

"Herschel Walker is a friend, a patriot and an outstanding American who is going to be a great United States senator," Trump wrote in his endorsement statement. "Herschel is tough on crime and borders, and he will always stand in support of law enforcement, military and our vets. He will fight hard for our Second Amendment and voter integrity."

"Thank you to my friend President Trump for your support and encouragement!" Walker said. "Together, we will win back the U.S. Senate for Georgia!"

The Republican field in the 2022 Senate race also includes Georgia Agriculture Commissioner Gary Black; Latham Saddler, an Atlanta banking executive and former Navy SEAL officer; and Kelvin King, a small business owner and Air Force veteran also from Atlanta.

Jones, R-Jackson, was the first elected official in Georgia to support Trump for president back in 2016 and served as Trump campaign co-chairman in Georgia in 2016 and 2020. Jones also was among a group of Senate Republicans who asked Gov. Brian Kemp to call a special session of the General Assembly shortly after last Michelle Alexis Robertson, 47, of Covington was charged with Carrying a Weapon in a School Safety Zone as a License Holder, a misdemeanor, after the incident in the River Walk Farm subdivision Aug. 25.

Cousins Middle School Principal Atosha Logan told the school resource officer to go to the school's bus ramp to investigate "a possible issue with an irate student getting off of a school bus," the officer reported.

She later found that a parent had entered the school bus to intervene in an argument between the student, who is her son, and another male student while it was stopped on Sagebrush Trail about 8:10 a.m.

"During the time the female parent was on the bus and walking towards the back of the bus where those two male students were, an item later identified as a gun fell off of the parent and onto the floor of the bus," the officer reported.

The parent picked up the weapon and placed it underneath her jacket under her right arm. She then told the students to stop fighting and told one of them to get off of the bus before she also exited, a report stated.

Robertson reportedly turned herself in at the Newton County Detention Center and was later released on bond.

Spokeswoman Sherrie Partee said weapons on Newton County School System property "are strictly forbidden."

"And this includes our school buses," she said. "As such, we reported this incident to the Newton County Sheriff's Office right away."

CONYERS, Ga. — Piedmont Rockdale Hospital recently celebrated the start of its $12.6 million expansion and renovation project. The construction, which began in July, includes completing a new 21-bed in-patient unit along with planned renovations to the hospital’s kitchen, two of its existing medical floors, replacing the roof on Building A, and converting two observation rooms to fully-equipped patient rooms.

When completed, the hospital’s capacity will increase from 138 to 161 acute care beds.

“This project is critical to continuing our long tradition of serving Conyers and surrounding communities,” said Blake Watts, chief executive officer of Piedmont Rock-dale Hospital. “Our goal is not only to improve patient access and care, but to also modernize and improve our hospital campus for our patients, visitors and staff.”

Phase one of the project will focus on creating the new 21-bed unit on the second floor of Building A, as well as converting the two observation rooms. The first phase is expected to be completed in January 2022. The second phase includes the remaining work of renovating and updating the patient rooms on MedSurg 1 and MedSurg 2 and should be finished by the middle of 2022.

“We’re confident that these enhancements will make things better and easier for our patients,” said Watts.

In June, the Georgia Department of Community

Health granted Piedmont Rockdale a Certificate of Need for the project. The hospital has partnered with architecture firm TVS Design and SSR Engineering firm for project design, and McCarthy Building Companies is serving as the general contractor for the project.

“As our community grows, we need to ensure that we’re adapting and upgrading our amenities for our patients,” said Watts. “Overall, Piedmont Rockdale is focused on developing patient care areas and support departments that expand the hospital’s campus, while also providing the best in patient care and experience.”

Truist commits $1 million to Henry Louis Aaron Fund

SPECIAL TO THE NEWS
news@covnews.com

ATLANTA — Truist Financial Corp. recently announced the Homers for Hank program, a five-year commitment to donate $755 to the Henry Louis Aaron Fund for every home run hit by the Atlanta Braves, totaling a minimum of $1 million.

The funds will be used to build a program to provide scholarships for students attending historically black colleges and universities, career development programs for HBCU students/alumni and other future support initiatives in honor of Hank Aaron’s legacy.

Homers for Hank is retroactive to the start of the 2021 Major League Baseball season through 2025.

The number 755 is significant as it represents the number of career home runs hit by Hank Aaron, earning himself the title of “Home Run King.”

“We are excited to continue supporting meaningful work in honor of Hank Aaron’s legacy,” said Chief Digital & Client Experience Officer Dontá Wilson. “Supporting HBCU students and graduates will have a lasting impact, and this investment is a way to advance equity for the future. Hank Aaron proved that diversity makes us stronger, on and off the field. At Truist, we share this belief and this commitment will commemorate and celebrate his life and legacy.”

In addition to Homers for Hank, Truist will annually fund two Henry Aaron Fellowships through 2025. Dedicated to diverse professionals, the Henry Aaron Fellowship is a full-time position within the Atlanta Braves organization and is designed to support candidates interested in becoming the next senior-level executive of a Major League Baseball club.

Feds addressing lending discrimination claims against Georgia-based bank

news@covnews.com

ATLANTA — The Justice Department and the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency (OCC) on Monday, Aug. 30, announced coordinated actions to address allegations of lending discrimination by Cadence Bank, N.A.

The department’s Civil Rights Division and the U.S. Attorney’s Office for the Northern District of Georgia announced an agreement to resolve allegations that Cadence Bank — which is headquartered in Atlanta — engaged in lending discrimination by “redlining” predominantly Black and Hispanic neighborhoods in the Houston, Texas, metro area.

Under the department’s settlement, Cadence will invest over $5.5 million to increase credit opportunities for residents of those neighborhoods.

“Redlining” is an illegal practice in which lenders avoid providing services to individuals living in communities of color because of the race, color, or national origin of the people who live in those communities.

Acting U.S. Attorney Kurt R. Erskine said, “The Fair Housing Act and Equal Credit Opportunity Act are intended to provide equal treatment for all people in their pursuit of home ownership and financing.

“This case highlights the need for vigilance in addressing practices which treat certain communities unfairly, and has led to an agreement with Cadence Bank intended to improve the fairness of its business practices and to make remedial financial investments in the negatively impacted communities,” Erskine said. “This office will continue in its efforts to eliminate housing and credit discrimination.”

Acting Comptroller of the Currency Michael J. Hsu said, “There is no place for discrimination in the federal banking system. The OCC will use the full force of our authority to correct fair lending violations with our supervisory and enforcement tools, including civil money penalties, cease and desist orders, and requiring restitution for customers harmed as a result of any discriminatory practices.”

Additionally, Cadence’s prudential regulator, the OCC, announced that it has assessed penalties against the bank in the amount of $3 million related to the violations alleged in the department’s complaint. The department opened its investigation after the OCC referred the matter.

The Justice Department’s settlement will resolve a lawsuit filed Monday in the U.S. District Court for the Northern District of Georgia. In its complaint, the department alleges that Cadence Bank violated the Fair Housing Act and the Equal Credit Opportunity Act, which prohibit financial institutions from discriminating on the basis of race, color, or national origin in their mortgage lending services.

Specifically, the complaint alleges that, from 2013 to 2017, Cadence engaged in unlawful redlining in the Houston area by avoiding predominantly Black and Hispanic neighborhoods because of the race, color, and national origin of the people living in those neighborhoods.

The department also alleges that Cadence’s branches were concentrated in majority-white neighborhoods, that the bank’s loan officers did not serve the credit needs of majority-Black and Hispanic neighborhoods, and that the bank’s outreach and marketing avoided those neighborhoods.

Under the department’s settlement, which is subject to approval by the District Court, Cadence will invest $4.17 million in a loan subsidy fund for residents of predominantly Black and Hispanic neighborhoods in the Houston area, $750,000 for development of community partnerships to provide services that increase access to residential mortgage credit in those neighborhoods, and at least $625,000 for advertising, outreach, consumer financial education, and credit repair initiatives.

The bank will dedicate at least four mortgage loan officers to majority-Black and Hispanic neighborhoods in Houston and open a new branch in one of those neighborhoods. Cadence will employ a director of community lending and development who will oversee these efforts and work in close consultation with the bank’s leadership. The bank will take these steps in addition to other fair lending measures it has already put in place.

Cadence Bank’s assets total over $18 billion. In addition to Texas, the bank has branches in Georgia, Alabama, Florida, Mississippi, and Tennessee. Its mortgage lending in the Houston area accounts for approximately 40% of its total home mortgage business.

The department’s Civil Rights Division and the OCC have long been engaged in work that seeks to make mortgage credit and homeownership accessible to all Americans on the same terms, regardless of race or national origin, and regardless of the neighborhood where they live.

In January 2021, President Joe Biden reaffirmed the critical role of the federal government in addressing legacies of housing segregation and discrimination, declaring that it is the policy of his administration to eliminate “racial bias and other forms of discrimination in all stages of home-buying and renting.”

The Justice Department’s enforcement of fair lending laws is conducted by the Civil Rights Division’s Housing and Civil Enforcement Section. Additional information about the Section’s fair lending enforcement can be found at www.justice.gov/fairhousing. Individuals may report lending discrimination by calling the Justice Department’s Housing Discrimination Tip Line at 1-833-591-0291, or submitting a report online.

Mobile Hydraulics relocates to Chamisa Road location to increase supply stock for ever-growing demand

By TOM SPIGOLON
tspigolon@covnews.com

COVINGTON, Ga. — Mobile Hydraulics' owner says his company's new Covington location will allow it to store more products for its mobile service fleet while also better serving its walk-in customers.

Owner, operator and founder Joey Holloway said the company — which specializes in repairing hoses and building hose assemblies at its customers' locations — recently moved to 50 Chamisa Road after outgrowing a building on Hazelbrand Road.

"With the expansion of our mobile fleet reaching down to Macon and beyond, we needed a larger location to help stock products in all our MH Mobile Workshops," Holloway said. "We also wanted to provide a better atmosphere to our walk-in customers, and this new location will allow us to do just that."

The new Covington facility is much larger than its old location "allowing us to stock more products for both walk-in customers and for our MH Mobile Fleet™," he said.

It converted an old bathing cage warehouse into a building "suitable for stocking all our material with a sales counter for our customers and a hydraulics hose assembly counter so we can make and repair the hose assemblies brought to our location," Holloway said.

"This facility is also right off of I-20 for easy access to the interstate and will provide much larger parking for all our walk-in customers," he said.

Special | Mobile Hydraulics

Joey Holloway, center, poses with his Covington team. Mobile Hydraulics recently opened a new Covington location at 50 Chamisa Road, below, after moving from a location on Hazelbrand Road.

Mobile Hydraulics is a 32-year-old company based in Winder that has also operated in Covington since 2017. Its main business is complete mobile hose repair and manufacture of hose assemblies on-site for everything from aerial platforms to wheel loaders "and everything in between," Holloway said.

Mobile Hydraulics works with a variety of industries including those using construction equipment, earth moving equipment, injection machines, flight simulators and material handling, Holloway said.

"We provide the finest hydraulic hose and fittings on Georgia's premier mobile workshops," he said. "Our motto is, 'If It's A Hose, We Can Make It!'"

It recently supported nine of 16 sectors — such as critical manufacturing and energy — the federal Cybersecurity and Infrastructure Security Agency named as essential industries during the Coronavirus pandemic, Holloway said.

The company has partnered with others on a number of major Georgia construction projects over the years. Some of them include construction on Georgia Hwy. 400, and widening of Interstate 85 and Georgia Hwy. 316.

Mobile Hydraulics also supported the construction of several venues for the 1996 Atlanta Olympics, and worked with the Atlanta Braves organization, the University of Georgia, Zoo Atlanta and Lake Lanier Islands.

"Mobile Hydraulics has helped Georgia industries in plastic injection, metal forming and flight simulators at Hartsfield-Jackson International Airport," he said.

He said the company is certified by the federal Mine Safety and Health Administration (MSHA) for aggregate locations.

It also is a certified FASSI crane dealer, he said.

Holloway founded Mobile Hydraulics in 1989 and began operations from one truck.

Mobile Hydraulics grew to include several strategic warehouses and a fleet of MH Mobile Workshops™ serving north Georgia with repairs of hose assemblies on-site and at its locations, he said.

He said he got the idea for the business while working at an auto parts store in Lawrenceville.

Holloway noticed the need for on-site hose repair after hearing customers complain about the down time they were having to endure for replacement of hydraulic hoses on their equipment. That gave him the idea to meet customers on-site and repair hydraulic assemblies there, he said.

COVINGTON, Ga — In a matchup that was filled with miscues on both sides, the Newton Rams reign victorious over cross-town rival, Eastside Eagles 27-7 at Sharp Stadium on Friday night.

Each team made their share of mistakes, but the Rams overcame theirs enough to take home the win.

For instance, Newton began the second half with a commanding 14-0 lead. On its opening possession of the second half, the Rams were forced to punt.

On the ensuing punt, Perry Rontravious fumbled the snap and gave possession to Eastside at the 15-yard line.

Three plays later, the Eagles scored their lone touchdown of the contest when Dallas Johnson rushed for a 1-yard touchdown. Johnson's touchdown cut the Rams' lead in half 14-7.

Following Eastside's score, the Rams marched down the field, burned 3:34 off the clock and responded with a touchdown of their own.

Coincidentally, it was Rontravious who scored off a six-yard touchdown run to extend the Rams lead 21-7.

Newton proceeded to run the ball, kill the clock and never looked back.

The same isn't true for the Eagles.

Particularly in the closing seconds of the first quarter, Eastside was backed up against its own goal line. Quarterback Johnny Crowe took the snap, fumbled the exchange with his running back and the ball was loose. Crowe ended up falling on the ball, but he did so in his own end zone resulting in a safety.

It seemed like whenever the Eagles got anything going consistently on offense, the penalty bug would bite them.

In fact, Eastside racked up almost 100 yards worth of penalties that halted any momentum they would muster up.

That was mostly the case for Newton, too, but they didn't seem to commit penalties in crucial situations.

Despite said penalties, Newton still scored 27 points. Three of the four touchdowns came off the stellar play from senior quarterback, Jevarra Martin Jr.

Martin's first score was an 18-yard touchdown run on the Rams' opening possession. Then, Martin connected with Marcus Calwise for a 27-yard touchdown with less than eight minutes left in the first half. The final score by Martin came with 6:33 left in the game when he scampered across the goal line from three yards out.

Walnut Grove kicks Redskins

By BRETT FOWLER

The Walton Tribune

WALNUT GROVE, Ga. — They aren't called special teams for nothing.

On Friday night at the Grove, Walnut Grove took advantage of three big plays in the kicking game to pull out a 13-6 win over cross-county rival Social Circle.

With the victory, the Warriors, earned their first win of the season, snapped a six-game losing skid, and avoided a loss to a Class A team.

But more importantly, its give them some much needed momentum heading into Region 8-AAAAA play in two weeks.

Social Circle lost for the first time in three games and for the second straight year to the Warriors.

It was much closer than last year's 42-16 beat down. But it was no less disappointing given the opportunity the Redskins had to pull off the upset.

Trailing 6-0 through three-and-a half quarters, the Redskins finally got on the board midway through the fourth, set up by an interception by K.J. Reid, who returned it to the Warriors 39.

From there, Social went the distance in six plays, culminated by a 9-yard pass from Logan Cross to Dashon Hyman with 7:39 left in the game. The PAT was no good.

They had three more shots on offense, but a shanked punt and two interceptions dashed its hopes.

On its next possession, Social Circle was stopped in three plays and forced to punt. The ball went off the side of Hunter Wise foot and into the arms of Walnut Grove's Cassius Hann, who returned the ball to the one.

From there Skyler Jones crashed over what turned out to be the winning points.

Junior Rhett Lamberth then became the defensive hero for the Warriors, intercepting Cross on the Redskins next two possessions to seal the win.

But the rest of the Walnut Grove defense pitched in as well, holding the Redskins high-powered Air Raid offense to less than 200 total yards.

Cross passed for just 22 in the first half and finished with 140.

Offensively, Walnut Grove stuck mostly to the ground, finishing with 122 yards on 44 carries. The duo of Skyler Jones Nolan Yancey combined for 113 yards.

Quarterback Ashton Adams was efficient through the air, completing 7-of-10 passes for 98 yards.

Walnut Grove had their chances in the first half, moving inside the Redskins 5-yard-line twice but settling for a pair of field goals.

On their second possession, the Warriors started at their own 10 and moved to the Redskins three, sparked by a 40-yard catch and run by junior receiver

Zach Ford.

But Jones was stopped short of the goal line and three consecutive carries and Brenden Hamrick kicked and 20-yard field goal on the second play of the second quarter.

The second score was set up when sophomore Kendall Lee retrieved a tipped pass off the hands of Redskins receiver K.J. Reid at the Social Circle 24 and returned it to the 15.

Six plays later, the Warriors stalled at the seven and settled for Hamrick's second kick of the half, this one from 23 yards.

Walnut Grove will be off next week while Social Circle travels to Eatonton to face Putnam County.

The Newton High School Lady Rams will look to bounce back after their 13-3 loss to Grayson on Sept. 2

Newton falls to Grayson

By PHILLIP B. HUBBARD

phubbard@covnews.com

LOGANVILLE, Ga. — Newton High School's softball team traveled to Grayson High School in a battle of the Lady Rams.

Newton's Lady Rams weren't able to win on the road as they lost to Grayson 13-3 on Sept. 2.

This was the second matchup of the season in which Grayson won both.

Unlike the first game between the two schools, though, Newton did score three runs.

All of its runs were scored in the top of the second inning.

After surrendering four runs in the opening inning, Kyla Stroud led off the second with a home run to left field. Later that same inning, Hayden Pearson recorded an RBI single to score Katelynn Anglin.

Newton's third run was scored on an error at third base. D'myia Jackson hit a ground ball and reached first base all the while Sidney Lindsey scored.

Those three runs drew the score 4-3 heading into the bottom of the second.

In the bottom half of the inning, it looked like Newton would keep it close, but Grayson delivered a three-run home run to make the score 7-3.

Newton just never bounced back from that. It finished the contest with six total hits, five walks and batters were struck out six times.

As a result, Newton falls below .500 with a 4-5 record. Its latest matchup was against Alcovy on Sept. 3. Check Wednesday's edition of The Covington News for the full recap of that matchup.

KICKOFF TIME

No. 5 Bulldogs' season gets underway against familiar foe No. 3 Clemson

By PAUL NEWBERRY
The Associated Press

JT Daniels starred for a powerhouse team in high school. He launched his college career at one of the most storied programs in the nation.

Yet none of that quite prepared this laid-back Californian for the passion that goes along with playing for the Georgia Bulldogs, for playing in the Southeastern Conference.

"Football is just another thing on the West Coast vs. football being THE thing here," Daniels said. "I still remember the first time me and my family drove from the Atlanta airport to Athens and seeing all the Georgia Bulldog flags flying everywhere, to experience what it's like for football to be such a main focal point. I've loved it ever since I got here."

Now, in what very well could be his only full season as Georgia's starting quarterback, the Bulldogs and their red-and-black faithful are optimistic that Daniels can lead them to an elusive national championship.

He gave them a tantalizing glimpse of what he can accomplish after moving to the top of the depth chart late in the pandemic-plagued 2020 season.

Daniels guided the Bulldogs to four straight victories, throwing for 401 yards and four touchdowns in his Georgia debut against Mississippi State and capping the season by rallying the team to a last-second triumph over Cincinnati in the Peach Bowl.

But none of those opponents was on the level of Georgia's season opener Saturday, when the No. 5 Bulldogs take on the third-ranked Clemson Tigers in Charlotte.

If Daniels is hyped for the moment, it doesn't show.

"I approach it the same way I do anybody else — it's just another game of football," he insisted. "It's cool to have a game like this in Week 1. But if we beat Clemson by 100 and lose the rest of the season, we're not going to make it to the SEC (Championship). And if Clemson wins by 100, we can still win the SEC if everything else goes out way."

It's clear this is the sort of game that Daniels has long expected to play a leading role in, going back to his days at Mater Dei High School near Los Angeles.

The private school has produced a plethora of top athletes across a wide range of sports, so there was plenty of attention on Daniels after he threw for more than 12,000 yards — with an astonishing 152 touchdowns and just 14 interceptions — over his high school career.

Daniels was one of

Quick Facts

For the 20th time in school history, Georgia will open a season against a ranked opponent. This will be Georgia's first-ever top five matchup to open a season; the previous best was in 2013 when the fifth-ranked Bulldogs lost to eighth-ranked Clemson, 38-35, in Death Valley.

the nation's top recruits — No. 1 on some lists — when he signed with Southern California ahead of the 2018 season. He quickly locked down the No. 1 job in preseason camp to become just the second true freshman quarterback to start for the Trojans in his first game.

To that point, everything was going according to plan. But Daniels looked a bit overwhelmed that first season and USC struggled to a 5-7 mark. He held on to the starting job the next season, only to sustain a season-ending knee injury in the opener.

When it became clear the Trojans were going in a different direction, Daniels decided to transfer to Georgia. The Bulldogs needed a replacement for three-year starter Jake Fromm, but the newcomer wasn't fully recovered from his knee injury and started out working with the scout team in non-contact drills.

While Georgia struggled to settle on a starter — starting with redshirt freshman D'Wan Mathis, quickly switching to former non-scholarship backup Stetson Bennett, and then giving Mathis one last shot — Daniels stocically put in the work to persuade the Bulldogs that he was completely healthy.

"I was impressed with how he handled it," said Georgia linebacker Nakobe Dean, who got in a lot of work against Daniels in practice. "Coming from where he came from and who he was, how he handled being on the scout team, how he attacked it every day, gave us all the confidence in the world in him."

When Daniels finally earned the starting nod, Georgia's hopes of winning the SEC had faded with losses to Alabama and Florida.

But his performance over those final four games — Daniels completed 67.2% of his throws for 1,231 yards, with 10 touchdowns and two interceptions — has given the Bulldogs a huge boost of confidence heading into a season that has again raised hopes of claiming their first national title since 1980.

"Everyone on this team is on his back," Dean said. "We're counting on him to lead this team."

The California kid has quickly become one of the most popular players in the Bulldog Nation.

Daniels even landed an NIL sponsorship from Zaxby's, which operates a popular chain of fast-food chicken restaurants across the South.

But Daniels isn't thinking about chicken. He's focused on the Tigers.

"I've been consistent with this," Daniels said. "If a deal makes sense and it's not a time factor, it's not going to take attention away from anything that matters, then we do it."

Yellow Jackets’ Sims more confident to face Huskies in opener

By CHARLES ODUM
Associated Press

ATLANTA — Dave Patenaude said Jeff Sims is bringing new confidence into his second season as Georgia Tech’s quarterback against Northern Illinois on Saturday night.

Patenaude, the Yellow Jackets’ offensive coordinator and quarterbacks coach, has been amazed by Sims’ new understanding of the offense and belief in his skills in preseason practice.

“Some of the throws he’s made in the last two weeks, and him seeing the things he saw in the last two weeks, at this time last year he would have no idea to throw the ball there,” Patenaude said earlier this week.

Sims’ growth is crucial for the Yellow Jackets’ hopes to improve on three-win seasons in each of coach Geoff Collins’ first two years. Georgia Tech finished 3-7 in the pandemic-shortened 2020 season following a 3-9 record in Collins’ 2019 debut.

Last year, the Yellow Jackets finished 14th in the Atlantic Coast Conference in scoring and points allowed as Collins stuck with young starters, including Sims and another freshman, running back Jamhyr Gibbs.

Georgia Tech returns seven players on offense and 10 on defense who started at least five games last season. An experienced offensive line has drawn praise from Collins and Patenaude, but Sims is the key.

“I definitely feel more comfortable this year,” Sims said. “It’s just putting in the work and staying in the playbook ... watching film and just trying to learn every day.”

Northern Illinois coach Thomas Hammock is launching his third season following an 0-6 finish last year. The Huskies return 19 starters.

One of the few new starters for Northern Illinois is Michigan State transfer Rocky Lombardi, who adds crucial experience at quarterback. No other quarterback on the roster has completed a pass.

Lombardi, a junior, started six games and passed for 1,090 yards with eight touchdowns and nine interceptions last season at Michigan State. A highlight was his two TD passes in an upset win over No. 11 Northwestern.

BIG CROWD NO BIG DEAL FOR LOMBARDI

Hammock has reason to worry about some of his young players’ poise in their first game in front of a big crowd following last year’s pandemic attendance restrictions. Georgia Tech is allowing 100% capacity, but Hammock knows Lombardi won’t be bothered by the noise after playing in the Big Ten.

“Rocky with his experience, his leadership qualities, it’s not going to be too big for him,” Hammock said. “He’s going to be a calming presence for our wide receivers, he’s going to be a calming presence for our offensive line to get guys lined up. We couldn’t be more excited to have him on our team and playing in this game.”

HAMMOCK’S RUN GAME

Hammock produced 1,000-yard seasons in 2000 and 2001 as a running back for Northern Illinois. He was the Baltimore Ravens’ running backs coach from 2014-18. It’s no surprise he’s emphasizing the run game as coach.

Hammock plans to bring seven running backs to Atlanta, including prized freshman Antario Brown from Savannah, Georgia. Northern Illinois says Brown is the highest rated signee in the program’s history.

PLAY SMART

Georgia Tech was called for 8.9 penalties per game last season to rank 121st among Division I teams. “The whole focus since January has been playing clean football,” Collins said. “Don’t hurt ourselves.”

HELLO AP TOP 25

Georgia Tech will play four teams in the top 10 of The AP Top 25 preseason poll: No. 3 Clemson, No. 5 Georgia, No. 9 Notre Dame and No. 10 North Carolina. No other team in the nation has four top 10 teams on its schedule. The Yellow Jackets also will play No. 14 Miami.

RECEIVER TO WATCH

Collins says his defense must know where Huskies wide receiver Tyrice Richie lines up on every play. Richie returns after having 100 yards receiving in four of six games last season.

ATLANTA — Former President Donald Trump has endorsed University of Georgia football great Herschel Walker for the U.S. Senate and state Sen. Burt Jones for lieutenant governor.

Trump's friendship with Walker goes back to 1984, when Walker signed with the United States Football League's New Jersey Generals, a team Trump owned.

BUILDING A BETTER DOWNTOWN

MWCA, John's earn statewide recognition for their work

FROM STAFF REPORTS

ATLANTA — The Monroe-Walton Center for the Arts and John's Supermarket won two statewide awards for excellence recently.

The awards came during the Georgia Downtown Conference of the Georgia Downtown Association.

The Monroe-Walton Center for the Arts was honored as a Premier Partner, and John's was recognized for Best Façade Rehabilitation.

MWCA has been a part of downtown since 1993 and has grown significantly, with sales increased tenfold and membership up 60% in a year.

The center provides an opportunity for all citizens of Monroe to experience the arts. Among the opportunities is a beautiful garden with painted sidewalks, sculptures and a fountain.

The center also supports monthly art shows, providing local artists a chance to show their works and be awarded for their outstanding efforts. The artist market, a retail store open daily, also provides local artisans a low-cost opportunity to market and sell merchandise to sustain themselves as artists.

John's Supermarket was honored for its recent renovation project. The grocery store on South Broad Street transformed a car-centric development into a walkable, downtown-scaled supermarket.

The project extends the downtown form, encourages walkability between downtown and surrounding neighborhoods and helps preserve and expand a vital local business.

The addition of loft apartments makes this project unique and worthy of recognition.

The Monroe City Council will honor these winners at the monthly meeting Sept. 14.

GEORGIA VOTES 2021: Loganville City Council

Wilson says he’s passionate about serving the public

Gwinnett County sheriff’s deputy jumps into race for City Council
Denise Etheridge THE WALTON TRIBUNE

James Wilson is a Gwinnett County Sheriff’s deputy, a Master Gardener and a Presidential Volunteer Service Award recipient. He is now a candidate for Loganville City Council.

Wilson qualified to run last month. He joins six other candidates vying for three seats on the City Council in an at-large election on Nov. 2: incumbent Councilwoman Anne Huntsinger; locksmith Melanie Long; Terry Parsons, who works in pest control; Shenia Rivers-Devine, a life insurance agent; Rosa D. Steele, a bus driver; and Branden Whitfield, a business owner.

The Tribune caught up with Wilson recently.

“I have the privilege of helping those that can’t help themselves,” Wilson said of his community service projects. The deputy coordinates the Fresh Start Garden Program at the Gwinnett County Jail, is assigned to the Community Outreach Unit and works with local food banks.

Wilson said he wants to be a true public servant for the city of Loganville and to do that he has to listen to people. He said has been speaking with Loganville residents from all walks of life wherever he goes in town, be it a gas station or in a local restaurant. Wilson said he wants to know what their vision is for Loganville.

“That’s the thing about Loganville,” he said. “They protect each other, they help each other. They debate each other. We have a special type of people. We are a resource of wealth in our people.”

‘Often current resources can be modified to meet those needs (of the community), and sometimes we have to make an investment into new resources. But the smart way to do it is to clearly define the needs and wants of the community and to start there.’

– Deputy James Wilson, candidate for Loganville City Council

Wilson

The candidate said Loganville is at a crucial turning point regarding future development.

Wilson said he envisions Loganville as a “destination space,” with opportunities for “shopping, dining, entertainment and learning.”

Wilson said city leaders cannot simply wait for “organic growth” to happen.

“The urban sprawl is already here,” he said. “We’re 15 years behind the mark.”

Loganville must attract “a diverse selection of businesses that provide a solid tax base,” Wilson said. The candidate is not in favor of raising taxes.

“People are struggling as it is,” he said.

Wilson wants Loganville to be a welcoming community with an atmosphere of safety. Therefore, the city must continue to recruit and retain talented first responders by providing them modern equipment and offering salaries commensurate with their experience and in line with regional standards, he said.

“Further, we need to work together to strengthen local and regional partnerships for better cooperation between city and county,” Wilson said.

Wilson maintains that any decisions made on potential projects, like renovating the current City Hall or building a new library, must be based on the community’s vision, current needs and cost.

“Often times people are only looking at what is happening now and not taking into account, or taking the time to really look at the needs of the community,” Wilson said.

“Often current resources can be modified to meet those needs, and sometimes we have to make an investment into new resources. But the smart way to do it is to clearly define the needs and wants of the community and to start there.”

Wilson was born in Chattanooga, Tennessee, but was raised in North Carolina. He moved to Georgia in 1989 and made Loganville his home in 2008.

Prior to his career in law enforcement, Wilson worked at BellSouth. He and his wife have been married for 29 years and have three children and two grandchildren.

Council revisits park rental fees

Activities in Friendship Park would need to ‘benefit community’

Denise Etheridge THE WALTON TRIBUNE

The Social Circle City Council discussed formulating a park use policy for Friendship Park similar to one Madison follows for its town park during a work session Thursday.

“They basically want to ensure whatever goes on in their town park benefits their community,” said Downtown Director Amber McKibben.

Last month the council had directed McKibben to research park rental fees and rental policies in nearby cities, such as Loganville, Walnut Grove, Monroe, Covington and Oxford.

In May, the council voted to cancel city park rentals and allow citizens to use its parks on a first come, first serve basis.

In Madison, “private events are limited, and the intent is to prioritize events that will have a significant economic impact for downtown,” according to McKibben.

McKibben said if residents wanted to hold a birthday party at a park pavilion, they could do so even if Social Circle adopts a park policy for community-wide events similar to the one used by Madison.

Madison follows an event calendar for its town park, and blocks out those dates when the city holds large-scale events, City Manager

Eric Taylor said. Taylor advised that if Social Circle establishes a policy for Friendship Park, it could be tailored to meet the city’s specific needs. Council members said they would not want an event in Friendship Park to negatively affect downtown businesses, such as taking up parking for store customers.

Councilman Nathan Boyd said when he served on the Main Street Commission, residents told him they wanted the city to put on more downtown events.

Councilman Tyson Jackson said if the council establishes a park policy, electricity should be provided to any users.

McKibben was also asked about the Kiwanis Club’s intent to use Friendship Park for an event following the city’s Downtown Trick or Treating on Oct. 29. She said the club’s event is meant to piggyback of Social Circle’s trick-or-treat activity and draw families downtown for dining and entertainment. Council members suggested the Main Street Commission consider bringing the Kiwanis event under their purview.

The council also discussed a resolution of support for the Downtown Development Authority to pursue a Brownfields Assessment grant from the Environmental Protection Agency. The resolution would support the DDA resubmitting a grant application for funds to clean up the old Mill property on Cannon Drive. DDA has obtained the services of a grant writer, Terracon, to prepare the grant application.

DDA Chairman Mike Owens said the current application has been refined and therefore the DDA is confident it will be awarded the $400,000 grant.

Dr. Rick Boyte

I've seen too much dying.

This is a vaccine plea to my fellow Southerners.

I have lived in Mississippi for five decades and was educated almost exclusively at Southern institutions. In other words, I'm not a native Southerner, but I'm close.

My love and respect for my neighbors and for my community help me understand why many good people in Mississippi have been hesitant about vaccination against the coronavirus, even though I accepted the vaccine as soon as it was offered.

But as a palliative care doctor, I have also seen the ravages of the pandemic up close. In a state that has staggering levels of COVID-19 infections in the current wave, I am struggling to understand why so many of my fellow Mississippians continue to shun vaccination.

With 37% of the population fully vaccinated, the state had the worst rate in the nation as of Wednesday.

My job is to counsel and care for people with serious illness. For the past year and a half, that has included counseling those whose lives are threatened by complications from COVID. Many need aggressive life support that requires sedation to the point of unconsciousness so they can endure the devastation being visited on their bodies.

At the hospital where I work, we witnessed tragedies month after month early in the pandemic, before a period of relative respite gave false hope for an end to the suffering. Now, COVID has roared back, but with a difference: Cases often involve multiple unvaccinated members of one family, or of a small community.

On Aug. 20, the Clarion Ledger newspaper in Jackson reported the state outpaced the rest of the nation in the number of COVID cases per 100,000 individuals: 120 versus 43. One of Mississippi's counties has the fourth-highest rate of new infections in the country. The number of total deaths is still highest among those 65 and over, but the largest number of infected Mississippians is now between the ages of 25 and 39.

Metro Creative Connection

More than 20,000 students statewide are under quarantine, and reports of critically ill children are growing. The state lacks sound health policies for school attendance, and many parents feel beleaguered, with children ill or in danger of falling ill.

Yet despite the skyrocketing number of cases and tragic deaths of younger and healthier individuals, many in our communities have had little change of heart regarding vaccination. Many people are at risk — young children ineligible for vaccination, pregnant women and the very people who deliver medical care to the critically ill. In that context, the compassion of frontline health-care workers for the unvaccinated who fall ill is being strained to the point of collapse.

How did it come to this?

Many people throughout the South take pride in their work, close-knit families, devotion to religious life and down-to-earth values. Many aspire to an old-fashioned sense of honor, which includes deference to leadership, respect of others and a willingness, even eagerness, to perform acts of kindness. They also take pride in their independence, toughness and stoicism.

Those characteristics have led many Southerners to be vaccinated, especially over the summer, but far too many others have focused on the qualities of strength and independence and lost sight of what is honorable.

Over the years, I have heard countless patients say something on the order of "give it to me straight, doc, and no sugarcoating." So here it is: When you choose to remain unvaccinated, you are needlessly risking more than your own life — the people dying in Mississippi could be your loved ones, your neighbors or someone you'll never know. It is not honorable to invite others to die for your personal opinion or beliefs.

Heroism is risking your life for the sake of others; there is no heroism in risking the lives of others for the sake of self. People are being infected because of recklessness — their own, or someone else's. I realize that for those who have chosen to remain unvaccinated, reversing that decision will be difficult. It is unfortunate that this stand has become inseparable from personal identity.

Please, do not mistake this for a cause worthy of death. Trust that the vaccines are as safe as possible and that they work. Taking the vaccine during the pandemic is as heroic as donating blood during a natural disaster — and it has potentially a much larger impact on saving lives.

I was once told a Southerner is someone who will do anything for a stranger if asked but will never do so if told. I am sincerely asking, then. Pleading, really: Become vaccinated if you are eligible. We can turn this around, but no amount of optimism will be enough. We must act now for ourselves, our families, our neighbors and our communities.

Supreme Court took easy way out

National access to abortion is essentially dead.

This past week, the Supreme Court chose not to hear a case on a Texas abortion law outlawing abortion after the sixth week of pregnancy.

In doing so, it allowed Texas' law to stand, essentially ending abortion access in the state for practical, if not literal, purposes.

I'm not here to argue whether Texas' law is valid or not. I find it a bit creepy — in an unusual loophole created specifically to try and escape judicial scrutiny, the law doesn't allow the state to enforce the ban, but instead allows private citizens to sue people who might violate the prohibition, and profit off it in a bounty hunting scheme that sounds a bit sordid to me.

But I learned long ago arguing over abortion issues is a losing game. No one comes out any wiser or more informed from an abortion argument, just heated and more convinced than ever of their own correct stance. It's a losing proposition from word one.

So don't worry, I'm not about to argue for the murder of babies, nor am I here to decry the age-old practice of old white men interfering with the private lives of women. You want to have those discussions, go online and have at it, there are plenty of trolls just waiting to take that bait.

No, I'm most upset at the way the Supreme Court handled the issue in the first place.

They didn't listen to this incredibly important case that affects millions of people in various ways, discuss the constitutionality of it with great care and then issue a long, detailed description of why they came to their decision.

You know, the way the Court usually works.

No, they chose not to hear the case — which, of course, is their prerogative, legally. They issued merely a short, unsigned statement with a few excuses of why they felt the case was beyond their purview and let the law stand without further discussion.

The vote, of course, was the Court's near-permanent stasis of 5-4, as the three liberal dissented and Chief Justice John Roberts tried to pretend to some impartiality and say, "Hey, maybe we should do our jobs here."

The whole thing stinks of moral cowardice. The Court's decision is essentially a death knell for Roe v. Wade, defanging the case for abortion access to the point as to make it practically worthless.

That should be worth a full discussion and an actual, precedent-setting decision.

Instead, we got the Court sidestepping the issue and acting like it's not their job.

No matter your opinion of abortion, we should all agree we deserve a Court that actually weighs the matter seriously. Instead, they took the easy, cowardly way out.

After signs and speeches, debate comes down to counting to 4

I don't know exactly what to make of item 10.2 on the agenda for the Board of Commissioners meeting Tuesday, "discussion and possible action regarding Walton County Public Safety Complex."

But after a work session Thursday night, I wouldn't be surprised to see that become a vote to proceed with building that complex — a new Sheriff's Office, jail and Walton EMS headquarters — off Georgia Avenue near the county offices of the Division of Children and Family Services and Division of Child Support Enforcement.

Chairman David Thompson said he's going to support moving forward on the project if he can "make the numbers work."

The number thrown around for a new jail is around $120 million. Thompson said the site being discussed is near the Government Building to allow for easier transport of inmates. That seems to be a line in the sand

Commissioner Mark Banks gave perhaps the most impassioned talk from the podium, saying he'd been frozen out by former Chairman Kevin Little and was ready to get on with the show.

"I've been like a knot on a log for nine years," Banks said. "I was sitting here by myself. I won't point any fingers at any commissioner, but there (needed to be) four to have the backbone."

Are there four to have the "backbone" now? The chairman usually only votes in case of a tie, but bet Thompson would vote. So too it seems would Banks. That leaves two more needed to make this happen.

There has been a lot of talk about the numbers — millions of dollars here, inmate population there. But ultimately it comes down to counting to four. We may see how close on Tuesday.

Finally, churches mobilize the vote

At last – there's been a sighting of an organized voter registration drive!

The outside front of a local grocery store was the base station for the drive. A local Black church promoted the event on its marquee board. Even though I'm not certain who is the organizer of this event, just to see it promoted by a Black church was enough to give this event a stamp of excellence.

This is not to say that voter registration drives don't occur in the county, I know they do because I've organized one-on-one drives. Time is of essence and with the recent passage of the revised voting law, there's much work to do.

If you need an example of radical moves, look to specific sections of Georgia's voting law. Nevertheless, my focus is on the celebration of the rise of openly grassroots campaigns such as voter registration drives in the county!

Georgia's State Election Board rule 183-1-6-.02 says in a nutshell, it's OK for voter registration programs and with assisting eligible citizens with registration, including mailing voters' applications to applicable registrars. On the other hand, this rule has prohibited voter registration activities at sites that involve inebriated people, drugs, alcohol consumptions, and illegal or criminal activities.

So, there you go — select a site that is safe. Now, let's get back to my point about grassroots campaigns.

Finally, the blinders are off, Walton County smells like a breath of fresh air. Now that our neighboring counties have spoken with record voter turnouts that produced winning results, the atmosphere of voting drives is steadily pushing into Walton County. Brace yourself; signs are indicating that foot soldiers are grassroots mobilizing to get the message out: Register to vote! A grassroots movement is all about systematically empowering the people. In this case, the tool is a voter registration application. It only takes one grassroots movement of this kind to gain momentum.

Historically, Black churches have led grassroots movements because of the long-standing systemic discrimination in the U.S. then and even today! An internet search defines systemic discrimination as patterns of behaviors, policies or practices designed to limit individuals or a group of people the right to opportunities. The mobilization of grassroots movements took place in the fellowship halls of churches because it was a safe place for Black people to gather. Now the Black church is able to reach the masses with the same message it tried to do in 1870 after the passage of the 15th Amendment's right to vote.

This amendment meant nothing because Black people still couldn't vote in reality with the passage of more twisted systemic discrimination. Therefore, it took more legislation, this time the Voting Rights Act of 1965 in response to the heinous acts in Mississippi and the state troopers' retaliation to peaceful protests in Selma, Alabama. These two laws were just ink on the paper because newer versions of systemic discrimination have now created a need to revisit the voting rights! Oh, but I see the dawn of a new morning because of the organized public grassroots voter drives.

The Georgia secretary of state's office has a dedicated page to learn all about voting and added an option to register to vote online. Go to https://sos.ga.gov/index.php/elections/register_to_vote or contact your local church. A vote is a powerful act that can have influence. Be the change by becoming a voter!

Family grateful for column on the end of the Lucile Pickens Library

I am Lucile Pickens' older granddaughter, and I am writing on behalf of her family to thank Nowell Briscoe for the wonderful column he wrote about the dissolution of the Lucile Pickens Library at Monroe First United Methodist Church.

Mr. Briscoe's column summed up Grandmother Pickens' life and contributions perfectly.

My grandmother loved her church and valued books and reading, and she loved sharing her ability to help others grow in their personal faith through Christian literature and resources. As Mr. Briscoe noted so beautifully, she kept regular Wednesday and Sunday morning library hours at the church library, circulating up to 80-100 books per week at one time. She did cherish the opportunity to select books in honor or memory of others that reflected some aspect of their life, as noted in the column. This was a ministry of love and faith for her, and one she loved fulfilling. She was thrilled when the library was named for her in 1983, and also when Lucile Pickens Day was held at the church several years later to honor her for her ministry of love. My family and I were present at both occasions, and remember how much they meant to her. Unfortunately, a pastor in the late 1980s felt threatened because she was attracting more people to the library on Sunday mornings than he was to a class he was teaching during the Sunday school hour, and he decreed the library would remain closed on Sunday mornings. That, plus her ill health, led to the closure of the library and its eventual demise.

We were saddened and dumbfounded when we learned of the dissolution of the library about 10 days ago, and were stunned no one had reached out to us from the church to let us know of the dissolution of her beloved library. My parents, Robert and Darien Pickens, have lived in the same house and had the same phone number for almost 60 years, so I am puzzled as to why no one from the church was able to reach out to them. I immediately contacted the church to suggest alternative ways to keep the library alive, but my attempts to contact the pastor and Administrative Council chair went unacknowledged. We now realize this process has been in the works for some time, but we are saddened that no one in an official capacity at First United Methodist considered it important to let her immediate family members know of the dissolution.

I have been a teacher and a church historian at my own United Methodist church for many years, and I was responsible for reorganizing our own church library a couple of years ago (largely using the knowledge taught to me by Grandmother Pickens during the many years I kept her company in the Lucile Pickens Library whenever we were visiting in Georgia).

Our family would like to thank Nowell Briscoe for his wonderful column as well as his friendship with my grandmother, which meant so much to her. We hope others who read his column will learn about who she was and why she was such a beloved teacher and librarian in Monroe for so many years, and we are happy that others have chosen to keep her memory alive.

Sincerely,
Barbara Pickens Foster, Lewisville, N.C.

Math class turns to hands on tools to teach first grade fundamentals

THE WALTON TRIBUNE

As people who still count on their fingers when trying to determine how much something costs, math is easier when one has a tactile aspect to deal with. The ancients invented the abacus for this very purpose, allowing them to tally numbers easily when they ran out of fingers and toes. At George Walton Academy, teachers have their own tools to teach students how to manipulate numbers beyond just rattling off numbers at the edge of one’s hand.

Kerry Franklin, a first grade teacher at GWA, uses “fidget toys” to give students a chance to make math a physical activity, including devices like “Pop Its,” simple rubber-foam shapes with individual cells that can be pushed in, or dice, small and giant, to determine numbers and averages. “During our math block, we start out using whole group lessons and then break off into small group lessons,” Franklin said. “During small group lessons, I like to use a lot of hands-on manipulatives to create an engaging activity to emphasize conceptual learning.” Franklin said the devices work wonders. “Pop Its’ are the latest craze and the students love to ‘pop’ out the addition facts on the ‘Pop It,’” Franklin said. “Using ‘Pop Its’ or the big dice or any manipulative helps with keeping students engaged and all students can benefit from hands-on learning.” Franklin said staying on top of such trends helps her teach her students more effectively. “I follow a lot of teacher blogs that have the latest and greatest ideas for teachers,” she said. “Using teacher blogs helps me come up with new ideas and stay current with the latest trends and ideas for my classroom.” It’s just another roll of the dice in finding what connects with children but for Franklin, her lessons are coming up all 7s.

With the arrival of new school year comes excitement at LCA

The 2021-22 school year is upon us and there is no denying Loganville Christian Academy has fared very well following a year of distance learning, COVID-19 contact tracing and canceled events. LCA has seen a 16% increase in enrollment since last school year including opening a new PreK-3 class. After the previous school year, we knew that this year needed to be one of the best ones yet. Our focus quickly became pressing “reset” in all aspects of the LCA experience. In high school, we have added multiple new classes to our course catalog. Advanced Placement physics,

AP language and composition and AP psychology are new AP courses that students will have an opportunity to take this year. In addition to the new AP courses, LCA has added a variety of new electives to the course list as well. These include zoology, oceanography, marketing, broadcast journalism and guitar. Students and parents provided input into the addition of these courses and students are already diving deep into the content for each of these classes. Of course, with increased enrollment comes a few growing pains, but these are things that we will gladly work through as we grow the LCA family! We are slated to begin construction on an auxiliary gym before the end of the school year and we will be adding upgraded football and baseball locker rooms. Upper school students will soon be able to enjoy a new covered patio area for lunch outside, and almost every classroom received new flooring and paint this summer. In addition to facility upgrades, we were also able to upgrade our technology. Teachers and students have access to new or updated devices that will enhance the learning experience in all classrooms campus-wide. One of the most noticeable improvements when you pull onto campus is the upgraded theater. The newly formed LCA Fine Arts Alliance went to work quickly securing funds to paint the exterior of the theater as well as remodel the interior. The LCA Community is eagerly anticipating the first theatrical performance happening later this semester. The Fine Arts Alliance is committed to raising funds and support for all of LCA’s Fine Arts programs which are growing all the way from kindergarten through high school. Just like fine arts, our athletic department is benefiting from the increase in student enrollment. From our Play LCA program through varsity sports, we are seeing more and more students participating in athletics. In middle and high school sports alone, we have seen a 16% increase in our student athlete numbers. Seasons are underway in cheer, cross country, football, softball and volleyball. In addition to regular season play, LCA has already hosted a cross country invitational as well as a middle school volleyball tournament. Upper school students were thrilled we were able to bring back Alpha Camp for high school students and Whatchamacallit Camp for grades 6-8. These few days of spiritual development, student bonding and fun helped us to kick off the new school year in a positive and uplifting way. God continues to move throughout our campus, and He is writing amazing stories in the lives of many of our LCA families. Rachel Ernst is the headmaster and upper school principal of Loganville Christian Academy.

FURTHER REVIEW HISTORY

PRESIDENTIAL WISDOM

By Charles Apple | THE SPOKESMAN-REVIEW

One hundred and twenty years ago, not-quite-yet President Teddy Roosevelt uttered one of the most famous statements he'd ever make. Many presidents have turned bits of speeches or even off-the-cuff retorts into memorable quotations. Here's a look at 14 of them:

JOHN ADAMS

"Facts are stubborn things; and whatever may be our wishes, our inclinations, or the dictates of our passion, they cannot alter the state of facts and evidence."

He was citing a proverb while summing up a 1770 criminal case resulting from the Boston Massacre. Adams became president 27 years later.

NATIONAL GALLERY OF ART

THOMAS JEFFERSON

"In matters of style, swim with the current; in matters of principle, stand like a rock."

This was widely attributed to Jefferson 80 or so years after he left the White House. The experts based in Jefferson's former home of Monticello at the University of Virginia say it can't be proven he ever actually said or wrote it.

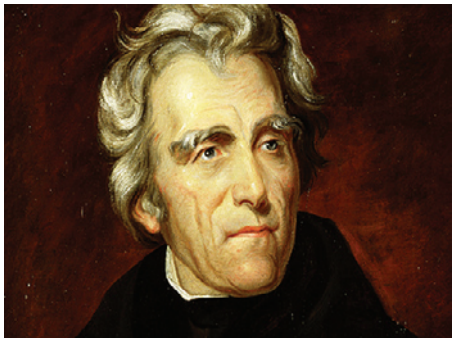

THE WHITE HOUSE

ANDREW JACKSON

"There are no necessary evils in government. Its evils exist only in its abuses."

In a message to the Senate justifying his veto of a proposed Bank of the United States on July 10, 1832

U.S. SENATE

ABRAHAM LINCOLN

"A house divided against itself cannot stand ... this government cannot endure, permanently half slave and half free."

From a speech Lincoln gave on June 16, 1858, at the Illinois Republican state convention when the party nominated him to run for U.S. Senate. Lincoln would be elected president two-and-a-half years later.

LIBRARY OF CONGRESS

THEODORE ROOSEVELT

"Speak softly, and carry a big stick."

On Sept. 2, 1901, then-Vice President Roosevelt called this an "old proverb" in a speech in Minnesota as he described the art of being ready to militarily back up U.S. diplomacy efforts. Four days later, President William McKinley was shot and, eight days after that, Roosevelt became president.

LIBRARY OF CONGRESS

CALVIN COOLIDGE

"Nothing in the world can take the place of persistence. Talent will not; nothing is more common than unsuccessful men with talent. Genius will not; unrewarded genius is almost a proverb. Education will not; the world is full of educated derelicts. Persistence and determination alone are omnipotent."

From a speech in Texas on Aug. 15, 1929

THE WHITE HOUSE

JOHN F. KENNEDY

"And so, my fellow Americans: ask not what your country can do for you – ask what you can do for your country. My fellow citizens of the world: ask not what America will do for you, but what together we can do for the freedom of man."

Legislators may take up Earned Income Tax Credit

Relief measure may trickle down to the state level in 2022 session

Dave Williams CAPITOL BEAT

ATLANTA — With Georgia's finances in better shape than last year at this time, the General Assembly is expected to consider tax relief this winter aimed at low- and middle-income Georgia families.

House Bill 510, which was introduced last February, would provide a state-level Earned Income Tax Credit modeled after a federal tax credit that has been around since 1975.

A state EITC would help prop up the bottom lines of working Georgians whose livelihoods were disrupted by the coronavirus pandemic, said Georgia Rep. Ron Stephens, one of the bill's co-sponsors.

"The other side believes cutting government checks is the answer," said Stephens, R-Savannah. "We believe in incentivizing those people who will go out and work to continue to work."

Democrats as well as Republicans back the legislation. Rep. Scott Holcomb, D-Atlanta, is also among its co-sponsors.

The measure also enjoys public support. A statewide poll released last month by the Georgia Budget and Policy Institute found nearly 70% approval for using some of Georgia's share of federal COVID-19 relief funds to create a state-level Earned Income Tax Credit.

Danny Kansa, a senior policy analyst with the institute, said President Joe Biden's $1.2 trillion infrastructure bill making its way through Congress will provide plenty of money for water and sewer improvements and expanding broadband in Georgia.

That means the $4.8 billion the state will be receiving from the American Rescue Plan Congress passed last March should be available for the proposed tax credit, he said. The credit would cost the state about $130 million a year, according to the institute's calculations.

Stephens

"It would benefit over a million kids in Georgia and their families," Kansa said. "In some rural counties, above 50% of the families are eligible. That's a strong motivator for rural lawmakers."

Under HB 510, Georgians would qualify for the state-level EITC if they are eligible to receive the federal tax credit. The state-level credit would equal 10% of what qualified taxpayers receive from the federal credit.

Kansa said nearly 30 states already have a state-level Earned Income Tax Credit, including South Carolina and other heavily Republican states.

Kyle Wingfield, president and CEO of the Georgia Public Policy Foundation, said the budget surplus the state has built up despite the economic ravages of the pandemic means the General Assembly can afford a state-level EITC.

"Georgia's good fiscal stewardship, especially during the pandemic, has put it in a good position to provide relief to Georgia taxpayers," Wingfield said. "We expect a variety of strong proposals to do just that."

Stephens said he expects legislative Republicans to push several tax-relief proposals during the 2022 legislative session, including a further rollback of Georgia's income tax rate. Lawmakers reduced the rate from 6% in 2018 to 5.75% but have yet to deliver a promised second round of tax cutting, citing the effects of the pandemic on the state's finances.

Stephens said he'd like to see the state income tax rate reduced to 5.5% or less.

"We need to cut back our income tax to compete with surrounding states, particularly North Carolina," he said.

Besides cutting Georgia's income tax rate and providing a state-level Earned Income Tax Credit, Stephens said lawmakers also may consider exempting retired veterans from state income taxes.

Former Glynn DA indicted

ATLANTA — A Glynn County grand jury indicted former District Attorney Jackie Johnson for misconduct in the investigation of the shooting death of Ahmaud Arbery.

Johnson is charged with violating her oath as a public official and obstructing a police officer. The first charge is a felony punishable by one to five years in prison, while the second is a misdemeanor.

Specifically, Johnson is accused of showing favoritism in the investigation toward suspect Greg McMichael, who had worked as an investigator in her office, and "failing to treat Ahmaud Arbery and his family fairly and with dignity," the indictment stated.

The obstruction charge results from Johnson telling two police officers not to arrest McMichael's son Travis, according to the indictment.

"Our office is committed to ensuring those who are entrusted to serve are carrying out their duties ethically and honestly," said Georgia Attorney General Chris Carr.

Arbery, a 25-year-old Black man, was gunned down in February 2020. He was jogging when the two McMichaels allegedly armed themselves, got into a pickup truck and chased him. They were able to use their truck to cut off his route.

A third suspect, William "Roddie" Bryan, is accused of joining the chase. All three face state charges of malice murder, felony murder, aggravated assault, false imprisonment and criminal attempt to commit a felony. They also were indicted by a federal grand jury for hate crimes.

Jail: Little question of need, much dispute on best site

Michael Timm, who lives on Wilkins Drive near the proposed site for a Walton County Public Safety Complex, asks commissioners how they would like living near a new jail at the end of a Board of Commissioners work session Thursday night. Chairman David Thompson pushed back at the assertion that a jail would lead to a decrease in property tax values. David Clemons photos | The Tribune the Government Building, where Superior Court meets, for easier transporting of inmates.

The first choice, an East Church Street property, was scuttled after a huge public outcry.

Much of that opposition remains — the “No Jail in My Neighborhood” signs soon gave way to “No Jail in Any Neighborhood” — but it seems Thompson is ready to proceed if the second-choice site proves to be acceptable.

“This process has been going on since 2009, and we’re here today to try to get some sort of resolution and go forward on it,” Thompson said at the start of the meeting Thursday night.

By the time the confab was finished nearly two hours later, a few people had walked out in a huff and others had gotten up to speak multiple times.

No one voiced any opposition to building a new jail. But there was plenty of disagreement over where to put it.

Several Monroe residents said they favored a site on Cherry Hill Road, where the jail would be surrounded by more industrial neighbors.

Councilman David Dickinson of Monroe noted two grand jury reports that called that the best site for a new jail.

“You’re not going to get any blowback if you put it over there,” he said.

“Do we need a jail? Abso-damn-lutely,” said Dickinson, who is also an attorney who has served as a judge in municipal courts and as an acting judge in juvenile and superior courts in Walton County.

George Baker Jr., of Baker Street, says he isn’t worried about living near the proposed jail. ‘It’s ironic that 11 years ago, I presented this site to none other than Kevin Little, the illustrious chairman at the time,’ Baker said. ‘Because I supported Gerald Atha (a commissioner who unsuccessfully opposed Little for chairman in 2012), he wouldn’t have anything to do with me, but that’s another story for another day.’

Maj. Wade Harris of the Walton County Sheriff’s Office notes that two Georgia Department of Corrections officers were killed when inmates jumped them on a transport bus in Putnam County in June 2017. Harris says transporting inmates is a dangerous activity and it happens multiple times a day between the jail on South Madison Avenue and the Government Building on South Hammond Drive where the Walton County Superior Court meets.

“I think the county got screwed on the deal when those new pods were built. All I’m asking ... is proceed cautiously. Really, really look at it. It’s like the old song, ‘I’m not too proud to beg,’ and I’m standing here begging, do not put it in a residential area.”

The meeting revealed several facts about the ongoing controversy.

- Thompson said a “worst case scenario” for funding the project is a 1.57-mill property tax increase. He said that would mean a $62 increase for every $100,000 in assessed value on a home in the county.
- The chairman said that would happen should the board “have to approve (the increase) to amortize the debt.” But he said there is the option of using “other revenue” the county isn’t receiving currently, such as payments in lieu of taxes, or PILOT money, from industrial projects on the south end of the county.
- The East Church Street deal remains for the county to buy the land from a Loganville LLC with ties to Darrell McWaters of Reliant Homes. The county would pay $500,000 and the business would donate the rest. Thompson said the county is open to a covenant that it wouldn’t condemn any neighboring properties.
- Thompson said no decisions have been made about the future of the current jail on South Madison Avenue. Although rumors have flown about a deal to put federal detainees there, Sheriff Joe Chapman said there’s also a possibility of the space being used for a movie studio.

Monroe City Councilman David Dickinson cites two grand jury reports that cite a Cherry Hill Road location as the best place to build a new Walton County jail.

- Maj. Wade Harris of the Sheriff’s Office said people who want to build the jail somewhere other than the site proposed for near the Government Building are “not thinking about the safety.”

He cited the 2017 escape of two inmates in Putnam County who shot and killed two corrections officers while on a Georgia Department of Corrections transport bus.

- Commissioner Mark Banks, a Republican from Loganville, is on board. He said his efforts to fix the jail situation were stymied by then-Chairman Kevin Little upon taking office in 2013.

“I hope to God we put it to vote next Tuesday night,” Banks said. “If we do, I can assure you where my support’s going to be.”

The only item about the Public Safety Complex on the agenda for the meeting at 6 p.m. Tuesday is “discussion and possible action.”

Trump: Endorses 2 for next year’s Georgia elections

“Thank you to my friend President Trump for your support and encouragement!” Walker said. “Together, we will win back the U.S. Senate for Georgia!”

The Republican field in the 2022 Senate race also includes Georgia Agriculture Commissioner Gary Black; Latham Sadler, an Atlanta banking executive and former Navy SEAL officer; and Kelvin King, a small business owner and Air Force veteran also from Atlanta.

Jones, R-Jackson, was the first elected official in Georgia to support Trump for president back in 2016 and served as Trump campaign co-chairman in Georgia in 2016 and 2020.

Jones is a part of the all-Republican Walton County legislative delegation, representing the southern part of the county including Social Circle, Jersey and Walnut Grove.

He also was among a group of Senate Republicans who asked Gov. Brian Kemp to call a special session of the General Assembly shortly after last November’s elections to consider changes to Georgia’s election laws.

The group conducted hearings inside the state Capitol in December that lent ammunition to Trump’s claims of election fraud, which were subsequently dismissed in the courts.

“I am the only person in my race who has had the president’s back from day one, and it’s an honor to have his full support,” Jones said. “As lieutenant governor, I will work to advance the president’s America First agenda and continue to grow our economy, improve our schools, secure our elections, and keep Georgia safe.”

Also vying for the next year’s Republican nomination for lieutenant governor are state Senate President Pro Tempore Butch Miller of Gainesville and GOP activist Jeanne Seaver of Savannah.

Two Democratic state representatives, Erick Allen of Smyrna and Derrick Jackson of Tyrone, also are looking to step up to lieutenant governor.

The current lieutenant governor, Republican Geoff Duncan, is not seeking reelection.

Trump previously endorsed Walton County’s congressman, Rep. Jody Hice of Greensboro, in his bid to unseat Secretary of State Brad Raffensperger next year.

Kemp endorsements

Gov. Brian Kemp also will be on the ballot next year as he runs for reelection.

The Republican rolled out a list of legislators who have endorsed his campaign. The list included three of the four members of the Walton delegation: Sen. Bill Cowser of Athens and Reps. Tom Kirby of Loganville and Bruce Williamson of Monroe.

Williamson serves as the secretary and treasurer of the House Majority Caucus.

Tribune Editor and Publisher David Clemons contributed to this report from Monroe.

THE WALTON TRIBUNE

MADISON — Though it doesn't count in the region standings anymore, Monroe Area picked up bragging rights over longtime high school football rival Morgan County with a 30-0 win over the Bulldogs Friday night at Bill Corry Stadium.

It was the Hurricanes' first win at Morgan County since 2003. Meanwhile, Monroe Area's defense pitched its second shutout of the season during the victory, not allowing the Bulldogs a first down until the fourth quarter.

The Hurricanes came out of the gate hot and marched down the field and scored first on a 4-yard run by Alan Jones.

Morgan County gifted Monroe 2 more points with a bobbled punt snap in the end zone that resulted in a safety.

Monroe Area capitalized on the momentum and added another touchdown, this time through the air, when Selatian Straughter connected with JB Flud in the corner of the end zone from 17 yards out.

Straughter took it in himself for Monroe's third touchdown of the night, scoring from 3 yards out. The Hurricanes successfully converted the 2-point try to go up 24-0 just before the half.

Once the teams returned from halftime, Monroe Area added one final score to its lead with another rushing touchdown by Straughter, this time from 25 yards out. However, the point after try was blocked leaving the score at 30-0.

Monroe Area gets a bye week next week before returning home to face Clarkston for homecoming.

HALL PASS: Devils win after QB leaves

Loganville turns to passing rotation to beat the 7A Bulldogs

Stephen Milligan

THE WALTON TRIBUNE

CUMMING — The Red Devils came off the bye week looking to establish a new identity as they broke in a new quarterback — or two after the sudden transfer of Gavin Hall, who started the high school football season opener on Aug. 20.

Leslie

Loganville resorted to quarterback by committee as they fought the host Bulldogs of Forsyth Central in a nail-biter, with the Devils ultimately prevailing 28-24 in an non-region game Friday night.

Forsyth Central started quickly, scoring on the first play from scrimmage with a 79-yard touchdown run to take a 7-0 lead in only 12 seconds.

Loganville started with Solomon Leslie under center but spread the ball around in an attempt to move the ball, with Avery Hamilton lining up next to Leslie in the shotgun and alternating snaps.

It failed to work on the first drive, as after one long run by Leslie, the Bulldogs stiffened the line and forced a punt.

Forsyth moved the ball at will on the ensuing drive, with two big plays moving them into the red zone before finally scoring on a 1-yard surge into the end zone for another touchdown and a 14-0 lead.

Cooper Kennedy got a chance to quarterback next and found some success, running and passing for positive yards and first downs.

Midway through the drive, Jaylin McCray took over and continued the push, finally scoring on a 2-yard touchdown run. The kick by Devin Pugh was good to cut the lead in half.

Loganville received the ball to start the third quarter and Kennedy resumed quarterback duties, driving across midfield by air and ground. But on fourth-and-2, it was Hamilton who took the handoff and ran 40 yards to tie the game at two touchdowns a team.

Forsyth answered with a drive of its own, capitalizing on a few Loganville penalties to reach midfield before finally scoring on a 33-yard touchdown pass.

Yet Loganville wasn't down for long. Two plays onto the ensuing drive, Kennedy took the snap and dashed 79 yards for a Red Devil touchdown to tie the game at 21 apiece.

The Bulldogs would then proceed to eat up half the fourth quarter on a long, extended drive to the 3-yard line, but stalled out there, took a delay penalty and settled for a 25-yard field goal to go up 24-21 with 6:24 left in the game.

Hamilton would lead the Devils on ensuing drive to reach the Forsyth 18, then Kennedy took over, finally scoring with an 18-yard touchdown pass to PJ Rogers.

Down by 4, the Bulldogs found themselves on their back feet, forced back by an intentional grounding penalty, then throwing an interception for a pick-six. But a roughing-the-passer penalty against the Devils wiped away the score and gave the Bulldogs a first down and new life.

With time running out, the Bulldogs drove to midfield but couldn't convert again, finally turning it over on downs after sacking the quarterback at the Forsyth 33 to end the threat and win the game.

Loganville (1-1) will be on the road again next week against Parkview. The Panthers lost 34-27 to North Gwinnett on Friday.

Charlotte showdown

UGA returns to the gridiron Saturday in Charlotte against the Clemson Tigers

Jack Duffey THE RED & BLACK

In a top-five showdown, fifth-ranked Georgia travels to Charlotte, North Carolina, to face off against No. 3 Clemson for each team's season opener. Both teams enter the 2021 season with their sights on the College Football Playoff and are looking for a signature win to boost on their team's résumé. Here are four numbers to know before the game:

7 The Bulldogs enter on a seven-game season-opener win streak. The last time they lost their first game of the season was Aug. 31, 2013, against none other than Clemson. Georgia came back the next season and returned the favor with a season-opening win over Clemson in 2014, and has yet to lose a Week 1 game since then. That streak will be put to the test as they are officially underdogs against the Tigers, according to the ESPN Football Power Index.

404 The last time Georgia took the field against another team was the 2021 Peach Bowl against Cincinnati. In that game, JT Daniels and the Bulldog offense threw for 404 yards while only rushing for 45 yards. The difference in passing to rushing yards was an increasing trend after Daniels took over as the starting quarterback for the last four games of the 2020 season. Against Clemson, a one-dimensional offensive attack is unlikely to be successful, so the Bulldogs must maintain a solid balance between the run and pass games.

75,412 For the first time since Jan. 1, 2020, Georgia will play a football game in front of a capacity crowd. When the Bulldogs kick off against the Tigers at 7:30 p.m. at Bank of America Stadium, 75,412 fans will fill the stands to watch both teams start their new season. Despite the week one matchup being at a neutral site, both sets of fans are expected to travel and sell out the stadium. "I'm ready to play a game, our kids are ready to play a game. We need to play a game. We need to play a game to get better," head coach Kirby Smart said. "I don't know that we are going to get better continuing to practice against each other, the walk-throughs, to teach. There's no more time for that."

3.8 Clemson defensive coordinator Brent Venables has consistently put out one of the best defenses in the nation each season, and that should once again be the case in 2021. Last season the Clemson defense averaged 3.8 sacks per game, good for fifth in the nation. Georgia's offensive line must attempt to slow down Clemson's dangerous front seven or the offense will stumble.

Head coach Kirby Smart will lead his sixth Georgia team into Saturday's Duke's Mayo Classic game against third-ranked Clemson at Bank of America Stadium in Charlotte, N.C. Tony Walsh | Special to The Tribune

Special teams plays, late TD lift Warriors

Social Circle scores late touchdown to tie it, but Walnut Grove answers and picks off 2 passes to seal victory

WALNUT GROVE

David Johnson CORRESPONDENT

They aren't called special teams for nothing. On Friday night at the Grove, Walnut Grove took advantage of three big plays in the kicking game to pull out a 13-6 win over cross-county rival Social Circle in a high school football game. With the victory, the Warriors, earned their first win of the season, snapped a six-game losing skid, and avoided a loss to a Class A team. But more importantly, it gives them some much needed momentum heading into Region 8-AAAAA play in two weeks. Social Circle lost for the first time in three games and for the second straight year to the Warriors. It was much closer than last year's 42-16 beatdown. But it was no less disappointing given the opportunity the Redskins had to pull off the upset. Trailing 6-0 through 3½ quarters, the Redskins finally got on the board midway through the fourth, set up by an interception by K.J. Reid, who returned it to the Warriors 39-yard line. From there, Social went the distance in six plays, culminated by a 9-yard pass from Logan Cross to Dashon Hyman with 7:39 left in the game. The PAT was no good. They had three more shots on offense, but a shanked punt and two interceptions dashed their hopes. On its next possession, Social Circle was stopped in three plays and forced to punt. The ball went off the side of Hunter Wise's foot and into the arms of Walnut Grove's Cassius Hann, who returned the ball to the 1.

From there Skyler Jones crashed over for what turned out to be the winning points. Junior Rhett Lamberth then became the defensive hero for the Warriors, intercepting Cross on the Redskins' next two possessions to seal the win. But the rest of the Walnut Grove defense pitched in as well, holding the Redskins' high-powered Air Raid offense to fewer than 200 total yards. Cross passed for just 22 yards in the first half and finished with 140. Offensively, Walnut Grove stuck mostly to the ground, finishing with 122 yards on 44 carries. The duo of Skyler Jones and Nolan Yancey combined for 113 yards. Quarterback Ashton Adams was efficient through the air, completing 7 of 10 passes for 98 yards. Walnut Grove had their chances in the first half, moving inside the Redskins 5-yard line twice but settling for a pair of field goals. On their second possession, the Warriors started at their own 10 and moved to the Redskins 3, sparked by a 40-yard catch and run by junior receiver Zach Ford. But Jones was stopped short of the goal line and three consecutive carries and Brenden Hamrick kicked a 20-yard field goal on the second play of the second quarter. The second score was set up when sophomore Kendall Lee retrieved a tipped pass off the hands of Redskins receiver K.J. Reid at the Social Circle 24 and returned it to the 15. Six plays later, the Warriors stalled at the 7 and settled for Hamrick's second kick of the half, this one from 23 yards. Walnut Grove (1-2) will be off next week while Social Circle (2-1) travels to Eatonton to face Putnam County.

IN THE JUVENILE COURT OF WALTON COUNTY STATE OF GEORGIA

IN THE INTEREST OF: Case Number: 147-21-0352

I.K.G. Sex: Female; Age: 1 Year; DOB: 08/22/2019, Child Under 18 Years of Age.

NOTICE OF SUMMONS AND EFFECT OF TERMINATION JUDGMENT

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN, the biological mother, Miyucca Kemiah Brown, and the legal father, Ketron Rooke Green of I. K. G. :

Georgia law provides that you can permanently lose your rights as a parent. A petition to terminate parental rights has been filed requesting the court to terminate your parental rights to your child. A court hearing for your case has been scheduled for Monday the 18th day of October, 2021 , at 1:30 p.m., at the Juvenile Court of Walton County. A copy of the petition may be obtained by the parents from the Clerk of the Juvenile Court at Walton County Courthouse, Monroe, Georgia, during regular business hours , Monday through Friday, 9:00 o'clock am until 5:00 o'clock p.m. exclusive of holidays. A free copy shall be available to the parent. Upon request, the copy will be mailed to the requester -parents or alleged parents only. The general nature of the allegations are abandonment and failure to comply with your reunification case plan.

If you fail to appear, the court can terminate your rights in your absence. If the court at the trial finds that the facts set out in the petition to terminate parental rights are true and that termination of your rights will serve the best interest of your child, the court can enter a judgment ending the rights to your child. If the judgment terminates your parental rights, you will no longer have any rights to your child. This means that you will not have the right to visit, contact, or have custody of your child or make any decisions affecting your child or your child's earnings of property. Your child will be legally freed to be adopted by someone else. Even if your parental rights are terminated:

(1) You will still be responsible for providing financial support (child support payments) for your child's care unless and until your child is adopted; and

(2) Your child can still inherit from you unless and until your child is adopted.

This is a very serious matter. You should contact an attorney immediately so that you can be prepared for the court hearing. You have the right to hire an attorney and have him or her represent you. If you cannot afford to hire an attorney, the court will appoint an attorney if the court finds that you are an indigent person. Whether or not you decide to hire an attorney, you have the right to attend the hearing in your case, to call witnesses on your behalf, and to question those witnesses brought against you.

If you have any questions concerning this notice, you may call the telephone of the clerk's office which is 770-267-1346.

WITNESS THE HONORABLE
J. STANLEY RHYMER,
Judge of said Juvenile Court.

This 12th day of August, 2021.

NOTICE OF SUMMONS AND EFFECT OF TERMINATION JUDGMENT

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN, the mother CRYSTAL DIANE ANDERSON and

TIMOTHY STEPHEN ANDERSON the father of C. M.A. and T. E. A.:

Georgia law provides that you can permanently lose your rights as a parent. A petition to terminate parental rights has been filed requesting the court to terminate your parental rights to your child. A court hearing for your case has been scheduled for the 1st day of November 2021, at 8:45a.m. at the Juvenile Court of Walton County. A copy of the Petition may be obtained from the Clerk of the Juvenile Court at Walton County Courthouse, Monroe, Georgia, during regular business hours, Monday through Friday, 9:00 o'clock am until 5:00 o'clock p.m. exclusive of holidays. A free copy shall be available to the parents. Upon request, the copy will be mailed to the requester - parents or alleged parents only. The general nature of the allegations are abandonment and failure to comply with your reunification case plan. If you fail to appear, the court can terminate your rights in your absence. If the court at the trial finds that the facts set out in the petition to terminate parental rights are true and that termination of your rights will serve the best interest of your child, the court can enter a judgment ending the rights to your child. If the judgment terminates your parental rights, you will no longer have any rights to your child. This means that you will not have the right to visit, contact, or have custody of your child or make any decisions affecting your child or your child's earnings of property. Your child will be legally freed to be adopted by someone else. Even if your parental rights are terminated: (1) You will still be responsible for providing financial support (child support payments) for your child's care unless and until your child is adopted; and (2) Your child can still inherit from you unless and until your child is adopted. This is a very serious matter. You should contact an attorney immediately so that you can be prepared for the court hearing. You have the right to hire an attorney and have him or her represent you. If you cannot afford to hire an attorney, the court will appoint an attorney if the court finds that you are an indigent person. Whether or not you decide to hire an attorney, you have the right to attend the hearing in your case, to call witnesses on your behalf, and to question those witnesses brought against you. If you have any questions concerning this notice, you may call the telephone of the clerk's office which is 770-267-1346.

God is alive and well!

Sunday at Calvary our choir director Mr. Don Johnson led the choir in singing, "Amazing Grace, my Chains are Gone" and "Turn Your Eyes Upon Jesus" with Christy Nix leading.

Pastor Matt's message was "The Demonic Nature of Idolatry," reading from 1 Corinthians 10:14-22. Pastor shared with us today, we will see the necessity of fleeing from idolatry. His points were:

- 1) Flee from Idolatry.
- 2) One in Christ.
- 3) Fellowship With Demons.
- 4) Provoking the Lord.

In his conclusion he shared, do you have idols in your life? He spoke of false teachers saying that "When I've gone the last mile of the way."

The youth ministry was on fire again for the Lord for praise and worship. Deacon Tommy Brown read the Scripture from Psalm 139:12-24 and Deacon Terry Latimore offered the prayer.

Deacon David Hyman III did an outstanding job presiding. Brother Nicholas Carswell was back on the keyboard giving God all the praise.

Brother Alex Booker extended a warm welcome and read the announcements. Sister Jasanit Starks came forward and along with the congregation saluted the flags and recited the youth pledge.

Our speaker of the hour was Deacon Derwin Thomas. He brought a soul-stirring message titled, "A Relationship With Jesus is the Good Part." The Scripture reading came from Luke 10:28-32.

Some remarks came from our youth director, Sister Tiffany Sorrells, Deacon David Hyman III and our wonderful pastor, the Rev. Clinton Sorrells Sr., and he also blessed the offerings.

First Christian Church welcomes all to worship on Sundays at 10:30 a.m. Weekly small-group Bible studies are also available.

Sunday, Aug. 29, Pastor Danny taught on the Holy Spirit from Romans 8:27. We learned every Christian has the Holy Spirit, from Verse 9. The Holy Spirit empowers us to conquer temptation, provides guidance, will produce a bodily resurrection in us, confirms our salvation, supports us in our suffering and intercedes in prayer for us in agreement with the will of God. There was so much more in the lesson on the third member of the Trinity that it can't all be listed here.

There is precious encouragement in the Word of God for us all.

Services Sunday morning will begin at 9 (contemporary, in the fellowship hall) and 11 (traditional, in the sanctuary).

A sermon series, "Jesus Confidential," on the Sermon on the Mount continues this week. The Rev. John Purrington's sermon will be "Homestyle Cooking, Please..." from Matthew 5:13-16.

Let's talk about salt — among other things, salt preserves, flavors and most importantly transforms. Even with newborn disciples, from our first moments with Jesus, we are meant to enable God's kingdom to break through and transform a world lost from God's love. Homestyle cooking is "salty" of course; that's why we love it so.)

Wednesday night activities have resumed with dinner at 5:30 and Bible studies at 6:30. A love offering will be taken and all FUMC preschool families eat free. To make reservations, contact office@fumcmonroe.org or 770-267-6525.

Purrington will lead a Bible study at 10 a.m. in the sanctuary and 6:30 p.m. in the fellowship each Wednesday.

Jordan Dean and Sydney Morton star in "Harry & Meghan: Escaping the Palace," premiering Monday on Lifetime.

Lifetime's latest 'Harry & Meghan' movie traces their royal exit

For the third of Lifetime's drama movies about Prince Harry and wife Meghan Markle, it helped that the two stars had worked together before.

Jordan Dean and Sydney Morton appeared in a stage-musical version of "American Psycho," but they clearly have much different roles in "Harry & Meghan: Escaping the Palace," which the cable network debuts Monday, Sept. 6. The film recounts the massively reported split by the Duke and Duchess of Sussex from their family, encompassing their candid, much-watched interview with Oprah Winfrey ... in which Meghan revealed that her strong feeling of isolation drove her to suicidal thoughts during her first pregnancy. (The couple welcomed their second child in June.)

Previously seen in the series "Manifest" and "She's Gotta Have It," pleasant actress Morton allows that she "never really got those comments, and I never thought it about myself" regarding any resemblance to Meghan. "Then, a friend of mine said to me, 'You know, you kind of look like Meghan Markle. Has anyone ever told you that?' And I said, 'No!' And a week later, I got this audition, so I have to believe my friends manifested it for me."

Morton, who spent time in England as a Royal Academy of Dramatic Art student, credits the movie's "incredible hair and makeup team, and the wardrobe people" with giving her even more of Meghan's look. She notes she also "had so much material to help me get her body language and mannerisms down."

Having another friend play Harry to her Meghan proved to be an immense help to Morton, also a singer-dancer who starred in a touring production of "Flashdance." She laughs, "What are the odds?," about being cast again opposite Dean. "You hope that you'll connect with your scene partner, and I already knew that I could, so we were very excited that we got to do this together."

Lifetime will repeat its first two movies in the franchise, "Harry & Meghan: A Royal Romance" and "Harry & Meghan: Becoming Royal," as well as "William & Kate" immediately before "Escaping the Palace" premieres. Morton realizes that with Meghan having been an actress – notably on the series "Suits" – there's an extra challenge to being a performer playing someone who also is a performer.

"There is professional Meghan giving a statement, then there are those moments where you can tell she's more vulnerable or caught off-guard," Morton reasons. "I definitely think that as her time in the palace went on, we got to see more and more of her vulnerability coming out in interviews. I could identify with her presenting the version of herself that she wanted to, and also the version that is the 'real' Meghan."

Send summer out in style with a clambake

For the seafood lover, there is nothing quite as satisfying as a clambake.

Be it with lobster, shrimp, mussels, various filets of fish or, of course, everyone's favorite mollusk, the sight of a pile of seafood steaming over a large pot of water and its accompanying aromas are enough to get the taste buds at attention and the mouth watering. It truly is a feast for the senses.

So if you're at a loss for what to do for your next dinner party in the coming weeks, try out a clambake, outdoors or in. It's easier than you think, especially with the guidance of the following online videos.

In a clip from NBC's "Today" (www.youtube.com/watch?vLXY2KDrGmpe), Al Roker departs from his usual weather beat to show how to do a traditional New England clambake with clams, lobster, shrimp, corn, potatoes, kielbasa, onions, white wine and various seasonings in a large pot. He also demonstrates the critical prep work that needs to be done (rinsing the sand from the clams; removing the beards from the mussels) before they go in the water.

On the "Cooking Everything Outdoors Show" (www.youtube.com/watch?vW1A7uGhk9Qw), Greg from Ballistic BBQ proves you don't need to live near a beach to produce an authentic clambake. Here, he employs his Weber Kettle in which he alternates layers of charcoal and rocks to produce radiant heat. On top of that goes seaweed, which serves as the bed on which the clams, mussels, lobster, corn and other ingredients will roast, covered by another layer of seaweed. Remove from heat and serve. It looks impressive and likely tastes even more so.

If the weather outside isn't so great, New England chef Jasper White shows how you can take the production indoors in this video from Epicurious (www.youtube.com/watch?vvQFGehieNF8), in which he adapts a traditional clambake for the kitchen stove. Here, he puts his seafood, potatoes, chorizo, corn and other ingredients in a bag with his own secret ingredient, an egg, and steams in a pot of water. Fifteen minutes later, you have a New England clambake for four. Dining at its finest.

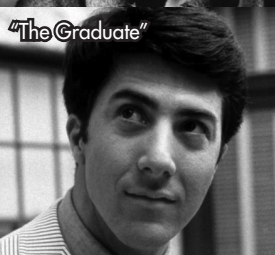

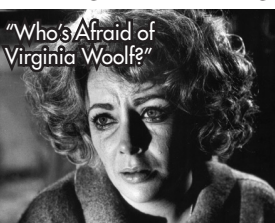

For sheer volume, you can't beat the Maine clambake in this video from Mark Wiens (www.youtube.com/watch?vZTHGLifvqf4). Here, hops a boat to Cabbage Island in Booth Bay to partake in a clambake consisting of 298 lobsters, plus piles of clams, corn, potatoes, onions, eggs and other ingredients, cooked in traditional seaweed. It's an experience that's open to anyone willing to pay the $69 charge for the meal and boat ride but make sure you make reservations early as there is a waiting list.

BEST MIKE NICHOLS MOVIES

"Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?" (1966) Nichols made his screen directing debut with this searing adaptation of Edward Albee's play about a bickering couple (Elizabeth Taylor, Richard Burton) and their relatively innocent dinner guests (George Segal, Sandy Dennis). Taylor and Dennis won Academy Awards here.

"The Graduate" (1967) The one-of-a-kind classic that largely made Nichols' career, this comedy-drama - which earned him an Oscar, and starts a Turner Classic Movies tribute night to Nichols on Wednesday, Sept. 8 - boasts Simon & Garfunkel tunes and holds up beautifully. Dustin Hoffman became an immediate star as Benjamin, the nervous college grad who falls prey to the wily Mrs. Robinson (Anne Bancroft), then falls for her daughter (Katharine Ross).

"Carnal Knowledge" (1971) The relationships among four people (Jack Nicholson, Ann-Margret, Candice Bergen, Art Garfunkel) form an emotional roller coaster over many years.

"Silkwood" (1983) Meryl Streep is both powerful and heartbreaking in the true story of the nuclear plant worker determined to expose unsafe conditions.

"Heartburn" (1986) An underrated Nichols gem, this comedy based on Nora Ephron's novel mirrors the ups and downs of her relationship with reporter Carl Bernstein. Streep and Nicholson are typically great as the couple.

"Working Girl" (1988) Nichols is in top form with this comedy about a secretary (Melanie Griffith) who uses her boss' absence (Sigourney Weaver) to engineer a business deal with a down-on-his-luck broker (Harrison Ford).

"The Birdcage" (1996) "La Cage aux Folles" gets a Nichols-caliber spin, with Robin Williams and Nathan Lane great as companions who stage an elaborate charade for the prospective in-laws of the Williams character's son.

"Wit" (TV, 2001) Nichols began an association with HBO by directing Emma Thompson (who also adapted the script) in Margaret Edson's play about a professor's struggle to come to terms with her cancer.

"Angels in America" (TV, 2003) Also made for HBO, Nichols tackled Tony Kushner's award-winning play about various individuals at the crest of the AIDS crisis. Nichols earned an Emmy (as he had for "Wit") by directing Streep, Thompson and Al Pacino, among many others.

2021 TOUR Championship 12 p.m. on GOLF
Final round action in the TOUR Championship tees off today at East Lake Golf Club in Atlanta, where the players at the top of the leaderboard will be vying to win the $15 million FedEx Cup title and a five-year PGA Tour exemption. Last year, Dustin Johnson was that lucky recipient when he held off a hard-charging Justin Thomas and Xander Schauffele on the back nine in the last round to win by two strokes.

Guilt on Masterpiece 9 p.m. on WGTV
On the way home from a wedding, tipsy brothers Max and Jake (Mark Bonnar, Jamie Sives) strike an elderly pedestrian and leave him to die in a hit-and-run incident. Trying to cover up their involvement, they go to the victim's wake to retrieve a piece of incriminating evidence and Jake makes a connection with Angie (Ruth Bradley), the dead man's closest relative. Complications ensue. Emun Elliott, Sian Brooke and Bill Paterson also appear in the four-part drama, which airs in two back-to-back episodes tonight and next Sunday.

“Movie: Blood Brothers: Malcolm X & Muhammad Ali”

From director Marcus A. Clarke (“The Wizrd”) comes this documentary that uses archival footage to explore the relationship between the human rights activist and Nation of Islam leader and the three-time heavyweight champion, one that began with Ali’s conversion to Islam and ended with Malcom X’s split from the Nation. (ORIGINAL)

“Metal Shop Masters”

Tensions flare and sparks fly — literally — in this six-episode competition series that pits seven top welders in challenges ranging from one-of-a-kind barbecue grills to futuristic vehicles, with the final products judged on the basis of form and function. Stand-up comic and actor Jo Koy (“Mr. Iglesias”) is the host. (ORIGINAL)

“Movie: Kate”

When assassin Kate (Mary Elizabeth Winstead, “Smashed”) discovers she’s been poisoned after she blows an assignment, she has 24 hours to exact revenge on the perpetrators before the slow-acting substance can kill her in this thriller movie from director Cedric-Nicolas Troyan (“The Huntsman: Winter’s War”). Michiel Huisman and Woody Harrelson also star. (ORIGINAL)

“Lucifer”

The sixth and final season of this comedy finds the world unraveling without a God and Lucifer (Tom Ellis) at a loss as to what to do next. Lauren German, D.B. Woodside, Lesley-Ann Brandt, Rachael Harris, Aimee Garcia and Kevin Alejandro also return for the series’ swan song. (ORIGINAL)

"We had to be extra-careful about being intimate in any way. In fact, we needed a rapid test right before a hug. That threw a real wrench in the romance department."
— Amy Smart of "DC's Stargirl" on The CW, on filming scenes in the COVID age

"This is about a cheerleader as seen through the eyes of a cheerleader. I don't think it's been done before, a cheerleader writing about her own experience." — Grace Patterson, seen recently in "Cheer for Your Life" on Lifetime, about a proposed drama series she's developing

"We just had a plastic bag flying around that we mistook for a ghost. That wasn't any great comedic idea; it was just, literally, 'There's a plastic bag.'"

Little Women: Atlanta

8 p.m. on LIFE

Things are still pretty tense between Amanda and Juicy when they both find themselves in a pumpkin patch in the new episode "Rice to the Occasion." Elsewhere, Juicy's friend Mia X from No Limit Records throws down a challenge to the gang that has all the ladies boiling over. Later, Loni Love discusses the question of who really won that jingle competition with Abira and Ms. Juicy, who also reveals why she thinks Amanda got so irritated with her at the voter registration event.

Secrets of a Marine's Wife

8 p.m. on LIFEMOV

Sadie Calvano ("Mom") stars in this 2021 true-crime docu-drama about 19-year-old Erin Corwin, who was married to a U.S. Marine corporal and expecting their first child when she abruptly vanished. Two months later, after an exhaustive search through Joshua Tree National Park, Erin's body is found at the bottom of an abandoned mine-shaft. As the close-knit military community closes ranks while wondering whether Erin was killed by one of their own, investigators discover the paternity of Erin's unborn child was a matter of conjecture.

When Nature Calls With Helen Mirren

9 p.m. on WSB

Several unhappy animals find themselves stuck on an apparently endless Zoom conference call in "Uncle Antelope's Truth Bombs," a new episode of this family-friendly "docu-comedy" narrated by Helen Mirren. Among other highlights, elephants receive lessons in etiquette, and a squirrel hosting a home shopping program is stalked by a deranged viewer.

“The Smurfs”

9/11: The Legacy
7 p.m. on HIST
Millions of kids awoke on the morning of Sept. 11, 2001, anticipating a Tuesday much like any other. By the end of that fateful day, though, eight had died and more than 3,000 had lost a parent. This poignant new documentary shares extraordinary personal stories of how that tragedy affected the lives of some of those children and set a life course for the young adults they are today.

The Smurfs
7:30 p.m. on NICK
Papa Smurf, Smurfette, Brainy and other beloved characters (plus their evil nemesis Gargamel) come to life again in this new CGI-animated reboot, which is in many respects a “true-blue” salute to the 1980s original, with one important change: The cast of characters now includes a tribe of girl Smurfs, led by Willow, their wise matriarch. In the premiere, when Smurfette rescues Brainy from a giant snake, the other Smurfs ask her to teach them “Smurf-Fu.” Later, Handy decides to invent a robot to change Baby Smurf’s diapers.

Bury the Past
8 p.m. on LIFEMOV
After Alice kills her violently abusive police-officer husband — who is regarded by the public as a pillar of his community — she panics, fearing that no one will believe her story, so she flees and goes into hiding. Time passes, but just as Alice begins to think she can relax, an old crony of her late husband turns up on her porch, demanding money to keep quiet about her current whereabouts. Sarah Allen, Damon Runyan and Matt Wells star in this 2021 thriller.

2021 U.S. Open Tennis
4 p.m. on ESPN
There is a women's championship to be determined today in New York, where the U.S. Open reaches its penultimate day with the ladies' final. Last year at USTA Billie Jean King National Tennis Center, Naomi Osaka claimed her second U.S. Open title and third Grand Slam with her 1-6 6-3 6-3 victory over Victoria Azarenka in the final.

United 93
6 p.m. on SHOW
Much debate about the timing of the release — almost five years after the actual tragedy — surrounded writer-director Paul Greengrass' undeniably powerful drama about the events aboard one of the passenger jets hijacked in the 9/11 terrorist attacks. The use of hand-held cameras emphasizes the uncertainty and fear of those aboard the plane, some of whom ultimately took matters into their own hands by mapping out a plan to storm the cockpit. David Alan Basche and Cheyenne Jackson star.

MLB Baseball
7:30 p.m. on WAGA
The so-called Subway Series takes on added importance tonight at Citi Field, where Anthony Rizzo and the New York Yankees will try to continue their ascent in the AL East standings with a win over Pete Alonso and the crosstown Mets. While the Yankees have come alive in the season's second half, spurred by the trade deadline acquisitions of Rizzo and Joey Gallo, the Mets have done a nosedive in the NL East, done in by injuries and a lack of hitting.

Dustin Hoffman in "The Graduate"

'The Graduate' still makes the grade

Not only does "The Graduate" remain one of the most brilliant satires yet made, it also can be credited with launching the counterculture wave that pervaded films toward the end of its decade. Launching a Turner Classic Movies tribute night to director Mike Nichols (who won an Oscar here) Wednesday, Sept. 8, the 1967 comedy charts the post-college odyssey of Benjamin Braddock (an ideal Dustin Hoffman), who's more than a little worried about his future.

His aimlessness makes him prey for his parents' seductive friend Mrs. Robinson (Anne Bancroft, also sterling), and when he falls for her daughter Elaine (Katharine Ross), trouble results. Songs by Simon & Garfunkel are used superbly, and the supporting cast is loaded with expert talents including Buck Henry (who also co-wrote the screenplay), William Daniels, Elizabeth Wilson, Murray Hamilton, Norman Fell and (extremely briefly) Richard Dreyfuss.

InFocus

"Rhodes to the Top" (TNT — series premiere, Sept. 29)

Professional wrestlers Cody and Brandi Rhodes take viewers beyond the ring to give a look into their personal lives. With a support team that includes friends, family and a motley crew of other wrestlers, the duo continue to build AEW's global wrestling empire. However, they now face their biggest challenge yet ... becoming first-time parents!

"Queens" (ABC — series premiere, Oct. 19)

Four women in their 40s reunite for a chance to recapture their fame and regain the swagger they had as legends in the 1990s hip-hop world. Eve, Naturi Naughton, Nadine Velazquez and Brandy star in this scripted musical series that also features Taylor Sele as the hip-hop group's legendary manager.
